INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Aid Budget

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the budget allocation for (a) Thailand, (b) Burma, (c) Malaysia, (d) Cambodia, (e) Vietnam, (f) Laos, (g) Indonesia, (h) Singapore, (i) Philippines and (j) East Timor (i) was in 2005-06 and (ii) is in 2006-07. [77795]

Mr. Thomas: DFID allocates annual programme budgets for five of the countries specified: Burma, Cambodia, East Timor, Indonesia and Vietnam. DFID spends modest sums in some of the other countries specified through regional projects and through support for non-governmental organisation (NGO) projects bid for through DFID's Civil Society Challenge Fund.

The following table provides details of total DFID spend by country for 2005-06 and 2006-07:

Country programme	2005-06	£ million 2006-07
Burma	7.545	8.000
Cambodia	11.834	12.831
East Timor	2.049	2.089
Indonesia	32.316	30.347
Indonesia Tsunami	14.000	18.500
Laos	0.050	0.210
Philippines	[1]—	[1]—
Regional	2.085	2.049
Singapore	[1]—	[1]—
Thailand	[1]—	[1]—
Vietnam	55.000	50.000

[1] None.

Burma

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what research he has commissioned on the role aid can play in promoting democracy in Burma. [77794]

Mr. Thomas: During the last year DFID has commissioned two research projects that examine the role that aid can play in promoting democracy in Burma.

Firstly, the Burma Strategic Development Assessment (SDA), undertaken on behalf of a range of donors currently active in Burma, identifies barriers to the achievement of sustainable peace and a successful transition to democracy. The SDA concludes that international humanitarian assistance should both ensure that conflict is not exacerbated, and, where possible, should contribute to the creation of the conditions necessary for a successful transition to democracy. Secondly, the Katalyx (Burma Change) programme has researched a number of change processes in Burma to better understand how change happens, and how change could be influenced through development assistance.

These two pieces of work suggest that there is an opportunity for donors to do more through their programmes to support peace-building and to help build the foundations of democracy in Burma. They suggest that donors should look to achieve humanitarian impact and to ensure that their programmes are conflict sensitive, but that they should also proactively seek opportunities to strengthen the key building blocks of democracy such as local accountability and local participation in decision making, through initiatives bringing together a range of Burmese partners (particularly from civil society, but also possibly the media, the private sector and local government). We are now considering how best this approach could be put into action.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of aid in the form of (a) food, (b) medical supplies and (c) shelter is being supplied to internally displaced Karen, Shan and Karenni people in Burma through mechanisms inside the country. [78097]

Mr. Thomas: In October 2005, the Thai Burma Border Consortium estimated that there were 540,000 displaced people in Eastern Burma. Of these, 340,000 were living in ceasefire areas; 108,000 were in State Peace and Development Council (SPDC) relocation sites; and 92,000 were hiding in conflict areas. DFID's approach to providing assistance to these IDPs has been to work inside Burma—including assistance through local civil society groups (DFID has established effective relationships with a range of ethnic minority and other groups), through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), and by trying to improve access to displaced people to benefit from our project activities. These are not the only mechanisms through which donors can help (many, for example, fund cross-border teams operating from Thailand) but they enable access to IDPs who would not be reached by any other means, and through mechanisms which are much less-well supported by other donors.

However, these extremely vulnerable people are very difficult to access—both cross-border from Thailand and from inside Burma—and there are currently no comprehensive figures on how much aid reaches them. We are in discussion with groups both inside and outside Burma to try to identify how we can increase the amount of assistance that reaches displaced people and we will be reviewing the nature of our own support before the end of the year.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what budget he expects to be allocated to Burma in each year between 2006 and 2009. [79246]

Mr. Thomas: The following budgets have been allocated to DFID's bilateral programme in Burma:

2005-06	7.5
2007-08	8.0

In addition to this bilateral programme, approximately 18 per cent. of the European Commission's programme in Burma can be attributed to UK Overseas Development Assistance (ODA) through the UK's annual contribution. Over the past five years, the average of this amount has been £7.5 million.

The budget for 2008-09 has not yet been allocated.

John Barrow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has spent on providing aid to internally displaced people in Burma in the last five years other than through the International Committee of the Red Cross. [79249]

Mr. Thomas: In addition to the support which we have provided to the International Committee of the Red Cross over the past five years, in 2005-06 and 2006-07, we have funded some activities which are delivered through local community organisations and are focussed on directly benefiting internally displaced people (IDPs) hiding in conflict areas (US$364,000 over two years).

Our health, education and rural livelihood projects provide assistance in eastern Burma, and support internally displaced people in temporary settlements and designated relocation sites, as well as other vulnerable people. It is not possible to provide an estimate of the percentage of spending on these projects which reaches IDPs. This is primarily because it is extremely difficult to gather reliable statistics about the demographics of the population in Burma and the origin of project beneficiaries.

John Barrow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of internally displaced people in Burma can be reached by aid delivered inside the country. [79250]

Mr. Thomas: Internally displaced people in Burma are not a homogeneous group. In October 2005, the Thai-Burma Border Consortium, a Thailand-based non-governmental organisation which receives DFID funding, estimated that the number of internally displaced people (IDPs) in eastern Burma was at least 540,000. This comprised approximately 340,000 people in temporary settlements in ceasefire areas administered by ethnic nationalities, 108,000 villagers who had been evicted by the Burmese Government and moved into designated relocation sites and 92,000 civilians hiding from the Burmese Army in areas most affected by armed conflict. The recent military offensive against the Karen people has swelled the number of civilians hiding in conflict areas by as many as 18,000.

DFID provides assistance to IDPs through a number of different routes within Burma. DFID's provision of emergency assistance to IDPs hiding in conflict areas is through local community groups inside Burma. DFID's support to IDPs in temporary settlements in ceasefire areas in eastern Burma is through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), to which we provide £500,000 a year, of which approximately 75 per cent. is attributable to work with displaced people in this area. In addition, our health, education and rural livelihood projects provide assistance in eastern Burma, and support internally displaced people in temporary settlements and designated relocation sites, as well as other vulnerable people.

It is not possible to provide an estimate of the percentage of IDPs in Burma who can be reached by aid delivered inside the country. This is primarily because it is extremely difficult to gather reliable statistics about the demographics of the population in Burma and often of the origin of project beneficiaries. We believe that it is not currently possible to reach all IDPs either cross-border from Thailand or from inside Burma—and that each approach enables access to IDPs who would not be reached by any other means.

John Barrow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the budget allocation is for pro-democracy projects in Burma in 2006-07. [79251]

Mr. Thomas: Increased prospects for a successful transition to a democratic society is one of DFID's four objectives in 2006-07 and all projects funded from DFID's £7.5 million budget for 2006-07 include elements contributing to this outcome. There are no current projects focused entirely on pro-democracy.

However, during the last year, DFID has commissioned two research studies that examine the role that aid can play in promoting democracy in Burma. Firstly, the Burma Strategic Development Assessment (SDA), undertaken on behalf of a range of donors currently active in Burma, identifies barriers to the achievement of sustainable peace and a successful transition to democracy. The SDA concludes that international humanitarian assistance should both ensure that conflict is not exacerbated, and where possible, should contribute to the creation of the conditions necessary for a successful transition to democracy. Secondly, the Kataya (Burma Change) programme has researched a number of change processes in Burma to better understand how change happens, and how change could be influenced through development assistance.

These two pieces of work suggest that there is an opportunity for donors to do more through their programmes to support peace-building and to help build the foundations of democracy in Burma. They suggest that donors should look to achieve humanitarian impact and to ensure that their programmes are conflict sensitive, but that they should also proactively seek opportunities to strengthen the key building blocks of democracy such as local accountability and local participation in decision making, through low-level initiatives bringing together a range of Burmese partners (particularly from civil society, but also possibly the media, the private sector and local government). We are now considering how best this approach could be put into action.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much the Government will contribute to the three diseases fund for Burma in each of the next three years. [79348]

Mr. Thomas: The initial concept of DFID involvement in the new multi-donor fund to tackle HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria in Burma was approved in March 2006, but the final details have yet to be finally approved, including the level of DFID's financial allocation.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether resources from the new three diseases fund for Burma will be able to reach (a) Karen, (b) Shan and (c) other internally displaced peoples; and if he will make a statement. [79549]

Mr. Thomas: The initial concept of DFID involvement in the new multi-donor fund to tackle HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria in Burma was approved in March 2006, but final details of DFID's involvement have yet to be finally approved. One of the decisions we are considering is whether the allocations of the 3D Fund would be able to reach Karen, Shan and other internally displaced people.

Indonesia

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much non-financial assistance the Government have pledged to Indonesia in the aftermath of the recent earthquake. [77933]

Mr. Thomas: DFID sent two humanitarian specialists to Yogyakarta within 48 hours of the earthquake to undertake a rapid assessment of the situation. The field team gathered first-hand information that allowed us to identify critical needs of the affected population. DFID funds were then quickly allocated. Our field team worked with the multilateral organisations and other donors especially in the affected areas to facilitate a comprehensive response.

DFID's Jakarta office supported the field team by liaising with donors and relief agencies based in Jakarta to gather information on others' plans and assessments. In addition, we were able to provide urgent relief in the immediate aftermath of the disaster through local NGOs, co-ordinated by DFID staff from a forestry project based in the affected area. With this support, volunteers organised by the DFID project provided sustenance, shelter and basic household equipment to thousands of people.

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he had with (a) agencies capable of large-scale infrastructure projects, (b) aid agencies and (c) non-governmental organisations in relation to the Indonesian earthquake relief effort. [79908]

Mr. Thomas: DFID staff based in Indonesia have maintained close contact with agencies capable of large-scale infrastructure projects, primarily the World Bank and the Asian Development Bank, in considering the case for a UK contribution to the long-term reconstruction effort. We are now actively discussing with these agencies practical options for supporting the reconstruction of housing, which was particularly badly hit by the earthquake.

In addition, DFID staff have held regular discussions with a wide range of other aid agencies and NGOs, both local and international, in assessing needs and co-ordinating responses to the earthquake. These discussions were crucial in informing the allocation of the £5 million so far committed by DFID to the humanitarian relief phase of the disaster.

Inter-American Development Bank

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of his Department's funding for South America in 2006-07 is being channelled through the Inter-American Development Bank. [78051]

Mr. Thomas: DFID's main financial contribution to Latin America (South and Central America) is through our contributions to multi lateral organisations working in the region such as the European Commission, and the concessional lending of the Inter American Development Bank (IADB) and the World Bank. There is no replenishment of the IADB's concessional lending fund in 2006-07. However, the UK has agreed to commit £2 million this year to the IADB administered Multilateral Investment Fund, which provides financial assistance primarily through grants.

DFID's bilateral programme in Latin America is £12 million in 2006-07. An additional £7 million per year is provided through six international NGOs (OXFAM, CARE, CAFOD, HIV/AIDS Alliance, WWF and Christian Aid) for work with civil society. DFID also provides assistance through centrally managed programmes (research and the Civil Society Challenge Fund) and through debt relief. DFID works with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and the Ministry of Defence (MOD) on the Global Conflict Prevention Pool for Latin America.

In 2005, DFID established the Markets and Governance for Poverty Reduction Trust Fund with the IADB, with funding of £1,200,000 planned for 2006-07. The IADB has also established a Trade and Poverty Trust Fund, with DFID funding of £200,000 in 2006-07. A further £400,000 will be provide through the ENLACE trust fund, which tackles social exclusion in Central America.

Iraq

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much UK aid was provided (a) bilaterally and (b) multilaterally to Iraq in (i) 2003, (ii) 2004 and (iii) 2005. [79804]

Hilary Benn: The UK Government have pledged a total of £544 million for humanitarian and reconstruction assistance in Iraq from 2003 to 2006. This includes contributions from DFID, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), the Ministry of Defence (MOD), the Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP) and the UK's share of EC funding. The UK has disbursed over £533 million.

DFID has disbursed £354 million on humanitarian and reconstruction assistance to Iraq since March 2003. We have also provided 19 per cent. of European Community (EC) development funding: EC assistance to Iraq totalled €518.5 million for 2003 to 2005, and a further €200 million has been approved for 2006.

DFID spending can be broken down as follows:

	Total bilateral gross public expenditure (£m)	Total DFID bilateral programme (£m)	Imputed multilateral shares DFID multilateral (£m)	Contributions to multilateral agencies
2003	115	110	5	£84 million to UN agencies for 2003 Appeal £18 million to Red Cross £8 million to International Finance Corporation (IFC) £0.8 million to International Monetary Fund (IMF)
2004	150	144	—[1]	£70 million to UN and World Bank Trust Funds

[1] Still to be verified.
Note:
Statistics for 2005 are, as yet, unavailable.

The Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP), funded jointly by DFID, the FCO and MOD, has disbursed £38 million on Iraq since 2003. In addition, the FCO has spent £38 million on reconstruction activities in Iraq, and the MOD has spent £35 million on Quick Impact Projects.

Millennium Development Goal

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will take steps to seek agreement to a specific millennium development goal which focuses on disability. [78425]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 19 June 2006]: The Government believe that disabled people must be included in efforts to reduce poverty and achieve the internationally agreed millennium development goals (MDGs). We recognise that the needs of disabled people must be addressed across all the MDGs to ensure their achievement in an inclusive manner.

The Department for International Development's (DFID) approach to disability is set out in an Issues Paper—"Disability, Poverty and Development"—published in 2000; copies of which have been deposited in the Libraries of the House. DFID seeks to take account of disability issues across all its activities, as well as supporting a specific range of activities to empower disabled people. In September 2005, DFID also published a policy paper on social exclusion, entitled "Reducing Poverty by Tackling Social Exclusion"; again, copies of this document have been deposited in the Libraries of the House. This sets out actions that DFID is taking, or plans to take, to tackle the social exclusion faced by many poor people, including disabled people, to make a real difference to their lives.

The Government are actively supporting the drafting of a United Nations International Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. The purpose of the convention is to enable disabled people across the world to have the same access to human rights protection as non-disabled people. If the convention is adopted, it will enable Governments to be called to account for their record on protecting disabled people from human rights abuses and help raise the profile of disability issues worldwide.

DFID also seeks to work with our international partners—including UN agencies, the World Bank and partner Governments—to gain further support for tackling issues of disability and other forms of social exclusion. However, we do not believe this requires the creation of a new MDG and furthermore, it could also detract from efforts to mainstream disability issues across all the MDGs.

Water and Sanitation

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of his Department's budget was spent on water and sanitation in each of the last five financial years; and if he will make a statement. [79278]

Hilary Benn: The following table gives figures on water and sanitation bilateral expenditure as a percentage of DFID bilateral aid (excludes poverty reduction budget support):

	Percentage
2000-01	0.9
2002-03	1.1

All DFID's bilateral expenditure is allocated to specific Input Sector Codes, and these figures are based on this information. However, as water and sanitation initiatives are so cross-cutting, this approach is not sensitive enough to identify all expenditure in this area. DFID has therefore done further research to produce a more detailed analysis of its water and sanitation expenditure. DFID does not allocate its multilateral aid by sector, but we have taken steps to estimate this for water and sanitation. Based on these figures, DFID's total expenditure on water and sanitation was £221 million in 2003-04, an increase from £147 million in 2002-03.

In response to the current situation where most of sub-Saharan Africa is off-track to meet the water and sanitation MDG targets, I have committed to double spending on water supply and sanitation sectors in Africa from £47.5 million in 2004-05 to £95 million in 2007-08. We anticipate that meeting the commitment will require an increase in expenditure through all funding mechanisms, including our own bilateral programmes, but also through encouraging others such as the World Bank and the EU to do more in water and sanitation.

A copy of the report entitled "Financial Support to the Water Sector 2002-04", has been placed in the Libraries of both Houses in response to previous similar questions.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Abattoirs

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many abattoirs in Dorset (a) there are and (b) there were in 1997. [75846]

Barry Gardiner: There are five abattoirs currently operating in Dorset. The Department has no figure available for the number of abattoirs operating in 1997, although the national picture shows that a reduction and some consolidation has occurred over this period.

Amazon Deforestation

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make a statement on illegal logging in the Amazon rain forest. [78933]

Barry Gardiner: We recognise that deforestation is a serious problem in the Amazon. Our efforts to tackle illegal logging rely on close co-operation between a number of Government Departments including DFID, FCO and DEFRA.

Estimates from the intergovernmental panel on climate change (IPCC) suggest that deforestation (including logging in rain forests) is currently responsible for about 20 per cent. of anthropogenic greenhouse gas emissions. Our policy is that emissions reductions from reduced deforestation should be part of developing countries' participation in international climate change agreements and we are participating actively in negotiations and associated technical discussions that can help to bring it about.

The British Government have initiated a high-level dialogue on sustainable development with the Brazilian Government and national stakeholders to promote action on commonly identified sustainable development challenges—including natural resource protection.

DEFRA, through its work on the convention on biological diversity (CBD) and other fora, is committed to international efforts for the conservation and sustainable use of forest biodiversity. Through the Darwin Initiative, it has committed more than £5 million to collaborative forestry projects, drawing on UK expertise to help developing countries design and implement conservation measures.

We are also working within the G8 and the EU to recognise our role as consumers by expressing our wish to buy forest products only from responsibly managed forests.

Bankrupt Farmers

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of farmers who went bankrupt in (a) England, (b) Yorkshire and the Humber and (c) Beverley and Holderness in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [77599]

Barry Gardiner: The Department does not hold this information.

Beef Exports

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how long he expects it to take for British beef exports to reach their 1996 levels. [76178]

Barry Gardiner: The Meat and Livestock Commission (MLC) estimates that in 2006 UK exports could be about 40,000 tonnes divided equally between prime beef and cow beef. There is also strong interest in exporting pedigree breeding stock and other cattle (including calves).

However, it will of course take time to regain lost markets and to approach previous record export levels, which amounted to nearly £600 million for beef exports and £78 million for cattle in 1995.

Biodiversity

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department plans to take to monitor the extent to which public bodies which report to him comply, from October, with their duty to conserve biodiversity in exercising their functions, under section 40 of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006. [74403]

Barry Gardiner: Under Section 40 of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006, all public bodies have a duty to have regard to the conservation of biodiversity in the exercising of their functions. There is no statutory obligation on Departments to monitor the extent to which public bodies comply with this duty. My Department is working with a wide range of partners to develop guidance for public bodies to support the implementation of this duty and will involve all relevant Departments on the development of guidance.

CAP Reform

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has for further reform of the Common Agricultural Policy, with particular reference to evaluating the advantages of nationalising resources. [76046]

Barry Gardiner: We want a CAP which enables EU farming to be internationally competitive without reliance on subsidy or protectionism, so that it is able to meet the challenges and reap the opportunities of globalisation.

Farming should be rewarded by the market for its output of safe, quality food and by the taxpayer for delivering public benefits (such as environmental protection) which the market cannot deliver. Major steps have been made recently in this direction but the cost of the CAP to consumers and taxpayers is still very high in relation to the public benefits which it delivers.

The UK has long advocated reductions in CAP subsidy levels, the end of export subsidies, greater market access for developing countries, the removal of market distorting measures such as production quotas and greater transfer of CAP funding to schemes which bring environmental benefits.

Whatever reforms are agreed to the CAP on the budgetary side, it is important that EU agriculture operates within a common policy framework which does not lead to trade distortion between member states. What we have called for is a review to see how the CAP can be reformed to deliver better value for EU citizens, reduce inefficiencies and remaining trade distortion and achieve a more competitive farm industry.

Climate Change

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what contribution the UK Government are making to the development of EU policy on tackling climate change. [79332]

Ian Pearson: During its presidency of the EU the UK put climate change high on the agenda, raising its status as a key EU issue in contacts with other countries and driving forward international negotiations. Momentum built up during our presidency ensures we are able to continue working closely with our EU partners to secure agreement on further action in the EU on climate change. We are working closely with the Commission and member states on the review of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme, which will help strengthen the scheme post-2012. We are participating fully in the process to develop a second European Climate Change Programme, designed to deliver ambitious cuts in emissions in the medium and long-term. And we are helping to steer the development of the EU's energy strategy to ensure that it takes into account climate change concerns.

The UK is also pressing the Commission to include aviation in the Emissions Trading Scheme from 2008 or as soon as possible thereafter. The Council of Ministers has indicated its support for this and we expect the Commission to present a legislative proposal by the end of 2006.

Correspondence

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2006, Official Report, columns 149-150W, on correspondence, how many letters from hon. Members failed to receive an answer in the period referred to. [77045]

Barry Gardiner: The Department has no correspondence outstanding from 2004. Of the 12,051 letters received in 2005 from hon. and right hon. Members (including Members of the House of Lords), 88 (0.7 per cent.) await reply.

Countryside Stewardship Scheme

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the total level of funding is for the countryside stewardship scheme; and how much funding (a) has been allocated in each agreement year since the scheme's inception and (b) is planned to be allocated in each future agreement year. [77705]

Barry Gardiner: Details of expenditure on the countryside stewardship scheme is set out as follows.

1994-95	10.5
1996-97	12.5
1997-98	17.8
1998-99	22.0
1999-2000	26.1
2000-01	31.9
2001-02	43.4
2002-03	53.1
2003-04	74.1
2004-05	106.5
2005-06	117.4

The countryside stewardship scheme closed to new applications in 2004 with the introduction of the environmental stewardship scheme. Existing agreements will continue until they expire. The last agreements will expire in 2013.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many agreements providing public access there were in each agreement year since the countryside stewardship scheme's inception; and how many such agreements applied to land within two miles of (a) an urban area and (b) the coast in each year. [77706]

Barry Gardiner: Data is only available from 1998. The number of countryside stewardship scheme agreements providing permissive public access in each scheme year since 1998 are as follows:

	Number
1999	789
2000	1,101
2002	1,954
2003	2,419

The answers to parts (a) and (b) could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to how many hectares of land agreements under the countryside stewardship scheme which provided public access applied in each agreement year since the scheme's inception; and how many such agreements applied to land within two miles of (a) an urban area and (b) the coast in each year. [77707]

Barry Gardiner: Data is only available from 1998. The number of hectares of land under countryside stewardship scheme agreements which provided public access since 1998 were as follows:

	Hectares
1999	9,926.14
2000	11,991.90
2002	8,669.26
2003	8,406.88

The answers to parts (a) and (b) could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much funding has been provided under the countryside stewardship scheme for (a) all agreements providing public access, (b) all agreements providing public access within two miles of an urban area and (c) all agreements providing public access within two miles of the coast in each agreement year since the scheme's inception; and how much such funding is planned to be provided in each future agreement year. [77708]

Barry Gardiner: Data is only available from 1998. The amount of funding that has been provided under the countryside stewardship scheme for all agreements providing public access since 1998 is as follows:

1998	5[illegible]153.05
1999	715,461.08
2000	940,558.30
2001	848,021.80
2002	859,521.80
2003	1,769,442.55
2004	1,776,678.92

The answers to parts (b) and (c) could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Public access is only one of the objectives of the scheme. As funding will be allocated to the scheme as a whole rather than to individual objectives, it is not possible to confirm how much funding will be provided for public access specifically in future years. However, funding of existing agreements will continue until the end of their 10-year life-spans.

Criminal Offences Legislation

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will list the criminal offences created in legislation sponsored by his Department since April 2005, broken down by Act. [76909]

Barry Gardiner: A comprehensive and exhaustive list of new offences created in all legislation sponsored by Defra since April 2005 could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Much of the legislation is subordinate and regulatory in nature: some new offences have been created, some offences have been repealed and re-enacted; most of the offences relate to breach of the regulations or obstruction of officers enforcing the regulations. Many of the offence provisions relate to emergency legislation arising from the threat of avian influenza.

I can however provide the following information on primary legislation which has created offences since April 2005.

The Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 (c.16) created the following offences:

"nuisance parking" which is the selling or repairing of vehicles on a road by persons in business; breach of "dog control orders": in relation to specified land such orders may exclude dogs from the land, prohibit the fouling of the land, require dogs to be kept on leads when on the land or limit the number of dogs a person may take onto the specified land;

in relation to certain premises in an "Alarm Notification Area" Part 7 of the Act created the offence of failing to nominate a key-holder where an audible intruder alarm is present.

The Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 also made many existing offences punishable by fixed penalty notices.

The Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006 (c. 16) created the following offences:

possession without reasonable excuse of certain pesticides harmful to wildlife (section 43); interfering with the vacated nests of certain birds such as the golden eagle and the osprey which habitually re-use their nests (section 47); selling any live captive-bred wild bird which has been lawfully released into the wild as part of a re-population or re-introduction programme (section 48);

in relation to certain invasive non-native species such as the grey squirrel, ruddy duck or Japanese knotweed, selling any animal or plant, or eggs or seeds thereof (section 50); interfering with Sites of Specific Scientific Interest (SSSIs) in various ways including interfering with the notices or signs relating to an SSSI.

Departmental Budget

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 24 May 2006, Official Report, column 1818W, on the Departmental Budget, what the reason was for the change in the amount spent on advertising in 2005-06 from the amount in 2004-05. [77394]

Barry Gardiner: Media expenditure reverted back to realistic levels in 2004-05, and 2005-06. Centralised media expenditure in 2003-04 was noticeably less than previous and recent years, and reflected an uncharacteristic dip in total communications expenditure for that year. Defra underwent significant structural changes in 2003-04 which was the main reason for the temporary decline in expenditure, including:

Changes in managing "statutory notice" advertising, which accounts for 83 per cent. of annual media spend. The change in process, and handover between agencies was reflected in minimal levels in advertising activity.

Defra's branding being finalised during 2003-04. This impacted on advertising expenditure, as it is usual practice that when any brand is under review or under development, advertising activity is minimised or even put on hold.

Disability Access

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether any building in his Department falls short of disability access regulations. [73097]

Barry Gardiner: Defra, in recognising that as employers and service provider to the public they are subject to the duties under the Disability Discrimination Act 1995, has previously undertaken extensive surveys and embarked upon improvement works in locations where the public have access to ensure compliance with the regulations. While the principle of reasonable adjustment is fundamental to the Act, Defra has adopted a proactive approach as is practicable.

Additionally, significantly, buildings used solely by staff generally comply where it is "reasonable" so to do—where specific instances arise, adjustments are usually made.

All new build projects are designed to ensure compliance with Part M of the Building Regulations.

Environmental Liability Directive

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the Department's policy is on whether doctors, veterinarians and farmers (a) are operators under the environmental liability directive and (b) would consequently be considered liable for the remediation costs of environmental harm if it arose from their use of genetically modified vaccines, crops or other organisms unless UK implementing regulations define the operator otherwise. [77927]

Ian Pearson: The definition of operator in the environmental liability directive suggests that all occupational activities (including doctors, veterinarians and farmers) fall within the scope of the directive. The Government cannot amend the definition to exclude specific occupational activities. The extent to which the specific occupations referred to attract liability—whether strict or fault—under the directive will depend on the precise nature of the activities they undertake and the circumstances in which those activities are undertaken.

In respect of strict liability, genetically modified organisms fall within the scope of the directive and genetically modified vaccines may do so by virtue of the provisions relating to dangerous substances. All genetically modified substances which do not fall within the strict liability provisions of the directive would in any case fall within the fault-based liability provisions in respect of damage to EU- protected biodiversity.

Farming

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people were employed in (a) dairy farming, (b) beef farming, (c) sheep farming, (d) arable farming, (e) mixed farming and (f) other forms of farming in Cumbria in (i) 1990, (ii) 2000 and (iii) 2005. [78941]

Barry Gardiner: The number of workers on agricultural and horticultural holdings by farm type in Cumbria is as follows;

June Agricultural Survey.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much land was given over to organic production in each region in each year since 1990; what the total land area under agricultural use was in each year; and what percentage of all agricultural land the former represented in each year. [78894]

Mr. Bradshaw: The following tables show areas of organic and in-conversion land, total agricultural land and the percentage that organic land represents for all agricultural land. Figures for organic land are only available from 2003 onwards.

GM Organisms

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with representatives of agricultural authorities from the new entrant countries into the EU about their policy on genetically modified organisms; and how many of those countries are permitting cultivation of GM food for export into the UK. [77805]

Ian Pearson: No DEFRA Ministers have had any recent bilateral discussions with representatives of agricultural authorities from the countries which joined the EU on 1 May 2004 about their policy on genetically modified (GM) organisms. However, periodic collective discussions are held, involving all EU member states.

The EU regulatory regime permits the cultivation of only those GM crops which have received a prior EU approval for cultivation. Any approved GM crop so cultivated could then be traded within the internal market, including being exported to the UK. All new member states signed up to this regime when they joined the EU.

Housing

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the Affordable Rural Housing Commission Report's recommendations on (a) second homes and tax, (b) second homes and planning use claims order, (c) public funding proportions for rural communities, (d) right-to-buy and right-to-acquire entitlements in rural areas and (e) changes in the tax system to improve supply of development sites for affordable housing. [74236]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

We are currently considering the report and will use a range of channels and mechanisms to respond in a constructive way to the agenda set by the Commission, including in the forthcoming spending review.

Illegal Immigrants

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many illegal immigrants have been discovered to be employed by his Department in each year since 2001; in what capacities they were employed; how many were discovered as part of a criminal investigation; and what the nature of the charges brought against them were. [73965]

Barry Gardiner: No staff directly employed by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs since 2001, including those on fixed term appointment and casual contracts, have been identified as illegal immigrants.

With regard to agency workers, contractors and consultants etc, security vetting of contractors' staff working in Defra's premises has led to the following:

2001—a security guard was arrested on suspicion of being an illegal immigrant and subsequently deported;

2005—a cleaner was arrested on suspicion of being an illegal immigrant;

2006—a cleaning supervisor was arrested on suspicion of being an illegal immigrant.

None were discovered as part of wider criminal investigations. The Department reports suspicions about the immigration status of staff, whether directly employed or working for contractors, to the appropriate authorities.

Ivory

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) import and (b) export permits the UK has processed for ivory in each year since 1997; and what (i) the nature of the item and (ii) the country of (A) origin or (B) destination was in each case. [76210]

Barry Gardiner: The UK Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES) Management Authority has issued over 14,000 import, export or re-export permits in total since 1997. The number of each category of permit and the number of pieces of ivory involved are set out in the table.

Because of the large number of permits, these figures cannot readily be broken down further into country of origin or destination. In most cases the country of origin is unknown, as the vast majority of applications are for antique ivory and there is no definitive proof to confirm whether the ivory is Indian or African, and even if African, which country it was originally taken from.

Jubilee River, Berkshire

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations the Environment Agency has received about Jubilee River in Berkshire; and what recent assessment he has made of the appropriateness of the design adopted by the Jubilee River designers. [78490]

Ian Pearson: The major representations that the Environment Agency have received over the last few months have come from two groups—Community Support Group South and Thames Awash.

A great deal of work has been carried out to assess the current standard of protection offered by the Jubilee River, as well as the Maidenhead, Windsor and Eton Flood Alleviation Scheme (MWEFAS) as a whole, which the Agency accepts is below that expected when the scheme was designed.

Currently MWEFAS offers protection up to a flow of 420 m^3/s (82 per cent. of the original scheme design capacity). Final works are being carried out this summer, which will further increase the capacity of the scheme (to 450 m^3/s (87 per cent. of the original scheme design capacity).

Parliamentary Ombudsman

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will list those occasions when the recommendations of a report from the parliamentary ombudsman were (a) rejected and (b) partly rejected by his Department since 1997. [76258]

Barry Gardiner: Neither the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra) nor its predecessors have collated figures on the number of occasions where they have refused or omitted to give effect to the recommendations of the parliamentary ombudsman. While a definitive reply could be provided only at disproportionate cost, there is no immediate evidence available that suggests that we have rejected any recommendation from the parliamentary ombudsman since 2001 when Defra was established.

Payment Schemes

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what quality control checks are in place for the administration of the single payment scheme; and what steps he has taken to satisfy himself that these are (a) sufficiently sound to ensure the proper disbursement of public funds and (b) sufficiently robust to meet EU scrutiny standards. [76602]

Barry Gardiner: The Rural Payments Agency is responsible for the administration of the single payment scheme. There is a framework of quality checks in place and they are undertaken at various stages during the processing cycle. For the 2005 scheme year checks were undertaken on data capture, primary and detailed validation processes. There were also authorisation checks following completion of validation. In addition the computer system was designed with internal quality checks to ensure both the proper disbursement of public funds and to meet the EU scrutiny standards.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) highest and (b) lowest single payment scheme individual payment has been made to date; and whether these payments were correct. [76603]

Barry Gardiner: The highest and lowest single payment scheme (SPS) payment made up to and including 8 June are:

Lowest	0.01

These payments were correct based on information provided by the claimant and were calculated in accordance with the SPS EU regulation.

The £0.01 payments are at the extreme end of where penalties apply on a sliding scale if, for example, people over-claim on their land entitlements. A number of calculations are made to the entitlement value of a claim, for example 95 per cent. on entitlement value, 5 per cent. for modulation and the final payable figure, at a low value in instances of high penalties, is subject to rounding.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether, under single payment scheme arrangements, farmers with common grazing rights are being notified of their individual share of commons allocation to enable them to check (a) the methodology and accuracy of the apportionment between the various right-holders and (b) the validity of the single payments made to them. [76604]

Barry Gardiner: Farmers are being notified of the hectarage of the common land which has been allocated to them based on the rights which they hold for the common. The calculation method is detailed on pages 14 and 15 of the 2005 SPS handbook and guidance. The vast majority of claimants making use of common land in support of their claim have now received a payment.

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Department will reply to the letters of (a) 22 March and (b) 21 April 2006 from the hon. Member for West Derbyshire on representations from the National Farmers Union in respect of the single farm payment scheme. [72630]

Barry Gardiner: The problems facing the Rural Payments Agency (RPA) in getting payments out to farmers have resulted in Ministers receiving over 350 letters from MPs relating to their constituents' problems caused by non-receipt of SPS payments.

Changing policy developments, including most notably the change from 15 to 31 May in respect of the date for penalties for late 2006 applications and the introduction of partial payments, have led to regrettable delays in responding.

Replies have been sent.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farmers in England are awaiting payments under the single farm payment scheme. [76031]

Barry Gardiner: The total number of single payment scheme customers is approximately 120,000. As at 14 June 2006, 15,000 customers had not received either a full or partial payment.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact of delays in the single payment scheme on levels of stress among farmers. [79580]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 22 June 2006]: There has been no specific assessment of stress among farmers arising out of the timing of payments under the single payment scheme. However, the Government do recognise that some farmers will have faced cash-flow problems and other hardships due to the timing of these payments. As such, an extra £115,000 in funding was made available to a number of key rural support organisations who deal with such issues.

Mr. Liddell-Grainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the forms for the 2007 single farm payments will be sent out. [67634]

Barry Gardiner: There is no regulatory deadline for the despatch of application forms to the single payment scheme. However, the Rural Payments Agency will aim to issue application forms to all known customers at least one month before the 15 May deadline in 2007.

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farms in the east of England have qualified for subsidies from the EU common agricultural policy fund, broken down by county. [69811]

Barry Gardiner: The single payment scheme is not administered on a regional basis so the Rural Payments Agency is not able to estimate how many applications were submitted by farmers living in the east of England.

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what was the largest single farmer subsidy, including EU subsidy, paid to a farmer in Bassetlaw constituency in (a) 2004 and (b) 2005. [71924]

Barry Gardiner: The largest single CAP subsidy payment made to a farmer in the Bassetlaw constituency in each of the two years requested is:

	Amount (£000)

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what changes there have been in the number of (a) subsidies farmers may claim for and (b) forms farmers have to submit to his Department in each of the last three years. [77615]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 15 June 2006]: The most significant change has been the introduction of the single payment scheme which was introduced on 1 January 2005 and replaced at least 11 direct payment schemes, which had previously existed under the European Common Agricultural Policy. It has brought the benefit of a single annual application form instead of a series of claim forms with different rules, deadlines and, in some cases, claiming frequencies.

The launch of Environmental Stewardship in March 2005 took forward two of Defra's flagship schemes, countryside stewardship and environmentally sensitive areas. Environmental Stewardship has three strands: entry level stewardship is open to all in farming, organic entry level stewardship is available to those wishing to farm organically, and higher level stewardship provides more resource in return for more specific environmental benefits in high priority situations.

In addition, Defra has made a commitment to reduce administrative burdens on farm businesses by 25 per cent. and we are undertaking a number of projects to look at the scope to consolidate and reduce the number of forms that farmers have to complete.

For example, the whole farm approach is expected to significantly reduce the bureaucracy farmers currently face. By streamlining regulation and offering a range of innovative online services the whole process of dealing with Government will become more efficient and user friendly—ultimately providing a range of benefits that will help to support a sustainable food and farming industry.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the National Audit Office on the single farm payment. [78387]

Barry Gardiner: Officials within the Department have discussed various aspects of the implementation of the single payment scheme with the National Audit Office, including in relation to the NAO's current value for money study.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department intends to make interim payments of the hill farm allowance to farmers whose claims have not been received in full by the end of May. [74860]

Barry Gardiner: Where hill farm allowance payments will not have been made in full by the end of June, The Rural Payments Agency intends to make part payments based on those land areas that have been validated for payment. In many cases, this should represent the majority of the area claimed.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reasons payments of the hill farm allowance to farmers on Exmoor have been delayed. [74861]

Barry Gardiner: In recent months the Rural Payments Agency (RPA) has been prioritising the payment of Single Payment Scheme (SPS) claims. This has resulted in reduced processing resources being available for other schemes administered by RPA, including hill farm allowance, and consequently claims are being paid later than in previous years.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects farmers on Exmoor to receive their hill farm allowance. [74862]

Barry Gardiner: Hill farm allowance payments have now been made in full to 35 per cent. of eligible claimants. The Rural Payment Agency intends to make the remaining payments (or to make part payments where full payments are not possible) by the end of June.

Rural Payments Agency (Job Objectives)

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what job objectives were set for the former Chief Executive of the Rural Payments Agency for (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05 and (c) 2005-06; and to what extent they were achieved. [73216]

Barry Gardiner: The job objectives set for the former Chief Executive of the RPA in 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 mirrored the targets set for the Agency in the business plans for each of those years and reported on for 2003-04 and 2004-05 in the published annual report with accounts. The Library of the House possesses copies of all these documents.

Each year the performance against targets of each of the Defra executive agencies is audited by Defra Internal Audit Division and the annual accounts are signed off by the Comptroller and Auditor General. Assessment of chief executives' performance takes place once these checks have been carried out.

In the light of these checks, the assessment for 2003-04 was that the RPA CE had achieved 91.6 per cent. of his objectives and the assessment for 2004-05 was that the RPA CE had achieved 100 per cent. of his objectives. The checks for 2005-06 have not yet been completed.

Rutland Water

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with (a) Anglian

Water and (b) Rutland county council on expanding water supply from Rutland Water. [79240]

Ian Pearson: No recent discussions have been held between my Department and Anglian Water on this issue, although I understand that discussions were held between the then Office of the Deputy Prime Minister and officials from this company during 2005.

School Canteens

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what support the Department is making available to allow farmers to launch initiatives to supply school canteens direct. [79071]

Barry Gardiner: My Department, under the Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative (PSFPI), is continuing to help the nine English Government offices for the regions to fund workshops for buyers and suppliers and projects to develop the supply side. This is increasing opportunities for small local farmers and growers to tender to supply food to schools and other public bodies, either directly or through primary suppliers such as contract caterers, wholesalers and other intermediaries.

My Department is also seeking to work with the School Food Trust which is supporting schools, local authorities, school cooks and catering providers to ensure that food in schools meets the Government's new standards. My Department will also shortly be publishing a guide to help farmers and growers understand how to supply the public sector—a market worth £2 billion a year. This will supplement the advice currently on the PSFPI website, which includes case studies and reports on some of the regional projects already undertaken (http://www.defra.gov.uk/farm/sustain/procurement/index.htm).

Special Protection Areas

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether a regulatory impact assessment will be published in relation to mitigation guidance for special protection areas. [78239]

Barry Gardiner: There are no plans to issue UK guidance on mitigation in relation to special protection areas. However, the European Commission is currently preparing guidance on the payment of compensation for all Natura 2000 sites, including special protection areas. Although this will not directly address the question of mitigation, it will make clear what kind of mitigation measures must have been attempted before compensation can become payable.

It is not normally necessary to publish a regulatory impact assessment when preparing guidance on existing legislation. However, we would certainly do so should it be necessary to amend the legislation on special protection areas for any reason.

Staff Absenteeism

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many working days have been lost to the Department and its executive agencies in each year since 1997 due to staff absenteeism, expressed as the average annual number of absent days per employee; and what the estimated cost to the Department and its agencies of absenteeism was in each year. [77154]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 19 June 2006]: Defra was created in June 2001, and the answer given relates to the period since then.

The most significant cause of staff absence is sickness. The average number of working days lost per employee due to sickness absence in full calendar years since the creation of Defra is shown in the following table.

Department/agency	2002	2003	2004
Defra	8.7	8.3	7.5
CEFAS	5.2	7.2	6.2
CSL	6.1	6.6	6.1
FSD	6.4	5.4	6.7
RPA	10.9	10.6	8.7
VLA	8.0	8.4	8.2
VMD	6.4	8.5	5.7

Data on sickness absences for 2005 is not yet available.

The estimated total cost of sickness absence for Defra and its agencies each year is as follows:

	Cost (£)
2002	9,116,000
2003	9,580,000
2004	8,983,000

These figures represent the average salary costs for the number of working days lost.

The average number of working days lost per employee due to industrial action since 2001 is shown in the following table.

Department/agency	2001	2004	2005
Defra	0.93	0.15	0.10
CEFAS	—	0.05	0.00
CSL	—	0.00	0.00
FSD	—	0.17	0.00
RPA	—	0.26	0.35
VLA	—	0.00	0.00
VMD	—	0.01	0.00

The figure given for 2001 covers Defra and the agencies. Individual figures for the agencies are not available. There were no days lost to industrial action in 2002 or 2003.

Estimated cost figures for industrial action are not applicable since pay is stopped for the period of absence.

Staff Development

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the total cost was of (a) staff away days and (b) staff team building exercises in his Department in each of the last three years. [59086]

Barry Gardiner: Each business area within the core Department holds its own devolved learning and development budget which it uses to fund locally arranged training for its staff, including staff away days and team building exercises.

The costs of locally funded staff away days and team building events in each of the last three calendar years were:

	Away days	Team building events	Totals
2003	43,659	44,162	87,821
2004	79,930	71,705	151,635
2005	84,721	71,093	155,814
Total	208,310	186,960	395,270

Sustainable Timber

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will reconsider his response to the Environmental Audit Committee's Second Report of Session 2005-06 on sustainable timber; and if he will make a statement. [76597]

Barry Gardiner: The Government's response to the Environmental Audit Committee Report on sustainable timber, as published on 4 May 2006 (HC 1078), acknowledges that more should be done to facilitate sustainable forestry both domestically and internationally. Further measures to strengthen the Government's commitment to sustainable and productive forests will be developed in the near future and the Government will write to the Environmental Audit Committee about these measures in due course.

Sustainable Water Systems

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to encourage the use of sustainable water systems in new housing developments. [79209]

Ian Pearson: Defra is working closely with the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) to introduce measures that encourage the use of sustainable water systems in new housing.

DCLG has consulted on proposals for a new Code for Sustainable Homes. This would promote sustainable drainage and set out standards for water efficiency above the current statutory baseline. DCLG has announced plans to strengthen elements of the proposed code, and is considering making minimum standards of water efficiency mandatory. From April 2006 all new homes funded by English Partnerships and the Housing Corporation will be required to meet code level three (equivalent to the EcoHomes Very Good, 2006 standard).

In addition Defra and DCLG are working jointly on new regulations to improve water efficiency in buildings. We intend to consult jointly this summer on ways of making minimum standards of water efficiency mandatory in new homes, existing buildings and in respect of domestic uses in non-household property.

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions the Water Saving Group has had on rainwater harvesting for use in households. [79210]

Ian Pearson: The Water Saving Group is currently working on an agreed action plan to encourage the efficient use of water in households, although it has not looked at rainwater harvesting specifically. However, the Government's Market Transformation Programme is looking at technologies that could potentially reduce overall water consumption by reusing rainwater and/or greywater (from baths/showers etc). A project has started this year to develop the necessary evidence, economic case, feasibility, performance standards, policy action plan and impact scenarios to determine the best use of rainwater and greywater technology.

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether there are plans to provide financial incentives for households to use (a) rainwater harvesting and (b) other water conservation technologies. [79212]

Ian Pearson: The Government encourage the use of water butts as a sensible way to harvest rainwater for use in garden watering and car washing. As part of the duty to promote the efficient use of water by their customers, many water companies offer subsidised water butts, as well as other devices that can save water. Metered customers have a financial incentive to use water carefully and install water efficient fittings.

TRANSPORT

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average daily (a) volume and (b) speed of traffic travelling on the A303 was in each year since 1997. [79988]

Dr. Ladyman: Average daily traffic flows on the A303 are available at several locations. However, not all locations have data as far back as 1997. Regular speed monitoring started in 2002-03. The following sites are typical of the flows on different sections of the road:

	Andover Bypass		East of Longbarrow Roundabout (near Stonehenge)		Ilminster Bypass
	Flow	Speed	Flow	Speed	Flow	Speed
1997	42,000	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a	n/a
1998	41,000	n/a	21,000	n/a	21,000	n/a
1999	41,000	n/a	21,000	n/a	20,000	n/a

	Andover Bypass		East of Longbourne Roundabout (near Stonehenge)		Shaftesbury Bypass
	Flow	Speed	Flow	Speed	Flow	Speed
2000	46,000	n/a	21,000	n/a	23,000	n/a
2001	47,000	n/a	23,000	n/a	23,000	n/a
2002	48,000	n/a	25,000	n/a	25,000	n/a
2003	49,000	62	23,000	45	24,000	n/a
2004	49,000	66	23,000	45	25,000	54
2005	49,000	66	23,000	46	25,000	55

Flows are average numbers of vehicles per 24-hour day (vpd) to the nearest thousand and speeds are the average spot speed for all vehicle types during the 24-hour day, in mph.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what projections have been made by his Department of traffic volumes on the A303. [79981]

Dr. Ladyman: Projections specifically related to the growth of traffic on the A303 in its entirety are not readily available.

Individual sections of the A303 have been subject to study or are part of the Highways Agency's Targeted Programme of Improvements. For each of these studies and schemes, traffic forecasts have been produced and these can be made available from the Highways Agency upon request.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road traffic (a) accidents and (b) fatalities have occurred on the A303 in each year since 1997. [79982]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of personal injury road traffic accidents and fatalities that have occurred on the A303 in each year since 1997 are as shown on the tables below. The accident data for 2006 is not available at present. Information is not available for accidents where there is no personal injury.

Accidents on the A303 from its junction with the M3 at Popham to the Wiltshire/Hampshire border

	Number personal injury accidents (PIAs)	Number of fatalities as a result of accidents
2002	45	3
2003	37	2

Accidents on the A303 between the Hampshire/Wiltshire border (A338 junction) and its junction with the A30 in Devon

1997	160	5
1998	144	10
1999	148	7
2000	167	6
2001	154	5
2003	148	3

Accidents on the A303 between the Hampshire/Wiltshire border (A338 junction) and its junction with the A30 in Devon

2004	173	12
2005	139	4

This is the most accurate information that the Highways Agency is able to provide.

A380 Kingskerswell Bypass

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has approved the construction of the A380 Kingskerswell bypass; and what funding has been allocated for the construction of the road. [80165]

Gillian Merron: The Department has not received a proposal for this scheme from Devon county council. We are currently considering the advice from the South West region on the priority it attaches to major transport schemes in the South West, including the Kingskerswell Bypass, within the indicative Regional Funding Allocation (RFA) for the region. We hope to announce our response to the region's advice before the parliamentary summer recess. Any schemes identified for funding from the RFAs will be subject to the Department's approval processes.

Aeroplanes (Air Quality)

Mr. Maples: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what recent research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on contaminated air in airliners; [80119]

(2) what recent assessment he has made of the effect on safety of contaminated air in airliners. [80147]

Gillian Merron: The House of Lords Select Committee on Science and Technology did an investigation, which reported in November 2000 and said:

"The absence of confirmed cases of tri-ortho-cresyl phosphate (TOCP) poisoning from cabin air and the very low levels of TOCP that would be found even in the highly unlikely worst case of contamination from oil leaking into the air supply lead us to conclude that the concerns about significant risk to the health of airline passengers and crew are not substantiated."

There is also a scientific inquiry under way into the global evidence and we have commissioned the independent Committee on Toxicity (COT) based at Imperial College (and funded by Government to advise the Food Standards Agency and other Government Departments) to review evidence from BALPA (the British Air Line Pilots Association).

The COT secretariat put up on its website on 21 June a draft discussion paper. It will discuss this with BALPA further on 26 June, and then there will be a full hearing, in public, which will take place on 11 July.

The next step is to wait for the COT review process to be completed. The Government will be guided by the COT conclusions and recommendations on the way forward.

Bus Journeys

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to help local councils and bus companies devise innovative ways of increasing the number of bus journeys, including by providing further Government funding; and if he will make a statement. [79183]

Gillian Merron: There are already a number of programmes in place that help councils and bus companies devise innovative ways of increasing bus patronage.

Councils have been able to apply for Kickstart and Rural and Urban Bus Challenge funding to pump-prime bus services that have the potential to increase patronage. DfT awarded £20 million for Kickstart schemes in 2005-06 to fund 43 bus services that could become self-sustaining. Between 1998 and 2003 the Rural and Urban Bus Challenge supported over 400 projects at a cost of £163 million.

In addition, the Government have provided £350 million for 2006-07 and a further £367.5 million for 2007-08 to fund free off-peak local bus travel for people aged 60 and over and disabled people. This will be extended further to national bus travel from April 2008, for which the Treasury has earmarked up to an additional £250 million per year.

Also, all bus operators receive Bus Service Operators Grant (BSOG) which provides a rebate of about 80 per cent. of the duty paid by them on the fuel they use, with 100 per cent. rebate for environmentally friendly fuels. The budget for BSOG in England for 2005-06 was £380 million.

The Transport Innovation Fund is a new approach to transport investment which is not geared to particular modes, but will support measures which help to tackle congestion and promote national productivity. Up to £200 million of the fund has been made available specifically to support packages of measures that will address congestion in towns and cities through demand management and public transport improvements, including better bus services.

Cloned Number Plates

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many car number plate cloning incidents were recorded in (a) Bedfordshire and (b) Luton in the last five years. [80072]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of vehicles that are, or may have been, subject to vehicle cloning in Bedfordshire or Luton is not known. Nor are national figures available.

Dart Harbour and Navigation Authority

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the letter from the Minister of State of 8 February 2006, reference SL/00133606/06, in relation to the Dart Harbour and Navigation Authority, when he expects the undertakings made in the letter to be met; and if he will make a statement. [79774]

Dr. Ladyman: We are still considering the issues raised by the hon. Member and his constituent and will be in a position to provide him with a substantive reply very shortly.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of his staff are (a) under and (b) over 55 years of age. [77419]

Gillian Merron: In the Department for Transport and its agencies, there are 16,530 staff under the age of 55 and 3,190 over the age of 55.

Disability Access

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether any building in his Department falls short of disability access regulations. [73116]

Gillian Merron: Audits have been conducted at our buildings to ensure that we are complying with our responsibilities under the employment and service provider provisions of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 (DDA). Reasonable adjustments have been made at a number of locations (including our main HQ building) and further improvement work is in hand at some sites.

Information on the extent to which each building is complying with the employment and service provider provisions of the DDA is not collected centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Driver Licensing and Information

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the operation of the Road Traffic (Driver Licensing and Information Systems) Act 1989; what recent representations he has received about the operation of this Act; and whether he plans to amend this Act. [80205]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 10 May 2006, Official Report, column 274W. We have no plans to amend this Act.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many replacement (a) full and (b) provisional driving licences were issued in each year since 1996. [80184]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of replacements issued in each year were:

Calendar year	Number of replacements
1996	2,905,330
1997	3,086,312
1998	2,948,074
1999	2,595,176
2000	3,154,492
2001	3,354,906
2002	3,318,851

Calendar year	Number of replacements
2003	3,017,582
2004	3,033,652
2005	2,737,448

The breakdown of these figures into full and provisional licences is not available.

Flag Flying

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) on how many days since May 1997 the St. George's flag has been flown from his Department's buildings; [77736]

(2) what his Department's policy is on flying the (a) St. George's flag and (b) EU flag from departmental buildings. [77737]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport issues the guidance for flying flags on Government buildings. This includes flying the St. George's flag on St. George's day (23 April) and the European flag on Europe day (9 May) on buildings with two or more flag poles provided they are flown alongside the Union flag with the Union flag in the superior position.

The Department's main HQ building has only one usable and accessible flag pole and therefore does not fly the St. George's flag or the European flag.

Local Transport (West Sussex)

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been made available to West Sussex county council in local transport plan funding for each year since 1997. [80505]

Gillian Merron: The table shows the funding allocated to West Sussex county council in the local transport capital settlements between 1997-98 and 2005-06. Not included in the table is an additional amount of approximately £14.5 million which we have provided to West Sussex county council between 2001 and 2005 for major local public transport schemes.

The integrated transport block allocations are available for local authorities to use on road and public transport improvements, according to their local priorities.

London Underground (Victoria Line)

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the Health and Safety Executive investigated the safety implications of the incident on the Victoria Line on the evenings of 29 and 30 May 2006 between Highbury and Finsbury Park; and if he will make a statement. [79821]

Gillian Merron: Her Majesty's Railway Inspectorate (HMRI) is the independent health and safety regulator for the railways, covering the safety of the travelling public and employees. HMRI was transferred from the Health and Safety Executive to the Office of Rail Regulation on 1 April 2006.

The incident occurred when a northbound Victoria Line train was held in the tunnel between Highbury and Islington and Finsbury Park stations at around 00.30 am on Tuesday 30 May. This was the penultimate passenger service of the day. The problem required the traction current to be switched off and when repairs were completed normal passenger services had ceased and engineering hours started on the line. Delays then occurred as due to safety procedures the current could not be switched back on to move the train until it was confirmed that no workers were on the line. Eventually passengers were taken off the train and walked back to Highbury and Islington station before 03.00 am.

HMRI and London Underground Ltd. (LUL) have both investigated this incident. LUL have now modified their procedures and decision-making processes, particularly for incidents within one hour of engineering hours. This should ensure that protracted delays in detraining passengers do not occur in the future. HMRI will continue to monitor the effectiveness of these and other procedures which relate to the evacuation of passengers from trains.

Modal Shift (North Northamptonshire)

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is taking to achieve modal shift in North Northamptonshire. [79561]

Gillian Merron: A key element of the Milton Keynes Sub Regional Strategy is to encourage a shift towards more sustainable modes of travel.

Specific funding has already been made available from the Department for Communities and Local Government (formerly ODPM) to support public transport schemes serving the North Northamptonshire area, including Growth Area Funding (GAF) of £4.4 million to improve services and infrastructure on the X4 bus route connecting Corby, Kettering, Oundle and Wellingborough, with wider links to Northampton, Milton Keynes and Peterborough.

GAF funding has also been provided to examine key issues in North Northamptonshire and this has helped identify current movement trends in the area. Northamptonshire county council has commissioned a series of transportation studies to inform the development of a specific Transport Strategy for Growth, which will address issues of modal shift across the wider area.

Northamptonshire's second Local Transport Plan also seeks to encourage modal shift through the implementation of specific strategies and programmes related to bus patronage, walking and cycling, travel planning and accessibility. Developer contributions on public transport infrastructure and service provision are also highlighted as a potential major contributor in this area.

The potential for extra rail services to the area is also being considered under the new East Midlands rail franchise specification consultation, which was launched on 8 June.

Railways, North-West

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment his Department has made of the likely impact of the SLC2 base level specification set out in the Cross Country Rail Franchise Consultation document of June on levels of rail usage in the North West. [79806]

Derek Twigg: The changes proposed in service level commitment 2 are designed to allow longer trains to be operated on the busiest Cross Country routes. The changes also propose a new hourly service from Manchester to Bristol, which will benefit a large number of rail passengers.

The service between Scotland and Birmingham via the West Coast Main Line will continue to operate at the same frequency but with faster journey times and at regular intervals with better connections. I expect this will lead to increased levels of rail usage.

Road Accidents

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) road accident fatalities and (b) personal injury road accidents there were in (i) Bury St. Edmunds constituency and (ii) Suffolk in each year since 1997. [79390]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of personal injury road accidents reported to the police, and the resulting fatalities, in the constituency of Bury St. Edmunds and the county of Suffolk from 1997 to 2004 (the latest year for which figures are available) are given in the table.

Accidents and Fatalities in Bury St. Edmunds constituency and Suffolk, 1997-2004

	Fatalities		Accidents
	Bury St. Edmunds	Suffolk	Bury St. Edmunds	Suffolk
1997	8	43	332	2,224
1998	3	23	326	2,251
1999	8	48	285	2,298
2000	10	56	352	2,312
2001	6	53	321	2,356
2002	7	43	299	2,300
2003	8	60	333	2,341
2004	5	42	301	2,220

[1] The accidents in the table are those that occurred in the 2004 boundaries for Bury St. Edmunds constituency.

Seat Belts

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which bodies have (a) made representations to the Government and (b) are known by his Department to be (i) in favour of and (ii) opposed to the compulsory wearing of seat belts; and if he will make a statement. [80200]

Dr. Ladyman: Seat belt wearing has been compulsory since 1983. No representations to the Government on road safety in recent years have opposed this fundamental requirement. Information on those who specifically support the requirement is not recorded.

Traffic Growth (Peterborough)

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assumptions about traffic growth up to 2021 are being used by his Department in discussions with the growth areas directorate in the Department for Communities and Local Government on housing expansion in the Peterborough Unitary authority area. [78394]

Gillian Merron: The East of England Spatial Strategy, which has recently been subject to examination in public following a period of consultation, will provide the overall framework for assessing and planning housing and other growth across the East of England region including Peterborough up to 2021. In that context it is for the local authority to develop detailed forecasts of traffic growth and reflect this in their local transport plans and local delivery frameworks.

WORK AND PENSIONS

A New Deal for Welfare

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the basis was for the Government's calculation in the Green Paper. "A new deal for welfare" that reaching an 80 per cent. employment rate would require getting one million people off incapacity benefit and one million more people over 50 years and 300,000 lone parents into work. [73447]

Mr. Jim Murphy: As we set out in the Department's Five Year Strategy and in the Green Paper "A new deal for welfare: empowering people to work", we have a long-term aim of reaching employment equivalent to 80 per cent. of the working age population. In order to achieve this we will reduce by one million the number on incapacity benefits, help 300,000 lone parents into work and increase by one million the number of older workers.

Because 80 per cent. employment is relative to the size of the future population, the total required increase in employment is dependent on population projections, which are revised regularly. Using the latest Government Actuary Department projections, employment would now need to increase by more than 2.5 million in order to achieve 80 per cent. in the long term. This is because the Government Actuary Department has increased their projection of the "working age" population.

We are currently considering the implications of this population change. However, our long-term aim of 80 per cent. employment is unaffected, and the commitments in the Green Paper to reduce by one million the number on incapacity benefits, help 300,000 lone parents into work and increase by one million the number of older workers will still be delivered.

Benefit Fraud

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his estimate is of the scale of identity fraud in relation to social security benefits; how many of his Department's staff have been involved in identity fraud since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [72368]

Mr. Plaskitt: DWP estimates £20 million to £50 million of benefit fraud arises as a result of identity fraud (that is, claiming benefit in false identities).

The information requested on the number of staff involved specifically in identity fraud is not available.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total budget for the Benefit Fraud Hotline was for each year since 1997. [73253]

Mr. Plaskitt: The National Benefit Fraud Hotline is very cost effective—last year it cost nearly £1 million to run but identified £21.4 million in recoverable overpayments.

Information is not available prior to 2001-02. The available information is in the table.

National Benefit Fraud Hotline budget allocation

2001-02	1,086,000
2002-03	959,277
2003-04	957,977
2004-05	1,192,843
2005-06	986,000

Notes:
1. Figures include goods, services and staffing costs.
2. The National Benefit Fraud Hotline (NBFH) commenced in August 1996. Information around budget allocation is available only from year ending 2001-02. Prior to this NBFH was the responsibility of the former DSS Benefits Agency Security Branch and figures on funding and budget costs are no longer available.
3. The operational costs of administering the National Benefit Fraud Hotline include the costs of administering the report-a-cheat-online service. These costs cannot be separated.

Benefit Overpayments

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how much his Department has spent on reducing benefit overpayments due to (a) fraud, (b) customer error and (c) official error in each year since 1997; [77955]

(2) how much his Department and its predecessor spent on reducing benefit overpayments due to (a) fraud, (b) customer error and (c) official error in each year since 1997. [77991]

Mr. Plaskitt: It is not possible to separate the total cost of the fraud and error reduction elements of the Department's work.

The Department's overall aim is to have a benefit system which is accurate from first claim to final payment. This means that safeguarding the benefit system from loss due to fraud and error is integral to the work of staff involved in general benefits administration, as well as those working specifically on fraud and error.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the level of fraud and error in percentage terms for (a) child benefit, (b) income support, (c) incapacity benefit, (d) disability living allowance, (e) jobseeker's allowance, (f) housing benefit, (g) pension credit and (h) council tax benefit. [78388]

Mr. Plaskitt: The most recent available information is in the following table.

Estimates of overpayments as a percentage of benefit expenditure

	Percentage
Income support	5.3
Incapacity benefit	1.[illegible]
Disability living allowance	9.1
Jobseeker's allowance	6.0
Housing benefit	5.2

Estimates of overpayments as a percentage of benefit expenditure

	Percentage
Pension credit	4.6
Council tax benefit	4.9

Notes:

1. All figures are overpayments expressed as a proportion of expenditure for that benefit and are rounded to the nearest 0.1 per cent. They are based on sampling exercises and so are subject to sampling and other uncertainties. Sampling uncertainty is expressed in the form of confidence intervals; these have not been provided in these tables.
2. Income support, jobseeker's allowance and pension credit figures come from the National Statistics report "Fraud and error in Income Support, Jobseeker's Allowance and Pension Credit from April 2004 to March 2005: Full report", published more recently than the 2004-05 DWP Resource Account.
3. Disability living allowance fraud and error figures come from the National Statistics report "Fraud, error and other incorrectness in Disability Living Allowance" covering the period 2004-05. The 'customer error' overpayment figure includes around £580 million (7.9 per cent. of DLA expenditure) which was removed when reported in the Departmental Resource Account. These were cases where the change in customer's needs may have been so gradual that it would be unreasonable to expect them to know at which point their entitlement to DLA might have changed. These cases do not result in a recoverable overpayment as we cannot quantify or define when the customer's change occurred. Because legislation requires the Secretary of State to prove that entitlement to DLA is incorrect, rather than requiring the customer to inform us that their needs have changed, cases in this subcategory are legally correct.
4. Incapacity benefit estimates from the 2004-05 DWP Resource Account. Fraud and customer error estimates from April 2000 to March 2001, official error from April 2003 to March 2004.
5. Housing benefit estimates from the National Statistics report "Fraud and Error in Housing Benefit April 2002 to March 2005". They are made up of reviews of around 85 per cent. of HB expenditure (used for measuring performance against the relevant PSA target to reduce fraud and error in HB) combined with more approximate estimates of error in the remaining 15 per cent. of expenditure. For further details on this, please see the relevant National Statistics reports.
6. Council tax benefit estimates from the 2004-05 DWP Resource Account. Council tax benefit has not been measured by the Department and was assumed to have the same levels of fraud and error as the latest housing benefit estimates available at the time (October 2003 to September 2004).
7. Child benefit is administered by HM Revenue and Customs and is a matter for HM Treasury.

Child Support Agency

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost was of administering child support payments under (a) the old system and (b) the current system in the last period for which figures are available. [75807]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Stephen Geraghty. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the cost was of administering child support payments under (a) the old system and (b) the current system in the last period for which figures are available.

The Child Support Agency is funded to administer child support applications and payments regardless of whether the assessment is based on old scheme or new scheme rules or systems. The actual costs of administering child support under each system are not separately identified and as such we cannot supply information to the level of detail required.

The cost of administering the Child Support Agency in 2004/05 was £325.6m. Figures for 2005/06 will be available when the Annual Report and Accounts is published. A change in accounting policy proposed by the Department for Work and Pensions, and confirmed by National Audit Office, will lead to a restatement of 2004/05 expenditure reported in the Agency's annual accounts. This reflects the incorporation of costs associated with the modernisation programme in the accounts of individual Agencies rather than charging such costs directly to the central Departmental Resource Account. It is expected that the restated 2004-05 figure will increase expenditure to around £425m. Costs for 2005/06 will be prepared on the same basis.

I hope you find this helpful.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many non-compliant absent parents for child support purposes are (a) employed, (b) self-employed and (c) work abroad; and what percentage those employed are of the total number of non-compliant absent parents. [75811]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the right hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many non-compliant absent parents for child support purposes are (a) employed (b) self-employed and (c) work abroad; and what percentage those employed are of the total number of non-compliant absent parents.

The Agency records information in terms of cases rather parents. My answer is therefore provided on this basis.

At the end of March 2006, there were 127,000 cases involving non-resident parents who were non-compliant. Of these:

77,000 cases involved non-resident parents who were employed. This represents 61 per cent. of all non-compliant cases.

13,000 cases involved non-resident parents who were self-employed. This represents around 10 per cent. of all non-compliant cases.

This information reflects the status of the non-resident parent currently held on the system as at the last intervention by the Agency and will not reflect changes in circumstances that the Agency has not yet been informed of, or are currently being processed.

Non-resident parents who live abroad generally do not have any ongoing liability for child maintenance. However, the 127,000 cases which involve non-compliant non-resident parents do include:

Cases where non-resident parents accrued arrears for a maintenance liability, before permanently moving out of the UK.

Cases where non-resident parents live abroad but work for a UK-based employer, e.g. a member of HM Diplomatic Service or HM Armed Forces, although whether or not a non-resident parent in this situation will have an ongoing liability is dependent on their particular circumstances.

However, we are unable to specify the volumes of non-compliant cases in either of these circumstances.

I hope you find this helpful.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the total pensions liability in respect of the 20 most highly paid civil servants at the Child Support Agency; and if he will make a statement. [77975]

Mrs. McGuire: A technical note by HM Treasury was placed in the Library of the House following an oral statement in Parliament by the then Chief Secretary to the Treasury, on 2 March 2006, Official Report, columns 388-90. This note is a full statement about these liabilities and provides detailed information about the size and nature of the liabilities and how they are calculated.

Pension liabilities are not estimated for individual departments, they are estimated for individual pension schemes, as shown in the breakdown of liabilities per pension scheme given in Table 1 of the technical note.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many single parents receive the £5 deduction which claimants on benefit have to make towards Child Support Agency maintenance payments; [78794]

(2) how many people on benefit are liable for Child Support Agency maintenance payments; and how many have automatic deductions made against them. [78795]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 19 June 2006]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to my right hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many single parents receive the £5 deduction which claimants on benefit have to make towards Child Support Agency maintenance payments.

You also asked how many people on benefit are liable for Child Support Agency maintenance payments; and how many of this number have automatic deductions made against them.

The Agency records information in terms of cases rather than parents. Additionally the £5 deduction from benefit only applies to the new scheme. My answer is therefore provided on this basis.

In order to obtain the benefit status of non-resident parents associated with new scheme cases, it has been necessary to match data from the Agency's administrative systems with data from the benefits system administered by Jobcentre Plus. The latter set of administrative data is published quarterly, and the latest information available is for November 2005.

At the end of November 2005, there were 70,000 new scheme cases involving a non-resident parent (NRP) in receipt of Income Support, Jobseeker's Allowance or Incapacity Benefit with a positive maintenance liability. Of these, 54,000 had a deduction for benefit as the specified method of collection.

The number of new scheme cases with a deduction from benefit that at the Agency was collecting maintenance from was 26,000.

It should be noted that although a case can have a liability to pay the £5 deduction from benefit, the full amount may be owed to more than one parent with care. In this case the liable amount will be divided between the cases for which the non-resident parent has a liability.

It should also be noted that there are also a small number of NRPs (the number of which cannot be quantified) who receive other benefits against which the Agency has a claim; namely—Retirement Pension, Pension Credit, Bereavement Allowance, Widowed Parents Allowance/Pension, Incapacity Benefit, Carer's Allowance, Severe Disablement Allowance, Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit, Maternity Allowance, War Disablement or War Widows Pension, also certain training allowances. However, it is not possible to provide information on these cases.

I hope you find this helpful.

Children's Services

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many nursery and crèche places are provided for people working in his Department; what charges are made for the provision of such services; and what other facilities are provided for the children of employees of his Department. [67364]

Mrs. McGuire: Staff in the Department for Work and Pensions have access to 32 holiday playschemes, five supported nurseries/crèches and six on site nurseries. The Department also supports some employees with children through the supply of cash subsidies. Current numbers are as follows:

	Number
Employees supported by holiday playschemes	369
Employees supported through nursery/crèche places/subsidies	770

The Department spends approximately £1,200,000 on child care provision per year.

Existing child care provision available across the Department has been developed according to local business need and is managed and funded from local budgets. As a result the Department has a varying range of subsidies and charges in place. Examples of subsidies and charges include £6 per day per child for nurseries, £4 per day per child for Holiday Playshemes, 35 per cent. of the cost of a holiday play scheme place. Pro rata subsidies are in place in a number of local areas for siblings.

The Department will also shortly be implementing a Childcare Voucher (Salary Sacrifice) Scheme. This will be rolled out with the new payroll system provided by the Resource Management System (RMS) which is scheduled for release in August 2006. This scheme will offer the advantage of supporting parents to make their own choices about where and what type of child care they want for their child.

Compensation Bill

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the potential effect of Clause 1 of the Compensation Bill [Lords] on duties under health and safety at work legislation; and if he will make a statement. [76599]

Mrs. McGuire: Clause 1 of the Compensation Bill, which relates to civil law, will not have an effect on the enforcement in criminal law of the duties set out in the Health and Safety at Work etc. Act 1974 and its relevant statutory provisions.

Compulsory Work-focused Interviews

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what proportion of those who fail to attend compulsory work-focused interviews have been subject to sanctions; [76831]

(2) how many incapacity benefit claimants have failed to attend compulsory work-focused interviews; and what proportion this represented of the total number required to attend such interviews. [76833]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Incapacity customers, lone parents, and partners of benefit recipients are the customer groups subject to compulsory work-focused interviews (WFI) at various times and intervals throughout their claim to benefit.

The information requested on incapacity benefit claimants is not collected centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

104,545 WFIs have been booked for partners of benefit recipients between April 2004 and February 2006. As at February 2006, 14,621, or 14 per cent. of booked WFIs have been marked as "failed to attend"; of those approximately 4 per cent. have had a sanction applied and 13 per cent. have a sanction outstanding.

For information on lone parents I refer my right hon. Friend to the written answer my predecessor gave the hon. Member for Daventry (Mr. Boswell) on 28 March 2006, Official Report, columns 943W.

Contracted-out Rebates

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of Government liabilities in respect of the deemed buy-back of contracted-out rebates. [78310]

Ed Balls: I have been asked to reply.

This information is not available. Where individuals opt for deemed buy-back any entitlement to state second pension (S2P) will be paid from the National Insurance Fund when they reach state pension age. Separate estimates for S2P paid under this arrangement cannot be made.

Council Tax Benefit

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the take-up rate of council tax benefit was in (a) Peterborough constituency and (b) Peterborough city council area in each year since 1996-97; and how many pensioners (i) were entitled to and (ii) received council tax benefit in each year. [77910]

Mr. Plaskitt: Estimates of take-up and entitlement for council tax benefit are not available below national level; the latest available information is in "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take Up in 2003/2004", a copy of which is in the Library.

Figures for the number of council tax benefit claimants are not available broken down by parliamentary constituency. Figures for pensioners in receipt of council tax benefit are not available prior to 2004. The available information is in the following table.

Council tax benefit recipients aged 60 and over: Peterborough city council

November	Number of recipients
2005	2,060

Notes:
1. The data refer to benefit units, which may be a single person or a couple.
2. Caseloads have been rounded to the nearest 10.
3. Council tax benefit totals exclude any second adult rebate cases.
4. 'Aged 60 and over' is defined as benefit units where the claimant and/or partner are aged 60 and over. Therefore figures will contain some claimants aged under 60 where there is a partner aged over 60 years.

Departmental Chief Accounting Officer

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the Chief Accounting Officer of his Department. [76838]

Mrs. McGuire: The Permanent Secretary, Mr. Leigh Lewis (BA, MIPD), is the Principal Accounting Officer of the Department for Work and Pensions. Earlier in his career he was the Finance Director of the then Department for Education and Employment.

The Accounting Officer is a role that the Permanent Secretary combines with his personal responsibility for the overall organisation, management and staffing of the Department and for Department-wide procedures in financial and other matters. The Accounting Officer is assisted in the discharge of these duties by suitably qualified and experienced senior managers, including the Director General for Finance for the Department, John Codling, who is a Chartered Public Finance Accountant and holds a BA (Hons) degree in Economics.

Employment (Over-50s)

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to increase the number of people in work aged 50 years and over in the Kingston and Surbiton constituency. [74779]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Like all other customers, people aged 50 and over can benefit from the range of services provided by Jobcentre Plus, including access to jobs and help and support to find work.

Additional help is provided to older people who do not find work quickly. New deal 50 plus is a voluntary programme that provides people with advice and guidance from personal advisers, and access to in-work financial help through the 50 plus element of the working tax credit. Since April 2000, the programme has been successful in helping more than 150,000 older workers into employment, including 150 people in Kingston and Surbiton. Once in work, new deal 50 plus customers can claim a training grant of up to £1,500 for training of which up to £300 can be used for life-long learning.

People aged 50 and over, including those in Kingston and Surbiton, are also eligible for help from new deal 25 plus. People who have been claiming jobseeker's allowance (JSA) for 18 months, and who have not previously participated on new deal 25 plus, are already required to attend the gateway stage of the new deal 25 plus programme. This is a period of up to four months of intensive job search and specialist help and support to improve job prospects. This is followed by the intensive activity period (IAP) which is currently voluntary for people aged 50 and over. The IAP provides further support and pre-work training to help people return to work.

Since April 2004, we have been piloting mandatory participation in the new deal 25 plus IAP for people aged 50 to 59 who have been claiming JSA for 18 months. The pilot has offered people in this age group more extensive help back to work. Kingston and Surbiton was not part of the pilot, however, interim pilot data have yielded positive results and, as announced in our Welfare Reform Green Paper, we will be commencing a phased national rollout.

Between 1979 and the mid 1990s, the number of people on incapacity benefits trebled. Growth in the caseload has since slowed significantly, and in November 2005, there were 2.71 million people claiming incapacity benefits, a fall of 61,000 over the year. Although 46 per cent. of those claiming incapacity benefits are aged between 50 and state pension age, between 2000 and 2005 the number of people in the 50 plus age group fell by 52,000. This has contributed to the overall reduction in the incapacity benefits caseload.

Like other age groups, people aged 50 or over who are on IB will be able to benefit from the rollout of the successful Pathways to Work service across the whole country which will be completed by 2008, including Kingston and Surbiton. Pathways offers new IB customers early support from skilled personal advisers and direct access to a 'Choices Package' of employment programmes and clear financial incentives to make work pay. Any IB customer will be able to access the support and help available on a voluntary basis.

Our Age Positive Campaign works with employers and others to promote the business benefits of an age diverse work force and best practice in recruitment, training and promotion. In May 2005 we launched the 'Be Ready' national information campaign to raise employer awareness of, and ability to adopt, flexible employment and retirement opportunities to support the recruitment and retention of older workers in advance of age legislation due in October 2006.

Employment Rates

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the role of area-based activities by his Department in increasing local employment rates. [72250]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Area-based employment initiatives continue to be important, particularly in our most deprived communities. The Department's priority is to ensure that all initiatives are more effectively targeted at those with the greatest degree of labour market disadvantage. This means that we constantly have to review our programmes and services to ensure that they provide good value for money and continue to meet the needs of our customers. Area-based initiatives such as Action Teams and the Working Neighbourhoods Pilot have, to date, helped over 170,000 people in some of our most deprived communities move into work.

Many of the practices and ideas developed by Action Teams have been integrated into Jobcentre Plus mainstream programmes and services. Examples include outreach work in local communities and the greater discretionary funding that is available to advisers. We also aim to build on lessons learnt from the recent Working Neighbourhoods Pilot.

Our successful Pathways to Work pilots have been acknowledged internationally as the best way of helping people on incapacity benefits back into work quickly and many of the pilots are located in areas with high levels of incapacity benefit claims. Much of the success of Pathways is directly attributable to the partnership approach at the local level with strong advocacy from local partners, access to a wide range of specialist expertise, and a unified complementary approach. It is this partnership approach that we are extending further with our Cities Strategy. Private and voluntary sector providers currently deliver and support a number of different programmes within our Pathways to Work pilots. We will shortly be announcing the future roll-out of Pathways.

Our future strategy will build on the success of Action Teams, and other community-based initiatives; including the introduction of a Deprived Areas Fund (DAF) from October 2006, which will provide Jobcentre Plus with the flexibility to decide how funding could add value locally against a continued central objective of increasing the employment rate in the local areas. This fund will enable districts to target resources where they are most needed. Funding will be allocated at a district level, to enable Jobcentre Plus District Managers to exercise greater discretion over how the funding should be utilised in their area. DMs will use their knowledge of the local labour market, coupled with evidence of 'what works' to support the needs of local residents.

Partnership working with local government is especially important to DWP in promoting the economic vitality of localities. Local area agreements (LAAs) have been devised to provide a common and simple framework that leads to central Government, local authorities and partners agreeing local outcomes.

On 16 March 2005 the Chancellor announced the Local Enterprise Growth Initiative (LEGI). Its purpose is to release the economic and productivity potential of the most deprived local areas through enterprise and investment—thereby boosting local incomes and employment opportunities and building sustainable communities. The proposed fund will distribute up to £50 million per year for 2006-07 rising to £150 million by 2008-09, and will be distributed through local area agreements (LAA).

As proposed in the Green Paper, the creation of 'Cities' pathfinders from 2007 will be charged with increasing employment and reducing social exclusion in our most deprived communities. In these areas, a consortium of local partners will be invited to join up and plan the delivery of their individual efforts and resources, with a strong focus on outcomes combined with greater opportunity for local flexibility and innovation. This approach will provide a real focus for local efforts to help people move back into work, so that the current patchwork of programmes and support, provided by a number of organisations, can be delivered in a more integrated, individually-focused and locally responsive way.

The Deprived Areas Fund, along with our strategy for 'Cities' and local area agreements will play a significant role in increasing local employment rates; ensuring those most disadvantaged in the labour market can receive the help and guidance they deserve.

Financial Assistance Scheme

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what measures the Department is putting in place to speed up payments to those eligible under the Financial Assistance Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [78291]

James Purnell: In response to discussions with the pension scheme trustees responsible for applying to the Financial Assistance Scheme, we have simplified the information we need from schemes and clarified our guidance on the member data we require. We have also held meetings with over 75 per cent. of schemes with members potentially eligible for initial payments to ensure they understand what information is required and when.

Following these improvements to communications with trustees, over the last month the number of schemes applying for initial payments has increased to 146 and the number of members being paid initial payments has increased to 95, with an additional four members being paid annual payments.

On 6 June we announced a review of the administration of the Financial Assistance Scheme, which will look at what we need to do to provide the best administration and management support to ensure all eligible people receive payments as quickly as possible.

Foreign Travel

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent on foreign travel by his Department in each of the last eight years. [76065]

Mrs. McGuire: The departmental spend on foreign travel for the year 2004 was £747,013.53. The spend for 2005 was £954,648.56.

We are unable to provide factual information for previous years due to disproportionate cost.

Housing Benefit

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate has been made of the percentage of housing benefit claimants renting from private landlords who had benefit shortfalls in the county borough of Bridgend in each year from 1997-98 to 2005-06. [75360]

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will consider Hartlepool borough council as one of the planned pilots for the housing benefit sanction proposals announced on 5 June. [76138]

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the change in the number of incapacity benefit customers moving into work in the pathways to work pilot areas. [67860]

Mrs. McGuire: Our successful pathways to work pilots have been acknowledged internationally as the best way of helping people on incapacity benefits back into work quickly. There have been 21,400 job entries in pathways to work areas, including over 3,360 from voluntary customers. The number of recorded job entries for people with a health condition or disability has almost doubled since before pathways started.

The specific information requested is not available.

Information on Jobcentre Plus Job Entry Target (JET) job entries is in the table.

Industrial Relations

Mr. Beswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the state of industrial relations with staff of his Department and its agencies. [76522]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) seeks an effective and constructive engagement with its three recognised trade unions. We provide allowances of 0.2 per cent. over staffing costs (equating to around £5.5 million of public money) to fund the cost of employee trade union representatives, in order to ensure proper engagement. Recent evidence of constructive consultative relationships include: a three-year pay deal negotiated and agreed with the unions; a "seeking to avoid compulsory redundancies" agreement signed in November 2004 which has the confidence of all parties and has enabled us to make significant staffing reductions without dispute; and a re-launch of our attendance management policy in July 2005 with a joint statement with the unions.

The Public and Commercial Services union (PCS) is currently in dispute with DWP over our efficiency programme. This is a matter of regret to the Department but talks are currently in progress to seek to resolve this dispute.

Job Vacancies (Hartlepool)

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many job vacancies were listed at Jobcentre Plus in Hartlepool constituency in each year since 1997. [77178]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Information on Jobcentre Plus vacancy data at parliamentary constituency level is only available from April 2004 and is set out in the following table.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many telephone calls to the Jobcentre Plus 0845 603 6347 telephone number were received each month from April 2005 to April 2006; [71195]

(2) whether there has been an unusually heavy demand placed upon the Jobcentre Plus 0845 603 6347 telephone number in recent months; and if he will make a statement; [71196]

(3) what alternative contact points can provide assistance regarding benefits claimed by an individual who cannot get through to the Jobcentre Plus 0845 603 6347 telephone number; [71197]

(4) what recent estimate his Department has made of the proportion of callers to Jobcentre Plus on 0845 603 6347 who encounter the engaged dial tone. [71198]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. She will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions asking about the use of the 0845 603 6347 telephone number. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Since 17 April 2006, we have been piloting the handling of claims and enquiries from customers in central London by our Glasgow Benefit Delivery Centre (BDC). Customers can contact the Glasgow BDC using the 0845 603 6347 telephone number. The number was not in use before 17 April. As part of this pilot we are paying particular attention to customer service issues, and local managers are reviewing the resources currently deployed handling telephone calls. A full evaluation of the pilot is planned for September and therefore at this early stage the information you have requested is not available.

Customers experiencing difficulties getting through on the 0845 603 6347 number can still access our services in person at Central London Jobcentres.

Customers in the Leicester area are not included in this pilot.

I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Gregan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of how Jobcentre Plus in Yorkshire and the Humber measured against their performance indicators in (a) 2005-06 and (b) 2004-05. [71352]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 18 May 2006]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what assessment he has made of how Jobcentre Plus in Yorkshire and the Humber Region measured against their performance indicators in 2005-06 and 2004-05. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The targets and achievements for 2004-05 and 2005-06 are listed in the table. The Yorkshire and Humber Region achieved all its targets in 2004/2005 and 4 out of 5 in 2005/2006. The Region as a whole did not meet its job entry target in 2005/06 but has maintained the number of Priority Group One customers (lone parents/sick and disabled people) moving into work. However, I should add that the job entry target for Selby and North Yorkshire District for 2005/2006 was exceeded.

	2004-05		2005-06
	Target	Achieved	Target	Achieved
Job Entries	627,249	682,447 (+8.8 per cent.)	591,918	534,502 (-9.7 per cent.)
Business Delivery Target (percentage)	90	92.8 (+2.8 percentage pts)	90.4	92 (+1.6 percentage pts)
Employer Outcome (percentage)	84.2	85.6 (+1.4 percentage pts)	84.1	87.7 (+3.6 percentage pts)
Customer Service (percentage)	81.6	84.5 (+2.9 percentage pts)	81.2	82.4 (+1.2 percentage pts)
Monetary Value, Fraud and Error (percentage)	6.1	7.5 (+1.4 percentage pts)	6.1	7.5 (+1.4 percentage pts)

I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what total headcount reductions in Jobcentre Plus staff are expected as a result of the Efficiencies Savings Programme, broken down by job title; how many personal advisers there are; and how many personal advisers there were when the agency was established. [77243]

Mr. Jim Murphy (holding answer 13 June 2006): The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what total headcount reductions in Jobcentre Plus staff are expected as a result of the Efficiencies Savings Programme, broken down by Job Title; how many personal advisers there are; and how many personal advisers there were when the agency was established. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The efficiency challenge is measured against the baseline position at 1 March 2004. The table below shows the position at 1 March 2004 and the planned position at 31 March 2008. Figures are Full Time Equivalent (FTE) and comply with the Office of National Statistics definitions.

	Total (FTE)
31 March 2008 (Headcount)	65,637
31 March 2008 (Reductions)	16,430
1 March 2004 (Headcount)	82,067

Information on reductions broken down by job title is not available.

The earliest data we hold on the number of Personal Advisors working in Jobcentre Plus are for April 2003. The table below shows the number of Personal Advisers at April 2003, and at March 2006. This is the latest information available.

	Total personal advisers (FTE)
April 2003	9,842
As a percentage of all staff in April 2003	11.9
March 2006	10,423
As a percentage of all staff in March 2006	14.6

I hope this is helpful.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the number of people who successfully secured a job directly through using the Job Centre Plus website in each year since its creation. [75931]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking if he will estimate the number of people who have successfully secured a job directly through using the Job Centre Plus website in each year since its creation. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

www.jobcentreplus.gov.uk is our Internet service for jobseekers and is currently the United Kingdom's number one recruitment site. The website provides job hunting advice, information on programmes, such as New Deal, and allows users to search our extensive database of some 400,000 vacancies.

The website provides a self-service job search facility that does not require users to register personal details. Therefore, whilst we know how many visits the website receives, information on the number of people who have found jobs using the website is not available.

In 2004, the Jobcentre Plus website received 27,219,880 visits (this figure excludes figures for August because of a problem with the statistics package). This increased to 41,325,452 the following year (2005). The number of visits in the 5 months between 1 January and 31 May 2006 stands at 30,484,516. Figures are not available for 2001-03.

I hope this is helpful.

Jobseekers Allowance

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the main causes for delay in applications for Jobseeker's Allowance were in the last month for which information is available; how many delays fall into each main category; and if he will make a statement. [67628]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 26 June 2006:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what the main causes for delay in applications for Jobseeker's Allowance were in the last month for which information is available; how many delays fell into each main category; and if he will make a statement. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus is transforming the service it provides by making it available via the telephone, via the internet and through the personal service offered to people in Jobcentre Plus offices. We are also committed to implementing a major efficiency programme to deliver headcount savings.

The precise nature and extent of the issues which can cause delay varies between locations and stage of roll-out, and as some of these issues are inter-related and overlap, it is not possible to provide the specific information requested. However, we have put action in hand to address the delays, including the launch of a National Action Plan on 30 January. Senior operational managers provided a formal assurance at the end of February that they were complying with all elements of the National Action Plan.

We have also undertaken the considerable task of moving a large number of staff into new posts in our contact centres, and delivering the training necessary to operate the new processes.

The chief operating officer is monitoring performance very closely and is addressing performance variations in benefit clearance times in specific locations and the actions required to clear backlogs. It should be acknowledged that concentrating on backlogs of work may initially cause average clearance times to rise. In order to focus management attention on this issue, the actual average clearance times measure of 12 days for Jobseeker's Allowance claims, has been added to the suite of Jobcentre Plus Targets for 2006-07.

I hope this is helpful.

Liability Orders

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many liability orders under Section 33 of the Child Support Act 1991 and Child Support Regulations 1992 have been sought (a) in the UK, (b) within Hertfordshire and (c) within St. Albans in each year since 1995; and how many of these were successful. [78401]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the right hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds, dated 26 June 2006:

In reply to your recent parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many liability orders under Section 33 of the Child Support Act 1991 and Child Support Regulations 1992 have been sought (a) in the UK (b) within Hertfordshire and (c) within St. Albans in each year since 1995; and how many of these were successful.

Information about the total number of liability order applications and those successfully granted is only available from the period since March 1998. Due to the format in which this information is gathered it is not possible to provide details at the requested county or town level. Therefore information has only been provided at UK level.

	Liability orders applied for	Liability orders granted
1999-2000	4307	2532
2000-01	3384	1755
2001-02	3166	1427
2002-03	5540	2383
2003-04	6719	3885
2005-06	11926	10273

During 2003 a full review of enforcement activity within the Child Support Agency was undertaken. The recommendations which were implemented started to show a marked improvement in performance during 2004-05 and particularly last year 2005-06.

I hope you find this response helpful.

Newcastle Jobcentre Plus Action Team

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the budget for the Newcastle Jobcentre Plus Action Team is for 2006-07; what the budget was in each of the last two years; which programmes the team supported in 2005-06 and 2006-07; and what geographical areas each programme covered. [78219]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Action Teams aim to engage communities, mainly through outreach, and find individual solutions for both employers and clients.

The Newcastle Action Team covers the Newcastle city area and has supported a number of local programmes. Some examples of these programmes are: Sure Start; Newcastle City Council Work Finders; Job Educational Training and English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL); Mental Health Matters; the Prison Service; Disability North; and Connexions.

Details of the allocated budget for the Newcastle Action Team are in the table.

	Allocated budget (£)
2006-07 (April to 30 September 2006)	697,000
2005-06	1,044,000
2004-05	1,044,000

The funding for 2006-07 is less than for previous years as the Action Team programme is due to finish at the end of September 2006. Many of the practices and ideas developed by Action Teams have been integrated into Jobcentre Plus mainstream programmes and services. Examples include outreach work in local communities and the greater discretionary funding that is available to advisers.

Notes:
1. The number of claimants is rounded to a multiple of five and average amounts to the nearest penny therefore ward totals do not always sum to area totals.
2. Some figures in Westminster Constituency have been suppressed due to there being less than 10 claimants within those wards. Suppressed figures are marked as "—".
3. Wards are based on 2003 ward boundaries.
4. Household recipients are those people who claim pension credit either on behalf of themselves only or on behalf of a household. This number is equal to the number of households in receipt of pension credit.

Pensions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions in what circumstances a credit will be awarded towards a qualifying year for (a) the basic state pension and state second pension, (b) the basic state pension only and (c) the state second pension only, if the proposals in the May 2006 White Paper 'Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system' are implemented in full; and which credits will apply on a weekly basis. [76607]

James Purnell: The White Paper 'Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system' (Cm 6841) sets out a package of proposed reforms. It includes a number of measures which would help to make the system more flexible, and make national insurance credits more valuable and more generous.

The proposed reduction of the number of qualifying years needed for a full basic state pension to 30 is a very significant change that makes the system more flexible; it allows people to undertake a variety of activities during their working lives, and still be able to build a full basic state pension. This would be particularly beneficial to women.

Credits would be made more valuable by removing the first contribution condition, so that credits count towards pension entitlements in exactly the same way as paid contributions for the first time. This clearly signals that social contributions are rewarded and recognised by society in the same way as paid work. The credits would be awarded on a weekly basis only to the extent needed for the year to become a qualifying year.

In addition to making credits more valuable, the credits system would be made more comprehensive and generous, by reforming home responsibilities protection into a weekly credit and introducing new weekly credits for parents and carers—aligned in BSP and S2P and these would count towards satisfying the qualifying years in the same way as paid contributions.

Assuming the White Paper proposals are implemented in full, the new credits to be introduced are shown in the following table:

	BSP	S2P
Carer's credit (20 hours' caring)	Yes	Yes
Parent's credit	Yes	Yes
Foster carer's credit	Yes	Yes

All the credits will be awarded on a weekly basis.

There will be no specific circumstances in which state second pension will accrue without there being entitlement to basic state pension.

Circumstances in which credits are currently awarded towards basic state pension are listed in the following table. Whether there is also eligibility for state second pension, if credits are awarded throughout the tax year, is also noted.

	BSP	S2P
Starting credits (aged 16 to 18)	Yes	No
Approved training courses	Yes	No
Jury Service	Yes	No
Former prisoners with quashed convictions	Yes	No
Men aged 60 to 64[1]	Yes	No
Jobseeker's Allowance	Yes	No
Incapacity Benefit (short-term)	Yes	No
Incapacity Benefit (long-term)	Yes	[2]Yes
Severe Disablement Allowance	Yes	Yes
Carer's Allowance	Yes	Yes
Statutory Sick Pay	Yes	No
Statutory Adoption Pay	Yes	No
Working Tax Credit	Yes	No
Maternity Allowance	Yes	No
Unemployability supplement	Yes	No
Unemployed, actively seeking work (no JSA)	Yes	No
Incapable of work through illness (no IB)	Yes	[2]Yes

[1] If the White Paper proposals are implemented in full, these will be phased out in line with the increase in women's state pension age.
[2] This is currently subject to satisfying the labour market test.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which Private Members' Bills were drafted by his Department in each session since 1997; and which subsequently received Royal Assent. [78856]

Mrs. McGuire: Members will consider a range of possible subjects before introducing their Private Members' Bills.

Government draftsmen do draft some Bills in advance which are available as one of the options for Members to consider before they make their selection.

However, Members may make subsequent amendments or revisions to a Government drafted Bill, or use it as the basis for a Private Member's Bill in the future.

The information requested is therefore not collected.

Remploy Review

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects the review of Remploy to be completed; and if he will make a statement. [77480]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the written statement I made on 6 June 2006, Official Report, column 26WS.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether hon. Members are able to make submissions to the review of Remploy being undertaken by PricewaterhouseCoopers; and if he will make a statement. [79023]

Mrs. McGuire: The purpose of the independent strategic review is to explore future business options for Remploy that are consistent with the Government's strategy for supporting the employment of greater numbers of disabled people.

In delivering the review the PricewaterhouseCoopers team has met with a range of stakeholders including: the management and staff of Remploy, at a variety of sites; trade unions; disabled people and employers using Remploy's Interwork services; other providers of services supporting disabled people into and in work; and a number of disability organisations.

PricewaterhouseCoopers has reviewed carefully all the information it has gathered and is considering all the options to determine the advice it will put forward in the written report. Since the team has now reached the stage where it is writing the report it will not be possible for it to consider further submissions.

As indicated in my written statement of 6 June 2006, Official Report, column 26WS, we will make a further statement before the summer recess.

Rubber and Plastics Research Association Technology

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what requirements in relation to pension funds were imposed on Rubber and Plastics Research Association Technology in Shawbury, Shropshire before it went into administration. [79754]

James Purnell: None, over and above the standard legislative framework that applies to all such occupational defined benefit schemes.

Staff Reductions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what reductions in staff numbers have been made in his Department and in each agency and non-departmental public body for which he is responsible since (a) 2003 and (b) 2004; what staff reductions are planned over the next 12 months in each business area; and if he will make a statement. [35724]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 12 December 2006]: Information on the reductions in staff numbers in each business area in the Department for Work and Pensions from the date specified to 31 March 2006 is in the following table.

[1] Baseline date for efficiency challenge
[2] The baseline position as at 1 March 2004 is adjusted to reflect the move of the Rent Service from 1 April 2004 from the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister.
Notes:
1. Figures are consistent with ONS definitions, are civil service full time equivalent posts (rounded) and are point in time as at the dates specified.
2. The Appeals Service moved to the Department for Constitutional Affairs on 1 April 2006.
3. Disability and Carers Service was granted Agency status from 1 November 2004.
4. CSA staffing levels have increased to support the Operational Improvement Plan announced on 9 February 2006.

Winter Fuel Payment

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many individuals aged 60 to 79 years received the winter fuel payment of (a) £100 and (b) £200 for winter 2005-06 in (i) Lewisham, Deptford constituency and (ii) Lewisham borough; [79148]

(2) how many individuals aged 80 years and over received the winter fuel payment for winter 2005-06 in (a) Lewisham, Deptford constituency and (b) Lewisham borough; and how many out of those received an additional (i) £50 and (ii) £100. [79149]

James Purnell: The information is in the following table.

Number

	Lewisham, Deptford constituency	Lewisham borough
£100 payments made	2,270	9,260
£200 payments made	5,200	16,660
Total winter fuel payments made to those aged 60-79	7,480	25,920
Additional £50 payments made	190	1,010
Additional £100 payments made	1,300	5,650

	Lewisham, Deptford constituency	Number Lewisham borough
Total winter fuel payments made to those aged 80 or over	1,490	6,670

Notes:
1. Figures rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Totals may not sum due to rounding.
3. Parliamentary constituencies and local authorities are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant postcode directory.
4. Figures for 2005-06 refer only to the main payment run so they do not include the late payment run figures. We estimate that there are approximately 100,000 people in Great Britain paid in late payment runs (0.8 per cent. of all payments). Since most of the payments made in late payment runs are to people who are not receiving another benefit from DWP and whose claims had not been received by the qualifying week, most are men aged 60 to 64.

WALES

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the average cost to his Department was of replying to a letter written by (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public, broken down into (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80512]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office does not record expenditure in this format, and this information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) if he will list those Government Bills sponsored by his Department that are still to be introduced during the 2005-06 Session; [78845]

(2) if he will list the Government Bills sponsored by his Department that he has bid for in the next Session of Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [78846]

Mr. Hain: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1431W, by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House.

Regional Funding

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much (a) Objective 1 and (b) Convergence Funds funding was included in each of the annual block grant totals set out in Annexe 1 of the Wales Office Annual Report 2005. [80397]

Mr. Hain: Annexe 1 of the Wales Office Annual Report 2005 provides information on the Wales departmental expenditure limit, and therefore takes account of the European Union receipts for structural funds, but these are not disaggregated.

Annexe 4 shows the reconciliation of grant payable to the National Assembly for Wales with Total Managed Expenditure in Wales 2005-06 included £234 million for EU receipts. The equivalent figures in earlier reports are:

2004 Annexe 5 2004-05: £235 million
2003 Annexe 5 2003-04: £186 million
2002 Annexe 5 2002-03: £170 million.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Electoral Registration/Fraud

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission (1) how many hours were spent by Electoral Commission staff on the issues of (a) postal ballot fraud and (b) electoral registration in each of the last five years; [80042]

(2) how many meetings Electoral Commission officers have (a) attended and (b) initiated on the issues of (i) postal ballot fraud and (ii) electoral registration in each of the last five years. [80050]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission has advised me as follows. The information requested is not available. However, as the issues of postal ballot fraud and electoral registration are both central to its work on promoting involvement and integrity in the electoral process, they arise frequently in work done by Commission staff and have been discussed by them in very many meetings over the last five years.

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission, how many Electoral Commission reports on (a) postal ballot fraud and (b) electoral registration have been produced in each of the last five years; and how many words there were in each. [80051]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission has informed me that, in the last five years, it has produced four reports dealing in part with postal ballot fraud, four reports dealing wholly, or in part, with electoral registration and two that deal with both issues.

Of the reports dealing with postal ballot fraud, one was produced in 2002 (33,578 words); two in 2003 (17,826 words and 54,351 words respectively); and one in 2004 (33,592 words). Of the reports dealing with electoral registration, two were produced in 2003 (17,809 words and 30,633 words respectively); one in 2004 (38,438 words); and one in 2005 (19,451 words). The two reports dealing with both these issues were published in 2003 and 2005, and contained 17,785 words and 23,081 words respectively.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Arms Exports

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what proportion of export credits issued by the Export Credits Guarantee Department in each of the last three years were for military goods. [76857]

Mr. McCartney: The proportion of export credit guarantees issued for defence goods and services by the Export Credits Guarantee Department (ECGD) in each of the last five years was:

Guarantees by business sector (defence)

	Percentage
2004-05	38
2003-04	39
2002-03	50
2001-02	31
2000-01	48

ECGD's audited business figures for 2005-06 are not yet available.

British Energy (Decommissioning Fund)

Chris Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry by how much the Government are underwriting British Energy's decommissioning fund. [80043]

Malcolm Wicks: As a result of the restructuring of British Energy, Government will underwrite the company's segregated decommissioning fund. This fund will cover the costs of decommissioning British Energy's nuclear power stations as well as certain other liabilities relating to waste management. The fund is topped up through annual contributions from British Energy. Government will underwrite this fund to the extent that the liabilities outweigh the assets.

On recent valuation, the assets of the segregated fund total some £8.1 billion, the majority of which relates to the value attributed to the fund's 64.6 per cent. convertible stake in British Energy, and which exceeds the recent revised forecast of the liabilities. The fund can also distribute a share of its surplus assets to the Government in the event of quinquennial reviews demonstrating a surplus in the fund.

Business Closures (Suffolk)

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many firms have ceased trading in (a) Bury St. Edmunds constituency and (b) the Suffolk county council area in each year since 1997. [79367]

Margaret Hodge: Value added tax (VAT) de-registrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business closures. DTI data on the number of VAT de-registrations in (a) Bury St. Edmunds constituency and (b) Suffolk county council area from 1997 to 2004 are shown in the following table. For comparison, the number of new VAT registrations and the ratio of de-registrations to registrations in each year is also shown.

VAT de-registrations and registrations 1997-2004

Source:
Business Start-ups and Closures: VAT Registrations and De-registrations 1994-2004, Small Business Service, available at http://www.sbs.gov.uk/vats.

In both Bury St. Edmunds constituency and Suffolk county council area the stock of VAT registered businesses has increased each year since 1997, as registrations have exceeded de-registrations throughout this period.

VAT registration and de-registration data do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Similarly, businesses that de-register will not necessarily have closed. Only 1.8 million out of 4.3 million businesses (42 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2004.

Cathode Ray Tubes

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much has been paid to local authorities for the additional responsibilities to recycle televisions and monitors containing cathode ray tubes since July 2005. [78453]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 22 June 2006]: An interim payment of £14.7 million has been agreed to cover the treatment costs of separately collected cathode ray tubes (CRTs) and fluorescent tubes for the period 13 August 2005 to 1 June 2006, and Ozone Depleting Substances (ODS) equipment from 1 April 2006 until 1 June 2006. The English local authorities' share of the interim payment of £12.269 million has been made available as part of the Local Government Settlement for 2006-07. Additional funding to cover costs from 1 June onwards will be paid via a special grant scheme later in the year.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate his Department has made of the likely costs associated with recycling televisions and monitors containing cathode ray tubes following the introduction of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive. [78454]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 22 June 2006]: The costs associated with recycling televisions and monitors containing cathode ray tubes will vary according to their size and weight and the proximity of treatment centres. Estimates of the costs of collecting, treating and recycling waste electrical and electronic equipment will appear in the partial regulatory impact assessment when public consultation begins later this summer on draft regulations to implement the WEEE directive.

Company Law Reform Bill

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the likely changes in costs to business arising out of implementation of the provisions of the Company Law Reform Bill as amended by the House of Lords. [79004]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 20 June 2006]: Against direct benefits of between £160 million and £340 million per annum there are a small number of provisions in the Bill that might in principle increase compliance costs. The direct costs associated with the Bill are expected to be in the range £8 million to £47 million. This is an increase of £6 million to £36 million on the estimated direct costs associated with the Company Law Reform Bill on introduction in the Lords (£2 million to £11 million).

The additional costs of £6 million to £36 million are associated with the amendments to the "Exercise of Members' Rights" provisions made in the House of Lords. The direct cost estimates have been provided by stakeholders and are sensitive to assumptions such as the percentage of indirect investors opting to exercise rights. We will seek to revise those amendments during consideration of the Bill in the House of Commons.

Energy Efficiency

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment he has made of the potential effects on business and employment in the UK of an increase in market penetration in energy efficiency and new measures by UK companies. [80018]

Malcolm Wicks: Improvements in energy efficiency have the potential to reduce business energy bills which should help increase companies' competitiveness, giving scope for increased employment.

Flag Flying

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) on how many days since May 1997 the St. George's flag has been flown from his Department's buildings; [77739]

(2) what his Department's policy is on flying the (a) St. George's flag and (b) EU flag from departmental buildings. [77740]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport issue the guidance for flying flags on Government buildings. This includes flying the St. George's flag or Union flag on St. George's day 23 April and the European flag on Europe day 9 May on buildings with two or more flag poles provided they are flown alongside the Union flag with the Union flag in the superior position.

The Department for Trade and Industry flies the Union flag and European flag on the specified days and will fly the national flag on St. George's day in 2007.

GovNet Expo 2006

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the cost is to his Department of supporting GovNet Expo 2006. [79220]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The DTI is not sponsoring GovNet Expo 2006. It is being jointly sponsored by a private sector body and the Equal Opportunities Commission (EOC) which is providing support at a total cost of £21,150. EOC was formerly sponsored by the DTI until its transfer to the Department of Communities and Local Government in May 2006.

Green Energy Sources

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what incentives are in place to encourage private homeowners to use green energy sources to power and heat their homes. [79372]

Malcolm Wicks: Grants for the installation of a number of microgeneration technologies producing heat and electricity are available to householders under the new Low Carbon Buildings programme (LCBP). This programme supersedes the previous Clear Skies and Major Photovoltaics Demonstration programmes. Stream one of the LCBP provides grant support for householders and applications are now being taken. The scheme is managed on behalf of the Department by the Energy Savings Trust.

Full details are available on the LCBP website at www.lowcarbonbuildings.org.uk.

Microgenerators producing electricity can also benefit from the Renewables Obligation (RO) where they will receive one Renewables Obligation Certificate (ROC) for every 1MWh of eligible renewable electricity generated. We will also be consulting later this year on changes to the RO, which will allow microgenerators to gain further benefits. This includes allowing agents to act on behalf of microgenerators; amalgamating generation from several microgenerators; and removing the need for a sale and buy-back agreement.

Green Tariffs

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will take steps to establish an accreditation scheme for green tariffs for domestic electricity customers; and if he will make a statement. [79241]

Malcolm Wicks: Ofgem will shortly be publishing a response to its consultation on the "Revision of Guidelines on Green Supply Offerings" and we will consider the introduction of an accreditation scheme for green electricity tariffs in the light of this.

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with Ofgem concerning claims made by electricity suppliers about their green tariff schemes. [79243]

Malcolm Wicks: None.

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what criteria must be met before an electricity company may market an electricity tariff as a green tariff. [79244]

Malcolm Wicks: Ofgem publishes guidelines for the use of green tariffs and issued a consultation on the revision of these guidelines last year. It advises that it will publish its response shortly.

Harworth Colliery

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent discussions he has had on the future of Harworth Colliery; and if he will make a statement. [78656]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 20 June 2006]: UK Coal's recent decision to proceed with the mothballing of Harworth Colliery is a sad one, particularly for the work force, a representative of whom I met yesterday. This is, of course, a commercial decision for the company and I remain hopeful that a commercial solution can still be found. I have asked to be kept closely informed of developments.

HP Sauce

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what discussions he has had with (a) Heinz, (b) unions representing workers at Aston Cross HP Sauce factory and (c) Birmingham city council regarding the Heinz proposal to move production of HP Sauce from the UK to the Netherlands. [80069]

Margaret Hodge: The Government office for the west midlands attended a meeting on Wednesday 24 May which was chaired by Councillor Ken Hardeman (Birmingham city council—cabinet member for regeneration) and included representatives from Birmingham and Solihull Learning and Skills Council, Advantage West Midlands (RDA) and Heinz.

Industrial Strategy (West Midlands)

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans his Department has to review the effect of the Government's industrial strategy on the west midlands. [76999]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 15 June 2006]: DTI published the Government's manufacturing strategy in 2002 and carried out a review of that strategy with key industry stakeholders across the regions in 2004.

As an outcome of the review, we established the joint industry and Government-led manufacturing forum to drive forward the implementation of the strategy and monitor progress. Regional development agencies are represented on the forum, reflecting their strong involvement in delivering the strategy.

I am meeting the hon. Member and other hon. Members in the near future and will discuss with him the effect of the Government's manufacturing strategy on the west midlands.

Mobile Phones

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what regulations are in place to ensure that staff at points of mobile telephone sales are (a) trained and (b) encouraged to communicate information about handset specific absorption rates. [79586]

Margaret Hodge: Many third party retailers provide this information in their outlets and on their websites, although there are no specific regulations in place.

In addition, the UK's five Mobile Network Operators, namely Orange, T-Mobile, Hutchison 3G, O2 and Vodafone, have resources within their customer service departments to provide information and advice to users regarding specific absorption rates (SAR) values on handsets.

Muslim Women (Employment)

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent steps he has taken to increase the participation of Muslim women in the labour market; and if he will make a statement. [70927]

Meg Munn: The Ethnic Minority Business Forum was established in 2000 by the DTI as an independent, strategic advisory body to represent the views of ethnic minority business communities. It advises Government on the right help and advice ethnic minority businesses need for growth and success.

Additionally the DTI's Public Service Agreement 10, which is a joint target with the Department for Work and Pensions, is to promote ethnic diversity, co-operative employment relations and greater choice and commitment in the workplace while maintaining a flexible labour market.

The DTI's sub-targets include raising self employment rate of ethnic minorities relative to other groups and reducing incidents of racial discrimination at work reported by ethnic minority employees.

In addition, the Government's Ethnic Minority Employment Task Force brings together Government Departments and key stakeholders to work towards increasing the employment rate of ethnic minorities, including Muslim women.

Non-electrical Light Fittings

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 875W, on light fittings (hazardous substances), what guidance he has issued on whether the wholesale and retail of existing stock of non-electrical light fittings are within the scope of the Restriction of the Use of Certain Hazardous Substances in Electrical and Electronic Equipment Regulations 2005, S.I. 2005, No. 2748. [79868]

Malcolm Wicks: The RoHS Regulations have no impact on any existing stock that has been placed on the EU market. The Government's non-statutory Guidance Notes make it clear that the regulations only become enforceable from 1 July 2006.

Norfolk Island

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what (a) goods and (b) services were (i) exported to and (ii) imported from Norfolk Island over the last three years. [78960]

Mr. McCartney: Recorded values of UK exports of goods to Norfolk Island were:

2005	19,000

No imports of goods were recorded in the same period. Information for trade in services is not available.

Nuclear Power

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the Prime Minister's answer of 14 June 2006, Official Report, columns 764-5, on nuclear power, what the source was for his statement (a) that 50 to 60 nuclear power plants are under construction and (b) that the new generation of nuclear power stations generate around one-tenth of the radioactive waste of the previous generation of reactors. [79036]

Malcolm Wicks: The source for the data regarding nuclear power plants under construction is the World Nuclear Association website at http://www.world-nuclear.org/info/reactors.htm

The website illustrates that there are 25 reactors under construction and 38 reactors planned, giving a total of 63 reactors. The definitions given on the website for "construction" and "planned" are:

> "Construction: first concrete for reactor poured, or major refurbishment under way"; "Planned: Approvals and funding in place, or construction well advanced but suspended indefinitely".

On the matter of radioactive waste, details of the calculations and views of the Committee on Radioactive Waste Management (CoRWM) can be found at www.corwm.org.uk

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps his Department takes to ensure that nuclear decommissioning costs are (a) kept to budget and (b) cost-effective. [78522]

Malcolm Wicks: The policy intention behind the creation of the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA), which assumed responsibility for the decommissioning and clean-up of the UK's civil nuclear legacy on 1 April 2005, is to provide national strategic control and direction for decommissioning of those sites previously operated by United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority and British Nuclear Fuels Ltd. and to deliver accelerated clean-up safely, securely, cost-effectively and in ways that safeguard the environment for this and future generations. The DTI has arrangements for the oversight of NDA so as to be sure that it is achieving this task, and like other areas of Government activity the activities of NDA are also subject to review by the National Audit Office.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether any funds provisionally set aside for (a) the decommissioning of nuclear power plants and (b) the disposal of nuclear waste have been used for any other purposes since 1997. [80005]

Malcolm Wicks: We are not aware of any funds set aside for the decommissioning of nuclear power plants or the disposal of nuclear waste that have been used for any other purposes.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much money has been set aside by (a) the Government and (b) the nuclear industry towards the cost of decommissioning nuclear power plants since 1997. [80006]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government are committed to funding the full costs of the decommissioning and clean-up of the historic civil nuclear liabilities by the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA). The Consolidated Fund is the mechanism for funding this. Under the 2004 Spending Review the NDA received a budget of £2.2 billion for 2005-06—about half of which was to be raised by the NDA's commercial activities. Following the successful conclusion of the EC State Aid Review on 4 April 2006, financial responsibility for decommissioning BNFL sites has passed to the NDA under the Energy Act 2004. Until this point BNFL held nuclear funding assets of some £17.3 billion on its balance sheet to fund future decommissioning costs. Following the transfer of the nuclear decommissioning liability to the NDA, these assets have been transferred back to the Government.

There are separate arrangements for funding the decommissioning of British Energy nuclear sites. Since privatisation in 1996, British Energy has been making contributions into a segregated decommissioning fund. As a result of the restructuring, which completed in January 2005, British Energy will make enhanced contributions into the fund and Government will underwrite the fund to the extent that its liabilities outweigh its assets. On recent valuation, the assets of the segregated fund total some £8.1 billion, the majority of which relates to the value attributed to the fund's 64.6 per cent. convertible stake in British Energy.

Oil Companies

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what steps he plans to take to ensure that oil companies are required to offer supply contracts to independent petrol retailers; and what assessment he has made of the compliance of oil companies with Government fair trading and competition policies in respect of their dealings with independent petrol retailers. [79820]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government's policy is not to intervene in commercial transactions or price setting, as they believe the consumer is best served by open competition between companies.

An assessment has not been made by the DTI of the compliance of oil companies with Government fair trading and competition policies in respect of their dealings with independent petrol retailers. However, the supply of fuel is subject to UK competition law under the Competition Act 1998. Under the Act, the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) has powers to investigate situations where there are reasonable grounds to suspect anti-competitive agreements or abuse of a dominant market position in the fuel market.

Post Office Network Services

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what services (a) his Department and (b) its associated public bodies (i) make available and (ii) have made available in the last five years through the Post Office network; through how many outlets the service is or was made available; and how many relevant transactions were undertaken in each case in the most recent year for which figures are available. [79197]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None. A number of other Government Departments have contracts with the Post Office for the provision of services through the Post Office network.

Renewable Energy

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the purchase price is of a kilowatt hour of electricity generated by (a) wind power and (b) incinerators accepting municipal waste; and how this purchase price is reduced by renewable obligation certificates in each case. [80309]

Malcolm Wicks: In the UK's competitive and liberalised energy market, the purchase price of a kilowatt hour of electricity generated, by (a) wind power and (b) incinerators accepting municipal waste, is a commercial matter between generators and suppliers.

Renewable obligation certificates allow accredited renewable generators to receive a premium price for every one megawatt hour of eligible electricity generated. An incinerator accepting municipal mixed waste is not eligible for renewable obligation certificates.

Restriction of Hazardous Substances Directive

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) what penalties will be imposed on organisations selling goods which do not comply with the restriction of hazardous substances directive; [80532]

(2) what (a) powers, (b) funds and (c) responsibilities have been given to the relevant agencies to ensure that all goods entering the UK after 1 July comply with the restriction of hazardous substances directive; [80533]

(3) what assessment his Department carried out prior to the implementation of the restrictions of hazardous substances directive of the impact of using non-lead solders on the reliability of electronic equipment manufactured; [80535]

(4) what steps are being taken to reduce environmental impact of the compulsory use of non-lead solders following the enactment of the restriction of hazardous substances directive; [80564]

(5) what testing procedures exist to measure whether metals used in electrical apparatus will comply with the restriction of hazardous substances directive; [80565]

(6) what steps have been taken to ensure that the materials being used to replace those banned by the restriction of hazardous substances directive are less damaging to the environment; [80582]

(7) what steps HM Revenue and Customs is taking to ensure that all goods entering the UK after 1 July are compliant with standards imposed by the restriction of hazardous substances directive. [80563]

Malcolm Wicks: The EC restriction of hazardous substances directive (2002/95/EC) has been transposed into UK legislation by the Restriction of the Use of Certain Hazardous Substances in Electrical and Electronic Equipment Regulations 2006 (SI 2006 No. 1463), which come into force on 1 July this year. These regulations, copies of which have been placed in the Libraries of the House, contain full details of the powers and responsibilities that the enforcement authority will hold and the details of the penalties that could be imposed on those that do not comply with the requirements. HM Revenue and Customs is not given specific additional powers by these regulations.

Due to the broad scope of the regulations, there are no standard testing procedures but the DTI's non-statutory Government Guidance Notes offer advice on the UK's overall compliance approach.

Copies of a full regulatory impact assessment were placed in the Libraries of the House at the same time as copies of the regulations.

Rural Post Offices

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to extend support for rural post offices when the Social Network Payment ends in March 2008. [79426]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government are committed to supporting the rural post office network with annual Social Network Payments of £150 million for the next two years. We are carefully considering options for the network beyond 2008 and are not working to a fixed timetable.

Shops

Ms Barlow: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate he has made of the number of independent retail shops that have (a) opened and (b) closed in Hove constituency since 1997. [76685]

Margaret Hodge: Value added tax (VAT) registrations and de-registrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business start-ups and closures.

DTI data on the number of VAT retail business registrations and de-registrations in Hove from 1997 to 2004 are shown in the following table.

VAT registrations and de-registrations in retail[1] in Hove, 1997-2004

	Registrations	De-registrations
1997	45	45
1998	35	50
1999	40	50
2000	40	45

The number of VAT registrations and de-registrations in Hove across all sectors from 1997 to 2004 is shown in the following table. Since 1997 the overall stock of businesses in Hove has risen by 12 per cent.

Source:
Business Start-ups and Closures: VAT Registrations and De-registrations 1994-2004, Small Business Service, available at http://www.sbs.gov.uk/vats

VAT registration and de-registration data do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Similarly, businesses that de-register may not have closed. In the retail sector 63 per cent of enterprises in the UK (200,000 out of 320,000) were registered for VAT at the start of 2004.

Small Businesses

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many small businesses that began trading since 1997 have subsequently ceased trading in (a) Bury St. Edmunds constituency, (b) Suffolk, (c) the east of England and (d) England. [79366]

Margaret Hodge: Value added tax (VAT) registrations and de-registrations are the best official guide to the pattern of business starts and closures. Latest VAT data on the total number of registrations since 1997 and the number of these registrations that subsequently de-registered, covering up to 2004, are shown in the following table for (a) Bury St. Edmunds constituency, (b) Suffolk, (c) the east of England and (d) England.

VAT registrations and subsequent de-registrations, 1997 to 2004[1]

	Number of registrations and de-registrations
Bury St Edmunds constituency
New registrations 1997 to 2004	2,395
Number de-registering by end of 2004	650

New registrations 1997 to 2004	15,940
Number de-registering by end of 2004	4,860

New registrations 1997 to 2004	1,261,665

[1] VAT registration and de-registration data are not available by size of business. However, 98 per cent. of the total stock of VAT registered businesses are small (0-49 employees). New analysis of VAT Survival Rates data 1994-2003, Small Business Service, available at http://www.sbs.gov.uk/survival; SBS analysis of ONS Inter Departmental Business Register data.

VAT registration and de-registration data do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if their turnover falls below the compulsory VAT threshold, which has risen in each year since 1997. Similarly, businesses that de-register may not have closed. Only 1.8 million out of the 4.3 million businesses in the UK (42 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2004.

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry which Minister has responsibility for small firms. [80506]

Margaret Hodge: I have overall responsibility for small firms.

Social Enterprises

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what publicly-funded sources of assistance are available to social enterprises that are approaching bankruptcy. [76725]

Edward Miliband: I have been asked to reply.

A social enterprise approaching bankruptcy has access to all publicly-funded sources of assistance that any traditional business can expect to draw upon. This includes their local business link, which as well as offering advice to start-up companies, also helps businesses to deal with problems and challenges they may encounter. Guidance is also available on the businesslink.gov website which offers advice on avoiding insolvency, recovering debt through the courts, and alternatives to bankruptcy.

Supermarkets

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry whether the Competition Commission inquiry into supermarkets will include the implications of the international business practices of the largest chains. [78903]

Mr. McCartney: Although the Office of Fair Trading have been specific in the issues they feel could be a problem within the market, the Competition Commission (CC) investigation is not limited to considering only those issues identified in the reference document. It is for the CC to make that decision.

In its statement of issues published on 15 June, the CC has indicated that it has received evidence on a range of issues of public concern associated with grocery retailing which it has no power to investigate or resolve. These issues, and public concern about them, may interact with competition issues and provide background and context for the investigation but the CC has stated that its focus must be on the competition issues. The full statement of issues can be found at:

http://www.competition-commission.org.uk/inquiries/ref2006/grocery/pdf/issues_statement.pdf.

Trade Control Licences

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what (a) standard individual trade control licences and (b) open individual trade control licences have been issued to UK-based companies for the transfer of small arms from Bosnia to (i) Iraq and (ii) other destination countries since June 2003. [79958]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government publish details of trade control licences issued, in their annual and quarterly reports on strategic export controls. The Government's annual reports are available from the Libraries of the House and the DTI export control organisation website at http://www.dti.gov.uk/europeantrade/strategic-export-control/index.html.

Working Time Directive

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) whether it is the Government's policy to preserve the UK's opt-out from the working time directive in its entirety; and if he will make a statement; [77668]

(2) what restrictions in (a) scope and (b) permanence relating to the UK's opt-out from the working time directive are under consideration; and if he will make a statement. [77669]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The UK Government, in common with the Governments of several other European member states, have made it clear that they would oppose any proposal for a revised directive that phases out the opt-out, or that prevents individuals from choosing to work longer than 48 hours if they wish to do so.

Zimbabwe

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many export licences were granted for military equipment to Zimbabwe in each quarter of the last three years. [80822]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government publish detailed information on their export licensing decisions, by destination, in their annual and quarterly reports on strategic export controls. The Government's annual reports are available from the Libraries of the House and the DTI Export Control Organisation website at http://www.dti.gov.uk/europeandtrade/strategic-export-control/index.html.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assistance the Export Credits Guarantee Department has offered to UK companies seeking to export to Zimbabwe over the past three years. [77687]

Mr. McCartney: The Export Credits Guarantee Department (ECGD) has not provided any support for UK companies exporting to Zimbabwe in the last three years. ECGD withdrew cover for Zimbabwe in 1999.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many websites there are within her responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79060]

Mr. Lammy: My Department is responsible for 18 websites. The total maintenance costs of these sites for the year 2005-06 was £50,020.

This figure does not include those sites developed through the Culture Online programme.

Digital Radio Multiplex

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she expects to lay orders relating to the amount of data which can be carried on a digital radio multiplex and to change the definition of a digital programme service. [80065]

Tessa Jowell: The Television Licensable Content Services Order 2006 and the Radio Multiplex Services (Required Percentage of Digital Capacity) Order 2006 were laid on 21 June 2006.

Digital Television

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will take steps to ensure an increase to 100 per cent. of the coverage of digital services following digital switchover; and if she will make a statement. [79114]

Mr. Woodward: Currently digital terrestrial television is available to three quarters of the population, and the vast majority of households can receive digital TV services via digital satellite, terrestrial or cable. 70 per cent. of households in the UK have already chosen to take up digital TV.

After switchover, which takes place between 2008 and 2012, UK digital terrestrial television coverage will match the current analogue coverage of 98.5 per cent.

Disability Access

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether any buildings in her Department fall short of disability access regulations. [79014]

Mr. Lammy: As an employer, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport is subject to duties under the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 which requires us to make reasonable adjustments for disabled people. These may include adjustments to physical features of premises.

The principle of "reasonable adjustment" is fundamental to the Act and factors such as the practicability of making an adjustment and the extent to which it overcomes the difficulties faced by the disabled person may be taken into account in determining what is reasonable. As the Disability Discrimination Act requires adjustments that are reasonable in the individual circumstances, it is not prescriptive about the level of access to buildings which must be provided for disabled people, and there are no disability access regulations made under the Act.

However, Part M of the building regulations aims to ensure that people, regardless of disability, age or gender, should be able to gain access to, and within buildings, and use their facilities, both as visitors and as people who live or work in them. The provisions of Part M apply only to new buildings and those non-domestic buildings undergoing alteration, change of use or which are being extended. Crown-owned or occupied buildings are exempt from the building regulations but it is the Government's policy for their buildings to comply with the regulations where there is no reason not to.

DCMS is currently undertaking a major refurbishment of our main Cockspur Street offices. We have given careful consideration to the needs of staff and visitors and are making many improvements to the building aimed at improving access for all. For example, all workstations will be fully adjustable; primary and secondary circulation routes are being widened and all will exceed the standards set by British Standard BS8300. There will be accessible signage, toilets and meeting rooms with induction loops on all floors.

Gaming Machines (Stakes and Prizes)

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recommendations have been made by the Gaming Board of Great Britain on machine stakes and prize levels since 1976. [79519]

Mr. Caborn: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

I would also refer my hon. Friend to my answer given today to his question number 79594.

Mr. Kevan Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when gaming machine stake and prize levels were last increased. [79594]

Mr. Caborn: Stakes and prizes were last increased for the various categories of gaming machines, under the provisions of the Gaming Act 1968, on the following basis:

Jackpot machines

In casinos, stakes and prizes were increased to £2 and to £4,000, respectively, in October 2005.

From October 2005, casinos were also able to offer a new style of machine with a maximum stake of £100 and a maximum prize of £500.

Licensing Act

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how her Department is monitoring the extent to which council licensing departments are applying the Licensing Act 2003 consistently and appropriately in respect of charity fund raising functions. [79522]

Mr. Woodward: Under the Scrutiny Council initiative, officials from my Department are working with council officers and through them with local police and other responsible authorities, residents' groups, businesses and other stakeholders, to gather information about how the new regime is working on the ground.

In addition, we are conducting a review of the guidance issued under section 182 of the Licensing Act 2003 (the 2003 Act). A comprehensive formal review of the guidance including a full public consultation will be completed by summer 2006 and a revised version of the guidance will be laid before Parliament by the end of 2006.

However, in the first instance, it is for licensing authorities to interpret the law on the basis of their own legal advice. An appeal mechanism has been built into the 2003 Act to ensure that licensing authority interpretations can be challenged in the courts to ensure that they are reasonable and fair.

Lottery Funding

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many applications for lottery funding were received from organisations and groups in Bexleyheath and Crayford in each of the last five years. [79957]

2 in the St Albans area.

We are looking into the status of some other reported closure proposals with the authorities concerned. There have been a number of figures for such proposals in the press and media. However, we believe that some of those figures have not taken account of proposals that have been dropped or scaled down.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport in how many local authorities the future of public libraries is open to public consultation; and how long each consultation is expected to last. [79904]

Mr. Lammy: Information regarding public consultations on library services within the 149 library authorities in England is not held centrally. However, we are aware that a number of consultations are planned or in progress in areas such as Devon and Dorset where library closures are being considered.

We want to see public library services that are responsive to the needs of local people. Individual library authorities are best placed to judge those needs but they should ensure that their judgements are based on soundings from the communities that they serve.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of public library stock was made up of (a) books, (b) tapes, (c) CDs, (d) videos and (e) DVDs in each year since 1997. [79906]

John Healey: The recent Budget announced the extension of the 20p per litre duty differential for biofuels until 2008-09, and set out a range of announcements about the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation, which will begin in 2008-09.

Dawn Primarolo: Representations are regularly made to Treasury Ministers and officials on a wide range of issues.

Under agreements with our European partners we can keep our existing VAT zero rates, but we may not extend them or introduce new ones. It is therefore not possible to remove VAT from children's sunglasses.

Unused cards are generally attributable to holders of recently issued cards having not yet been paid within CIS or holders that normally work within the domestic sector having applied for a card in case they become involved in CIS work.

Correspondence

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Paymaster General will respond to the letter from the hon. Member for Walsall, North of 23 May 2006, regarding a constituent. [80143]

Dawn Primarolo: I have done so.

Credit Unions

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what help his Department has given to the credit union movement in the UK. [79826]

Ed Balls: The Government welcome the role of the credit union movement in helping to promote financial inclusion and contributing to choice and diversity in the financial services sector. The Government aim to encourage credit unions to be sustainable professional bodies so they can more effectively meet their members' needs and assist the financially excluded on a long-term basis.

Some of the Government action to facilitate this since 1997 includes bringing credit unions under the regulatory supervision of the Financial Services Authority in 2001, and using a regulatory reform order in 2003 to allow credit unions greater operational flexibility. More recently and following consultation with the sector and consumer groups, the Government introduced legislation increasing the maximum permitted interest rate on loans, from 1 per cent. to 2 per cent. per month, in order to provide flexibility to lend to more people on low incomes. In addition, credit unions are now able to offer cash ISAs.

These measures are complemented by a £36 million Growth Fund for credit unions and other community-based lenders announced at PBR 2004, and to be administered by the Department for Work and Pensions from mid-2006.

The average length of time HM Revenue and Customs take to reply to subject access requests is 11 days. However, in an exceptional instance, that involved both an appeal and a subject access request under the Data Protection Act, the entire matter took 341 days to process.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 201W, on the Euro-preparation group, what the date of the autumn meeting is; and which local authorities have been invited. [78315]

Ed Balls: The next meeting between central Government officials and local authorities is provisionally scheduled for 21 September 2006. This is part of the regular programme of activities with stakeholders on euro preparations. On the local authorities involved in this work, I refer the hon. 2. One person households	6,017	8,319
3. Cohabiting couple households	*2,052	3,726

* In 1991 responses to relationship questions were only processed for approximately 10% of the population. The figure in this table has been grossed up by a factor of 10.16 to account for this.

As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such discussions.

Stamp Duty

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many properties sold in (a) Bury St. Edmunds constituency and (b) the Suffolk county council area in each of the last three years attracted stamp duty at (i) zero per cent., (ii) 1 per cent., (iii) 3 per cent. and (iv) 4 per cent. [79395]

Ed Balls: Estimates of the number of property transactions for parliamentary constituencies and counties are only available for 2004-05 and 2005-06, and are given in the following table for Bury St. Edmunds and Suffolk, grouped by stamp duty band.

	Property transactions attracting:
	0 per cent. rate	1 per cent. rate	3 per cent. rate	4 per cent. rate	Total
Bury St. Edmunds
2004-05	430	2,200	420	50	3,140

The number of transactions bearing stamp duty will be lower than the number shown in the non-zero bands due to the use of various reliefs, e.g. disadvantaged area relief, group relief, registered social landlord relief etc. There are also some lease transactions which fall in the 0 per cent. band on account of consideration, but which bear stamp duty on the lease rental.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was raised in stamp duty from home sales in each local authority area in England and Wales in (a) 1997-98 and (b) 2005-06. [79413]

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2006, Official Report, column 1273W, on tax credits, what data the Treasury has on the number of underpayments of tax credits which have now been paid; and if he will make a statement. [79100]

Dawn Primarolo: As I told the hon. Member in the answer he refers to,

"HMRC repay underpayments or offset them against any outstanding overpayments, as soon as the underpayments are recognised".

So the information is not available.

Mr. Soames: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people living in mid Sussex received overpayments of (a) child tax credit and (b) working tax credit since April 2003. [79815]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the right hon. Member for Birkenhead (Mr. Field) on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1421W.

We do not produce statistics separately for child and working tax credits.

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many households in (a) Lewisham, Deptford constituency and (b) Lewisham borough are receiving the Child Tax Credit; [79154]

(2) how many households in (a) Lewisham, Deptford constituency and (b) Lewisham borough are receiving the Working Tax Credit. [79155]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the right hon. Friend the Member for Birkenhead (Mr. Field) on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1421W.

Training Courses

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2006, Official Report, column 5806W, on training courses, if he will list the courses to which the answer refers; how many people have taken part in these courses in each of the last five years; and what the cost of these courses was in each year. [79518]

Dawn Primarolo: Breakthrough has been designed to help the Department achieve its aim of increasing diversity at all levels by harnessing the potential of individuals whatever their background. As a self-development programme it enables both mentors and delegates to make better use of their skills and abilities, and helps them in their careers and to compete more effectively for other opportunities.

Ideally Breakthrough is looking for a mix of participants from various backgrounds on each programme. Experience has shown that there is great benefit in bringing together people from both majority and minority groups on programmes such as this.

Under-age Pregnancies

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many girls under the age of 16 years (a) became pregnant and (b) gave birth in Tamworth constituency in each of the last 10 years, broken down by age. [80126]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 26 June 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many girls under the age of 16 years (a) became pregnant and (b) gave birth in the Tamworth constituency in each of the last 10 years, broken down by age. (80126)

Numbers of conceptions under age 16 and the number of maternities in Tamworth County District for the years 1995-2004 are shown in the table below.

Information on conceptions is routinely published for local authorities and strategic health authorities. Figures cannot be provided by Parliamentary Constituency because of the risk of disclosing individual's information due to small differences with local authority boundaries.

ONS does not publish figures by single year of age below the age of 16 by either local or health authority and also does not release figures for individual years because of the risk of disclosing individual's information.

Maternity figures cannot be provided for Tamworth Parliamentary Constituency for the same reason as that indicated above for conceptions.

Annual numbers of maternities to girls aged under 16 and figures by individual year of age are too small to be released because of the risk of disclosing individual's information. For this reason only the total number of maternities in the 10 year period (1995-2004) is given in the table below.

Conceptions and maternities under age 16, Tamworth CD, 1995-2004[1]

	Number
Conceptions	168
Maternities	24

[1] Conceptions for 2004 are provisional.

VAT

Mr. Soames: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reason he chose not to apply to the European Commission for the reduced rate of VAT on repair and renovation work for domestic buildings by 31 March. [79814]

Dawn Primarolo: The VAT reduced rate for the renovation and repair of private dwellings is one of a number introduced into EU legislation on an experimental basis whose objective is to create employment opportunities by stimulating demand through lower prices. The Government have always chosen not to participate, as we believe that our employment objectives are better targeted through measures such as the welfare to work strategy and new deal, which have contributed to the 2.4 million rise in employment since 1997. We continue to take this view.

Vehicle Excise Duty

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average annual administrative costs of collecting Vehicle Excise Duty (VED) have been in the last three years; what proportion of the revenue raised this represents; and how much VED was collected in total in 2005-06. [79262]

Dr. Ladyman: I have been asked to reply.

The information is as follows:

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Net receipts (£ million)	4,687	4,737	5,012
Administrative costs (£ million)	110	120	124
Percentage revenue raised	2.3	2.5	2.5

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Adult Education

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many people took adult education courses (a) funded and (b) partly funded by his Department in (i) Lambeth and (ii) Vauxhall in the last three years; [78592]

(2) how many adult education courses his Department (a) funded and (b) partly funded in (i) Lambeth and (ii) Vauxhall in the last three years. [78593]

Bill Rammell: We do not hold information on the number of individual adult education courses that are funded by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) but we know the total number of learners aged over 19 on LSC funded courses in 2002/03 was 3.49 million, 3.43 million in 2003/04 and 3.46 million in 2004/05. These are national figures and include all LSC funded learners.

Air Miles

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many air miles have been accrued by senior civil servants in his Department in each of the last three years; and how they were used. [70479]

Mr. Dhanda: This information could be supplied only at disproportionate cost.

Apprenticeships

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils in year 10 and above in London are on the apprenticeships scheme. [79839]

Phil Hope: There are 211 Key Stage 4 pupils in total in London on the Young Apprenticeship Programme, 45 in Year 10 and 166 in Year 11.

Child Abuse

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when he expects the report commissioned by the Department into alleged child abuse related to witchcraft to be published. [77571]

Mr. Dhanda: The report of the research commissioned by the Department for Education and Skills, to scope the problem of child abuse in England linked to belief in "possession" or "witchcraft", is being considered by Ministers across Government. We hope to be in a position to publish the report by the end of June, or soon thereafter.

Child Protection

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps his Department is taking to encourage local authorities to seek representation of military establishments on local safeguarding children boards; and if he will make a statement. [77601]

Mr. Dhanda: Local Safeguarding Children Boards (LSCBs) were set up in all English local authority areas by 1 April 2006. Government guidance on LSCBs forms chapter three of the revised "Working Together to Safeguard Children" which was published in April 2006. The LSCB guidance was also published separately in December 2005 to help local authorities and their partners set up LSCBs.

The guidance makes it clear that in addition to the statutory members of LSCBs, local authorities should secure the involvement of other relevant local organisations including,

"in areas where they have significant local activity, the armed forces".

Children, Young People and Families Grant

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) which organisations were unsuccessful in their application for funding under the Children, Young People and Families Grant programme; what each organisation's proposal was; how much funding each organisation sought; and why each application was rejected; [79568]

(2) how much funding has been allocated for each of the organisations accepted under the Children, Young People and Families Grant programme over the next three years. [79569]

Beverley Hughes: Over 1,400 applications were received for this grant, and many organisations submitted more than one application. Just over £17 million is being allocated to 67 applications from 65 organisations in 2006-07. Lists of successful organisations with their allocations and unsuccessful organisations are being placed in the Library of the House. The list of successful organisations can also be found on www.everychildmatters.gov.uk/strategy/voluntaryandcommunity/cypfgrant.

The remainder of the information can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills why the work of community family trusts previously funded under the MARS Grant programme did not continue under the Children, Young People and Families Grant programme. [79570]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 22 June 2006]: Organisations supported under the Marriage and Relationship Support Grant programme (MARS) continue to receive funding until their grant expires. Organisations funded through MARS were eligible to apply for funding to the Children, Young People and Families Grant programme. One Community Family Trust was among the 65 organisations funded through this Grant programme in 2006/07.

Connexions

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many young people have received support from Connexions in (a) Lewisham, Deptford constituency and (b) Lewisham borough in the past year. [79152]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department collects data on the number of interventions provided but not on the number of young people receiving support. In the year 2005-06 18,849 young people were counted in the Connexions cohort of young people in the borough of Lewisham. They received a total of 22,488 interventions. The Department does not hold this information at constituency level.

Departmental guidance is that to count as an intervention there needs to be some element of assistance involving a substantial or meaningful exchange with the young person. As a rule of thumb this should be of enough significance to be noted in their client record. It would normally exclude straightforward referrals to specific opportunities e.g. job submissions, the provision of factual information and simple follow up to find out if the young person still wanted assistance.

Departmental Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will keep a separate record of the amount spent annually by his Department on alcohol for hospitality purposes. [77277]

Mr. Dhanda: My Department does not intend to keep a separate record of the amount spent on alcohol for hospitality purposes.

The Department's internal guidance for general use is that public funds should not be used to purchase alcohol.

It is accepted that there are some events, whose primary purpose is for non-civil servants, where not providing alcohol could be seen as unusual or cause embarrassment. It is done with due regard to value for money, any provision being modest and proportionate, and requires a senior manager's approval.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what incentives his Department offers to encourage staff to share vehicles when travelling to work. [72996]

Mr. Dhanda: Car-sharing is one of a number of measures my Department encourages to enable staff to travel more sustainably. In general, we encourage staff, wherever possible, to use public transport or cycle to work especially those commuting to our London offices due to very limited car parking and traffic congestion.

Our three sites outside London do facilitate car sharing by the provision of electronic site notice boards to enable staff to contact others who may wish to car share. The incentive is the greater likelihood of securing a free parking space.

For staff commuting, especially to our London sites, we provide season ticket and cycle purchase loans for those who want them.

Education and Skills Committee

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what action has been taken by his Department to implement Education and Skills Select Committee recommendations since the 2001-02 session; and if he will make a statement. [77839]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department is unable to provide the information requested without incurring disproportionate cost. However, the Government in their responses to Committee recommendations make clear whether or not they are accepted.

Illegal Immigrants

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many illegal immigrants have been discovered to be employed by his Department in each year since 2001; in what capacities they were employed; how many were discovered as part of a criminal investigation; and what the nature of the charges brought against them were. [73955]

Mr. Dhanda: I can confirm that that no illegal immigrants have been discovered to be employed by the Department.

Internet Plagiarism

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what guidance his Department has issued to higher education institutions on how to respond to internet plagiarism. [79179]

Bill Rammell: We recognise that plagiarism is a serious matter. As higher education institutions are autonomous bodies they are responsible for determining what advice should be provided to their students on plagiarism, in all of its forms. The Quality Assurance Agency's Code of Practice and the Joint Information Systems Committee provide advice and guidance to institutions on dealing with this issue.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if his Department will consider the introduction of a proscribed list of customised essay websites in order to reduce internet plagiarism. [79180]

Bill Rammell: The Joint Information Systems Committee (JISC) which provides advice and guidance to institutions on dealing with plagiarism, includes on its Plagiarism Advisory Service website a list of well-known European and US essay bank websites, to make academics and teachers aware of these sites. In its workshops with academic staff JISC also suggest that students are made aaware that staff know of these sites and are also shown the poor quality of essays that are being offered.

In addition, last November the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority appointed Professor Jean Underwood of Nottingham Trent University to advise it on further measures which might be taken in schools and colleges and by awarding bodies to reduce the risk of plagiarism from internet sources.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures his Department is taking to tackle the availability of customised essay websites. [79181]

Bill Rammell: Higher education institutions, as autonomous bodies, are responsible for determining what advice should be provided to their students on plagiarism, and also what policies should be in place to detect plagiarism and determine disciplinary action. The Quality Assurance Agency's Code of Practice and the Joint Information Systems Committee (JISC) provide advice and guidance to institutions on dealing with this issue. JISC includes on its Plagiarism Advisory Service website a list of well-known European and US essay bank websites, to make academics and teachers aware of these sites. In addition, last November the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority appointed Professor Jean Underwood of Nottingham Trent University to advise it on further measures which might be taken in schools and colleges and by awarding bodies to reduce the risk of plagiarism from internet sources.

Learning and Skills Council

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on recent trends in the (a) provision and (b) funding of health and safety training funded by the Learning and Skills Council. [79889]

Bill Rammell: The funding strategy that we announced last October included the decision for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) to cease funding provision from 2006-07 that is rightfully the responsibility of employers, such as health and safety training. This was part of our commitment to rebalance responsibilities among learners, employers and the state as well as ensuring that we direct resources to enable those without the basic skills for employability to receive the support they need.

Following wide consultation on these changes the LSC has considered representations from key stakeholders and has agreed to allow some local discretion in 2006/07 to provide limited support for this provision depending on the assessment of need. Where this provision is part of a coherent curriculum offer supported by a clearly stated rationale then the provision will remain eligible for LSC funding.

The LSC is committed to carrying out an impact assessment of these changes working with key stakeholders and partner organisations. The LSC will continue to monitor the position but feedback from individual colleges indicates that many will continue to offer health and safety courses to employers, mainly on a full cost basis.

Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which Government Bills sponsored by his Department he has bid for in the next Session of Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [77838]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Leader of the House on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1431W.

Lip-reading

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many adult education courses in lip-reading were available at educational institutions in England in (a) 2000 and (b) the most recent year for which figures are available. [76534]

Bill Rammell: Lip-reading courses are provided by a range of organisations including further education colleges, local authorities, social services and voluntary sector organisations. We do not have detailed information at a national level on the number of courses available. However, we have been clear that this provision is a priority and we are working with Hearing Concern to identify any areas where there is an unmet need for lip-reading provision and how this can be addressed.

Ministerial Responsibilities

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which Minister in his Department has ministerial responsibility for sustainability and biodiversity. [77625]

Mr. Dhanda: I have responsibility for issues of sustainability and biodiversity within the Department for Education and Skills.

Ministerial Travel

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much was spent on foreign travel by his Department in each of the last eight years. [76851]

Mr. Dhanda: Details of official foreign travel expenditure incurred by the Department over the last seven years are set out as follows:

2005/06	250,521.17
2004/05	179,765.46
2003/04	218,338.27
2002/03	243,096.69
2001/02	510,242.47
2000/01	831,667.61
1999/2000	791,181.69

Since 1999 the Government have published, on an annual basis, the total costs of all ministerial overseas travel and a list of all visits by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500. This information is available in the Library. Information for the financial year 2004-05 was published on 21 July 2005, Official Report, column 158WS. Information for the financial year 2005-06 is in the process of being collated and will be published shortly.

All foreign travel undertaken by DfES Ministers and civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the "Ministerial Code" and the "Civil Service Management Code".

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills on how many occasions (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in his Department have stayed overnight in (i) five star, (ii) four star and (iii) three star hotels s in each of the last three years. [69035]

Mr. Dhanda: There is no central record on the star rating of accommodation used by civil servants as the choice of hotel is influenced by the cost of an overnight stay in the hotel.

Parliamentary Ombudsman

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will list those occasions when the recommendations of a report from the parliamentary ombudsman have been (a) rejected and (b) partly rejected by his Department since 1997. [76259]

Mr. Dhanda: I am not aware of any occasion since 1997 in the Department, its predecessor or associated executive agencies or NDPBs when the recommendations of the parliamentary ombudsman were not fully accepted and implemented.

Portland PR

Mr. Clapham: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what meetings officials in his Department have had with representatives of the public relations company Portland PR; what contracts Portland PR has with his Department and agencies for which he has responsibility; and what the nature of the contract is in each case. [70051]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department does not maintain a central list of such meetings. Civil servants meet many people as part of the process of policy development and business delivery. All such meetings are conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Civil Service Code and Guidance for civil servants on contacts with lobbyists and people outside Government.

The Department has no record of contracting with Portland PR.

Positive Parenting

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how much his Department plans to spend on the promotion of positive parenting over the next three years; [78888]

(2) what measures his Department has introduced for the promotion of positive parenting in each of the last three years; and at what cost in each year. [78889]

Mr. Dhanda: My Department, via the Parenting Fund, supports voluntary and community sector projects that enable an increase in parenting provision, and access to that provision for groups that are currently less well served. These projects provide a range of information, advice and guidance—including the promotion of positive parenting.

Since its announcement in 2002 to date, the Parenting Fund has provided £22 million to support 154 projects. An additional £20 million will provide support from 2006-08 for a further 137 projects in 23 geographic areas.

Staff Surveys

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many staff surveys have been conducted in his Department in each of the last three years. [70477]

Mr. Dhanda: In the last three years, my Department has completed two full on-line staff surveys and three mini telephone surveys, which surveyed a cross representative sample of staff across the Department.

Unemployed People

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps his Department plans to take to encourage long-term unemployed people in Hartlepool constituency to return to education and training. [80538]

Phil Hope: Responsibility for encouraging long-term unemployed people to return to education and training is shared between the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (DWP) and the Secretary of State for Education and Skills.

Both Departments, along with their respective delivery agencies Jobcentre Plus (JCP) and the Learning and Skills Council (LSC), are working closely together to ensure that long-term unemployed people have the skills they need to secure sustainable and productive jobs. There has already been significant progress in joint working between the LSC and JCP and the Hartlepool area is now covered by joint delivery planning in order to meet local employment and skills needs. As part of this joint delivery plan, the LSC Tees Valley is currently piloting access trials to enable JCP customers in receipt of allowances to access LSC-funded provision. This enables customers to continue to receive their allowances while improving their skills with recognised qualifications and improve their employability.

The Government's Skills Strategy sends out a strong signal about the priority we attach to helping adults with few or no qualifications to attain a platform of wider employability skills. All those on jobseeker's allowance or income-related benefits and their dependants receive free tuition in further education, in addition to the support available through their local JCP office. Unemployed people also have access to in-depth advice about their education and training options through the Learndirect one-stop telephone and on-line advice service.

The Government do, however, recognise that more needs to be done to tackle long-term unemployment and published a Green Paper in January 2006, "A New Deal for Welfare: Empowering People to Work", including measures to help low skilled adults secure employment through the New Deal for Skills. These include piloting skills coaching in a number of JCP districts and our latest evidence shows that skills coaching is helping long-term unemployed people improve their employability skills.

In addition, the Chancellor announced in his Budget Report that Lord Leitch's review of skills would be extended to include better alignment of measures to tackle worklessness to support labour market flexibility, better employment outcomes and greater progression to productive and sustainable jobs for those with skill needs. We expect Sandy Leitch's report this autumn and my Department looks forward to working with the Department for Work and Pensions to take forward Lord Leitch's proposals.

University Students

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many university students in England were resident in Scotland in the last three academic years for which figures are available. [79608]

Bill Rammell: The latest available information is given in the following table:

Scottish domiciled[1] enrolments at English HE institutions

Level of study	Mode of study	2002/03	2003/04	2004/05
Postgraduate	Full-time	1,665	1,670	1,620
	Part-time	3,510	3,525	3,620

Young Carers

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what procedures are in place (a) to identify and (b) to support young carers; [79440]

(2) what publicly funded services exist to support families with young carers; [79441]

(3) how many children have been identified as young carers. [79442]

Mr. Dhanda: Anyone concerned that a child may be a "child in need", whether as a young carer or for any other reason, should refer the case to local children's services for an initial assessment. Children and their families are also able to make such contact direct.

Section 1 of the Carers (Recognition and Services) Act 1995 provides that at the time a local authority assess a person's needs for community care services or assess the needs of a disabled child, an individual who provides or intends to provide a substantial amount of care on a regular basis for that person has the right to request an assessment of his ability to provide and continue to provide care. The authority must take that assessment into account when making any decision about services for the cared for person or to meet the needs of the child, as the case may be.

The Carers (Equal Opportunities) Act 2004 ("the 2004 Act") makes three principal changes to the law with the objective of providing further support for carers and helping to ensure that they are not placed at a disadvantage because of the care they provide. First, the Act requires local authorities to inform carers, in certain circumstances, that they may be entitled to an assessment. Second, when undertaking a carer's assessment, the local authority must consider whether the carer works, undertakes any form of education, training or leisure activity, or wishes to do any of those things. The effect of this is that the local authority will have to ask the carer about those activities during an assessment, and then take this into account when making the decision about whether the needs of the cared for person call for the provision of any services by them. Third, the Act provides for co-operation between local authorities and other bodies in relation to the planning and provision of services that are relevant to carers.

Guidance makes clear that children who are carers should routinely be assessed under the Children Act 1989. The Children Act 1989 already gives local authorities a duty under paragraph 1(2) of schedule 2 to publicise their services to families with children in need and to take steps to ensure that those who might benefit from the services receive the information.

The 2001 census recorded a total of 149,942 young carers in England and Wales, of whom 24,266 were providing 20 or more hours of care per week.

Youth Councils

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many youth councils are in operation; and where each is located. [77915]

Mr. Dhanda: Information on the number of youth councils in operation or their location is not held centrally.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of her Department. [80095]

Hilary Armstrong: The Cabinet Office finance director is Jerry Page, who has been a member of the Chartered Institute of Management Accountants since 1991. He has worked in Government for over 30 years, 22 of them in finance. He spent much of this time in Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs, working in a variety of finance roles which included implementation of financial systems (purchasing; costing; asset management; accounts receivable; budgeting), operation of financial systems (purchasing; accounts payable; accounts receivable), implementation of internal charging. His two previous roles before joining the Department were as head of investment appraisal and public/private partnerships for HMRC and, immediately prior to joining, head of financial operations in the Valuation Office Agency.

Departmental Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will keep a separate record of the amount spent annually by her Department on alcohol for hospitality purposes. [77268]

Hilary Armstrong: The Department does not keep a separate record of expenditure incurred on alcohol for hospitality purposes and at present does not plan to introduce a process which records this expenditure separately on the accounting system.

All Cabinet Office expenditure on official hospitality is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in "Government Accounting".

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many websites there are within her responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79072]

Edward Miliband: There are 19 websites within the Department's responsibilities. The total cost of these sites for 2004-05 was £570,570.45.

These figures exclude websites relating to the areas of policy brought within the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster's responsibility at the recent Machinery of Government changes, as the future of these sites are subject to review.

Deputy Prime Minister

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on what date the Deputy Prime Minister first moved into the Admiralty Office at 26 Whitehall following the abolition of the Department of Environment, Transport and the Regions. [78295]

Hilary Armstrong: As a result of the machinery of Government changes which followed the 2001 General Election the Deputy Prime Minister was based in Dover House until September 2002, when the Office for the Deputy Prime Minister moved into 26 Whitehall.

Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which Private Members' Bills were drafted by her Department, or the Cabinet Office, in each Session since 1997; and which of those received Royal Assent. [77499]

Hilary Armstrong: Members will consider a range of possible subjects before introducing their Private Members' Bills.

Government draftsmen do draft some Bills in advance which are available as one of the options for Members to consider before they make their selection.

However, Members may make subsequent amendments or revisions to a Government drafted Bill, or use it as the basis for a Private Members' Bill in the future.

The information requested is therefore not collected.

Youth and Community Service

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will place in the Library a copy of the advertisement for the Chair of the Youth and Community Service. [79402]

Edward Miliband: A copy of the advertisement for the Chair of the Russell Commission implementation body has been placed in the Library.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Court Fines

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many vehicles were clamped as a result of the owner not paying a fine in each year since 1997; and how many fines were subsequently paid as a result of the clamp being applied in each year. [78834]

Ms Harman: The specific sanction of clamping cars for non-payment of fines was introduced in the Courts Act 2003, the phased implementation of which was completed on 31 March 2006. Since January 2006, 820 clamping orders have been issued although data are not held centrally on the number of cars that are consequently clamped or on fines paid as a direct result of clamping. Data are not available nationally prior to January 2006.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many (a) male and (b) female offenders paid their fine on the day of the hearing in each year since 1999, broken down by age group. [78835]

Ms Harman: This information is not held centrally and to obtain it would incur disproportionate cost.

Isle of Wight Prisons (Court Cases)

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the total cost was of fees remitted in the Newport Isle of Wight county court in the cases initiated recently against the Home Office by inmates of Isle of Wight prisons; and what comparable figures are available of the total cost of fees remitted in each county court in the last year for which information is available. [78568]

Ms Harman: Approximately 50 cases have been issued by inmates at Albany prison in which fees valued at around £6,000 have been remitted. The full information requested has been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Prisoners (Electoral Register)

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what guidance her Department has issued to local authority electoral registration departments on prisoners on the electoral register and their status in relation to elections. [80383]

Bridget Prentice: The Department for Constitutional Affairs has issued no guidance on this subject.

The Representation of the People Act 2000 clarified the right to register and vote of prisoners detained on remand. Circular RPA 432 issued in April 2000 by the Home Office (at that time responsible for electoral policy) brought these provisions to the attention of local electoral registration officers. The Home Office also contributed to guidance issued in January 2001 by the Association of Electoral Administrators, which made clear that while remand prisoners were entitled to register and vote, convicted prisoners were not.

The Government are committed to a full public consultation on the enfranchisement of convicted prisoners, in response to the judgment of the Grand Chamber of the European Court of Human Rights in the case of Hirst v. UK. The consultation process will include consideration of practical issues around the registration of convicted prisoners, which will inform any subsequent guidance that is produced on the issue.

Salisbury Combined Court House

Robert Key: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs when construction work will commence on the Salisbury combined court house; and when the new building will be in service. [79407]

Ms Harman: It is planned that construction work on the Salisbury combined court house will commence in March 2007 and the new building will be in service during the autumn of 2008.

HOME DEPARTMENT

32 (The Royal) Squadron

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will list the occasions on which he has used 32 (The Royal) Squadron since 2001; what the approximate take-off and landing times were of each flight; whether the carbon emissions were offset in respect of each flight; which other transport options were considered for each flight; why other transport options were not used; for what official duties each flight was used; and if he will make a statement. [64169]

Mr. Byrne: The rules on the use of special flights are set out in "Travel by Ministers". The annual lists of overseas travel by Cabinet Ministers costing over £500 set out when special flights are used, and the purpose of each trip. Copies are available in the Library. Special flights are only used as a last resort once all alternative transport options have been considered.

Asylum Seekers

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many failed asylum seekers have been in detention for (a) more than four weeks, (b) more than 13 weeks, (c) more than 26 weeks and (d) more than 52 weeks. [77759]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 19 June 2006]: Quarterly snapshots are published showing the number of people detained under Immigration Act powers on the last Saturday of each quarter and these can be broken down by length of detention. The following table shows the length of detention of persons who had claimed asylum at some stage and were detained as at 25 March 2006. Information on the number of persons detained is published in the Quarterly Asylum Bulletin, on the Home Office research development and statistics directorate website at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration1.html.

Asylum seekers recorded as being in detention in the United Kingdom solely under Immigration Act powers as at 25 March 2006, by length of detention[1,2]

Length of detention[3]	Asylum seekers[4]
4 weeks or less	935
More than 4 weeks to 13 weeks	465
More than 13 weeks to 26 weeks	175
More than 26 weeks to 52 weeks	120
1 year or more	30
Total	1,745

[1] Figures rounded to the nearest 5 may not sum due to rounding and exclude persons detained in police cells and those detained under both criminal and immigration powers.
[2] Includes persons recorded by IND as detained in Prison Service establishments.
[3] Relates to current period of detention only.
[4] Persons detained under Immigration Act powers who are recorded as having sought asylum at some stage.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum applications have been made since 31 December 2005 by citizens of countries to which the Government will not return failed asylum seekers for safety reasons. [79513]

Mr. Byrne: By definition, there are no countries to which the Government will not return failed asylum seekers for safety reasons. Each asylum and human rights claim is considered on its individual merits in accordance with our international obligations and taking full account of conditions in the country concerned as they impact on the individual. These found to be in need of international protection are provided with it. Failed asylum seekers of all nationalities who have been found by the Home Office and the appeals process not to be in need of international protection and have no legal basis of stay in the UK are expected to return to their country of origin and may have their removal enforced. The one exception to this is Zimbabwe, to where we have undertaken not to enforce returns pending the outcome of an Asylum and Immigration Tribunal hearing in early July.

Crime Statistics

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the recorded level of violent crime was in Wellingborough in (a) 1996-97 and (b) 2005-06. [79704]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 22 June 2006]: Wellingborough is a Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) area. Partnerships were set up under the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 and data are only available from 1999-2000. Data for 2005-06 are due to be published on 20 July.

Crime Trends

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research he has commissioned on crime trends in the UK following the accession of EU countries in May 2004; and if he will make a statement. [79418]

Mr. McNulty: No research has been commissioned on crime trends in the UK following the accession of EU countries in May 2004. However, the Home Office does routinely monitor and publish trends in crime, as measured by the British Crime Survey (BCS) and police recorded crime, on an annual and quarterly basis. The latest quarterly publication is available on the web at: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs06/hosb0606.pdf

This publication shows that since peaking in 1995 total BCS crime has fallen each year. The next annual publication of crime trends is due to be published in July 2006.

Criminal Records Bureau

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Criminal Records Bureau checks have been carried out, broken down by the number of weeks taken to process the check. [79014]

Joan Ryan: The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) has issued 8,936,032 Disclosures up to and including the financial year 2005-06. The number of Disclosures issued in each financial year is as follows:

	Number
2002-03	1,441,704
2003-04	2,287,109
2004-05	2,434,290
2005-06	2,772,929

Information on the number of weeks taken to process the checks during these periods is not available in the format requested.

The CRB operates to a set of published service standards (PSS), which for the financial year 2005-06 was to process 93 per cent. of Standard Disclosure applications within two weeks and 90 per cent. of Enhanced Disclosure applications within four weeks. The CRB's performance for that financial year against the PSS for Standard Disclosure was 99.6 per cent. During this same period, the performance against the PSS for Enhanced Disclosure was 84.6 per cent. The CRB recently published its Five-Year Strategy and Business Plan 2006-07 and the PSS for the financial year 2006-07 for Standard Disclosures is 90 per cent. within 10 days and for Enhanced Disclosures 90 per cent. within 28 days.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff in his Department did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report in each of the last three years; and what percentage this represented of the total number of staff in each case. [75115]

Mr. Byrne: The number of staff that did not achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report of the last three years; and what percentage this represented of the total of staff in each case, is shown in the table.

	2002-03		2003-04		2004-05
	Number[1]	Percentage[2]	Number[1]	Percentage[2]	Number[1]	Percentage[2]
Home Office[3]	127	1.01	148	1.00	119	0.69

[2] Of staff receiving 'unacceptable mark'/centrally recorded annual report marks awarded in period.
[3] Including Immigration and Nationality Directorate.

EU Citizens (Criminal Records)

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance has been given to immigration officers at UK entry ports on the entry to the UK of individuals from EU accession countries who have a criminal record in their own country; and if he will make a statement. [79420]

Mr. Byrne: Guidance for immigration staff is set out in the immigration directorate instructions. This makes it clear that where an immigration officer is aware that a national of one of the EU accession states has a criminal record and, that as a result of that record, a genuine present and sufficiently serious threat affecting one of the fundamental interests of society is perceived, then an immigration decision to exclude may be made.

Knives

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many knives have been handed in during the amnesty in Tamworth constituency. [80133]

Mr. McNulty: Figures for the number of items handed in during the first week of the knife amnesty have been collected at force level. A total of 17,715 items were surrendered in England and Wales. Staffordshire police reported that they received 383 items.

Legislation

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) which Government Bills sponsored by his Department he has bid for in the next Session of Parliament; and if he will make a statement; [77772]

(2) which Government Bills sponsored by his Department remain to be introduced during the 2005-06 Session. [77771]

Mr. McNulty: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1431W.

Mohammed Abdul Kahar

Mr. Galloway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will take steps to discover the identity of the Whitehall source quoted by the News of The World as stating that Abul Koyair fired the weapon which wounded Mohammed Abdul Kahar in the incident on 2 June; and if he will make a statement. [76239]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 12 June 2006]: It has been the practice of successive Governments not to comment on alleged leaks of information.

National Firearms Licensing Management System

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the progress of the data cleansing exercise required of police databases before the full implementation of the National Firearms Licensing Management System. [79035]

Mr. Coaker: Live testing of the National Firearms Licensing Management System (NFLMS) began in two forces on 5 June and if successful it will be rolled out to all forces by March 2007. The data cleansing exercise is needed before an interface with PNC can be successfully made. This will be carried out on a force by force basis after each has been migrated to NFLMS.

Passport Service

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedures the Passport Service follows when a passport is reported as not having reached its destination; and if he will make a statement. [79013]

Joan Ryan: Where a passport is reported as not received by Secure Mail Services (SMS), who provide the Identity and Passport Service's (IPS) secure delivery service, information held is checked to establish the date, time and location of delivery. Couriers record details of the property they deliver to and these are compared to the description given by the applicant.

SMS investigate all such losses and provide a response to the Identity and Passport Service within one week.

Where IPS is satisfied that the applicant has not received the passport the document is recorded on the IPS Lost and Stolen database to ensure it cannot be used. A replacement passport is then provided to the customer.

In the rare event of the theft of passports while in the delivery process, they are immediately cancelled, placed on the Lost Stolen and Recovered database and reissued.

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of passports dispatched by courier did not arrive at their destination in the last period for which figures are available. [79021]

Joan Ryan: From the commencement of Secure Delivery in February 2004 to January 2006, Secure Mail Services have delivered around 13 million passports and supporting documents. The estimated number of losses during this two year period is 1,626, equating to less than 0.013 per cent. of items despatched.

During the last year of the Royal Mail contract in 2003, 3,593 passports were reported as undelivered, equating to around 0.06 per cent. of passports issued. The introduction of Secure Delivery has therefore seen an 80 per cent. reduction in the annual number of losses from within the delivery process.

Police

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police community support officers (a) were recruited and (b) left the service in Greater London in (i) 2004-05 and (ii) 2005-06. [77643]

Mr. McNulty: Police personnel data are collected on a financial year basis and the latest information available is for 2004-05.

In 2004-05 the City of London police force recruited 14 full-time equivalent (FTE) police community support officers (PCSOs), and no PCSOs were recorded as leaving the force during this period.

During the same period the Metropolitan Police recruited 971 PCSOs (FTE), and 249 PCSOs (FTE) left the force.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will postpone the merger of Cumbria and Lancashire police authorities to allow time for further consultation. [79803]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 22 June 2006]: As my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary announced on 19 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1057-58, we hope to lay the Order to provide for the merger of Cumbria and Lancashire police forces before the summer recess. This is a voluntary merger supported by both chief constables and both police authorities and we see no need for additional consultation.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will reconsider the merger of Essex police force in the event that the Essex-wide consultation being run by Essex county council and Essex police authority demonstrates public opposition to the merger. [79983]

Mr. McNulty: Under the terms of the Police Act 1996, before making an order for a merger of police forces (other than where the merger is a voluntary one), the Secretary of State must give notice of his intentions to every affected council and allow for a period of objections.

My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary will of course consider any objections he receives to any proposed merger very carefully.

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent meetings (a) he and (b) representatives from his Department have had with (i) Essex county council, (ii) Essex police authority and (iii) the chief constable of Essex police regarding the proposed merger of Essex police force. [79984]

Mr. McNulty: Home Office officials have held meetings with the Essex chief constable and the police authority jointly on 29 March and 24 May, with the deputy chief constable on 19 May, and with the police authority on 28 April. I held a meeting with the leader of Essex county council on 31 May.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures will be included in the planned reorganisation of police forces to improve responses to local neighbourhood concerns in (a) England and Wales, (b) Crosby and Formby and (c) Merseyside. [78527]

Mr. McNulty: By April 2007, neighbourhood policing will have been introduced to every community in England and Wales, and by April 2008 every area will have its own dedicated neighbourhood policing team. Neighbourhood policing puts local people's own concerns and priorities at the heart of local policing. Neighbourhood policing teams will be highly visible, will engage with communities to understand their priorities, and will tackle these issues in partnership with local partners. Neighbourhood policing will be protected and supported by the proposed reorganisation of police forces by getting more resources to the front line and keeping them there. The creation of strategic forces to deal with major investigations or public order incidents will help safeguard local policing by reducing the need to abstract officers from neighbourhood policing teams.

I understand that neighbourhood policing is well established in many parts of Merseyside police force area (which helped to pilot the neighbourhood policing approach) including Crosby and Formby.

Police Operation (Forest Gate)

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the Cabinet Office briefing room mechanism (COBRA) considered the merits of the anti-terrorist police operation in Forest Gate on 2 June 2006 in advance of the operation taking place. [79584]

Mr. McNulty: The decision on whether to mount any anti-terrorist operation is an operational matter for the police. A meeting of officials was held in the Cabinet Office briefing room, at which the Metropolitan police informed relevant departments of their intention to conduct this operation and its likely scale given the public safety issues involved. Both the merits of the operation and how it was to be conducted were matters decided solely by the Metropolitan police.

Police Vehicles

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) injuries and (b) fatalities have been recorded in London in each of the past five years which were sustained as a result of a collision involving a police vehicle; and in how many of those incidents the police vehicle was travelling above the speed limit, broken down by borough. [75343]

Mr. McNulty: The available information for the numbers of casualties and degree of injury from road traffic collisions resulting from immediate/emergency response and police pursuits on public roads involving the Metropolitan Police and City of London Police is provided in the table. Figures are not held centrally at individual borough level.

Figures are not held centrally on those incidents where police vehicles were travelling above the speed limit.

Psilocin/Psilocybin

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many kilograms of (a) psilocin and (b) psilocybin were seized in each of the last 10 years. [78999]

Mr. Coaker: The requested data cannot be separately identified from 'other class A' drug seizure figures.

Security Industry

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his answer of 18 April 2006, Official Report, column 359W, on the security industry, when the Department expects to clear the backlog of licences. [67691]

Mr. Coaker: The Security Industry Authority (SIA) has a target of processing 80 per cent. of all applications within six weeks, measured from the date that a properly completed application enters the processing system. Due to receiving a large number of late applications, the SIA currently has a backlog waiting to enter the system. This is currently adding between two and four weeks to the processing time, so it is now taking up to 10 weeks to process most applications. As of 13 June there were 7,933 applications for the manned guarding sector in this backlog. The SIA has put significant additional resources into clearing this backlog, and expect it will have been cleared by early August.

Sexual Attacks

Mr. Geoffrey Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many sexual attacks there have been in England and Wales by people falsely posing as taxi drivers in each of the last five years. [79760]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available from the recorded crime statistics because the data series does not collect details on offenders.

Terrorism Act

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people (a) arrested, (b) charged and (c) convicted under the Terrorism Act 2000 were from (i) Coventry and (ii) the West Midlands region. [79471]

Mr. McNulty: Statistics on the number of people arrested, charged and convicted under the Terrorism Act (2000) are published on the Home Office website: www.homeoffice.gov.uk/security/terrorism-and-the-law/terrorism-act.

These statistics are not however collated according to force or area.

Trinidad and Tobago

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the role and activity of the UK Police Task Force in Trinidad and Tobago. [78491]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply.

There is no UK Police Task Force in Trinidad and Tobago. The Government of Trinidad and Tobago have recruited 39 police officers, most of whom are retired, from the UK to work as part of Trinidad and Tobago's Special Anti-Crime Unit. Questions on their role would be for the Government of Trinidad and Tobago to answer. The UK has provided substantial other assistance to the security and defence forces in Trinidad and Tobago and continues to support the Government's efforts to tackle serious crime.

Wheel Clamping

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will set a limit on the amount that can be charged by wheel clamping companies for (a) the removal of a wheel clamp, (b) the recovery of a vehicle that has been removed and (c) vehicle storage costs. [67296]

Mr. Coaker: Under the Private Security Industry Act 2001, the Security Industry Authority has responsibility for licensing vehicle immobilisers, to help ensure that vehicle immobilisation on private land is conducted in a responsible manner. The Government have no plans to set limits on these fees.

Young Offenders

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will increase funding to youth worker programmes dealing with the causes of crime committed by young people. [78526]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Prevention programmes for those young people at risk of getting involved in crime and antisocial behaviour are funded through the Youth Justice Board and delivered by local Youth Offending Teams (YOTs). The Government have recently announced an additional £45 million funding for targeted youth crime and ASB prevention activities for those young people at most risk. This increase in funding means that all YOTs now have dedicated money to spend on prevention. Programmes are delivered by a range of multi-agency staff, including youth workers, enabling a wide variety of experience and expertise to be brought together. The new funding has been allocated to local YOTs and areas are beginning to deliver new prevention services from June 2006.

Ann Coffey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the formula is by which the

£45 million given to the Youth Justice Board as part of its youth prevention budget is allocated to youth offending teams. [78403]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 21 June 2006]: The overall allocation from the Youth Justice Board (YJB) to Youth Offending Teams (YOTs) for prevention programmes totals £59 million, which includes existing Youth Inclusion Programme (YIP) funding of £14 million, as well as the £45 million of additional funding. The additional funding was allocated differently in England and Wales, as the Welsh Government became involved in devising the formula for the latter.

For the 138 YOTs in England, the allocation was based on the same funding formula as that used for the core support grant to YOTs. This formula weights each area's allocation according to the following elements: 10 to 17 population (40 per cent.); size of area (10 per cent.); and six deprivation indices, including income and employment (50 per cent.).

For the 18 YOTs in Wales, the allocation was based on a new funding formula devised by the All Wales Youth Offending Strategy Group. The formula weights each YOT's allocation according to the following elements: 10 to 17 population (50 per cent.); sparsity (low population density, leading to difficulties accessing services and greater cost of providing them) (13.33 per cent.); five deprivation indices on income, employment, health, education and housing (26.66 per cent.); and caseload (10 per cent.)

In some areas, YOTs were already receiving money for specific prevention programmes (YIPs) from an existing funding stream.

When the new funding formula was applied, the effect in these areas would have been to reduce the overall funding allocated to prevention. To avoid this and to allow them to begin to develop additional prevention services, funding for the affected YOTs was adjusted so that they all received an amount of at least £20,000 more than they were previously receiving.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Barker Review

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has for the implementation of the recommendations of the Barker Review of Housing Supply. [74197]

Yvette Cooper: The Government's plan for implementing Kate Barker's recommendations was set out in its response to the Barker Review on 5 December. I have placed a copy of the response in the Library of the House. In the response, the Government signalled their ambition to provide more homes for future generations through a step change in housing policy.

The response comprised a range of measures addressing the full range of Kate Barker's recommendations, including among others: an ambition to increase the level of housing supply to 200,000 per year over the next decade; a commitment to make Social Housing supply a priority in CSR07; a £40 million start up fund for infrastructure projects for new growth points and consultations on a Planning-gain Supplement and Planning Policy Statement 3 (PPS3), responses to which are currently being considered.

Benefits Claimants

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were in receipt of (a) housing benefit and (b) council tax benefit in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement [75916]

Mr. Plaskitt: I have been asked to reply.

Biodiversity

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department plans to take to monitor the extent to which public bodies which report to her comply, from October, with their duty to conserve biodiversity in exercising their functions, under section 40 of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006. [74408]

Yvette Cooper: Under section 40 of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006, all public bodies have a duty to have regard to the conservation of biodiversity in the exercising of their functions. There is no statutory obligation on Departments to monitor the extent to which public bodies comply with this duty. However, the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs is working with a wide range of partners to develop guidance for public bodies to support the implementation of this duty and will involve all relevant Departments on the development of guidance.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 20 December 2005, Official Report, column 2663W, on biodiversity (planning applications), what progress has been made on the incorporation of a question relating to biodiversity interests into the standard planning application form; and if she will make a statement. [74177]

Yvette Cooper: We have agreed with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, English Nature and Association of Local Government Ecologists the wording of a question on biodiversity that will be included in the standard application form for full and outline planning permission.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which Minister in her Department is responsible for monitoring her Department's compliance with its duty under section 74 of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 to have regard to the purpose of conserving biological diversity in carrying out its functions; and if she will make a statement. [73949]

Yvette Cooper: Under section 74 of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000, Ministers and Government Departments have a duty to have regard to the purpose of conserving biological diversity. This has been replaced by a similar provision under section 40 of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act which comes into effect on the 1 October 2006. There is no statutory duty to monitor compliance with this duty. However, the Department for Communities and Local Government and its predecessor the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister have taken a number of steps to benefit biodiversity including:

Introducing Planning Policy Statement 9 on Biodiversity and Geological Conservation and an associated guide to good practice prepared jointly with English Nature and Defra;

Working to introduce Sustainable Community Strategies as an evolution of Community Strategies, thereby supporting Local Strategic Partnerships in placing greater emphasis on sustainability issues such as biodiversity (see the recent consultation on our website at http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1162320);

Setting out, in our Sustainable Development Action Plan, our intention to issue a draft biodiversity action plan for the major non-office estate by December 2006.

Building Regulations

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what measures are in place to assess compliance with building regulations. [79382]

Angela E. Smith: Local authorities building control departments or approved inspectors, a private sector alternative, are responsible for checking compliance with the building regulations. They do this by considering written proposals, sometimes in the form of plans, and often by inspecting building works during construction. When the work has finished and they are satisfied that it complies they can issue a completion certificate, or when an approved inspector has been engaged, a final certificate.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of levels of compliance with part L of the building regulations among building control officers; and if she will make a statement. [79383]

Angela E. Smith: As part of the comprehensive review leading to the recent amendment of part L of the building regulations, my officials engaged with building control bodies and industry about levels of compliance and on ways that this could be improved. This work influenced the amendment and procedures that came into effect in April 2006 and the ongoing dissemination of training for builders and building control officers.

Central Manchester Development Corporation

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department holds the records of the Central Manchester Development Corporation. [75852]

Yvette Cooper: The Department for Communities and Local Government does not hold the records of the Central Manchester Development Corporation centrally. However some of the records are held by the Government office for the north-west.

Coalfield Regeneration Trust

John Mann: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will list the 50 constituencies which have received the highest level of funding from the Coalfield Regeneration Trust since its inception. [64451]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The information is not available in the form requested. The Coalfields Regeneration Trust, which operates throughout the English coalfields, is an independent grant giving body that seeks to spearhead the social and economic regeneration of the coalfields. Grants awarded by the trust range from small grants to local groups to larger awards that benefit coalfields more widely, sometimes at regional or national level. Grants are not constituency specific, with even small grants often benefiting areas outside of the constituency within which the group securing the grant is based. It is not therefore practicable to produce a list of constituencies which have received the highest level of funding. It should be noted that any list would change once a subsequent round of grants was released by the CRT, and therefore could significantly alter should a grant of considerable value be given to an organisation based in a constituency within a coalfield area.

Compulsory Land Purchases

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent on compulsory land purchases in each London borough in each year since 1996; and if she will make a statement. [75697]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent on compulsory land purchases in Coventry in the last financial year. [76448]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 13 June 2006]: The information requested is not collected by the Department.

Correspondence

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government by how many days her Department exceeded its target for answering letters when replying to the letter written by the hon. Member for Windsor about Mr. D. Ashworth. [78488]

Yvette Cooper: The Department target was exceed by 47 days. The original letter was not received in the Department and only after a duplicate was received on 10 March was this seen by officials. I apologise for the unacceptable delay. The Department is putting additional resources into improving performance in this regard.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she will reply to the letter of 8 May 2006 from the hon. Member for Billericay requesting that she meet local residents from Crays Hill, Hovefields and Pitsea to discuss traveller issues. [80319]

Meg Munn: A reply was sent to the hon. Member on 22 June 2006.

Criminal Records Bureau

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of staff of registered social landlords working with vulnerable people were checked by the Criminal Records Bureau in 2005-06. [72848]

Yvette Cooper: The data to answer this question are not available. The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) does not record information about whether an organisation applying for a CRB check is a registered social landlord (RSL). The Housing Corporation expects RSLs to comply with the law, including where relevant the requirement to conduct CRB checks under the Care Standards Act 2000.

Decent Homes Standard

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities currently in surplus have met the Decent Homes Standard. [77896]

Yvette Cooper: The following local authorities have a Housing Revenue Account subsidy surplus, and report that they have met the decent homes standard for their council housing stock:

Hinckley and Bosworth District Council
Oadby and Wigston District Council
Redditch District Council
Ribble Valley District Council, and Lancaster District Council.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of her Department. [80093]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government is in the process of recruiting a professionally qualified finance director. Pending the appointment, the post is being temporarily covered by a career civil servant.

Departmental Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will keep a separate record of the amount spent annually by her Department on alcohol for hospitality purposes. [77280]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government does not keep a separate record of the amount spent annually on alcohol for hospitality purposes. Expenditure in the Department is conducted in accordance with the principles of Government accounting. The Department's policy on hospitality is set out in its staff handbook, which advises that, on each occasion, careful consideration should be given to the need, form and extent of hospitality and whether if it can be justified.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many of her staff are (a) under and (b) over 55 years of age. [77296]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government was formed on 6 May 2006. The table following shows the number of staff under and over the age of 55 years as at 31 December 2005 in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister.

Age	Number of staff
Number of staff under 55	2,011
Number of staff over 55	333
Not recorded	107
Total	2,451

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people over the age of 55 years have been recruited into her Department in each of the last three years. [77297]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government was formed on 6 May 2006. The following table shows the number of staff over the age of 55 years recruited through open competition to the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister.

	Number of new recruits over 55

Devolution

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on progress with plans for regional devolution. [73837]

Yvette Cooper: The Government are committed to devolving and decentralising functions to the English regions and to developing and strengthening the democratic oversight of those functions. They believe a regional approach is necessary to analyse and address the causes of economic disparity; to ensure planning and investment decisions are properly integrated; and to co-ordinate sub-national issues which extend beyond the boundaries of even the largest local authority. To this end, they created the Greater London Authority and have recently consulted on an extension of the powers of the London Mayor and Assembly.

Respecting the outcome of the November 2004 north east referendum, the Government have continued to support the work of the voluntary regional assemblies which comprise a majority of elected local councillors together with stakeholder representatives drawn from the social, economic and environmental partners. They have given these assemblies responsibility for scrutinising the regional development agencies established to promote economic growth; and as regional planning bodies overseeing the regional spatial strategies. Later this year, as recommended in the 2004 Barker Review of Housing Supply and again following consultation, they will give regional assemblies a new role undertaking the regional housing board function.

In parallel, the Government have strengthened the authority and visibility of the Government offices as a facilitator of partnership working in the regions.

Budget 2006 reaffirmed the Government's commitment to enabling cities and regions to improve their economic performance, delivering efficiency and devolving decision making.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her policy is on (a) the devolution of power to the regions and (b) the creation of directly-elected regional bodies. [74235]

Yvette Cooper: The Government are committed to devolving and decentralising functions to the English regions and to developing and strengthening the democratic oversight of those functions. They believe a regional approach is necessary to analyse and address the causes of economic disparity; to ensure planning and investment decisions are properly integrated; and to co-ordinate sub-national issues which extend beyond the boundaries of even the largest local authority. Budget 2006 reaffirmed the Government's commitment to enabling cities and regions to improve their economic performance, delivering efficiency and devolving decision making.

Respecting the outcome of the November 2004 north east referendum on the creation of an elected regional assembly, the Government have no current plans for the creation of directly-elected regional bodies.

Empty Properties

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which the (a) best and (b) worst performing councils in England are with regard to tackling empty private sector properties in the most recent period for which figures are available; and what Luton borough council's performance was in that period. [76712]

Yvette Cooper: Local authorities are required by law to report on a set of national performance indicators and standards set by Government. Best Value Performance Indicator 64 measures the number of private sector dwellings that are returned to occupation or demolished each year as a direct result of action by the local authority. Information, comprising local authorities' returns for Best Value Performance Indicator 64 for 2004-05 has been placed in the Library of the House. In the period 2004-05, the number of empty properties brought back into use or demolished by Luton council was 11. However, the variance in the overall size of the private sector housing stock, and the proportion of these houses which can be defined as empty, will differ between each local authority area and therefore, the indicator is not a straightforward reflection of individual councils' performance.

EU Directive 2002/91/EC

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 15 May 2006, Official Report, column 751W, on EU Directive 2002/91/EC, what the timetable is for the implementation of Articles 7 to 10; and what the deadline is for implementation under the directive. [78249]

Yvette Cooper: I would draw the hon. Member's attention to the statement made to this House on 14 June about implementation of the EU energy performance of buildings directive. The directive allows an additional period of three years to apply fully the requirements for energy certificates and plant inspections meaning the deadline for implementation of Articles 7 to 10 is 4 January 2009.

Firefighters

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many uniformed firefighters insured under the Group Life Assurance Scheme were (a) subject to a health examination at retirement and (b) subsequently excluded from the scheme on the basis of failing health in the last five years for which full data are available. [77568]

Angela E. Smith: The Department does not operate any group life assurance schemes for firefighters and information is not available centrally about schemes administered by fire and rescue authorities.

Fires (Education Premises)

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many faulty (a) fire extinguishers and (b) smoke alarms were identified in schools in the last 12 months. [79591]

Angela E. Smith: The information requested is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of fires in (a) schools, (b) higher education institutions and (c) further education colleges in the last 10 years were set deliberately. [79592]

Angela E. Smith: The available information is for fires in schools and further education establishments attended by fire and rescue services and reported to the Department on the FDR1 return.

Flag Flying

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's policy is on flying the (a) St. George's flag and (b) EU flag from departmental buildings. [77746]

Angela E. Smith: It is the Department for Communities and Local Government's policy to follow the guidance issued by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport for flying flags on Government buildings. This includes recommending flying the St. George's Flag on St. George's Day 23 April and saying the European Flag should be flown on Europe Day 9 May on buildings with two or more flag poles, provided they are flown alongside the Union Flag with the Union Flag in the superior position.

Government Relocation

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the merits of relocating a Government Department or agency to (a) the Thames Gateway growth area and (b) Kent Thameside; and if she will make a statement. [77902]

Yvette Cooper: Individual Departments are responsible for deciding on sites for relocation. However, they must take account of both their individual business needs and local economic factors, as set out in the central guidance, "Choosing Locations for Government Business".

Great Landscape Value Designation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities have land designated with area of great landscape value. [78329]

Yvette Cooper: Areas of landscape outside nationally designated areas, that are particularly highly valued locally, may be the subject of local landscape designations. The Department for Communities and Local Government does not monitor which authorities have made these local designations.

Green Belt

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to protect (a) green belt and (b) open green spaces in (i) the county of Greater Manchester, (ii) Tameside metropolitan borough and (iii) Stockport metropolitan borough. [73136]

Yvette Cooper: Planning policies to protect green belt and open space are set out at the national, regional and local levels and I will deal with each of these in turn.

National policies to protect the green belt are set out in PPG2. Polices to protect other areas of open space are set out in PPG 17. Planning authorities are required to have regard to these policies when preparing their development plans and these policies may be material to individual planning decisions.

In addition, the Residential Development on Greenfield Land Direction requires local authorities to notify the Secretary of State of applications for the provision of 150 houses or flats on greenfield land or any applications for the provision of houses or flats on five hectares or more on greenfield land. The notification requirements provide the Secretary of State with an opportunity to check general compliance with the guidance set out in national planning policies, and to consider whether an application should be called in for her own determination.

Regional policies to protect green belt and other areas of open space are set out in Regional Spatial Strategy (RSS) for the North West of England, formerly known as RPG13. Particular emphasis is given to maintaining urban form and enhancing urban living. The continued and extensive use of green belt policy is an essential tool. The RSS says that the case for exceptional substantial change to green belt will need to be established by a strategic study and that, in turn, will inform a future review of RSS. It says that there will be no need for such a study in Greater Manchester before 2011. The RSS is currently in the process of being reviewed. The North West regional assembly published the revised Draft RSS for consultation on 20 March 2006. The responses to the consultation will be examined by a panel set up by the Secretary of State. The panel will then carry out an examination in public to debate selected topics, based on issues raised in the consultation responses, before making their recommendations to the Secretary of State. It is likely that any proposed changes to regional green belt policies will be examined carefully by the panel and subsequently by the Secretary of State.

Local policies to protect green belt and other areas of open space are set out in local authority development plan policies. The Government office for the north west scrutinises these plans on behalf of the Secretary of State to ensure that the authorities have had regard correctly to national and regional planning policies.

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many planning applications for new housing on land designated as green belt have been approved in the county of Greater Manchester in each year since 2000. [73141]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally, and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of planning applications to build on brownfield sites involved building on gardens in (a) Greater Manchester, (b) Tameside metropolitan borough and (c) Stockport metropolitan borough in the last period for which figures are available. [73159]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally.

Bids for funding in the current round of the Gypsy and Traveller Sites Grant are currently being considered.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what funding has been provided to Bedfordshire county council to accommodate Travellers in 2006-07; and if she will make a statement; [79047]

(2) what representations she has received on the funding of Travellers sites in Bedfordshire; and if she will make a statement; [79048]

(3) what criteria are used to allocate funding for accommodation for Travellers; and if she will make a statement. [79049]

Meg Munn: We have received five proposals for funding by Bedfordshire county council under round 1 of the Gypsy and Traveller Sites Grant (GTSG) 2006-08. GTSG is a capital grant available through the regional housing budgets for local authorities and registered social landlords (RSLs), covering both the development of new sites and the refurbishment of existing sites. Bedfordshire CC is bidding for refurbishment schemes, which are funded at 75 per cent. of the total bid.

Bids are evaluated against the following criteria:

Does the scheme meet a clearly assessed need?

Does the scheme offer value for money?

Is the site sustainable?

Schemes must also demonstrate that they will be able to deliver to time and budget, and that stakeholders have been consulted. Another key criterion which will be used to determine whether a bid receives funding will be the extent to which schemes contribute to addressing emerging regional priorities in respect of Gypsy and Traveller provision, which is assessed by the Regional Housing Boards (RHBs).

An appropriate package of schemes within each region has been put together by the RHBs. These are under ministerial consideration and the successful schemes will be announced shortly.

Harlow Council v. Hall

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the implication of the Court of Appeal's decision in Harlow council v. Hall. [72821]

Yvette Cooper: The decision in Harlow BC v. Hall was that drawing up a possession order postponed on conditions, using the wording of Form N28 introduced in 2002, had the unintended effect of invariably terminating a secure tenancy regardless of the tenant's compliance with the conditions. As an interim measure, an amended version of the form is being used. Officials from the Department for Communities and Local Government are currently working with the DCA to come up with a permanent solution.

Home Information Packs

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what information was included in the Home Information Pack's Home Condition Report in the trial run in Bristol. [72277]

Yvette Cooper: The Home Condition Report used in the Bristol trial run included all the questions currently proposed in the Home Condition Report's content in the regulations but also contained a report giving a rating of the energy performance of the property using the Government approved Standard Assessment Procedure together with information about possible improvements.

Home Inspectors

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether standard conditions are expected to be issued by all home inspectors saying precisely what is and what is not included in a Home Information Pack. [75420]

Yvette Cooper: Home inspectors will be responsible for the content of the Home Condition Report. The Home Condition Report is a statutory element of the pack and home inspectors will be expected to complete the document in full.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) vendors and (b) purchasers will be able to take legal action against inspectors responsible for the production of inaccurate home condition reports. [75030]

Yvette Cooper: Yes. The regulations to be laid shortly will specify that sellers, buyers and mortgage lenders will have a legal right to rely on the home condition report. Certification schemes will be required to ensure that their home inspector members hold appropriate indemnity insurance.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government who will supervise the training and certification of home inspectors; what provision there is for ongoing training of home inspectors; and under what circumstances the approval of an inspector may be withdrawn. [75593]

Yvette Cooper: All home inspectors will be required to obtain a qualification before they can become members of a certifications scheme. That qualification must meet the National Occupational Standards for Home Inspection and be approved by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority.

Once qualified, home inspectors can apply to become a member of a Government approved certifications scheme. Certification schemes will be required to uphold standards set by Government to ensure home inspectors are fit and proper, qualified and insured persons. Government will regularly audit the activities of certification schemes and have the power to withdraw approval if a certification scheme falls short of their statutory responsibilities.

Homeless and Housing Support Directorate

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total expenditure was of the Homeless and Housing Support Directorate's conference at Hampton Court Palace in May 2006; and how many (a) civil servants and (b) others attended the conference. [78263]

Yvette Cooper: The total cost of the Homelessness and Housing Support Directorate's event at Hampton Court was £5,731.48. Sixty-eight civil servants and one independent consultant attended.

House Prices

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will estimate (a) the number of houses in £50,000 bands up to £1 million, (b) the number of houses worth in excess of £1 million and (c) the average price of a house in each such band in England and Wales in the latest year for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [73827]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average house price was in Coventry South in each of the last five years. [79031]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 22 June 2006]: It is not possible to provide separate figures for Coventry South. The following information has been sourced from the Land Registry.

March	Overall average price (£)
2002	77,866
2003	99,839
2004	116,493
2005	130,827
2006	127,598

House Sales

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her estimate is of the median number of houses (a) sold and (b) marketed in England and Wales per annum over the last five years; what her assessment is of the reasons why house selling transactions fell through; and how many more transactions she expects to succeed every year as a result of the introduction of home information packs. [75413]

Yvette Cooper: The median number of annual property transactions of homes in England and Wales between 2001 and 2005 was 1,228,000, based on figures from the Land Registry. Information on the number of properties marketed annually is not collected, but this is estimated to be 1.6 million.

The Department's 1998 research study, "Key research on easier home buying and selling", reported that 28 per cent. of transactions fail between offer acceptance and completion. The research study, a copy of which has been deposited in the Library, also described the reasons why transactions fail. For example, the report indicated that 43 per cent. of transaction failures were attributable to an unfavourable survey report and the remainder were due to a seller deciding to sell elsewhere, unacceptable delays, chain breakdown and the property being taken off the market. The key findings of the research study indicated that many of the problems associated with the current system are down to information emerging later in the process and that buyers, sellers and professionals all agreed that sellers should offer more information up front.

Baseline research is currently under way to update the 1998 findings.

Housing

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to encourage the development of shared ownership housing schemes in (a) Peterborough and (b) other growth areas; and if she will make a statement. [73354]

Yvette Cooper: The Government have allocated a substantial increase in funding for the East of England for 2006-08, much of which will be invested in new affordable housing. In Peterborough, the regional housing board for the East of England (RHB) has allocated just over £19 million which is expected to deliver 572 new affordable units, via the Housing Corporation's National Affordable Housing Programme. In the other growth areas of the region, the RHB has allocated £152.7 million which is expected to deliver 6,081 new affordable units.

The Housing Corporation is delivering the Government's affordable housing agenda in partnership with local authorities, registered social landlords and developers in developing schemes across the range of tenure which meets the needs of local people including the pathway to low cost home ownership.

The Government's shared equity task force is currently examining other ways to increase shared ownership schemes.

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was allocated per head of population by the Housing Corporation to (a) the North East and (b) London and the South East in each of the last three years. [75394]

Yvette Cooper: The following table shows the funding per head based on allocations through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme for 2006-08 in relation to 2004 mid year population estimates for the North East region and London/South East regions combined from the Office for National Statistics.

	Region
	North East	London and South East
2004 mid year population estimates (ONS)	2,543,800	13,539,800
Affordable Housing Programme allocated funding 2006-08 (£ million)	82	2,444
Funding per head (£)	32.22	197.28

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what criteria the Housing Corporation used to determine bids for funds under the National Affordable Housing Programme; and if she will make a statement. [75395]

Yvette Cooper: The Housing Corporation invited bids for funding from the National Affordable Housing Programme 2006-08. These were assessed for compliance with the competition requirements as follows:

"(i) Additionality—grant must be necessary for the affordable housing to be delivered;

(ii) Rent levels in accordance with Corporation or statutory rent regimes to ensure affordability;

(iii) Schemes must be financially independent;

(iv) Schemes must meet or exceed the minimum standards covering design and quality (expressed through the Corporation's Scheme Development Standards, Housing Quality Indicator system, and a Very Good EcoHomes rating);

(v) Scheme must start on site by 31 March 2008;

(vi) Schemes must complete before 31 March 2011;

(vii) Schemes must conform to the relevant regional housing board priorities;

(viii) Schemes must meet management and maintenance standards (for housing associations schemes must comply with all of the Corporation's regulatory requirements in relation to the management and maintenance of affordable homes);

(ix) Bidders must have the capacity to enter into a programme agreement."

Bids which met these competition requirements were then subject to competitive assessment using four criteria:

Value-for-money;

Quality;

Fit with regional and local housing strategies;

Deliverability within the programme time scale.

The compliance requirements and criteria were set out in the Housing Corporation's pre-prospectus and prospectus published at the time of launch of the bidding round in July 2005.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will introduce a bill to harmonise tenancy rights along the lines recommended by the Law Commission. [73920]

Yvette Cooper: We are still considering the final report and draft Bill on Renting Homes published by the Law Commission on 5 May and have not yet decided on the best way forward.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will take steps to provide a right of appeal to owners of properties subject to final empty dwelling management orders. [76051]

Yvette Cooper: An owner already has the right of appeal where their property is the subject of a final empty dwelling management order (EDMO).

Where the owner objects either to the making of the final EDMO or some of the terms on which it is made (including the terms of the management scheme), and the council has not accepted their representations, they will be able to appeal to a Residential Property Tribunal.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many houses with gardens and two or more bedrooms have been built in Vauxhall since 1 January 2004. [76548]

Yvette Cooper: Information on new build dwellings is collected by the Department for Communities and Local Government and is available by local authority not constituency. No information on new build dwellings with gardens is held centrally.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what advice her Department has issued to councils on best practice for use of the money given to them by her Department for discretionary housing payments. [76761]

Mr. Plaskitt: I have been asked to reply.

General guidance was issued to all local authorities when the Discretionary Housing Payments scheme was introduced in July 2001, setting out the conditions for entitlement to an award. However, the decision on whether to make a Discretionary Housing Payment is entirely at the discretion of the local authority concerned so we cannot prescribe whether or not an authority must make a payment in any particular circumstances.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department provided for housing in Tees Valley in 2005-06; and whether an element of the funding was 'top-sliced' for regional housing purposes. [77106]

Yvette Cooper: In total during 2005-06, the Department provided funding totalling £39 million for housing in the Tees Valley region.

All of this funding was directly related to housing activities and it was not 'top-sliced' for regional housing purposes.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether a central inventory is kept of non-housing accommodation held by local authorities. [77972]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not available centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Some of the information may, however, be available from the National Land Use Database of Previously-Developed Land (NLUD-PDL). This is a list of sites supplied by local authorities covering vacant and derelict land and also land currently in use with known potential for development. It does not cover other land currently in use but does record whether a site is owned by the local authority.

Information on the sites is available from the NLUD website:

www.nlud.org.uk

The database does not claim complete coverage, particularly of small sites.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to respond to the recommendations of the Affordable Rural Local Housing Commission. [77796]

Yvette Cooper: The Government will use a range of channels and mechanisms to respond in a constructive way to the agenda set by the Commission, including in the forthcoming Spending Review.

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new homes have been built by Wirral borough council in Wirral, West since 1997. [78382]

Yvette Cooper: Wirral borough council has built no new dwellings in Wirral since 1990. Total development (by the private sector and Registered Social Landlords) in Wirral, West constituency since 1997 has totalled 1,032 gross new build dwellings (20.7 per cent. of the borough total of 4,992 gross new dwellings).

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average house price was in (a) Wirral, West and (b) Wirral borough area on 30 April in each of the last five years. [78383]

Yvette Cooper: The Department for Communities and Local Government publishes quarterly information on average house prices for local authority areas on our website at: http://www.communities.gov.uk/embedded_object.asp?id=1156155

For the Wirral, the average house prices for the past five years in the second quarter of the year, excluding sub-market sales, are given as follows:

Quarter 2:	Wirral	Merseyside
2001	73,533	69,582
2002	85,023	77,573
2003	98,677	91,407

Quarter 2:	Wirral	£ Merseyside
2004	125,327	116,309
2005	140,163	128,293

Source: Land Registry

The Department hold no datasets for Wirral, West.

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether a local authority has made use of its powers under section 183 of the Housing Act 2004. [75304]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. It is for each local authority to use this provision as it considers appropriate to meet its housing needs.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the resources available to district councils in housing expansion growth areas to process large-scale planning applications. [75185]

Yvette Cooper: Local authorities in the growth areas have received £75,770,362 in total Planning Delivery Grant since 2003 to help them deal with major applications and other planning requirements. They also receive funding of £7 million annually to support local delivery vehicles in the major growth locations, some of which directly help with handling big schemes.

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new affordable housing units were completed in (a) Dudley, (b) the West Midlands and (c) England in each year since 2000. [74196]

Yvette Cooper: According to information provided by local authorities the number of new affordable housing units completed is as follows. These numbers include homes for rent, shared ownership, and other affordable private sector homes. They include homes funded by the Government and those funded by the private sector under section 106 agreements negotiated by local councils.

	Dudley	West Midlands	England
2000-01	134	5,216	44,971
2001-02	85	2,858	29,806
2002-03	137	2,789	28,826
2003-04	50	2,864	32,605
2004-05	100	3,410	33,154
2005-06[1]	157	4,717	46,529

[1] Figures for 2005-06 are forecasts as at April 2005 because local councils have not yet supplied actual data for 2005-06.

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to encourage the provision of affordable housing for key public sector workers in Swindon. [79187]

Yvette Cooper: The Key Worker Living programme does not currently operate in the South West region. In the South West region £302.7 million has been allocated by the Housing Corporation for housing schemes to start in 2006-08. They will provide 8,465 new affordable homes, of which 625 will be in Swindon.

Of the 625 homes being provided in Swindon, 455 will be for social rent, eligibility for which will be decided by the local authority through their nomination procedures. The remaining 170 will be for low cost home ownership or intermediate rent.

Key public sector workers will be eligible for these units alongside social tenants, those on the housing register and first-time buyers prioritised for assistance by regional housing boards.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the future of arm's length management organisations in council housing. [68595]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government announced the final bidding round of the Arm's Length Management Organisation (ALMO) programme and launched the publication of the outcome of the ALMO review, which sets out how Government see the long term future of ALMOs, and a discussion paper setting the decent homes programme in its broader context in a written statement to the House on Wednesday 7 June.

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to increase the number of dwellings available for low-cost home ownership. [74193]

Yvette Cooper: The Government aim to help an additional 100,000 households into home ownership from 2005-10. We are implementing a number of measures to boost housing supply and deliver more affordable housing. This includes increased investment of £970 million being provided through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme in 2006-08 for low cost home ownership schemes to help 35,000 new homeowners get their first step on the home ownership ladder and bringing forward more public sector land to increase the supply of new homes.

The Shared Equity Task Force, led by myself and the Financial Secretary to the Treasury, has been established to examine further ways to increase the number of people able to benefit from shared equity products. The task force will report by the end of 2006 to inform decisions on the comprehensive spending review in the summer of 2007.

In addition, the Government intend to publish a revised "Planning Policy Statement for Housing" (PPS3) later this year to improve the delivery of both market and affordable housing through the planning system.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new homes have been built by Coventry borough council in Coventry, South since 1997. [79029]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 22 June 2006]: Coventry city council has not built any new homes since 1997. New provision of affordable housing is now delivered through the Government's Affordable Housing Programme (AHP) which primarily funds housing associations who can lever in additional independent borrowing.

Social Housing

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made towards the decent home standards for social housing in Coventry South; and if she will make a statement. [79830]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 22 June 2006]: The information is as follows:

Social housing and Decent Homes in Coventry City

It is not possible to provide separate information about social housing in Coventry South.

There is no social housing in the ownership of the city council because of the transfer in September 2000 of all the council housing (around 20,000 dwellings) to the Whitefriars Housing Group under the large-scale voluntary transfer (LSVT) arrangements.

The Housing Corporation, which has a regulatory role for RSLs, monitors progress towards the Decent Homes target for this sector of social housing.

The Housing Corporation began collecting local authority area-based data about levels of decency in RSL social housing stock in 2005.

This data showed that at March 2005 there were 23,665 social homes in the city of Coventry owned and managed by RSLs, and that just over 6,000 (26 per cent.) of these did not meet the Decent Homes standard at that time.

The Housing Corporation is satisfied that the 32 RSLs with social housing stock in the Coventry area are on target to meet the Decent Homes target in 2010.

Whitefriars Housing Group

The Whitefriars Housing Group is by far the largest social landlord in Coventry, with 17,075 dwellings in March 2005, making up 72 per cent. of the total social housing in the city.

The council's decision in 2000 (supported by a tenant ballot) to transfer the council housing stock was driven by the need to access new sources of funding. A stock condition survey had shown that the investment requirement at that time to bring the housing up to modern standards was £250 million and the council was unable to identify the necessary resources.

At the time of the stock transfer the Decent Homes standard had not been developed, but in March 2004 approximately 42 per cent. of the Whitefriars homes were identified as non-decent. By March 2005 this level had been reduced to 27 per cent., when only 4,593 homes failed to meet the standard.

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans there are to build more social housing in the West Midlands. [74193]

Yvette Cooper: The Government award Regional Housing Pot funding to each region in England and ask Regional Housing Boards to recommend how the funding should be allocated in accordance with the Regional Housing Strategy. In the West Midlands, 2006-08 Regional Housing Pot funding has been allocated to fund provision of an additional 2,683 homes for social rent.

In addition, it is expected that further homes for social rent will be provided under section 106 agreements negotiated between local councils and developers in accordance with Government policy.

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what acreage of private residential gardens in North Somerset has been lost to infill development in each year since 2000. [73976]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally.

Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which Private Members' Bills were drafted by her Department, or predecessor Department, in each Session since 1997; and which of those subsequently received Royal Assent. [77496]

Angela E. Smith: Members will consider a range of possible subjects before introducing their Private Members' Bills.

Government draftsmen draft some Bills in advance which are available as one of the options for Members to consider before they make their selection.

However, Members may make subsequent amendments or revisions to a Government drafted Bill, or use it as the basis for a Private Members' Bill in the future.

The information requested is therefore not collected.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) which Bills sponsored by her Department are still to be introduced during the current Session; and when, and into which House, each will be introduced; [77497]

(2) what plans she has for legislation in the next Session of Parliament; and if she will make a statement. [77498]

Angela E. Smith: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House on Friday 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1431W.

Living Naze Community Project

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much public money has been made available to the Living Naze regeneration project. [76353]

Yvette Cooper: The Essex Development and Regeneration Agency (ExDRA) Sub-Regional Economic Partnership allocated £50,000 from its delegated (from EEDA) Rural Renaissance fund in January 2005 to partly fund a company to produce a feasibility study about Walton Hall Barns.

Local Authority Properties

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance is issued to local authorities on the desirable (a) size, (b) nature and (c) value per head of population of the non-housing properties and facilities owned by local authorities. [77918]

Mr. Woolas: The Department for Communities and Local Government has not issued any specific guidance on the desirable (a) size, (b) nature and (c) value per head of population of the non-housing properties and facilities owned by local authorities. We expect local authorities to decide this according to their local needs.

Local Government Officers (Castle Point)

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will meet the hon. Member for Castle Point to discuss (a) the performance of local government officers in Castle Point, (b) their code of conduct and (c) their delivery of services to the population of Castle Point. [79555]

Angela E. Smith: I am happy to meet the hon. Member for Castle Point.

London Population

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her policy is on providing accommodation in London to take account of its projected population increase. [73276]

Yvette Cooper: The Mayor of London's London Plan, published in February 2004, and borough development plans, set out targets for housing provision in London, and take account of the need for housing. The London Plan housing targets are currently under review.

Mayor of London

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to publish the Government's response to the consultation on the powers of the Mayor of London. [73607]

Mr. Woolas: The Government aim to publish their response shortly.

Northern Way

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what responsibility she has for the Northern Way initiative. [74044]

Yvette Cooper: The Northern Way is an ambitious pan-regional growth strategy being driven by the three northern regional development agencies and their partners. It aims to close the £30 billion output gap between the north and the England average and its work will therefore play an important part in delivering the Government's regional economic performance PSA target.

The Department for Communities and Local Government co-ordinates the Government's involvement with the Northern Way. Alongside Treasury and DTI, the Department works closely with the Northern Way to help them develop their plans and facilitates their engagement with the other Government Departments. The Department also match funded the regional development agencies' contribution to create a £100 million growth fund for pilot projects exploring innovative ways of increasing economic growth in the north.

Planning

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance (a) the Government and (b) the Standards Board for England has issued to local authorities on the predetermination of decisions. [70586]

Yvette Cooper: The Department for Communities and Local Government has issued no guidance of the sort mentioned. In addition, the avoidance of predetermination is not an issue explicitly mentioned in the model code of conduct for local authority members, and so would not be an issue for the Standards Board. As far as determining planning applications is concerned, the Standards Board does provide specific guidance relating to members' personal and prejudicial interests. The Local Government Association published guidance in January this year, "Probity in Planning: The role of Councillors and Officers". This gives propriety guidance to members of planning committees to help avoid accusations of predetermining applications.

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of applications to build on brownfield sites were applications to build on gardens in the last period for which figures are available. [72549]

Yvette Cooper: The information requested is not held centrally.

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's definition of a growth area is. [78236]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 16 June 2006]: The four growth areas announced by the Government in the Sustainable Communities Plan 2003 are being taking forward further to Regional Planning Guidance for the wider south east (2001), and are based on proposals by regional and local partners. They were identified because of their potential to take on further growth more sustainably, with less environmental impact, and to exploit major transport and economic investment.

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on the recommended average length of consultation times for proposals for (a) sex shops, (b) casinos and (c) the sale of council owned land; and if she will make a statement. [78542]

Yvette Cooper: The Town and Country Planning (General Development Procedure) Order 1995 provides that, when a planning application is made, the local planning authority has to publicise it and then allow 21 days for people to comment.

If premises are already in shop use, there would be no need for planning permission to switch to some other branch of retail activity.

Sale of land does not amount to 'development', so is not subject to planning controls.

However, if a local authority is proposing to dispose of open space (including land laid out as a public garden or used for public recreation) the Local Government Act 1972 requires the authority to advertise its intentions in a local newspaper for two consecutive weeks, and to consider any objections.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) whether the Government have appointed consultants to undertake research into councillor involvement in planning decisions; [79922]

(2) what consultation will be held with councillors on proposed changes to the way planning decisions are made; [78923]

(3) whether the Government are reviewing the role of local councillors in planning decisions; and if she will make a statement; [78924]

(4) if she will ensure councillors retain involvement in the planning process. [78925]

Yvette Cooper: The Government have appointed Arup to undertake research to provide information on councillor involvement in planning decisions. We have no proposals for change either to the way planning decisions are made or to councillors' involvement in the planning process.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for planning guidance to be given to local authorities by her Department. [78316]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman), 11 July 2005, Official Report, column 810W.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many sites in England have planning permission for educational use but are not currently occupied by a school. [74148]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 5 June 2006]: The information requested is not held centrally, and could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many sites in each London borough have planning permission for educational use but are not occupied by a school; and if she will make a statement. [77490]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 19 June 2006]: The Department does not hold the information requested, and it could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Local authorities are responsible for considering planning applications and the great majority are not referred to my Department.

Sir Malcolm Rifkind: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance she issues to local authorities on the assessment of risks from flooding when considering planning permissions for new basement properties in London near to the River Thames. [76695]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 12 June 2006]: The Government's guidance to planning authorities on development and flood risk is set out in Planning Policy Guidance Note (PPG) 25. This advises that planning applications in flood risk areas are always accompanied by a flood risk assessment, and that the Environment Agency is consulted. Flood risk areas are those mapped by the Agency as being at risk from river and tidal flooding, but sites outside such areas can also be at risk due to local topography, for example at the foot of hills where storm-water runoff may overwhelm sewers. Flood risk assessments should address the source of flooding, its potential extent, depth and speed of inundation and its likely impact on the development during its lifetime, taking climate change into account. They should demonstrate how the risk will be managed and identify any residual risk (the risk remaining after flood defences have been taken into account). Proposals for the development of new properties with basements would have to demonstrate (to the satisfaction of the Environment Agency and the Local Planning Authority) that the residual risk to the development and its occupants was acceptable. In addition, the introduction of basement accommodation into a flood risk area should also not materially increase the flood risk to other properties or occupants. The new Planning Policy Statement (PPS) 25 that we intend to issue this autumn will strengthen this advice.

Rushenden Link Road

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to announce the timetable for (a) the funding and (b) the building of the Rushenden Link Road. [78077]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 16 June 2006]: The information is as follows.

(a) Following the announcement that £12 million had been allocated to the Rushenden Link Road (bringing the total investment to £19 million) discussions are continuing, with the South East England development agency (SEEDA), to complete the Department's internal appraisal requirements and agree the final funding package.

(b) Responsibility for the build programme rests with SEEDA with the works being undertaken by Kent county council (KCC).

Forecast start date for construction on site is June 2007. This is dependent on the adoption of the masterplan and receipt of planning permission.

My officials in the Thames Gateway Delivery Unit will update my hon. Friend when the formal funding agreement has been issued.

Secured by Design

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to achieve the aims of the Secured by Design initiative through the planning process. [73869]

Yvette Cooper: The Government have issued detailed planning guidance on planning and crime prevention in England. "Planning Policy Statement 1: Delivering Sustainable Development" (PPS1), published in 2005, places strong emphasis on the role of planning in helping to create safe and sustainable communities. Planning authorities are asked to have robust policies which address crime prevention issues in their development plans. Crime prevention is also capable of being a material planning consideration in the consideration of planning applications.

In applying the policy in PPS1 we have asked planning authorities to have regard to the guidance we have published in "Safer Places: The Planning System and Crime Prevention" (Office of the Deputy Prime Minster/Home Office, 2004). This offers detailed guidance on the lay-out of all buildings and spaces to reduce the risk of crime, including, where appropriate, the incorporation of target hardening measures such as CCTV in new development.

"Safer Places" advises that in designing and considering development proposals, the physical protection of development by using target hardening principles such as Secured by Design should be considered. The guidance also highlights a number of examples of best practice involving Secured by Design principles and urges all involved in the planning and design of buildings and environments to work closely with police architectural liaison officers or crime prevention design advisors.

Alongside this guidance we are also examining how best to incorporate measures to improve the security of new homes. Compliance with Secured by Design standards is one of the options being considered.

Sustainable Buildings

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to encourage Swindon borough council to apply the higher level standards of the new Code for Sustainable Buildings to new homes. [77148]

Yvette Cooper: Consultation on the proposed Code for Sustainable Homes ended on 6 March 2006. In the light of the consultation responses, the Government announced proposals to strengthen the code on 9 March 2006. This announcement also said that these improvements would be developed over the coming months.

The Government are also carrying out a detailed analysis of the consultation returns and final decisions on further ways to encourage the take up of the code are still being considered.

Thames Gateway

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funds have been allocated for greenspace projects in the Thames Gateway in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [78816]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 22 June 2006]: Our proposals for environmental and greenspace improvements were set out in the Greening the Gateway implementation plan published in February 2005. The total funding toward greenspace and environmental projects from the Thames Gateway Programme fund between 2003-04 to 2007-08 is just under £25 million, of which about £19.7 million has already been spent. Expenditure in 2006-07 and 2007-08 is expected to be £4.6 million and £612,000 respectively.

Trees in Towns

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when her Department will publish the report Trees in Towns II; and why its publication has been delayed from Autumn 2005. [78544]

Yvette Cooper: The final report for Trees in Towns II was received by my Department at the beginning of June 2006. Preparation of the material for publication in a range of media is in hand and publication is expected later in 2006.

Underused Land

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's definition is of underused land. [78261]

Yvette Cooper: The Local Government (Publication of Information About Unused and Underused Land) (England) Regulations 1992 referred to underused land but only that owned by specified local authorities. The regulations were revoked in 1996.

The register of surplus public sector land, set up in 2003, records land that becomes surplus to the operational requirements of the owning body and is therefore available for disposal. It covers land owned by central Government bodies. See http://www.englishpartnerships.co.uk/rspl.htm.

Under-Value Property Disposals

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which "best consideration" decisions for disposing of property at an undervalue have been (a) refused and (b) permitted by the Secretary of State further to the Local Government Act 1972 in each year since 1977. [78277]

Yvette Cooper: Data on local authority land disposals at less than best consideration made under the Local Government Act 1972 are not available centrally for the whole of this period. The revised General Disposal Consent issued in 2003 requires disposals with an undervalue of more than £2 million to receive the specific consent of the Secretary of State. There have been no cases under the current General Disposal Consent where consent has been refused. Consents given by the Secretary of State since the introduction of these arrangements are set out in the following table:

	Local authority
2003	Birmingham City Council	Freehold disposal of land at Haden Circus, Birmingham, to provide a site for a sixth form college.
2003	Kirklees Metropolitan Council	Freehold disposal of land at Shepherds Grove, Deighton, Huddersfield, for residential development.
2004	Basingstoke and Deane Borough Council	Freehold disposal of undeveloped land at Foxdown, Hampshire, for residential development.
2004	Manchester City Council	Leasehold disposal of land at One Central Park, Newton Heath, Manchester, for a science park, education and research facilities.
2005	London Borough of Greenwich	Leasehold disposal of a school site in Abbey Wood for a City Academy school.
2006	Buckinghamshire County Council, Aylesbury	Release of Green Belt Act 1938 Covenant at Berryfields.

Village Pubs

Miss Kirkbride: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) if she will take steps to strengthen controls preventing village pubs from being bought and closed down by property speculators; [74134]

(2) if she will make a statement on Government policy on planning as it affects village pubs. [74135]

Yvette Cooper: Government policies in relation to planning for village pubs are set out in planning policy statement 6: Planning for Town Centres (PPS6) and planning policy statement 7: Sustainable Development in Rural Areas (PPS7).

PPS 6 asks local planning authorities where appropriate to adopt policies that enhance the vitality and viability of rural service centres, such as villages. In considering proposals for new development, local authorities should take into account the likely impact of the new development on services that are important to the local community.

Local planning authorities are also asked to consider the scale of new leisure development, including pubs, and its likely impact on the character and function of a village, for example in terms of antisocial behaviour, crime and the amenities of residents.

PPS7 supports the PPS6 policy approach to enhancing the viability of village services, including village pubs. It advises local planning authorities to support the retention of valuable local facilities and to set out in their local development documents the criteria they will apply in considering planning applications that would result in the loss of important village services.

The planning system cannot control the closure of a business or the sale of land or premises. Planning permissions relate to the use of land, and ownership is not a relevant consideration. The Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development) Order 1995, as amended, allows a change of use from A4 (drinking establishments) to A3 (restaurant and cafes), A2 (financial and professional services), and A1 (shops). A change to any other use would require planning permission.

If a pub is converted to a use other than those described, without planning permission, local planning authorities have a wide range of discretionary enforcement powers to enable them to deal with unauthorised development. It is for the local planning authority to decide in each case which is the most appropriate course of action.

The Government have no plans to control the buying and selling, or closure of village pubs. The use to which land and premises are put is a matter for individual land owners, so long as the necessary consents are in place.

West Midlands Regional Assembly

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has for provision of further powers to the West Midlands regional assembly. [73835]

Yvette Cooper: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 210W.

Weymouth Relief Road

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to call in the application to build the Weymouth relief road. [79076]

Yvette Cooper: Dorset county council is currently considering a planning application for the Weymouth relief road. Once they have completed their consideration the Secretary of State will decide whether the application should be called in for her own determination or remain with Dorset county council for decision.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

17. Mr. Clapham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the contribution of British troops activities to economic and social development in Afghanistan. [79726]

Des Browne: British forces are working closely with other Government Departments to deliver an integrated package of military, economic, diplomatic and developmental assistance. The role of UK forces is primarily to assist the Afghans in creating a secure environment within which the country's reconstruction and development can take place.

20. Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which units have been earmarked as replacements for the units currently serving with 16 Air Assault Brigade in Afghanistan; and when the replacement is due to take place. [79729]

Des Browne: No final decisions have been made on which units will replace 16 Air Assault Brigade in Afghanistan. As with all deployments, an announcement will be made in the House in due course.

Army Recruitment

18. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent trend he has identified in levels of recruitment to the Army. [79727]

Mr. Ingram: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today to the hon. Member for Ludlow (Mr. Dunne), at column 14.

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many applications from Northern Ireland to join the Army were rejected on national security grounds in (a) 2003-04 and (b) 2004-05. [78770]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer he was given on 12 September 2005, Official Report, columns 2276-77W. From 21 July 2005 until 31 December 2005 four more applications from Northern Ireland to join the Army were rejected on national security grounds.

Veterans Challenge Fund

19. Ann Coffey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the performance of the Veterans Challenge Fund. [79728]

Mr. Watson: The Veterans Challenge Fund has allowed substantial improvements to be made to the work of Government and other organisations addressing the needs of veterans. Over 50 projects have been supported, covering issues from homelessness and suicide among veterans to recognition of their achievements. A full list of the projects that have received challenge fund backing can be found on the Veterans Agency website. We have work in hand to improve understanding of the purpose and availability of the fund.

Cadet Forces

21. Andrew Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the contribution cadet forces make to the wider community. [79730]

23. Siobhain McDonagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent steps his Department has taken to support the cadet forces. [79733]

Mr. Watson: I refer my hon. Friends to the answer I gave earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Bridgend (Mrs. Moon), at column 17.

Military Aircraft

22. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what proportion of military aircraft are available for frontline service. [79732]

Mr. Ingram: I have taken aircraft "available for frontline service" to mean those aircraft that are "fit for purpose"; that is assessed to be available for tasking within a 24 hour period. On that basis, over the first two months of this financial year, about 480 aircraft across Strike Command, Joint Helicopter Command and the Royal Navy were fit for purpose, equating to around half of total fleet numbers.

Aircraft are not available for tasking if they are undergoing scheduled maintenance, modification programmes or any unforeseen rectification work, and an aircraft assessed as not fit for purpose may be returned to the front line at very short notice to meet the operational need.

Some training aircraft and helicopters are not included in these figures. I will place details of these figures in the Library of the House.

Falklands War

24. Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to announce details of events to commemorate the 25th Anniversary of the Falklands War in 2007. [79734]

Mr. Watson: My right hon. Friend the former Defence Secretary announced in a written ministerial statement on 27 April plans for the commemoration next year of the 25th Anniversary of the Falklands Conflict. We are planning major events in the UK and the Falkland Islands and are working closely with veterans organisations and others to ensure their success.

Veterans

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the impact of the veterans' badge scheme. [79724]

Mr. Watson: Over 250,000 badges have so far been issued to veterans who left the armed forces before the end of 1954 at a rate of up to 5,000 per week. I am sure many hon. Members on both sides will agree with me that the badge has had a remarkably positive impact. I have been invited to several badge presentations organised by hon. Members and have never failed to be heartened by the pleasure these badges are clearly giving to our veterans. From tomorrow applications will be accepted from those who served up to 31 December 1959 and will be extended further on a phased basis to all qualifying veterans as soon as practicable. In addition, the Deputy Prime Minister launched the UK Merchant Seafarers Veteran's Badge on 24 June and applications will be accepted from tomorrow for those eligible up to the end of 1959.

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what events have been organised in Scotland to celebrate Veterans Day. [76282]

Mr. Watson: The main event in Scotland to celebrate Veterans Day will be held in Dundee on 1 July and will include a Veterans Badge presentation, a parade of veterans and veterans entertainment in the Town Hall. Veterans Day events are also being planned elsewhere, including Lairg, Dunfermline and Crieff and on the former Royal Yacht Britannia in Edinburgh.

A303(T) Stonehenge

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when since January 2006 Ministers, officials and other employees or consultants working for his Department have (a) met and (b) had discussions with representatives of the National Trust on the northern corridor proposals for a route for the A303(T) north of Stonehenge; and if he will make a statement. [79406]

Mr. Watson: Neither Ministers nor officials have met with representatives of the National Trust (NT) to discuss Stonehenge road issues since 16 January 2006, when NT and Defence estate officials last met. The chief executive of Defence estates met with the director general of the National Trust on 8 February to discuss general issues.

Air Training Corps Squadrons

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the future of Air Training Corps Squadrons. [78963]

Mr. Ingram: There are no significant changes planned with regard to the Air Training Corps or its Squadrons. The Air Training Corps continues to promote a practical interest in aviation and the Royal Air Force; to provide training useful to Service or civilian employment; and to encourage good citizenship and leadership, as well as a sense of adventure among young men and women. The Air Training Corps will continue to be supported by the Royal Air Force, and is an integral part of the Government's Over-Arching Youth Strategy.

Armed Forces (Foreign Personnel)

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many non-Commonwealth foreign servicemen are serving in the armed forces, broken down by (a) country of origin and (b) service. [79107]

Atomic Weapons Establishment

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what studies are being carried out on future warhead options by officials at the Atomic Weapons Establishment, Aldermaston. [78962]

Des Browne: There is no programme to develop a new UK nuclear warhead. As was stated in the 1998 Strategic Defence Review, we retain a minimum capability to design and manufacture a new warhead, should one be required. Work by officials is now underway to prepare for decisions on the future of the UK's nuclear deterrent and also to keep options open in advance of these decisions. It remains the case that no decisions have yet been taken.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans there are for the construction of an additional tritium facility at the Atomic Weapons Establishment, Aldermaston. [76767]

Des Browne: There are currently no plans to construct an additional tritium facility at AWE. Essential refurbishment and replacement of existing facilities is planned as part of the site investment programme announced by my predecessor on 19 July 2005.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans there are for the construction of a new facility at the Atomic Weapons Establishment, Aldermaston to make highly enriched uranium warhead components. [76768]

Des Browne: A number of options are under consideration for ensuring we retain the requisite capability. No decisions have yet been taken. The capability to manufacture highly enriched uranium is required in order to maintain the existing Trident warhead throughout its intended in-service life and to provide material for naval propulsion.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the future of the A91 building at the Atomic Weapons Establishment, Aldermaston. [76773]

Des Browne: Plans for building A91 have not yet been formulated.

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 16 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1525-26W, to the hon. Member for Woodspring (Dr. Fox).

Challenger Tanks

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of Challenger's performance in desert conditions in Iraq; and whether he has plans to (a) increase the number deployed and (b) improve performance of the Challenger in hot climates. [79545]

Mr. Ingram: A programme of modifications to optimise the Challenger 2 Main Battle tank (CR2 MET) for use in desert conditions was begun in October 2002, including a dust mitigation package. The CR2 has performed extremely well throughout operations in Iraq and continues to do so. There are no plans to increase the numbers currently deployed. Performance, under all climatic conditions, is kept under constant review.

Cluster Munitions

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he has discussed with the Belgian Government its decision to ban cluster munitions. [79687]

Mr. Ingram: No formal discussions have taken place between the Secretary of State for Defence and the Belgian Government on the subject of its decision to ban cluster munitions.

Complaints Management

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the review of his Department's harassment complaints procedure was initiated; what its terms of reference were; what the target date is for completion; and what arrangements he is making for publication. [79917]

Mr. Watson: The review of harassment complaints procedures was initiated on 10 May 2006. Its purpose is to review current procedures and guidance and to recommend changes as necessary. The review is due to be completed in December 2006 and the outcome will be published in a Defence Instruction Notice and other internal media.

Departmental Bills

Mr. Ames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for legislation in the next Session of Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [78854]

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many websites there are within his responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79063]

Mr. Ingram: There are 12 external websites that are within the responsibilities of the Secretary of State for Defence, and the annual cost of running them is £1,781,123.

Disability Pensions

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the efficiency of the operation of the administration of disability pensions awarded to former members of the British Army recruited from the Indian subcontinent during the Second World War. [74110]

Mr. Watson: There is no evidence of systemic problems with the administration of the scheme. In one recent case resolution was delayed due to the difficulties of arranging a medical board in India, compounded by an administrative oversight.

Engagements

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the (a) name and (b) rank of police officers his predecessor, the right hon. Member for Ashfield (Mr. Hoon), met in his official capacity between 1 July and 31 August 2003. [65233]

Des Browne: My right hon. Friend the Member for Ashfield (Mr. Hoon) met no police officers in his official capacity as the then Secretary of State for Defence between 1 July and 31 August 2003, apart from the regular contact he had with those responsible for his personal protection.

Future Rapid Effect System Programme

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the progress of the Future Rapid Effect System programme; and whether the programme is on schedule. [79544]

Mr. Ingram: FRES is in its initial Assessment Phase. The broad aims of this phase are to further define the FRES capability and develop a series of affordable options for meeting the requirement; to develop optimum procurement and support strategies for future phases and to manage technology and supplier risk to acceptable levels.

All the technical risk reduction work (the Technology Demonstrator Programmes) has been launched and is on schedule.

[1] This figure is based on the statistics for the total applications assessed, minus 2 per cent. which is the estimated percentage for those applications rejected as not meeting the eligibility criteria.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 25 May 2006, Official Report, column 1989W, on the Iraq medal, whether any British civilian police officers have been awarded the Iraq service medal. [79667]

Mr. Watson: The MOD Iraq Medal has not been awarded to any British civilian police officers.

NATO Missile Defence Study

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the NATO Missile Defence Feasibility Study will be published; and what role he will play in decisions based on the study. [78951]

Des Browne: The NATO Missile Defence Feasibility Study is classified and the disclosure of its content would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of UK armed forces or that of our allies. NATO has no plans to publish the study, but any decisions based on it will be the subject of NATO discussions in the normal way, in which the UK will be fully engaged.

Non-Proliferation Treaty

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent steps the Government have taken to implement its disarmament obligations under Article VI of the Non-Proliferation Treaty. [71522]

Des Browne [pursuant to the reply, 22 May 2006, Official Report, c. 1329-30W]: The WE117 nuclear bomb referred to in the answer should have been shown as the WE177 nuclear bomb.

Panther Command and Liaison Vehicle

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with which units the seven Panther command and liaison test vehicles are in service; and if he will make a statement. [79404]

Mr. Ingram: The Panther Command and Liaison Vehicle is not yet in-service. The seven test vehicles are currently participating in trials at the Armoured Test and Development Unit in Bovington.

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the in-service date is for the Panther Command and Liaison Vehicle; and in what order units will receive these vehicles. [79405]

Mr. Ingram: The current approved ISD for the Panther vehicle is November 2007. In line with current plans, units will receive their vehicles in the following order:

Training establishments;

Lead brigade;

Follow-on brigades;

Remainder of field force users and RAF.

Porton Down

Miss Widdecombe: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many animals were used in scientific tests at Porton Down in each of the last three years, broken down by species. [80152]

Mr. Ingram: Dstl Porton Down submits annual returns to the Home Office detailing the number of procedures undertaken which involve the use of animals as defined in the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986.

The annual returns to the Home Office for the years 2003 to 2005, by species, are detailed in the following table.

	2003	2004	2005
G. Pig	653	506	661
Ferret	0	42	60

Pig	131	80	127
Rabbit	22	12	3
Rat	355	320	195
Sheep	0	0	2
Non-human Primate	23	30	54
Total	13,899	15,728	21,118

I also refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave on 8 May 2006, Official Report, column 41W, to the hon. Member for Portsmouth South, (Mr. Hancock).

Terrorist Threats

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what work has been carried out to (a) locate and (b) monitor foreign subjects who are a potential terrorist threat to (i) the UK and (ii) British people living abroad. [78200]

Mr. McNulty: I have been asked to reply.

Law enforcement, security and intelligence agencies have development programmes for fighting terrorism which includes work to locate and monitor foreign nationals who represent a potential terrorist threat. The specific police budget for counter terrorism will have grown fourfold between the financial years 2002-03 and 2007-08 (in the period after the attacks of 11 September 2001). Across Government there has been a doubling of resources for counter terrorism and resilience in the same period to over £2 billion. This has included substantial additional resources to the security and intelligence agencies, including an additional £85 million since the July bombings last year to bring forward planned enhancements of their ability to collect, analyse and act upon intelligence to seek out and disrupt terrorist activity.

The specific actions taken to locate and monitor foreign nationals who are a potential terrorist threat to Britain and British citizens abroad are operational matters for law enforcement, security and intelligence agencies.

Priory Group

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many service personnel have been treated by the Priory Group in each year since the contract with the Group began; and how many have subsequently (a) returned to duty and (b) been discharged; [76847]

(2) for what reasons the Priory Group was selected as the sole provider of in-patient psychiatric healthcare service; and which other companies applied to be considered; [76848]

(3) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the treatment provided by the Priory Group for service personnel; and what criteria he used to make that assessment. [76849]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 19 June 2006]: We assess that the Priory Group provides an excellent in-patient psychiatric service based on an individual's clinical needs. Service liaison officers routinely visit the Group's hospital units where we have in-patients to ensure that our arrangements are working effectively in terms of patient care and treatment, including attending ward rounds that involve service patients; the service liaison officer also acts as a "service advocate" for the patient. They also meet regularly with Priory representatives to discuss treatment and best practice. We assess the contractual elements of our agreement with the Priory Group at quarterly meetings held between the MOD and the Priory Group. Both the service liaison officer and contract meetings examine the Priory's performance against the particular performance indicators of the contract. Furthermore, the MOD's Directorate of Healthcare monitors, on a daily basis, case management and financial components of the contract.

The MOD's requirement for the provision of in-patient mental healthcare was advertised in the "Official Journal of the European Communities" and the "MOD Contracts Bulletin". Four companies—The Priory Group Ltd.,

Cygnet Healthcare Ltd., Affinity Healthcare, and Selrack Consulting—expressed an interest in the requirement. They were then invited to an Industry Day, in order to give them a better understanding of the requirement and to enable them to discuss with MOD in more detail what they would be able to provide. Following the exchange of information at the Industry Day, the MOD decided that Selrack Consulting would be unable to provide the services required and therefore invited the three remaining companies to tender. The Priory Group Ltd. and Cygnet Healthcare Ltd. submitted bids. The bid from The Priory Group Ltd. best met our requirements to provide high-quality mental health in-patient care nationwide, without delay, and within easy reach of unit, base or home.

The contract with the Priory Group commenced on 1 December 2003. Reception of service patients by the Priory Group's inpatient facilities was phased in between 1 December 2003 and April 2004. This phase-in period allowed MOD and the Priory Group to develop interoperable working procedures and the MOD the opportunity to gradually enhance its community-based mental health teams.

Since the beginning of the contract, The Priory Group has admitted 730 service personnel for in-patient treatment. This can be broken down by year as follows:

	Number of patients
2003-04[1]	58
2004-05	321
2005-06	351

[1] From 1 December 2003.

While an individual's medical record will show their medical history, at present, we do not hold centrally a collated set of records specifically limited to former patients who have returned to duty or have been discharged following treatment at the Priory. However, we have started a study into the medium to long-term prognosis of former patients who were discharged from Priory care between the 1 April 2004 and 31 March 2005. This will help to enhance our understanding of the long-term effectiveness of the treatment they received.

RAF Machrihanish

Mr. Alan Reid: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the future of RAF Machrihanish. [79496]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 22 June 2006]: Ministry of Defence officials are discussing with other public sector agencies, including the Scottish Executive, alternative future uses of the site and how best to manage any disposal, to protect the longer term interests of the local community and other stakeholders.

Once these discussions have concluded I will make an announcement on how the Department plans to proceed.

Sergeant BB

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) on what date the case conference relating to the case of Sergeant BB took place; how many persons attended; what (a) disciplines, (b) fields of expertise, (c) military agencies and (d) external bodies were represented; and what measures were taken to hear evidence from (i) victims and (ii) their families; [79871]

(2) what recommendations were agreed following the case conference relating to the case of Sergeant BB; [79872]

(3) what legal expertise was available to the case conference relating to the case of Sergeant BB. [79873]

Mr. Ingram: A case conference relating to Sergeant BB was convened by the Director of Personal Services (Army) on 11 May 2006. 12 individuals attended the conference representing Policy, Welfare, Military Discipline, Training, Military Postings, Legal and Police disciplines, from the Director of Personal Services (Army), Army Training and Recruiting Agency, Headquarters Adjutant General, Provost Marshal (Army), Headquarters Land Command and the Directorate of Army Legal Services. No external agencies were present and no evidence was taken.

A number of recommendations were agreed following the case conference, which relate to an individual's suitability for employment with under 18s: the selection process; career management; standards of reporting; and awareness of the complaints process. The Army is currently considering how best to take these recommendations forward.

Trainees Accommodation

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his timetable is for (a) planning, (b) commissioning, (c) construction and (d) opening 4,000 new accommodation units for phase two trainees by 2012. [79847]

Mr. Watson: The arrangements for new accommodation units to be supplied to phase 2 trainees are currently being evaluated as part of the Defence Training Review (DTR) Rationalisation programme. Very different bid proposals have been received for both DTR packages and until evaluation has concluded, and a preferred bidder for each package identified, the specifics of the solutions in terms of planning and execution of accommodation units cannot be confirmed. I anticipate announcing preferred bidders and their solutions later this year.

Trident

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence where and how often the UK carries out tests to ensure the accuracy of Trident nuclear missiles. [79086]

Des Browne: The UK carries out unarmed Trident missile firings at the United States of America's Eastern Test Range after each submarine's build and Long Overhaul Period. The information collected includes accuracy data.

The following table shows the details of previous unarmed firings:

Date	Vessel	Purpose	Number of unarmed missiles
26 May 1994	HMS Vanguard	Prior to initial deployment	1
19 June 1994	HMS Vanguard	Prior to initial deployment	1
24 July 1995	HMS Victorious	Prior to initial deployment	1
22 August 1995	HMS Victorious	Prior to initial deployment	1
10 October 1997	HMS Vigilant	Prior to initial deployment	2
21 September 2000	HMS Vengeance	Prior to initial deployment	1
10 October 2005	HMS Vanguard	Post refit (Long Overhaul Period (Refuel))	1

The frequency of test firings is dependent on the Long Overhaul Period programme.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what components of the Trident missile system are (a) on loan or (b) have been purchased from the United States of America. [79087]

Des Browne: The UK has no Trident missile system components on loan from the US. The UK purchased the rights to 58 Trident missiles and removable missile components under the Polaris Sales Agreement (as amended for Trident). The warheads were procured separately by the UK.

United States Bases (Jurisdiction)

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which police force is responsible for investigating a serious crime committed against a British citizen where such a crime occurs on a base where US personnel outnumber UK personnel. [76292]

Mr. Watson: In accordance with the Visiting Forces Act 1952, and depending on the circumstances of the case, either the local Home Department Police or the Ministry of Defence Police, can investigate a crime committed against a British citizen on a base utilised by the United States Visiting Forces.

Uranium Production Facilities

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what consultation (a) his Department and (b) the Atomic Weapons Establishment, Aldermaston have held with representatives of the Y-12 plant in the United States of America on the construction of uranium production facilities; [79092]

(2) what discussions he has had with US officials on the development of a uranium production facility at the Atomic Weapons Establishment, Aldermaston. [76769]

Des Browne: Discussions on a range of nuclear issues take place on a regular basis between my officials and their US counterparts under the auspices of the 1958 Mutual Defence Agreement.

Warhead Option Studies

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people are employed (a) by his Department and (b) at the Atomic Weapons Establishment, Aldermaston on warhead option studies; what the purpose is of these studies; and what their cost is. [79088]

Des Browne: There is no programme to develop a new UK nuclear warhead. As was stated in the 1998 Strategic Defence Review, we retain a minimum capability to design and manufacture a new warhead, should one be required. Work by officials is under way to prepare for decisions on the future of the UK's nuclear deterrent and also to keep options open in advance of these decisions.

A number of people are involved in this work but it is not possible precisely to distinguish between staff employed in support of this work and those involved in sustaining the existing Trident warhead, and neither is it possible separately to identify costs.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent estimate she has made of the number of Taliban fighters operating in Afghanistan; and if she will make a statement. [79924]

Dr. Howells: It is not easy to distinguish between the Taliban and other groups hostile to the current political process in Afghanistan. We estimate that at any one time the Taliban may be able to call upon up to a thousand fighters in the south of Afghanistan, a primary operating area. Some groups can temporarily augment their numbers by leveraging tribal, personal and criminal networks.

According to an Afghan spokesmen for the 'Strengthening Peace Programme', the Afghan-led programme aimed at reconciling insurgent fighters, which is led by the Senate Speaker and former President, Sibghatullah Mojadeddi, around 1,200 former insurgents have entered the programme as of early June 2006.

China

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of (a) the change in the volume of China's trade with Africa since 2005 and (b) its effect on (i) standards of living and (ii) democracy in those states in Africa. [79428]

Mr. McCartney: The volume of trade between China and Africa has quadrupled since 2001, standing at almost US$40 billion in 2005, with the balance marginally in favour of Africa. Growth in trade looks set to continue, and is helping to fuel economic growth in Africa of more than 5 per cent., which should help to reduce poverty and improve standards of living. China has a policy of non-interference in the internal affairs of sovereign states. We continue to encourage China to engage with Africa in a way that promotes human rights, conflict prevention, sustainable development and democratic and accountable governance, in line with the principles set out in the New Partnership for Africa's Development.

I raised these issues with the Chinese ambassador on 21 June.

Algeria

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the recent bilateral meeting between the Government and the Government of Algeria; and what agreements on extradition and penal issues were made at the meeting. [79987]

Dr. Howells: I visited Algeria on 7-8 June to co-chair the inaugural meeting of the UK/Algeria Joint Commission which aims to further the growing bilateral ties between the two countries. We discussed a range of issues including bilateral trade, support for Algeria's reforms, co-operation in areas such as counter-terrorism and illegal migration, and regional issues. We also discussed UK representation in Algeria, including the British Council. I was pleased to be able to announce that President Bouteflika will visit the UK on 11-12 July.

During the visit the UK initialled four treaties with Algeria on Extradition, Mutual Legal Assistance in Criminal Matters, Judicial Co-operation in Civil and Commercial Matters, and the Re-admission and Circulation of Persons.

Burma

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what discussions have been held with the Government of Peru regarding a United Nations Security Council resolution on Burma; [79252]

(2) what discussions have been held with the Governments of (a) Congo, (b) Tanzania and (c) Ghana regarding a United Nations Security Council resolution on Burma. [79257]

Mr. McCartney: There are on-going informal discussions regarding a resolution with UN Security Council members including Peru, Congo, Tanzania and Ghana, at official level.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) whether the Government have the legal authority to ban imports from Burma; [79254]

(2) whether World Trade Organisation rules prevent the United Kingdom from unilaterally imposing trade and investment sanctions on Burma. [79255]

Mr. McCartney: Controls on imports into the European Community, including the UK, fall within the scope of the Community's Common Commercial Policy which is an area of exclusive Community competence. Member states can unilaterally adopt measures but these are limited to strictly defined and exceptional circumstances. Furthermore, any such measures would have to be notified and justified under these exceptions to the European Commission.

Any unilateral measures taken by the UK against Burma would also have to satisfy relevant World Trade Organisation rules on imports of goods and services. For example, a ban on imports of goods from Burma would be in breach of General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) rules and therefore would, if challenged by Burma, have to be justified under either the general or security exceptions set down in the GATT Agreement.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action the Government have taken to ascertain whether genocide or attempted genocide is being committed in Burma. [79256]

Mr. McCartney: In co-operation with other Governments, the UN, other humanitarian organisations and non-governmental organisations, we scrutinise evidence of human rights abuses we receive from a wide range of sources. There are credible reports of large-scale human rights abuses in Burma.

Our assessment is that there is currently insufficient evidence to establish that the intent to commit genocide exists. We shall continue to confer with the UN and international partners to ascertain whether genocide or attempted genocide is being committed in Burma.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she (a) last met and (b) next expects to meet with representatives of the democratically elected government of Burma. [79546]

Mr. McCartney: Burma has no democratically elected government. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no meetings with members of the Burmese Parliament elected in 1990. However, Ministers, our ambassador in Rangoon and senior officials have met members elect of the Burmese Parliament.

Officials are in regular contact with representatives of the Burmese democratic opposition.

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Chinese Government on its policy towards Burma. [80157]

Mr. McCartney: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Portsmouth South (Mr. Hancock) on 22 June 2006, Official Report, column 2145W.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many websites there are within her responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79074]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has responsibility for some 211 websites, which cost £670,000 to maintain in the financial year 2005-06. These websites include the main FCO website, Ukvisas website, more than 180 embassy and High Commission websites and the i-UK.com portal website. A full list of the websites will be placed in the Library of the House and a copy of the list will be sent to the hon. Member.

Flags

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Union Flag will be flown from 8 a.m until sunset above Government buildings in all Overseas Territories and Crown Dependencies on Her Majesty The Queen's official birthday on 17 June 2006. [78939]

Mr. Hoon: The Overseas Territories and Crown Dependencies are constitutionally not part of the United Kingdom and they all have their own flags. All of the Territories and Crown Dependencies marked Her Majesty the Queen's Official Birthday by flying their own flag and/or the Union Flag above government buildings, except for Pitcairn Islands. Turks and Caicos Islands chose to celebrate the occasion on 10 June in line with their standard practice.

Foreign Travel

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was spent on foreign travel by her Department in each of the last eight years. [76059]

Mr. Hoon: The following amounts were spent on foreign travel by Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers and officials in each of the last eight financial years:

	£ million
1998-99	29.8
1999-2000	32.0
2000-01	35.3
2001-02	42.0
2002-03	39.0
2003-04	39.0

Since 1999 the Government have published, on an annual basis, the total costs of all ministerial overseas travel and a list of all visits by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500. This information is available in the Library of the House. Information for the financial year 2004-05 was published on 21 July 2005, Official Report, column 158WS. Information for the financial year 2005-06 is in the process of being collated and will be published shortly.

All foreign travel undertaken by Ministers and civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the "Ministerial Code" and the "Civil Service Management Code". Since 2004 the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has followed a policy of offsetting carbon dioxide and other emissions generated by air travel of Ministers and officials based in the UK.

Human Rights

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the likely impact of the establishment of the United Nations Human Rights Council on the UN's effectiveness in upholding human rights. [79434]

Dr. Howells: The new UN Human Rights Council has the potential to improve on the work of its predecessor, the Commission on Human Rights, in addressing pressing human rights issues around the world today. The UN General Assembly resolution establishing the Council provides for some significant improvements, including: more frequent meetings each year, at least three meetings per year for at least 10 weeks in total, which should allow the Council to address human rights issues more systematically; a new system of universal periodic review, under which the human rights record of each UN member will be reviewed; a higher election threshold for election to the Council; a wider-ranging mandate; and a more central place within the UN system, better reflecting the importance of human rights. At the same time, we expect that it should preserve some of the strengths of the Commission, including proper provision for the participation of non-governmental organisations. But, much will depend on member states' commitment to making a success of the new Council, and it is the responsibility of all UN members to ensure that it can work more effectively than its predecessor.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the election process for members of the United Nations Human Rights Council. [79435]

Dr. Howells: The General Assembly resolution of 15 March establishing the new UN Human Rights Council raised the threshold for membership in comparison with the Council's predecessor body, the Commission on Human Rights. Candidates are now required to win a simple majority, at least 96 votes, in the General Assembly to be elected. Candidates for the first elections, in May 2006, were encouraged to make voluntary pledges and commitments on the protection and promotion of human rights, to be taken into consideration when membership was voted on. All candidates did so, although some commitments were much more substantive than others. Members are expected to uphold the highest human rights standards, to co-operate fully with the Council and to be among the first to submit themselves to the new Universal Periodic Review. Although some countries with weaker human rights records were still elected, we expect all members to take seriously the responsibilities of membership and will be looking to hold them to this.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what was discussed at the inaugural session of the United Nations Human Rights Council. [79436]

Dr. Howells: The first session of the UN Human Rights Council (HRC) opened in Geneva on 19 June and will continue its discussions until 30 June. The session began with an inaugural ceremony, at which the UN Secretary-General, the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights and the President of the UN General Assembly gave speeches on the establishment of the HRC and their expectations for its work. The Nobel Peace Laureate of 2004, Wangari Maathai, also spoke.

The first week of this first meeting of the HRC (19-22 June) was devoted to a "high level segment" allowing Ministers from UN member states to make statements on their expectations for the Council. My right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade represented the UK on Tuesday 20 June. In his speech, he called for all to work together towards an effective HRC. Non-governmental organisations and national human rights institutions will have the opportunity to address the Council at this inaugural session. We expect the agenda for the further work of the session to be presented for agreement towards the end of this first week.

Japan/South Korea

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the implications of the recent territorial talks between Japan and South Korea; and if she will make a statement. [79926]

Mr. McCartney: The latest round of territorial talks, concluded in Tokyo on 13 June, did not bring Japan and South Korea (RoK) any closer to resolving their dispute. Japan and RoK still remain apart over demarcating their exclusive economic zones around a pair of RoK-controlled islets, known as Takeshima in Japan and Tokdo in South Korea.

The islets have long been a source of dispute between the two nations which both claim sovereignty over them. Even though no concrete progress was made during the talks, it is welcome that they took place, after a six-year suspension. The two sides agreed in principle to hold their next round of talks in September in Seoul.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much her Department spent in each of the last five years on building links between the UK and (a) Korea and (b) Japan in the (i) science, (ii) engineering and (iii) innovation sectors. [79321]

Mr. McCartney: Since 2000, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has been improving its links on Science, Innovation and Engineering in Japan and South Korea through a dedicated network of Science and Innovation Officers. This has been as part of the Government' overall science strategy. The FCO has spent the amounts listed on promoting Science, Innovation and Engineering in Japan and South Korea. Since the FCO does not promote Science, Innovation and Engineering separately the figures relate to spending on all three of these areas.

The figures are displayed by country, year and the type of spending. The staff costs given relate to the full economic costs of employing the science officers working in each country in a given year. The number of science officers employed in each country is given in brackets next to the staff costs.

Kosovo

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made by the European Union in achieving agreement on the future status of Kosovo; and if she will make a statement. [79929]

Mr. Hoon: The EU continues to support the UN led status process and looks forward to a settlement that will bring lasting peace and security to Kosovo and the wider region. The European Council held on 15/16 June declared

'its support to the ongoing talks about the future status led by UN Envoy Martti Ahtisaari and stressed the crucial importance of moving forward on the implementation of standards in Kosovo. In close consultation with key international actors, the EU stands ready to enhance its role in Kosovo following a status determination, in particular in the areas of police, rule of law and the economy'.

Norfolk Island

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the constitutional status of Norfolk Island in the response to the Australian Government's proposals to change the arrangements for governance of the Island. [78959]

Mr. McCartney: Norfolk Island was placed under the authority of the Commonwealth of Australia in 1914. Its system of government remains a matter for the Government of Australia to determine.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government plans to commemorate the 150th anniversary of Norfolk Island being given to the inhabitants of Pitcairn Island by Queen Victoria. [78961]

Mr. McCartney: The Government have no plans to commemorate this anniversary.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether there is a mechanism by which Norfolk Island could petition the Government to secede as a self-governing Australian Territory and become a self-governing British Overseas Territory. [79604]

Mr. McCartney: Norfolk Island has been an external territory under the authority of the Commonwealth of Australia since 1914. Its system of government remains a matter for the Government of Australia to determine.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether she plans to visit Norfolk Island. [79605]

Mr. McCartney: There are no plans for my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary to visit Norfolk Island.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on Australia's proposed changes to the governance of Norfolk Island. [79609]

Mr. McCartney: Norfolk Island was placed under the authority of the Commonwealth of Australia in 1914. Its system of government remains a matter for the Government of Australia to determine.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government has had discussions with the Australian Government on the sovereignty of Norfolk Island since 2000. [79610]

Mr. McCartney: No discussions have taken place between the Government and the Government of Australia on the sovereignty of Norfolk Island since 2000.

North Korea

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of reports that North Korea can launch a Taepodong-2 missile with potential nuclear capability; and what recent discussions she has had with the (a) UN, (b) US and (c) EU on this issue. [79964]

Mr. McCartney: We are very concerned about reports of a possible test-launch of a Taepodong-2 missile/Satellite Launch Vehicle and are monitoring the situation closely. We have made clear our view to the Democratic People's Republic Korea, as have the EU, US, Japan and others, that this would be seen as a provocative act, which would add considerable tension to an already complex regional situation. We have urged them not to test, but to stick to their commitments under the 1999 moratorium and the 2002 Pyongyang Declaration and return to the Six Party Talks. We continue to work closely with allies, including US, NATO and EU partners to ensure a co-ordinated UN response if the test goes ahead.

Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps her Department (a) has taken and (b) plans to take to implement the last part of Article VI of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty; when she expects the Article to be implemented; and if she will make a statement. [79083]

Dr. Howells: The UK has undertaken many important steps in fulfilling its disarmament obligations under Article VI of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons (NPT). Since the end of the Cold War we have reduced the total explosive power of our nuclear forces by over 70 per cent. and we are the only nuclear weapon state to have reduced its deterrent capacity to a single nuclear weapons system, Trident.

We continue to press for multilateral negotiations towards both nuclear, and general and complete disarmament under strict and effective international control, as required by Article VI of the NPT. On nuclear disarmament our current priority is to push for negotiations on a Fissile Material Cut-Off Treaty, without pre-conditions, at the Conference on Disarmament in Geneva, which we view as the next appropriate step towards achieving the goal of nuclear disarmament. On conventional arms control, we are also active. The UK is leading the campaign to launch work within a UN framework towards an Arms Trade Treaty to regulate the global trade in all conventional weapons. And next week in New York at the First Review Conference of the UN Programme of Action on Small Arms and Light Weapons (SALW), the UK will be leading the campaign to build maximum support for common international guidelines for transfers of SALW.

Organ Harvesting (China)

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 12 May 2006, Official Report, column 628W, on organ harvesting (China), what assessment she has made of the legality of contracts entered into by Chinese prisoners with the Chinese Government for organ donation. [79216]

Mr. McCartney: The Government has the Chinese Government's assurance that prisoners agree to the donations voluntarily and that, in some cases, their families are paid. We are not privy to the way these donations are agreed and therefore not in a position to make any form of assessment. We continue to be concerned about the use of prisoners' organs and to raise these concerns with the Chinese Government.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 12 May 2006, Official Report, column 628W, on organ harvesting (China), what further representations she plans to make to the Chinese government following the implementation of regulations relating to the sale of organs in China on 1 July. [79217]

Mr. McCartney: The Government remain concerned about the use of organs from executed prisoners in China. At the EU-China Human Rights Dialogue in May 2006, delegates discussed the detail of China's new regulation to ban the sale of organs and introduce medical standards for organ transplants, and the importance of adhering to World Medical Association standards for organ transplants. We will continue to pursue these issues with Chinese interlocutors.

Outer Space Treaty

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the progress of the Outer Space Treaty. [79085]

Dr. Howells: The Outer Space treaty (1967), to which the UK is a depository, entered into force on 10 October 1967. The treaty places important constraints on the use of space, including prohibiting the deployment of weapons of mass destruction in space and military activity on the moon and other celestial bodies. Since 1967, there has been growing support for the Outer Space treaty: 98 states have now ratified the treaty and an additional 27 are signatories. The Outer Space treaty has become the cornerstone of international space law and the UK continues to be a firm supporter and to abide by each of the treaty's principles.

Fugitive Indictees

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in the hunt for (a) Radovan Karadzic, (b) General Ratko Mladic and (c) Vlastimir Djordjevic; and if she will make a statement. [79928]

Mr. Hoon: In her address to the UN Security Council on 7 June, the Chief Prosecutor of the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY), Carla Del Ponte, was critical of the Serbian authorities' efforts to arrest Ratko Mladic and the other remaining fugitive indictees. She noted that there was serious political and administrative resistance from within the Serbian system, and underlined that strong political will was required to overcome these obstacles.

The Chief Prosecutor also stressed that the Republika Srpska within Bosnia and Herzegovina (BiH) had to increase its efforts to locate and arrest fugitives. It was unclear where Radovan Karadzic himself resided, but part of his network and his family remained in BiH. She also expressed disappointment at the lack of progress in locating Vlastimir Djordjevic. She believes he may be in Russia but investigations by the Russian authorities have failed to produce results.

As we regularly make clear to the countries of the region, full co-operation with the ICTY remains a fundamental requirement for progress towards the EU and NATO. We supported the decision in May of EU Enlargement Commissioner Olli Rehn to disrupt Serbia's Stabilisation and Association Agreement negotiations because of Belgrade's failure to co-operate fully with the ICTY. The Commission has made clear however, that they stand ready to resume the talks as soon as full co-operation is achieved.

Renditions

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether any (a) known and (b) suspected al-Qaeda operative found in the UK since 1997 has been rendered to the US. [79318]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement by the then Foreign Secretary, my right hon. Friend the Member for Blackburn (Mr. Straw) of 20 January 2006, Official Report, columns 37-38WS, which summarises the position in respect of renditions through UK territory or airspace since May 1997.

UN Secretary General

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions

Ministers in her Department have had with candidates for the position of Secretary General of the United Nations. [79431]

Dr. Howells: Ministers and officials have held a number of meetings in recent months with candidates who have declared an interest in the position of United Nations Secretary General. They have met all four declared candidates, Ban Ki-Moon, Dr. Surakiart Sathirathai, Jayantha Dhanapala and Shashi Tharoor. These discussions focussed on a wide range of issues including UN reform.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the UK Government will be supporting any candidate in the forthcoming selection of the new Secretary General of the United Nations. [79432]

Dr. Howells: It is long standing UK policy not to reveal publicly our voting intentions for the election of the UN Secretary-General. The Government will carefully consider the merits of each candidate. We believe the successful candidate needs to have the political skills and management experience to carry forward necessary reforms to the UN.

Sierra Leone

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the written statement of 15 June 2006, Official Report, columns 69-70WS, on Sierra Leone, who will bear the costs if Charles Taylor is sent to prison in the United Kingdom. [79437]

Dr. Howells: If Charles Taylor were convicted by the Special Court for Sierra Leone and imprisoned in the United Kingdom, the UK would meet the cost. This is in line with established policy for commitments arising from sentence enforcement agreements with international criminal tribunals.

It is judged preferable for the UK to meet directly the costs associated with prisoners held in the UK system than to take on the more general, and possibly greater, financial commitment that would arise if all sentence enforcement costs, relating to imprisonment in any state of those convicted by an international criminal tribunal, were added to the tribunal running costs, to which the UK contributes.

Somalia

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking towards ensuring the safety of British citizens based in Somalia. [79010]

Mr. McCartney: Foreign and Commonwealth Office travel advice continues firmly to advise British citizens against all travel to Somalia. We keep that advice under review and have updated it to take account of the most recent developments. We have no diplomatic representation in Somalia and very little capacity to assist any British citizens based there.

Sri Lanka

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the situation in Sri Lanka following the bombing on Thursday 15 June and the subsequent government attacks on Tamil forces; and what role the UK is playing in seeking to stabilise the country. [79370]

Dr. Howells: We remain deeply concerned at the violence in Sri Lanka and, again, offer our condolences following last week's attack in Kebitigollawe. Such barbaric acts have no place in the search for a solution to the conflict. I issued a statement on 15 June condemning this attack unreservedly along with all forms of violence and intimidation. That statement is available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1007029391629&a=KArticle&aid=1150379181467%20&year=2006&month=2006-06-01&date=2006-06-15.

There is a real need for political will on all sides to change the dynamics of the conflict. Violence can never be an answer to Sri Lanka's problems; all sides need to understand this. It is vital that both sides, which were at the Geneva talks in February, live up to their commitments. This includes the Sri Lankan Government acting constructively to ensure that paramilitaries or others are not able to operate, the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eeelam (LTTE) calling a halt to acts of violence against civilians, the security forces and police, and both sides ensuring that intimidation, acts of violence, abductions and killings cease. We continue to believe that dialogue is the only way to achieve a negotiated settlement to the conflict, which takes full account of the legitimate demands of all communities and promotes a democratic and stable Sri Lanka. All sides need to exercise restraint and act constructively.

We fully support the Norwegian peace facilitation efforts. We welcome the recent statements of commitment to the Ceasefire Agreement by the Government of Sri Lanka and the LTTE and continue to do what we can to encourage both sides to return in good faith, to face-to-face talks. We make this clear in our regular contacts with the Sri Lankan Government, Members of Parliament, including representatives of Tamil political groups, and civil society. We also actively contribute to the EU's work, not least in its role as one of the Tokyo co-chairs to the Sri Lankan peace process.

Staff Absenteeism

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many working days have been lost to the Department and its executive agencies in each year since 1997 due to staff absenteeism, expressed as the average annual number of absent days per employee; and what the estimated cost to the Department and its agencies of absenteeism was in each year. [77755]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 19 June 2006]: The average number of working days lost through sick absence since 2000, the year from which reliable records were held, and the estimated cost to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office is as follows:

	Days	Cost (£)
2000	2.87	1,103,794.80
2001	4.55	1,823,124.68
2002	4.88	2,091,575.58
2003	5.59	2,626,479.90
2004	6.18	3,096,696.68

Data for 2005 are not yet available.

Syria/Iran

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the implications of the recent discussions between the Syrian and Iranian Governments on strategic and military co-operation; and if she will make a statement. [79923]

Dr. Howells: Syria and Iran reportedly signed a Memorandum of Understanding on defence issues during a visit to Tehran by the Syrian Defence Minister, Hassan Turkmani, on 15 June. We continue to have serious concerns about the role of Syria and Iran in the region, including their support for Hizbollah and Palestinian rejectionist groups that continue to espouse violence. Further military co-operation between Syria and Iran is unlikely to build international confidence. We urge both countries to fulfil their obligations under UN Security Council Resolutions 1559 and 1680.

Turkey

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in accession negotiations on Turkey's membership of the European Union; and if she will make a statement. [79927]

Mr. Hoon: Since opening accession negotiations on 3 October 2005, the Commission has been assessing Turkey's existing legislation against the 35 chapters of the EU acquis and has now published its reports on five. We were pleased that on 12 June the EU and Turkey opened and provisionally closed negotiations on the first chapter, Science and Research. As both the EU and Turkey recognise, much remains to be done before accession.

West Papua

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations the Department has received on behalf of the people of West Papua; and what representations she has made on their behalf to the Government of Indonesia. [79429]

Mr. McCartney: In recent months, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has received a small number of letters from members of the public and hon. Members about Papua. There have also been a few parliamentary questions tabled. The then Minister of State for Trade my hon. Friend the Member for Dudley, South (Ian Pearson) held a meeting with the All-Party Parliamentary Group for Papua on 16 March. Some civil society representatives interested in Papuan issues also attended that meeting.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not made any representations about Papua to the Government of Indonesia. However, our embassy in Jakarta discusses Papua with the Indonesian authorities. During his visit to Indonesia on 29-30 March, my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister expressed the UK's support for dialogue between the central Government and representatives of the Papuan people. The UK supports the territorial integrity of Indonesia. We believe that full implementation of existing Special Autonomy legislation is the best way to proceed towards a peaceful, stable and prosperous Papua.

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in Northern Ireland have been investigated by the Assets Recovery Agency. [77368]

Paul Goggins: The Assets Recovery Agency is not a prosecuting authority and does not investigate individuals, but rather investigates assets. In terms of caseload since the agency's inception, ARA has adopted and investigated the following case levels for civil recovery and tax:

	Referrals[1]	Adoptions[2]

Community-based Sentences

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many criminal offences resulted in a sentence of community work in Northern Ireland in the last 12 months; and how many were completed. [76625]

Mr. Hanson: According to figures provided by the Probation Board for Northern Ireland (PBNI) in relation to the period 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006, 652 community service orders were made, representing a contribution of approximately 95,000 hours of unpaid work to the community, while 212 combination orders were made, representing a contribution of approximately 25,000 hours of unpaid work to the community.

Over the same period, 514 community service orders and 154 Combination orders were completed. It should be noted that figures are collated based on the number of persons convicted rather than the number of offences.

Council Audits

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what action his Department is taking to reduce the cost of auditing local councils in Northern Ireland. [78791]

David Cairns: Audit fees, which are determined by the Department in discussion with the local government Audit Office, seek to recover 100 per cent. of auditors' time. Time spent on the audit of district councils' accounts is kept to a minimum and the Department monitors the position of these statutory audits through regular meetings with the Chief Local Government Auditor.

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost of audit fees was for each local council in Northern Ireland in each year since 1990. [78792]

David Cairns: The records for audit fees charged to individual district councils are not held centrally prior to 1998-99. Fees for the financial years 1998-99 to 2004-05 are set out in the table.

Departmental Chief Accounting Offic...

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the chief accounting officer of his Department. [76711]

Paul Goggins: Accounting officer is a role that the permanent secretary combines with his personal responsibility for the overall organisation, management and staffing of the Department and for department-wide procedures in financial and other matters.

The accounting officer is assisted in the discharge of these duties by suitably qualified and experienced senior managers. The head of financial services division of the Northern Ireland Office is a professionally qualified accountant.

Education

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what steps (a) education and library boards and (b) the Council for Catholic Maintained Schools are taking in their rationalisation plans to ensure that the principles of the Policy and Strategic Framework for Good Relations in Northern Ireland: A Shared Future are delivered; [78978]

(2) what the timescale is for the strategic review of the schools estate; and whether it will consider how promoting cross-community and cross-sectoral sharing can be incorporated into rationalisation of schools. [78980]

Maria Eagle: The independent Strategic Review of Education will consider how strategic planning and rationalisation of the schools' estate can best encourage and support cross-community and cross-sector collaboration and models of schooling that promote greater integrating of education. It is due to be completed by November 2006. In line with the First Triennial Action Plan for A Shared Future, the Council for Catholic Maintained Schools and the Education and Library Boards will be required to demonstrate that options for collaboration/sharing on a cross-community basis have been considered and fully explored in developing their plans for reorganisation/ rationalisation of the schools' estate. The outcome of the strategic review of education may lead to further refinement of the commitments and detailed actions in the Action Plan.

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what role the new district councils will have in planning for educational choice in Northern Ireland following the Review of Public Administration. [78981]

David Cairns: As part of the implementation of the Review of Public Administration, district councils will be given community planning powers. The Department of Environment (DoE) is currently developing proposals to inform the necessary legislation. The community planning process will afford local government the opportunity to influence the planning for educational choice

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) who will be responsible for ensuring that actions to support greater sharing in education under the Triennial Action Plan for A Shared Future are monitored; [78984]

(2) what powers he has to ensure that all educational partners in Northern Ireland meet the requirements of the Policy and Strategic Framework for Good Relations: A Shared Future? [78985]

Mr. Hanson: The Office of the First Minister and Deputy First Minister is responsible for monitoring the actions flowing from the Triennial Action Plan for A Shared Future.

The Shared Future Triennial Action Plan, published on 27 April 2006, sets out ministerial commitments and actions in relation to A Shared Future. Specific actions are set out to promote greater sharing in education.

The commitments and actions are underpinned by existing duties and obligations under Section 75 of the Northern Ireland Act 1998 and the Race Relations (Northern Ireland) Order 1997 as amended.

Emergency Services

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many attacks have been recorded on each emergency service in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [78726]

Paul Goggins: The numbers of attacks on emergency services in Northern Ireland in each of the last three calendar years are as follows:

	2003	2004	2005	Total
Northern Ireland Ambulance Service	[1]173	[1]108	71	352
Northern Ireland Fire and Rescue Service	327	327	328	982
Police Service of Northern Ireland	1,169	1,210	2,330	4,709
Total	1,669	1,645	2,729	6,043

[1] Figures for Northern Ireland Ambulance Service attacks differ slightly from those previously supplied as a result of a data cleanse in 2005, which removed duplications, and introduction of new software to record the information.

Energy Prices

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the effect of gas prices on Northern Ireland industry. [78787]

Maria Eagle: As a result of increased prices in world energy markets, gas prices have increased across the UK in recent months.

On 30 January the Under-Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, my hon. Friend the Member for Basildon (Angela E. Smith), announced the introduction of competition for natural gas users in the Phoenix licence area of Greater Belfast and Larne. This will be introduced on a phased basis to all customers by 1 January 2007 and end the monopoly position held by Phoenix. Competition elsewhere has provided consumers with increased choice of supplier, greater transparency, improved customer service and a downward pressure on the price of gas.

In March 2006 my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced a further five year exemption from 2006-11 from the climate change levy for natural gas industrial and commercial users in Northern Ireland. This will improve competitiveness and save £20 million over the five year period. It makes natural gas a more competitive fuel and encourages the uptake of gas which facilitates the roll-out to domestic customers in ten towns outside the greater Belfast and Larne area.

False Alarm Call-outs

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many false alarm call-outs have been registered by the (a) Northern Ireland Ambulance Service, (b) Police Service of Northern Ireland and (c) Northern Ireland Fire Service in each of the last three years, broken down by constituency; how many prosecutions were pursued in each case; and if he will make a statement. [78514]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Ambulance Service (NIAS) dealt with the following numbers of false alarm call-outs in the last two financial years. Figures prior to 2004-05 are not available.

The Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI) has advised that the information requested is not collected in the form requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Under the Communications Act 2003, the maximum penalty for those caught making hoax or malicious calls is a fine not exceeding £5,000 and/or a term of imprisonment not exceeding six months. NIAS and NIFRS have not pursued any prosecutions to date.

Hoax calls and false alarms are serious distraction to the excellent work done by the emergency services and are a waste of their time and resources. However, the most serious aspect is the potential for serious injury or loss of life if the emergency services are not available to respond to genuine emergencies or are delayed in responding because crews are deployed responding to hoax calls or false alarms.

Knives

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people have been (a) fined and (b) imprisoned for illegally selling knives to under 16-year-olds in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years. [78772]

Mr. Hanson: During the period 1994 to 2003, there were no convictions for the offence of 'unlawful sale of a knife to person under 16'. Data beyond 2003 is not yet available. Data are collated on the principal offence rule, thus only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included. The Government are concerned by the issue of knife crime and is attaching high priority to finding ways in which the law can be strengthened and enforced in respect of illegal possession and sale of knives.

Mental Health

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many individuals in Northern Ireland suffering from depression were recorded as attempting suicide in each of the last five years, broken down by health board. [78721]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is not available.

Mini-motorbikes

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what seizure powers are available to (a) the police and (b) local authorities in Northern Ireland in relation to mini-motorbikes; [71406]

(2) what measures are in place to prevent the (a) sale to and (b) use by children aged under 16 years of mini-motorbikes in Northern Ireland. [71407]

David Cairns: Neither police nor local authorities in Northern Ireland currently have seizure powers in relation to mini-motorbikes.

However, we recently consulted on legislative proposals to give the PSNI powers to seize motor vehicles, including mini-motorbikes, being driven on public roads while uninsured and these will be brought into effect in due course.

Furthermore, we will shortly be consulting on a range of measures to improve the environmental quality of local neighbourhoods in Northern Ireland, including proposals to update legislative powers in relation to statutory nuisance, including noise nuisance emanating from vehicles (such as mini-motorbikes in the street).

However, the police have powers under Road Traffic and Vehicles legislation to prosecute users of vehicles (including mini-motorbikes) where they are used on a road without being modified to comply with construction and use, lighting and type approval requirements. Police can also prosecute for breach of the requirements for drivers of such vehicles to be 16 or over, to hold an appropriate driving licence, have minimum third party insurance and have the vehicle insured.

The police can also prosecute where mechanically propelled vehicles (including mini-motorbikes) are used off-road without lawful authority or reasonable excuse.

Pensioner Poverty

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many pensioners are living in poverty in each constituency in Northern Ireland; what estimate he has made of the number of pensioners who do not claim the benefits to which they are entitled; and what steps the Government are taking to increase take-up of benefit by pensioners. [78498]

Mr. Hanson: Figures for the number of pensioners on a single year basis by parliamentary constituency are not statistically valid due to insufficient sample sizes. However it is possible to provide figures on a combined yearly basis.

The number and percentage of pensioners in relative poverty by parliamentary constituency for 2002-03, 2003-04 and 2004-05 combined is detailed in the following table.

Parliamentary constituency	Relative poverty (before housing costs)		Relative poverty (after housing costs)

Households below average income NI 2002-03, 2003-04 and 2004-05 Estimate of unclaimed benefits

Estimate of unclaimed benefits

The most recent information on take-up of benefits was reported in the 'Income Related Benefits—Estimates of Take-Up in 2002-04 Northern Ireland'. The report estimated that between 1,200 and 8,400 pensioners were not claiming Housing Benefit for which they may have been entitled, and between 49,800 and 96,400 were not claiming Minimum Income Guarantee/Pension Credit for which they may have been entitled.

Benefit Uptake

The 2005-06 benefit uptake strategy piloted a number of exercises targeting 3,750 pensioners offering them a comprehensive benefit assessment. Of those targeted by the 2005-06 benefit uptake strategy 10 per cent. made successful claims; resulting in £400,000 paid in arrears and an average weekly increase of £30 for each successful customer amounting to additional yearly benefit spend of £575,000.

The 2006-07 expanded programme is targeting 35,000 clients including older people, people with disabilities and carers. Of the 35,000 clients being targeted 33,000 are older people.

Pensions

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate he has made of (a) the number of people employed in Northern Ireland that have private pension provision and (b) what percentage of them are women. [79974]

Mr. Hanson: Results from the Family Resources Survey 2004-05 show that 355,000 people employed in Northern Ireland have private pension provision of which 42 per cent. are women.

Notes:

1. Figures refer to persons from working age 20 to state pension age who are either full or part-time employed (whether employees or self-employed) and do not include those not working.

2. Estimates are taken from the Family Resources Survey 2004-05 which is the latest year for which data are available.

3. Members who are contributing to a private pension scheme include those who are building up rights within a salary related scheme, those who are currently contributing to a scheme or whose employer makes a contribution on their behalf. Private pension refers to an occupational personal or stakeholder pension scheme.

4. Individuals who contribute to both occupational and personal schemes are counted only once in these estimates.

Planning Policy

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many planning applications for building in rural communities in Northern Ireland are affected by Planning Policy Statement 14 introduced by the Department of Environment Planning Services; and if he will make a statement. [78492]

David Cairns: All planning applications for development in the Northern Ireland countryside outside designated limits for cities, towns, villages and other small settlements and received after 16 March 2006 will be affected by the policy provisions of draft PPS 14.

Of all valid applications received between 16 March and 18 June 2006, it is estimated that draft PPS 14 is a material consideration in approximately 2,500.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what land remains available for housing development in Strangford constituency; and if he will make a statement. [78493]

David Cairns: It is estimated that there are 270.8 hectares of land remaining with potential for housing development within the urban areas of Strangford parliamentary constituency. This could provide approximately 5,282 dwelling units.

However, it should be noted that there is a degree of policy uncertainty in relation to land which is currently the subject of objection through the development plan process; this issue will be publicly debated at the public inquiries convened to hear objections to the relevant draft plans i.e. draft Belfast Metropolitan Area Plan (BMAP) and the Draft Ards and Down Area Plan.

The Ards and Down public inquiry has recently been reconvened and has been scheduled to continue to 21 June 2006 to hear strategic objections to the extent of housing land identified within the draft plan proposals. It will reopen in September to hear site specific objections. No date has yet been set for the public inquiry to consider objections to the draft BMAP.

Police Service of Northern Ireland

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many sealed packages of monies seized by the Police Service of Northern Ireland (PSNI) in the course of operations are currently held by each PSNI District Command Unit finance office; and how many such packages have gone missing in each of the last seven years. [75007]

Paul Goggins: The PSNI do not hold this information on a central record. To obtain this information would require a manual trawl of records across all finance offices and as such could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Policing Board

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the attendance record was for (a) elected and (b) non-elected members of the Policing Board of Northern Ireland at (i) full Policing Board meetings and (ii) Policing Board committee meetings in each of the last three years. [78756]

Paul Goggins: The following tables detail Policing Board members' attendance at Board and Committee meetings and were supplied by the Northern Ireland Policing Board.

1. The total number of Committee meetings that it would have been possible for each Member to attend is shown in brackets.
2. This list excludes sub-committees, working groups, ad hoc groups, briefings etc. This list also does not reflect the attendance of members on committees of which they were not formally members—including as deputies for absent colleagues from the same political grouping.

Prisons

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the (a) male and (b) female prison populations are in Northern Ireland; and what those figures represent as a percentage of total prison capacity. [76445]

Paul Goggins: At 13 June there were 1,409 male and 34 female prisoners in Northern Ireland. These figures represent 107 per cent. and 55 per cent. respectively of the accommodation currently available for each category.

Real IRA

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the terrorist capability of the Real IRA. [79990]

Paul Goggins: The latest IMC report confirmed that the Real IRA continues efforts to recruit and train members and has a continuing aspiration to arm and equip itself. The organisation remains "violent, dangerous and ruthless".

Recruitment Policy

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Equality Commission in Northern Ireland bases its recommendations to employers on whether to include in recruitment advertising the reference that specific groups of people would be particularly welcome to apply on (a) the overall composition of the work force and (b) recent recruitment to the firm concerned. [80238]

Mr. Hanson: The Equality Commission for Northern Ireland refers to the relevant Codes of Practice and Guidance available from the Commission when considering making recommendations to employers on whether to include in recruitment advertising the reference that specific groups of people would be particularly welcome to apply. A recommendation that employers consider the use of such equality statements, is based on an evaluation of work force trends. Such an evaluation would include the work force composition and recruitment flows. Both (a) and (b) would therefore be taken into account.

Road Traffic Accidents

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 11 May 2006, Official Report, column 540W, on road traffic accidents, how many road traffic accidents there were in the years covered for which a police officer was responsible; how much has been paid out in compensation to members of the public for such accidents; what the total cost of repairs to police vehicles was in relation to such accidents; how many officers have been disciplined for such incidents; and what sanctions were imposed. [77204]

Paul Goggins: My response to the hon. Gentleman of 11 May 2006 referred to road traffic collisions for which a police officer was responsible while on duty and covered the calendar years 2003-05. The following table is also based on these parameters and shows how many road traffic collisions there were during 2003-05 for which an on-duty police officer was responsible. None of these collisions resulted in disciplinary action being taken against the police officer involved. The total cost of repairs to police vehicles during the period 2003-05 was £257,634.92.

Calendar year	Number of collisions
2004	[1]141
Total	384

[1] The definitions used for police collisions were revised in 2004 and a third category of collision was added—'Slight Contact'. This has resulted in some incidents being recorded which previously may not have been which accounts for the increase in the number of incidents for 2004 and 2005.

The Police Service of Northern Ireland do not collate or hold figures relating to the amount of compensation paid to members of the public in respect of these collisions.

Roads

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 13 June 2006, Official Report, column 1096W, on roads, when the report of the preliminary studies of environmental, land form and traffic modelling in relation to the Londonderry to Dungiven dualling is expected to be published. [80239]

David Cairns: The acting chief executive of Roads Service (Mr. Geoff Allister) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Geoff Allister, dated 26 June 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question, "pursuant to the Answer of Tuesday 13th June 2006, Official Report, column 1096W, on roads, when the report of the preliminary studies of environmental, land form and traffic modelling in relation to the Londonderry to Dungiven dualling is expected to be published".

I have been asked to reply as these issues fall within my responsibility as Acting Chief Executive of Roads Service.

In Dr McKibbin's reply to your earlier question, he advised that the current study is well advanced and will report later this summer. He further advised that it is not normal practice to make announcements at this stage in a scheme development and that the results would be made public through a public exhibition and consultation that will be undertaken as the next step in the more detailed development of the Londonderry to Dungiven scheme. It is not anticipated that the next stage of the scheme development would be sufficiently progressed to support the exhibition until the first couple of months in 2007.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people were employed in each Divisional Roads Service Office in Northern Ireland in April (a) 2000 and (b) 2006. [76323]

David Cairns: The acting chief executive of Roads Service (Mr. Geoff Allister) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Geoff Allister, dated 16 June 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question regarding how many people were employed in each Divisional Roads Service Office in Northern Ireland in April (a) 2000 and (b) 2006.

As this issue falls within my responsibility as Chief Executive of Roads Service, I have been asked to reply.

The tables attached at Annex 1 detail the number of industrial and non-industrial Roads Service staff employed in each Divisional Roads Service office on 1 April 2000 and 1 April 2006.

Notes:
1. It should be noted that in some instances, the difference in the number of staff in various locations is attributable to general accommodation moves.
2. The reduction in number of industrial staff at a number of offices reflects a major exercise to re-grade certain industrial grades.

School Violence

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many court cases have been pursued by teachers on the grounds of assaults by pupils in each of the last three years, broken down by education and library board area; and how much compensation was paid in total in each year. [78500]

Maria Eagle: I have been advised that the information requested is as follows:

	2003-04		2004-05		2005-06
	Number of cases	Compensation paid (£)	Number of cases	Compensation paid (£)	Number of cases	Compensation paid (£)

[2] Compensation paid in respect of a case brought in 2003-04.
Note:
The table excludes voluntary grammar schools.

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many suspensions for physical attacks on staff there were in each of the last three years for which figures are available in each education board in Northern Ireland. [78735]

Maria Eagle: From the 2002-03 school year, statistics on the reasons for suspension have been gathered annually from each education and library board and relate to the number of individual suspensions not to the number of pupils suspended.

The following table details the number of suspensions[1] for physical attacks on staff, in each education and library board, in the 2002-03 to 2004-05 school years:

Physical attacks on staff

Education and library board	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05
Belfast	75	73	84
Western	99	72	51
North Eastern	91	49	57
South Eastern	64	79	21
Southern	36	47	49
NI total	365	320	262

[1] The count of occasions is based on each incidence of suspension, where an incident is defined as a count from the first day a pupil was suspended until the last day suspended. In previous years, the count of occasions was based on each record of suspension identified by the education and library boards, where in some instances, longer periods of suspension may have had more than one record. This change is due to an improvement in the data collection systems for suspensions in the education and library boards which has enabled better analysis of the data. As a result, the number of occasions pupils were suspended in 2004-05 has decreased from previous years'. However, care should be taken when comparing the number of occasions in 2004-05 with the number of occasions in previous years'.

Sean Kelly

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether he received new security information directly relating to Sean Kelly subsequent to his re-arrest prior to his order to re-release Kelly. [36532]

Paul Goggins: The Secretary of State's decision to grant Sean Kelly temporary release from prison on 27 July 2005 was based on the material from which he based his original decision and because he believed that the IRA statement the next day, would create a new situation in which the context of Kelly's license suspension decision had changed and no longer supported the conclusion that Kelly would be a danger to others if at liberty.

Sentences (Remissions)

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will review the appropriateness of the policy of 50 per cent. remission of sentences in Northern Ireland, with particular reference to those convicted of serious (a) violent and (b) sexual attacks. [79459]

Mr. Hanson: Last year the Northern Ireland Office undertook a public consultation on the Review of the Sentencing Framework in Northern Ireland. Consultees were asked to consider a range of sentencing disposals, including indeterminate and extended public protection sentences. I will shortly be examining policy options considered in the Review and the responses to the consultation.

Special Needs Children

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many children in Northern Ireland with special needs are awaiting a statement. [78543]

Maria Eagle: The Code of Practice on the Identification and Assessment of Special Educational Needs sets out a 5-stage approach to the process. At Stage 4 the Education and Library Board considers the need for a statutory assessment, following a request from the parents, the school or other agencies. If the Board considers that such an assessment is necessary, the parents will be notified and the assessment will be undertaken and if a statement of Special Educational Needs is considered appropriate, the Board has 18 weeks, subject to certain exceptions, to issue a draft statement.

The following table shows the total number of children at Stage 4 of the Code of Practice, i.e. the number of children whose formal assessment of Special Educational Needs has been completed and for whom it is proposed to issue a statement of special educational needs, but the statement has not yet been issued.

Education and Library Board	Number of children at stage 4
Belfast	33
North Eastern	15
South Eastern	81
Southern	134
Western	30

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many children in Northern Ireland require places for September in Special Needs Schools; and how many places are available. [78558]

Maria Eagle: The following table shows the total number of children who at present require a place in a Special School in September 2006 in Northern Ireland (by Education and Library Board area) and the total number of places available in Special Schools.

The apparent number of vacant places is based on maximum school enrolment figures set some years ago, and is not a meaningful reflection of the current capacity of Special Schools. In recent years the complexity of the needs of children in Special Schools has increased and the ratio of teachers to pupils has decreased accordingly in order to meet this need.

Education and Library Board	Number of children requiring place in Special School (September 2006)	Number of Special School places available
Belfast[1]	166	265
North Eastern	75	159
South Eastern	80	138
Southern[2]	26	26
Western	70	118

[1] The Belfast Education and Library Board have more children placed in Special Schools than other Boards. In addition they have significant proportions of children transferring between Special Schools at Year 4 and attending Special Schools for Year 1 placements.

[2] The Southern Education and Library Board, unlike the other Boards, do not have Moderate Learning Difficulty (MLD) Special Schools and therefore the figures relate only to pupils requiring a place in a school for children with severe learning difficulties.

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total cost was of staff surveys conducted by each department in Northern Ireland, including the Northern Ireland Office, in each of the last three years. [77089]

Teacher Training

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps teacher training colleges in Northern Ireland have taken to develop sharing in teacher education as set out in the Policy and Strategic Framework for Good Relations: A Shared Future. [78977]

Maria Eagle: Since 2005, the Northern Ireland University Colleges have jointly delivered, an "Inter-College Programme for Diversity and Mutual Understanding", as an essential aspect of study for all student teachers. The programme is designed and organised by the college's joint liaison group comprised of members of academic staff and students who work alongside the Nation Union of Students—Union of Students of Ireland (NUS-USI) to deal with issued such as racism, sectarianism and development of positive community relations.

Trout Fisheries

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether there have been any recent reported breakouts of bacterial kidney disease in trout fisheries in the Province; and if he will make a statement. [80112]

David Cairns: There has never been a reported outbreak of bacterial kidney disease in trout fisheries in Northern Ireland.

Valuation and Lands Agency

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cameras the Valuation and Lands Agency in Northern Ireland owns; and how many it has purchased in each of the last five years. [78231]

Mr. Hanson: At 21 June 2006 the Agency owns 207 cameras.

The numbers of cameras purchased over the last five years are as follows:

April to March each year.	Number
2001-02	33
2002-03	35
2003-04	16
2004-05	56
2005-06	58

The Valuation and Lands Agency photographs properties, with the consent of the owner, during inspections for rating purposes, compensation and assets valuation.

The Agency has more than 200 staff engaged in field inspections for these purposes.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Valuation and Lands Agency in Northern Ireland has purchased (a) software and (b) consultancy services from CDC Ltd. in the last five years. [78326]

Mr. Hanson: Within the last five years:

(a) The Valuation and Lands Agency purchased "Spatialest" Computer Assisted Mass Appraisal (CAMA) software from CDC.

(b) The Valuation and Lands Agency also purchased consultancy services from CDC to facilitate the setup and use of this software.

Vehicle Tests

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average waiting time for a vehicle test was (a) in each test centre and (b) in Northern Ireland in the last period for which figures are available. [79297]

David Cairns: The average waiting time for a vehicle test at each test centre and the Northern Ireland average for the week ending 17 June 2006 is set out in the table.

Centre	Average waiting time (days)
Armagh	58
Ballymena	33

Waste Recycling

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what percentage of waste from Government Departments in Northern Ireland was recycled in the last period for which figures are available. [79537]

David Cairns: Data have not been collected in this form. However, waste management action plans have now been prepared for all 11 NICS Departments in accordance with a requirement of the recently published "Waste Management Strategy for Northern Ireland". Copies of these documents may be found in the Library.

The first round of monitoring of Departments' performance against their plans will take place at the end of the first year.

Wind Turbines (Acute Hospitals)

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will estimate the annual total effect on costs if each of Northern Ireland's acute hospitals were to construct a wind turbine in their grounds similar to that operated by Antrim Hospital. [79457]

Paul Goggins: If wind turbines were to be successfully installed at the nine acute hospital sites identified in "Developing Better Services" the estimated total net reduction in payments to the electricity supply company would be £495,000 at current price levels.

HEALTH

Adverse Drug Reactions

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to reduce the number of people admitted to hospital with adverse drug reactions. [74156]

Andy Burnham: The most recent estimate of the burden of adverse drug reactions (ADRs) in the United Kingdom (UK) comes from a study published in the British Medical Journal in July 2004. The study conducted in two large hospitals in Merseyside, suggested that ADRs account for one in 16 hospital admissions. This is a similar estimate to a number of studies worldwide, including figures from the United States of America.

This study highlights the importance of effective systems for monitoring and responding to issues relating to the safety of medicines, a process called pharmacovigilance. This study, which was funded by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA), underlines their commitment to improving the evidence base for pharmacovigilance in the UK.

As part of this commitment, the MHRA is working to strengthen the yellow card scheme for reporting suspected ADRs and has widened access to the scheme to enable patients to report ADRs directly.

This study also highlights the vital importance of safety information which meets the needs of prescribers and patients. The MHRA committee on safety of medicines publication "Always read the leaflet" proposed actions to improve risk communication, including development of a leaflet for patients published by the MHRA. The commission on human medicines has established a working group to examine ways to improve the provision of safety information accompanying medicines.

Changes to medicines legislation introduced in 2005 were also designed to enhance the capability of regulation to reduce the burden of adverse drug reaction, for example in the requirement on marketing authorisation holders to develop risk management plans for newly licensed medicines.

Alcohol Treatment Services

Lynda Waltho: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to increase (a) access to and (b) capacity of specialist alcohol treatment services; and what plans she has (i) to respond to and (ii) to implement recommendations arising out of the departmental alcohol needs assessment research project. [77518]

Caroline Flint: Commissioning of specialist alcohol treatment services is the responsibility of primary care trusts (PCTs). The Department has issued to PCTs 'Alcohol Misuse Interventions: Guidance on Developing a Local Programme of Improvement'. It provides practical steps on improving interventions and services for problem drinkers based on local need. It will be supported by the soon to be published 'Models of Care for Alcohol Misuse' (MoCAM), which will provide commissioners with a framework against which to commission effective, quality services. MoCAM is informed by an extensive effectiveness review, which will be published as a companion document.

Alternative Medicine

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the use of alternative medicine in the NHS. [79469]

Caroline Flint: There are no centrally held records on the general use of complementary and alternative medicines within the national health service. The Government considers that decision making on individual clinical interventions, using either complementary or alternative medicines or more orthodox medicines, is a matter for local NHS service providers and practitioners. However, when making any clinical decisions, clinicians are expected to consider the safety and effectiveness of treatments whether complementary, alternative or orthodox medicines.

Audiology

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to reform the public-private partnership for the provision of digital hearing aids; and if she will make a statement. [78640]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The existing national framework agreement for the provision of adult hearing services to the national health service is operational until September 2006. Since October 2003, there have been over 52,000 patient journeys provided to the NHS through this agreement. A separate procurement is currently being undertaken by the commercial directorate of the Department to support improvements to diagnostic capacity in the NHS. This procurement includes the potential for approximately 42,000 patient journeys per annum to be provided to the NHS for adult hearing services.

The guidance recently published by the Department around implementing the 18-week patient pathway, whilst not including direct access adult hearing services, made reference to the development of a national action plan. The Department is considering a number of options to improve services and to provide sustainable solutions.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the waiting time is for the fitting of digital hearing aids in the Greater Peterborough Primary Care Partnership area; and if she will make a statement. [80462]

Andy Burnham: The information requested in not collected centrally.

Bowel Cancer

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total cost is of the research being conducted by York Health Economics Consortium and the School of Health and Related Research at Sheffield University into the costs and benefits of current services for bowel cancer. [80007]

Andy Burnham: The cost of the research project to which the hon. Member refers is £192,150.

Cancer Drugs

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information cancer networks have been asked to submit to her Department as part of the follow-up to the report by the National Cancer Director on variations in the usage of cancer drugs approved by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence; and when she expects to publish the results of the follow-up. [80061]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As in the first review, each cancer network was provided with centrally held information on its usage of the 16 National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) appraised cancer drugs and four cancer drugs which have not been appraised by NICE. The information covered the period from January to June 2005.

Each network was asked whether they considered the information to be a reasonable estimate of usage. Where networks provided revised figures, these have been used in the report.

The follow-up report is expected to be published shortly.

Cancer Nurses

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of specialist cancer nurses working in the NHS in each of the last five years; and what steps she is taking to increase this number. [80060]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Cancer nurses were not separately identified in the census from the rest of the nursing work force.

Work force planning is the responsibility of local national health service employers and strategic health authorities, who must ensure that they have sufficient staff, with the right skills to meet local service needs.

Capital Investment

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to encourage capital investment by NHS organisations. [78017]

Andy Burnham: The Department's capital investment plans are set out in chapter four of the Departmental Report 2006 published in May of this year. This states that the public capital resources available to the national health service will increase by a further £950 million in 2006-07, a real terms increase of 21 per cent., and outlines the priorities for this funding during 2006-07. As in previous years, there will also be further investment through the private finance initiative and NHS local improvement finance trust, the public-private partnership vehicle for transforming primary care premises.

Child Sexual Abuse

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what services for children who have been sexually abused are funded by her Department; and what mechanisms are in place to provide liaison between services funded by her Department and those provided by other funding streams. [78215]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Specialist services including treatment for sexually transmitted infections, termination of pregnancy and mental health services are available for those children who need them as a result of sexual abuse. For children with less severe mental health problems, it is more appropriate for universal services to provide the psychological support they need than for them to be referred to specialist child and adolescent mental health services.

It is important that child and adolescent mental health services (CAMHS) are developed in a way that is responsive to the needs of the populations they serve. The CAMHS standard of the children's national service framework (NSF) sets out the requirement for an assessment of the needs of particular groups of children in the locality who are vulnerable or at risk. The NSF also states the commissioners and services should be able to demonstrate multi-agency partnership working in the following areas: the provision of services to children and young people who may or may not have been harmed, as set out in "Working Together to Safeguard Children"; contributing to the assessment of complex child abuse cases; the assessment and provision of post-abuse therapeutic services; and services for looked-after and adopted children.

The Department has been working closely with the Home Office to develop sexual assault referral centres (SARCs). A SARC is a one-stop location where victims of rape and sexual assault can receive medical care and counselling, and have the opportunity to report to the police and undergo a forensic examination. The joint Department of Health and Home Office National Service Guidelines for Developing Sexual Assault Referral Centres (SARCs) was published in October 2005.

Since 2003, £1.27 million from the Home Office's Victims Fund has been spent on new and existing SARCs. The Department has an important role in allocating these resources as departmental officials are on the committee that make grant assessments. SARCs currently operate in 14 locations in England and Wales and there are six more due to open in the forthcoming year.

The Department and the Home Office are supporting the development of appropriate services for children within existing or new SARCs. St. Mary's SARC in Manchester has established a service for children. In London, Project Amethyst was piloted in 2005-06 jointly by local police and health to provide services for children in association with the three London SARCs (the Havens in Camberwell, Whitechapel and Paddington). A number of the new SARCs scheduled to open will be providing services for children.

Children's Hospices

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to meet the Association of Children's Hospices to commence formal discussions on a sustainable long-term funding arrangement for delivery of palliative care to children and respite to their families; and if she will make a statement. [78603]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Departmental officials have already held a preliminary meeting with the Association of Children's Hospices and will have further discussions with them and other stakeholders about the forthcoming review of children's hospice services and their long-term funding.

Chiropody/Podiatry Treatment

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time was in Colchester primary care trust (PCT) for chiropody/podiatry treatment in the past 12 months; what the average waiting time for such treatment was in other primary care trusts of equivalent size, demographic character and spending patterns; whether all the funding allocated by Colchester PCT for employing clinical staff in chiropody/podiatry in that period was used; whether there are fewer clinical staff applying for jobs in chiropody/podiatry than vacant posts in that area; and if she will make a statement. [78944]

Andy Burnham: This information is not held centrally by the Department. Primary care trusts are responsible for assessing the needs of their local community. They have the resources to commission services, and to identify the number of professional and non-professional staff they need to deliver those services. This process provides the means for addressing local needs within the health community, including the provision of chiropody and podiatry services.

Colchester General Hospital

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether there is a requirement for the costs incurred by the private sector partner in preparing the abandoned private finance initiative expansion at Colchester General Hospital to be repaid to the partner; what estimate she has made of the costs; and if she will make a statement; [79853]

(2) what estimate she has made of the costs incurred by (a) Essex Rivers Healthcare Trust and (b) the national health service centrally in preparing the abandoned private finance initiative expansion at Colchester General Hospital; and if she will make a statement. [79854]

Andy Burnham: The Government's policy is that whenever a procuring authority such as Essex Rivers Healthcare Trust abandons a viable, affordable project, reasonable compensation should be paid for costs incurred by bidders.

To date, no discussions have been held with either the trust or their private sector partner to determine if the Government's policy applies to the circumstances under which this project was abandoned nor of the likely costs.

Community Hospitals

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much of the £100 million capital investment to build, rebuild or refurbish at least 50 community hospitals identified by her Department has been earmarked for new projects; how much has been spent; and if she will make a statement; [78989]

(2) how many new community hospitals have been built in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [78993]

Andy Burnham: Configuration of local service provision facilities, including the building of new community hospitals, is a matter for primary care trusts (PCTs). Therefore, the Department has not historically monitored the number of new community hospitals that have been built and it is not possible to provide the data requested in relation to this.

As confirmed in the White Paper "Our health, our care, our say: a new direction for community services", the Government fully intends to fulfil its manifesto commitment to develop a new generation of modern national health service community hospitals over the next five years.

The Department will shortly be publishing further guidance, which will outline the next steps that PCTs and strategic health authorities need to take to access central capital to invest in community hospitals and services. Capital will be available but has not currently been earmarked for specific projects.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department plans to assess the effect on the number of community hospitals of primary care trust deficits; and if she will make a statement. [78990]

Andy Burnham: There are no plans to assess the effects of primary care trust (PCT) deficits on the provision of services in community hospitals. Commissioning decisions are of course for local determination. However, the White Paper "Our health, our care, our say" makes it clear that community facilities, including community hospitals, should not be lost in response to short-term budgetary pressures in PCTs that are not related to the viability of the community facility itself. Therefore, no community hospitals should be closed solely as a result of national health service PCT budget deficits.

A letter was sent to strategic health authorities (SHAs) on 16 February, which concerned the commitment relating to community hospitals, made in paragraphs 6.42 and 6.43 of the aforementioned White Paper. This letter provided instruction on how SHAs should go about ensuring and testing that PCTs comply with the commitment made. A copy of this letter is available in the Library.

Continuing NHS Health Care

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what arrangements health authorities are required to put in place for the provision of independent advice for NHS patients' consideration of signing up for continuing care; [79270]

(2) what estimate she has made of the likely number of re-assessments of entitlement to free continuing care. [79272]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Following a rigorous procurement exercise, the Department has recently awarded contracts to three organisations who will deliver a new and improved independent complaints advocacy service (ICAS) from 1 April 2006 across England. The ICAS provides an advocacy for all national health service services, including NHS continuing care. The Carers Federation, South East Advocacy Projects and POhWER have been delivering ICAS under contract to the Department since 1 September 2003, bringing a wealth of experience and expertise in general and specialist advocacy service delivery.

The consultation on an improved national framework for continuing care was launched on 19 June 2006. We cannot anticipate what the new framework will be until the consultation is completed, and we have considered all responses.

Correspondence

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what priority is given to answering letters from hon. Members by the chief executive of NHS Direct; [80000]

(2) what the average time taken by the chief executive of NHS Direct to respond to correspondence was in the last period for which figures are available; [80001]

(3) how many letters the chief executive of NHS Direct has received from hon. Members on the issue of the proposed closure of NHS Direct centres. [80002]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Chief Executive of NHS Direct endeavours to answer all correspondence promptly, whilst ensuring that information is accurate before the response is sent. All correspondence from hon. Members is treated as a high priority.

Figures for the average response time are not collected, but correspondence requiring a letter in response is generally dealt with in approximately seven working days. In more complex cases, responses may take longer than this.

There has been an increase in correspondence since the beginning of the consultation period and, as a result, it has taken longer than usual to respond. In addition, the chief executive has been out of the office more than usual, visiting sites and meeting staff potentially affected by the consultation proposals.

A number of contacts from hon. Members have been received in relation to the consultation, addressed to various senior managers. The chief executive has received six letters or emails directly relating to the consultation. In addition, there have been two letters addressed to the Chair and one further to a senior manager.

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Reigate of 11 May 2006 on her decision to overrule the recommendations of the 'Better Health Care Closer to Home' report; and whether her reply will take into account the decision to allow a judicial review of her decision. [80289]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A reply to this letter was sent on 22 June 2006. The Department has received details and is currently considering the situation.

Criminal Offences

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the criminal offences created in legislation sponsored by her Department since April 2005, broken down by Act. [76912]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No criminal offences have been created in primary legislation sponsored by the Department since April 2005.

Dentistry

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the Government's position is on the recommendation of the European medical devices expert group that dental patients be given a copy of the Statement of Conformity; and if she will make a statement. [79794]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Clwyd, West (Mr. Jones) on 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1799W.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what opportunities exist for people to work beyond retirement age in her Department. [69216]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department's normal retirement age for all employees is 60. However, employees below the senior civil service level are entitled to work to age 65 if they wish. Any request to work beyond age 65 would be considered on a case-by-case basis. Members of the senior civil service may be retained beyond age 60 if it is considered to be in the public interest and the Department is satisfied about the fitness and efficiency of the individual to carry out his or her duties.

Drug Tariffs

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what process her Department used to determine the proposed 15 per cent. price decrease for chemical reagents in the Drug Tariff Part IX consultation; and what steps she is taking to ensure transparency in the consultation. [80428]

Andy Burnham: The Department has undertaken an analysis of the reimbursement prices on the drug tariff for chemical reagents and as a result, has concluded that the national health service and the taxpayer may not be obtaining value-for-money at the current reimbursement levels. Further details are available in the consultation document 'Arrangements for the provision of dressings and chemical reagents to primary care: A consultation' which is available on the Department's website at: www.dh.gov.uk/Consultations/ClosedConsultations/fs/en. A copy has been placed in the Library.

Where specific information has been required from manufacturers as part of the consultation, the Department has provided clear guidelines as to what was required. The Department has held meetings with manufacturers and their representative trade body, with NHS representatives and with patient groups. In addition, a meeting was hosted to brief hon. Members on 21 June 2006.

Flag Flying

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) on how many days since May 1997 the St. George's flag has been flown from her Department's buildings; [77730]

(2) what her Department's policy is on flying the (a) St. George's flag and (b) EU flag from departmental buildings; [77731]

(3) if she will ensure that the Union Flag is flown from her Department's buildings on every day the offices are open. [77732]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport issues guidance for flying flags on Government buildings of which the Department adheres to. This includes flying the St. George's flag and the European flag on buildings with two or more flagpoles. These rules area approved by the Queen on advice from that department.

The Department has only one flagpole and therefore does not fly the St. George's flag or the European flag. There are no plans at present to change the number of days flags can be flown from Government buildings.

Foreign Travel

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on foreign travel by her Department in each of the last eight years. [78061]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

General Practitioners

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many GPs there were in Coventry, South constituency (a) in 1997 and (b) on the latest date for which figures are available. [79470]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is not available in the format requested. The following table shows the number of general practitioners (GPs) within the area covered by the current West Midlands South strategic health authority in each year since 1997, and within Coventry teaching primary care trust (PCT) each year since 2001, the earliest date for which figures are available.

Health Treatment Centres

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of her Department's budget was spent on the establishment of independent sector treatment centres in each year since 1997; what proportion of the budget for the establishment of such centres was spent on the employment of management consultants in each year; and what proportion of each budget she expects to be spent in each category in 2006-07. [61717]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) programme was launched in December 2002 and figures for the establishment of ISTCs are not available prior to 2003. The percentage of the Department's budget that was spent on the procurement of ISTCs was 0.03 per cent. in 2003-04; 0.05 per cent. in 2004-05; 0.04 per cent. in 2005-06 and it is estimated to be 0.05 per cent. for 2006-07. Much of the work of this programme is done through consulting staff so the proportion of these costs estimated to have been spent on management consultants is 84.6 per cent., 67.4 per cent., 59.3 and 60 per cent., respectively.

Illegal Immigrants

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many illegal immigrants have been discovered to be employed by her Department in each year since 2001; in what capacities they were employed; how many were discovered as part of a criminal investigation; and what the nature of the charges brought against them were. [73963]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No illegal immigrants have been discovered to be employed by the Department in the period for which information is requested.

Independent Sector Treatment Centres

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria she uses to determine the allocation of resources to independent sector treatment; and what account she takes of the distance between facilities, whether NHS or not, providing similar services. [79279]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for local national health service commissioners to determine the volume of healthcare they purchase from the independent sector (IS) in line with local priorities.

The Department conducted national capacity planning exercises through strategic health authorities (SHAs) in 2002 and 2004. Through these exercises SHAs estimated the additional capacity in elective treatment and diagnostics required to meet key public service agreement waiting times targets, and identified how much of this capacity would need to be sourced from IS providers.

The outcomes of capacity planning provided the basis for taking forward national procurements of elective and diagnostics capacity from the IS. The procurement process is designed to allow the independent sector to work in partnership with local healthcare economies to provide solutions which meet local requirements and work effectively alongside NHS provided services.

Mental Health

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total expenditure was on mental health promotion in each year since 1997-98. [75437]

Ms Rosie Winterton: We provide support to implementing mental health promotion through our funding of the National Institute for Mental Health in England (NIMHE), part of the care services improvement partnership. Most of NIMHE's national programme priorities will not have had mental health promotion as a distinct priority, but will have included this as an integral element. Information on the exact proportion of spending on mental health promotion is therefore not known.

The table shows NIMHE's total allocations for each year since 2002-03, when it was established. Information on funding which could have been used for mental health promotion prior to this date is not available. NIMHE's eight regional development centres (RDCs) are allocated funding each year to finance all mental health workstreams in their own areas, and RDCs make their own spending decisions, including choosing the proportion of their budgets which are spent on mental health promotion.

Total departmental funding for NIMHE, by financial year, since 2002-03

	Funding (£000)
2002-03	8,563
2003-04	12,007
2004-05	22,903

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what physical protection is routinely offered to mental health professionals in the course of their work; [76760]

(2) how many attacks have been made on people who work with mental health patients in each of the last 10 years for which records are available. [76777]

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps she is taking to improve the safety of patients and staff on mental health wards; [77228]

(2) how many (a) members of staff, (b) patients and (c) visitors have suffered (i) verbal and (ii) physical assaults on mental health wards in each of the last 10 years. [77229]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The NHS Security Management Service has developed a range of both proactive and reactive initiatives to tackle violence and aggression against staff, including those who work in the mental health setting.

A network of local specialists has been put in place, with the professional skills to provide advice on the protection of national health service staff, supported nationally by the NHS Security Management Service. All health bodies, including mental health trusts, are required to nominate a local security management specialist to provide localised, specialist skills. A specific accreditation course has been developed for those local security management specialists based in mental health trusts and the first course took place in April 2006.

An expert group has also developed a national syllabus for the management of violence training in mental health and learning disability settings. The aim is to equip staff with the necessary skills to be able to identify and de-escalate potentially violent situations from occurring in the first place. The NHS Security Management Service has worked closely with stakeholders such as the Department, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence and the National Institute of Mental Health England to develop this syllabus.

The information requested was not collected in the format requested prior to 2004-05. However, the NHS Security Management Service has collected data on the number of physical assaults on NHS staff in England for the period 2004-05. The figure for assaults in mental health and learning disability environments was 43,097.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding has been provided by her Department for research into the (a) prevention, (b) treatment and (c) cure of dementia in each of the last three years; whether she has made an assessment of the research funding provided by other EU countries; and if her Department will increase the priority for those purposes it gives to such research. [77632]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The main agency through which the Government supports medical and clinical research is the Medical Research Council (MRC). The MRC is an independent body funded by the Department of Trade and Industry via the Office of Science and Innovation. Recent levels of MRC expenditure on research into dementia[1] have been as follows:

[1] Including Alzheimer's disease, general dementia. AIDS-related dementia, Pick's disease and Huntingtons.

2002-03	6.6
2004-05	not yet available

The Department funds research to support policy and to provide the evidence needed to underpin quality improvement and service development in the national health service. National research programme expenditure on projects related to Alzheimer's disease and other dementia has been:

	£ million
2002-03	1.6
2003-04	1.1

The Department has not made international comparisons of research spend in this area.

The Department has set up and is investing £20 million in a national research network on dementias and neurodegenerative disease. The network will bring together NHS staff and resources to expand the number and range of clinical trials of medical treatments for neurodegenerative diseases. In addition, the funders' forum for research on ageing and older people will shortly begin the process of mapping the profile of ageing-related research and identify gaps. This work will help the Department, and other funders, to decide on research priorities.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department collects data on the regional and socio-demographic profile of people with dementia; whether she has made a comparison of the prevalence of dementia in the UK with other EU countries; what plans her Department has for monitoring changes in the number of people with dementia; and if her Department will (a) estimate the costs to the NHS of dementia and (b) assess the economic effect on those affected by dementia and their carers. [77633]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Data on the regional and socio-demographic profile of people with dementia is not collected centrally and the Department has not compared prevalence of dementia in the United Kingdom with other European Union countries.

The Department is currently looking into the process of collecting information on older people with mental health needs, including people with dementia, and the services which support them.

NHS employers have announced changes to the new general medical services contract for 2006-07. New indicators are being introduced to the quality and outcomes framework for 2006-07 and include the introduction of a disease register of patients diagnosed with dementia.

The Department has not made an estimate of the costs to the national health service of dementia and an assessment of the economic effect on those affected by dementia and on their carers.

Ministerial Visits

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many visits to NHS hospitals (a) she and (b) each of her Ministers made between 4 April and 13 June; and which hospital was visited in each case. [78644]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 19 June 2006]: Between 4 April and 13 June 2006 the Secretary of State for Health visited the following national health service hospitals:

4 April 2006—Broadgreen Hospital, Liverpool;

4 April 2006—Liverpool Royal Infirmary, Liverpool;

4 April 2006—North Staffordshire Royal Infirmary, Stoke on Trent;

1 June 2006—Lewisham University Hospital, London; and

2 June 2006—The Whittington Hospital, London.

The Minister of State with responsibility for reform visited Chase Farm Hospital, London on 8 May 2006.

The Minister of State with responsibility for delivery and quality visited the following hospitals:

31 May 2006—The Princess Royal Hospital, Orpington;

1 June 2006—Royal Berkshire Hospital, Reading;

1 June 2006—Salisbury Hospital, Salisbury; and

1 June 2006—Yeovil District Hospital, Yeovil.

The Minister of State with responsibility for health services visited the University College Hospital, London on 11 May 2006.

The Minister of State with responsibility for public health visited the Crawley Hospital, Crawley on 11 April 2006.

Models of Care for Alcohol Misusers Framework

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects to publish the Models of Care for Alcohol Misusers framework (MoCAM); what the reasons are for the delay in publication; and when she expects to publish the evidence review of effectiveness of treatment expected to inform the MoCAM framework. [79261]

Caroline Flint: The delay in publication has occurred because of some recent changes made to the document to ensure that it does not contradict other key commissioning guidance, including guidance on "Models of Care for Drug Misusers", which has recently been reviewed.

A comprehensive review of the evidence base for the effectiveness of alcohol treatment interventions will be published shortly, alongside guidance on "Models of Care for Alcohol Misusers" which will lay out how best to combine treatment approaches into an effective local alcohol treatment system.

National Beds Inquiry

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether her Department is following the care closer to home scenario outlined in the conclusions of the national beds inquiry of 2000. [79039]

Andy Burnham: "Our Health Our Care Our Say: a future direction for community services" signalled our intention to carry out a project in conjunction with the speciality associations and Royal Colleges to look at a range of care pathways and service models that deliver care that is more convenient for patients in settings that are more accessible to them. The care closer to home demonstration project is now under way and it is considering intermediate care, step down facilities and greater use of community-based services as per the suggestions in the national beds inquiry.

National Radiotherapy Advisory Group

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many times the National Radiotherapy Advisory Group has met; when the next meeting will be; what the group's terms of reference are; when the group will report; and if she will make a statement. [80062]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The national radiotherapy advisory group (NRAG) has met five times and will meet again in the autumn. We expect NRAG to report later this year.

The terms of reference are as follows:

to advise on the development and delivery of radiotherapy services, including relevant elements of the NHS Cancer Plan and the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidance to advise on radiotherapy policy programmes including:

demand and capacity for radiotherapy;

streamlining service delivery;

future developments;

service quality;

equipment requirements; and training and work force requirements.

NHS Connecting for Health Computer System

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will commission an independent review of technical and financial matters related to the NHS Connecting for Health computer system. [76529]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the right hon. Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) on 24 May 2006, Official Report, column 1880W.

NHS Direct

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on (1) what basis redundancies and site closures relating to NHS Direct were made; and what effects on costs these had; [80552]

(2) how many (a) redundancies and (b) site closures have been made in relation to NHS Direct. [80553]

Ms Rosie Winterton: NHS Direct began a 12-week consultation period with staff and staff-side representatives on 16 May 2006 on proposals to ensure that its organisational structure, estates and staffing are fit for purpose to meet future developments and demand. The consultation period is due to end on 16 August 2006. The outcomes of the consultation will be made public thereafter.

The NHS Direct consultation document proposes that 12 sites will close over the next 18 months. Implementation of the proposals will be dependent on a number of factors but the current estimate is that a maximum of 573 posts could be at risk of redundancy. However, these proposals are subject to the outcome of the consultation. A more precise estimate of the costs saved will be made on completion of the consultation.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many calls were made to NHS Direct in each year since it was launched; and how many calls NHS Direct is forecast to receive in each of the next two years. [80554]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to my hon. Friend the Member for Warrington, North (Helen Jones) on 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1574W.

NHS Direct is a multi channel service which receives over 500,000 calls per month, as well as over 1,500,000 contacts per month through its web and digital television channels.

Information on calls forecast is not centrally held. The information may be available from the Chairman of NHS Direct special health authority.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many telephone advisers were employed by NHS Direct in each year since it was set up; and how many telephone advisers will be employed in each of the next two years. [80556]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information on this is not centrally held. The information may be available from the chairman of NHS Direct special health authority.

NHS Information Technology

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her Answer of 16 May 2006, Official Report, column 944W, on the NHS IT programme, whether the estimate of the cost of the contract over 10 years remains £6.2 billion. [76391]

Caroline Flint: The value of contracts let for the original core components of the programme amounts to £6.2 billion over 10 years. This figure is not an estimate.

NHS IT Programme

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she was first informed that the central cost of the NHS IT programme was likely to be around £9 billion. [79676]

Caroline Flint: The National Audit Office have made clear in their report published on 16 June 2006 that the contracted costs of the national programme for information technology over 10 years is £6.2 billion, and that this cost has not increased since the contracts were let in 2003 and 2004. The report also refers to central expenditure of £1.9 billion over 10 years. That will not just be spent on running the national programme, but also covers the functions previously undertaken by the NHS Information Authority, which was closed in 2005, and, in its last year, cost £219 million. It is clear therefore that the £1.9 billion is not additional funding but is in fact a reduction on what the central management of national health service information technology services cost before the national programme.

NHS Prescriptions

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS prescriptions were issued in each year since 1997. [74067]

Andy Burnham: Figures are not available on the number of national health service prescriptions issued. Figures are, however, available on the number of prescriptions dispensed in the community in England, which is shown in the table.

	Prescriptions items
1997	500,153,113
1998	513,209,036
1999	529,770,174
2000	551,842,948
2001	587,049,035
2002	617,021,718
2003	649,702,677
2004	686,138,915
2005	720,283,164

NHS Service Contracts

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which US companies have been awarded contracts for the delivery of NHS services; and what the value was of such contracts. [57560]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department itself has awarded no contracts to United States companies for the delivery of national health service services and does not collect information about contracts which are agreed locally between primary care trusts and providers.

NHS Treatment (Funding)

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps an NHS clinician can take if funding for a treatment they deem to be most clinically appropriate is refused by their primary care trust; [78313]

(2) whether a primary care trust may refuse funding for a treatment that has been deemed most clinically appropriate by an NHS clinician. [78314]

Andy Burnham: The responsibility for local health services is for primary care trusts (PCTs) who are responsible for the planning and development of services to meet the needs of their local populations. Where no guidance or directions have been issued to PCTs that are relevant to a treatment, PCTs should make their decision on funding based on their own assessment of the relevant factors and circumstances of the case. If a clinician is unhappy with the decision of a PCT they should request a full explanation of the rationale behind the decision in the first instance, and the PCT should seek to engage the clinician in dialogue with regard to treatment options.

Nuffield Speech and Language Unit

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will visit the Nuffield Speech and Language Unit. [65295]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Due to diary commitments and parliamentary business, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health is regrettably unable to visit the Nuffield speech and language unit in the foreseeable future.

Nurses

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many incidents of professional misconduct were (a) reported and (b) upheld against nursing staff trained and qualified outside the United Kingdom in each year since 1997. [79638]

Andy Burnham: Incidences of professional misconduct are reported to the Nursing and Midwifery Council, the relevant statutory independent regulator who deals with them under its fitness to practise procedures. Queries regarding this should be made directly to the Chief Executive at the Nursing and Midwifery Council, 23 Portland Place, London, W1B 1PZ, telephone number: 0207 637 7181.

Older People's Care

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment the Government have made of the extent to which continuity of care for older people encompasses the choice to live (a) at home and (b) in a care home. [70124]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Government's policy is to support people to remain in their own homes, where it is safe to do so and when it accords with their wishes and assessed needs.

Most people want to live in their own home for as long as possible. To enable them to do so, the Government have made substantial investment in care settings such as domiciliary care and extra care housing. Domiciliary care services can help people to remain in control of their own lives. They need to be delivered in ways that reflect individual needs and wishes and with respect for individuals, their homes and preferred lifestyles.

The Government believe that care homes are one of a range of options that should be available for supporting people with long-term care needs. We recognise that there will always be people who need or want the type of care that only care homes can provide. For them, care in a care home will be best suited to their needs and wishes and care homes offer them a positive choice. However, we believe that no one should be admitted into a care home until all other options have been explored and discussed with the service user, their carers and relatives.

Operations (Private Sector)

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what proportion of the Department's budget has been allocated to the private sector for the performance of routine operations for NHS patients in each year since 1997; [61719]

(2) what proportion of the Department's total budget has been (a) spent on private sector contracts in each year since 1997 and (b) allocated to private sector contracts in 2006-07. [61720]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department's expenditure on centrally procured independent sector treatment centre providers, the General Supplementary Contract and the national contract for magnetic resonance imaging scans is shown in the table. Locally procured expenditure is not available.

	Centrally procured independent sector (£ million)	Proportion as a percentage of total net NHS expenditure

2004-05	80.3	0.12

Osteoporosis

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the Department's strategy is for encouraging general practitioners to look for early diagnosis of osteoporosis. [77809]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The prevention, treatment, care and support of those at risk of osteoporosis are important components in the delivery of the falls standard of the national service framework (NSF) for older people. The standard requires local health services to establish appropriate interventions and advice to prevent osteoporotic fractures.

The Department has asked the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to develop clinical guidelines and undertake technology appraisals of new treatments to build on and improve the framework of services set out in the NSF.

Picture Archiving and Communications System

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many images have been stored on the National Programme for Information Technology's Picture Archiving and Communications System. [75436]

Caroline Flint: At the beginning of June 2006, over 35 million images had been stored using picture archiving and communications systems (PACS) delivered through the national programme for information technology. 32 PACS systems are now live, with around six new systems being deployed each month. Before advent of the national programme, this figure was around only five each year. The bulk of PACS deployments will be complete by March 2007, in line with the plan to have finished deployment throughout the national health service in England by the end of 2007.

Practice-based Commissioning

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS services will not be contained within the commissioning scope of practice-based commissioning. [79038]

Andy Burnham: The services specifically excluded from the commissioning scope of practice-based commissioning are:

core general medical services and personal medical services; and specialised services, services commissioned regionally and nationally and national screening programmes.

These services are excluded from the scope of a practice's indicative budget as outlined in "Practice-based commissioning: achieving universal coverage" (January 2006) which is available on the Department's website at: www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/12/74/25/04127425.pdf

A copy has been placed in the Library.

Private Care (NHS Facilities)

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress she is making in estimating the costs of provision by NHS facilities of private care; and what assessment she has made of whether the NHS makes a surplus from such provision. [79263]

Andy Burnham: The information is not held centrally.

Private Prescribing

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the guidance issued by her Department's Medicines, Pharmacy and Industry Group on procedures for the private prescribing of schedule 2 and 3 controlled drugs, in what areas of the country general practitioners will be permitted to use the new FP10PCD prescription forms once registered with their local primary care trust. [80012]

Andy Burnham: FP10PCD prescription forms are for use by all prescribers, including general practitioners issuing private prescriptions (non-national health service activity) for schedule 2 and 3 controlled drugs, where these drugs are to be dispensed by a community pharmacist. From 7 July 2006, their use will become a statutory requirement.

Prostate Cancer

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement about the pilot prostate cancer awareness campaign; and when the campaign will be rolled-out nationally. [80394]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Raising the public awareness of prostate cancer is one of the key challenges for the future. We want men to know what their prostate is, what it does, and what can go wrong with it. However, we have to raise awareness in a responsible way so as not to cause undue anxiety and worry, and also not to overwhelm national health service services when there is no clear clinical benefit.

Through the work of the prostate cancer advisory group, chaired by the National Cancer Director Professor Mike Richards, a pilot public awareness programme on the prostate has been developed. The pilot is jointly funded by the Department and signatories to the Prostate Cancer Charter for Action. The Department is providing £100,000 for the pilot.

ContinYOU, a community learning charity based in Coventry, were successful in being appointed to run the pilot following a formal tendering exercise. ContinYOU is currently holding focus groups with different groups of men to assist in designing the programme, which is due to run in September 2006 in Coventry.

A formal evaluation of the pilot will be undertaken, assessing the effectiveness of the intervention tools used in raising awareness of the prostate and the impact of the pilot on NHS services.

If the evaluation proves that the pilot is successful, consideration will be given on how best to roll the pilot out across the NHS.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress her Department is making towards finding a diagnostic test for prostate cancer which would be suitable for use in a national screening programme. [80396]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government are committed to introducing a national population screening programme for prostate cancer if and when screening and treatment techniques are sufficiently well developed for such a programme to be introduced.

The Department is supporting the development of screening technology for prostate cancer by having a comprehensive research strategy into all aspects of prostate cancer. We are jointly with other National Cancer Research Institute (NCRI) members funding two NCRI prostate cancer research collaborates, and the Department is funding half of the total £7.4 million cost.

The research undertaken by the collaboratives covers all aspects of prostate cancer and has already generated the groundbreaking discovery of the overactive E2F3 gene in prostate cancer tumours. This discovery provides the potential not only to identify those at risk of developing the disease, but for the first time allows the prediction of how aggressive the cancer will be. Research is under way to turn this into a diagnostic test so that we can identify those patients whose prostate cancers are aggressive and urgently need treatment.

It is important to note that in order for a screening technology to contribute to saving lives it is essential for there to be effective treatments for the disease detected. That is why the Department is funding a £20 million trial of treatments for prostate specific antigen (PSA) screen-detected early prostate cancer (the ProtecT trial).

Rheumatoid Arthritis

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations her Department made to the European Commission regarding the inclusion of rheumatoid arthritis as a priority area of EU Framework Programme 7. [79177]

Andy Burnham: At the Competitiveness Council held on 30 May 2006, a general approach was agreed on the seventh framework programme high-level text. A general approach is a political agreement which allows Ministers to agree in principle to a text that has yet to be considered by the European Parliament. The United Kingdom Government have supported the inclusion of arthritis as one of the priority diseases named in the agreed text.

Spinal Cord Injuries

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consideration she has given to the merits of establishing a national clinical director for spinal cord injury. [80342]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: None. Primary care trusts are responsible for commissioning specialist services through specialised commissioning groups, and the national service framework for long-term conditions is specifically concerned with meeting the health and social care needs of all those living with long-term neurological conditions.

Strategic Health Authorities

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will summarise the representations she received in response to the consultations on (a) strategic health authorities, (b) primary care trusts and (c) ambulance services; and how many she received (i) in total and (ii) from Staffordshire. [76751]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: 1,030 separate letters were sent to Ministers, including the Secretary of State, during the consultation period on strategic health authority and primary care trusts reconfiguration. Of these, 11 were specific to Staffordshire.

261 separate letters were sent to Ministers, including the Secretary of State, during the consultation period on ambulance trust configuration. Of these, 192 concerned Staffordshire Ambulance Service NHS Trust and eight of these letters enclosed petitions totalling 2,946 signatures. In addition, Ministers met with a number of hon. Members during that time.

Sunitinib

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she expects the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to commence appraisal for the cancer drug Sunitinib; and how long the appraisal is expected to last. [79333]

Andy Burnham: Sunitinib for renal cell carcinoma is currently being considered by the Department for referral to the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE). NICE will publish a timescale for the appraisal when and if the drug is referred to them.

Tuberculosis

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the risk to NHS professionals of litigation arising from (a) misdiagnosis and (b) medical complications when using the Mantoux skin test for tuberculosis. [76381]

Andy Burnham: The tuberculin product used in the United Kingdom (UK) is the most widely used product for Mantoux testing and is the World Health Organization reference standard. This product is currently unlicensed in the UK and can, therefore, only be administered on a named patient basis via a patient specific direction.

Doctors prescribe or administer unlicensed medicines to their patients on their own direct responsibility. Unlicensed medicines can be administered by other national health service professionals on the directions of a doctor but the doctor remains responsible for the decision to give the unlicensed product for the individual concerned. A claim can be brought against a doctor who prescribes or administers any medicine, whether licensed or unlicensed, if the patient can show that the doctor acted negligently. NHS professionals are required to have in place appropriate professional negligence insurance in respect of such claims.

United Health Europe

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the contracts that have been awarded in the UK by (a) the Government and (b) primary care trusts to United Health Europe; and if she will make a statement. [53684]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: One contract has been made between the Department and United Health Europe. This contract is for project management of nine primary care trust (PCT) pilots for improving the co-ordination of cancer care services.

The Department does not collect information about contracts which are agreed locally between PCTs and providers or which are within the purview of the devolved Administrations.

Waiting Times

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people had been waiting more than six months for an NHS in-patient operation in England at the end of (a) April and (b) May. [77693]

Andy Burnham: The number of patients waiting over six months at the end of April 2006 was 144. The figures relating to the end of May 2006 will be published on 30 June.

Written Answers to Questions

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Biomass Sector

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the skills level in the biomass sector; and if he will make a statement. [79485]

Ian Pearson: The Biomass Task Force identified that the demand for a skilled work force would increase as the biomass industry expands. The Government recognise that a well trained and highly skilled work force is essential for the future success of the biomass industry and agreed with the task force's recommendation for identifying the skills and training requirements in this sector. We will continue to work closely with relevant bodies, including the Sector Skills Councils and Regional Development Agencies, on a range of actions to underpin future training provision for both the clean biomass and waste biomass sectors.

Carbon Dioxide Emissions

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs by how many tonnes of carbon dioxide vehicle emissions changed after the passage of the Euro III (2000) emissions standards; and what change is expected once the Euro IV (2005) standards take effect. [79369]

Ian Pearson: The Euro III and Euro IV standards deal with the emissions of pollutants that impact upon air quality, rather than climate. However, while trying to improve air quality through introduction of the challenging emissions requirements of the Euro III and Euro IV standards, the European Community is also working with car manufacturers to achieve voluntary agreements on new car fuel efficiency.

The following table shows the evolution of average performance of passenger cars as different Euro standards have been introduced.

Table 1: Average carbon dioxide emissions of new cars sold in the United Kingdom, under urban driving, rural driving and motorway driving conditions

Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Chelmsford of 1 March concerning Mr. Dan Stephenson; what the reasons are for the delay in replying; and if he will make a statement. [79468]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 26 June 2006]: A reply was sent to the hon. Member on 22 June.

The Department has no record of receiving the letter of 1 March. A follow-up letter was received on 25 April but it did not contain a copy of the constituent's letter so officials were unable to draft a response. The hon. Member's office then faxed a copy of the letter to the Department.

However, I apologise for the fact that it has taken longer than usual for a reply to be sent.

David Diamond

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when (a) an interim and (b) the full single payment scheme payment will be made to Mr. David Diamond of South Brent (holding number 10/296/025); and if he will meet Mr. Diamond to discuss the reasons for delays in payment. [68331]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 8 May 2006]: I can confirm that Mr. David Diamond of South Brent was made a full payment under the single payment scheme on 10 May 2006. Ministers and officials at the Rural Payments Agency have apologised for the delay in making payments under the single payment scheme and RPA staff are working hard to complete outstanding payments as quickly as possible.

Departmental Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will keep a separate record of the amount spent annually by his Department on alcohol for hospitality purposes. [77271]

Barry Gardiner: The Department has no plans to record separately the cost of alcohol for hospitality purposes.

Energy Efficiency

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with (a) the European Commission and (b) other member states of the European Union on proposing policy on improvements in energy efficiency. [79683]

Ian Pearson: Energy efficiency is at the heart of UK energy policy. We have made significant efforts to ensure its importance is recognised at European level to enable the EU to meet its climate change goals, while simultaneously increasing competitiveness and security of supply.

The European Commission's Green Paper on Energy Efficiency, published on 29 June 2005, set a target to reduce energy consumption across the EU by 20 per cent. by 2020. The Government have welcomed the stance taken in the Green Paper and made an active contribution to the consultation process, which ended in March this year. The Government look forward to the release, in September, of an ambitious and realistic Energy Efficiency Action Plan from the Commission, which incorporates comments from the UK, and forms an integral part of EU energy policy.

Entry Level Scheme

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking towards fulfilling his Department's commitment to (a) 70 per cent. uptake of the Entry Level Scheme and (b) providing continued expenditure for the Higher Tier Scheme. [72523]

Barry Gardiner: The Entry Level Stewardship (ELS) scheme is open to all farmers. The Department's only published target for ELS is to achieve 60 per cent. coverage of eligible English farmland by the end of 2007. At the present rate of uptake we are well on course to achieving this target.

Both the Entry Level and Higher Level Stewardship schemes will be funded under the new Rural Development Programme for England 2007-2013. The total amount of funding available will depend on the outcome of discussions at EU level about how the voluntary modulation mechanism will operate from 2007 onwards. No decisions have yet been taken about the rate of voluntary modulation and any Exchequer co-financing in this period.

Foreign Travel

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent on foreign travel by his Department in each of the last eight years. [76056]

Barry Gardiner: Since 1999 the Government have published, on an annual basis, the total costs of all ministerial overseas travel and a list of all visits by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500. This information is available in the Library. Information for the financial year 2004-05 was published on 21 July 2005, Official Report, 158WS. Information for the financial year 2005-06 is in the process of being collated and will be published shortly.

The following table shows expenditure for the Department, including its agencies, recorded since the Department was formed in 2001. There are no figures for DEFRA's predecessor Departments as this information could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Expenditure on foreign travel including accommodation and subsistence

2001-02	2,760
2002-03	3,526
2003-04	3,507
2004-05	3,618
2005-06	4,578

All foreign travel undertaken by Ministers and civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the ministerial code and the civil service management code.

Rural Enterprise Scheme

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what grants for rural businesses will be administered by the regional development agencies from 2007; what details have been made available on these schemes; and if he will make a statement. [80009]

Barry Gardiner: RDAs will be responsible for delivering the socio-economic elements of the new Rural Development Programme for England from January 2007. Priorities for this European co-funded programme are still being established, taking into consideration the results of a public consultation which ended on 22 May 2006.

RDAs already provide support to both urban and rural businesses, through a range of initiatives within their regions, funded through the RDA single programme. As priorities and activities are determined regionally, initiatives vary between regions. Details of this support is available from each RDA.

Sustainable Water Systems

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many businesses have used the Enhanced Capital Allowance scheme for investment water-saving technologies in (a) Dudley, (b) the West Midlands and (c) England since the scheme's introduction. [79211]

Ian Pearson: Detailed information on the take-up by businesses of the Enhanced Capital Allowance (ECA) scheme for investment in water-saving technologies is not available.

HM Revenue and Customs and HM Treasury ask businesses to tick a box on their income tax and corporation tax returns if their claim to capital allowances includes ECAs for environmentally beneficial technologies (i.e. energy-saving, water-efficient/ sustainable or low CO_2 emission cars). However, this cannot specify the number of claims to ECAs made under the water scheme. Claims cannot be refined down to an individual city, local authority or country within the UK.

Thames Gateway

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 9 March 2006, Official Report, column 1683W, to the hon. Member for Brent, East (Sarah Teather) on the Thames Gateway, what progress has been made as part of the National Flood and Coastal Defence Database in ascertaining the condition of the Thames estuary tidal defences. [79317]

Ian Pearson: The National Flood and Coastal Defence Database will record the location, height and condition of all flood defences in England.

The Thames estuary tidal defences in London and Kent have now been entered into the database. More than 90 per cent. of the Thames estuary tidal defences in the Anglian region have also been entered into the database. Where defences have not been entered this is due to technical reasons rather than a lack of information about defences.

London and the Thames estuary have one of the best tidal defence systems in the world, which provides a high standard of protection from flooding. The Environment Agency is currently developing a major flood risk management strategy—Thames Estuary 2100—to look at how we can manage flood risk to London over the next 100 years, taking into account future predicted impacts of climate change.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Commissioners Finance Director

Chris Huhne: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the Commissioners finance director. [80094]

Sir Stuart Bell: The Commissioners financial and deputy secretary is Christopher Daws FCA, CTA, MCT, MA (Cantab). He has 36 years of financial experience in both the profession and a range of commercial businesses, before joining the Commissioners in 1994.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Arms Exports

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what research his Department has (a) carried out and (b) commissioned into the economic consequences of ending export credit support for UK producers of military goods. [76856]

Mr. McCartney: The Department has not carried out or commissioned specific research into the wider economic consequences of ending export credit support for UK military goods producers. However, it did contribute to a University of York study (2001) into the economic costs and benefits of a reduction in UK exports of military goods. In the recent past, it has also provided data to independent researchers investigating this subject area.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many staff were responsible for approving applications for arms exports in the most recent year for which figures are available. [80764]

Malcolm Wicks: The Export Control Organisation of the Department of Trade and Industry acts as licensing body for all strategic exports from the UK and currently has a dedicated staff complement of 110.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many staff are tasked with monitoring compliance of UK (a) companies and (b) citizens in relation to UK arms export regulations. [80765]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department of Trade and Industry's Export Control Organisation has seven full-time Compliance Visiting Officers who check compliance with the terms and conditions of open export and trade control licences.

Carbon Dioxide Emissions

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what estimate has been made of the annual carbon dioxide emissions from the new Centrica power plant in Devon once it is fully functioning. [79368]

Malcolm Wicks: Annual emissions from any combustion plant depend on the load factor (the proportion of the time that the plant operates), which is a matter for the plant operator, and the efficiency with which it converts fuel into electricity, which will depend on the design of the plant, also a matter for the plant operator.

If the Langage plant operates at about the average load factor observed for newer plants of this type over recent years (about 66 per cent.) and at the efficiency expected of a new plant of this type (about 47 per cent. on a gross calorific value basis) it might be expected to emit some 1.8 million tonnes of carbon dioxide per annum.

Korea

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what measures the Department has taken to promote UK industry, technology and innovation in Korea to encourage inward investment from that country. [79322]

Mr. McCartney: UK Trade and Investment, in partnership with the regional development agencies and devolved Administrations, is responsible for promoting the UK as a destination for high quality inward investment from overseas, including the Republic of Korea.

Recently, UK Trade and Investment in Korea has focused on "in market" PR and media activity; the use of experts from industry and academia to talk directly to Korean companies about the UK's strengths in technology sectors and events aimed at encouraging partnerships between UK and Korean companies. Other elements are the facilitation of bilateral technology focused co-operation; inward/outward visits including technology fact-finding missions and technology partnering. The teams from UK Trade and Investment and the FCO's Science and Innovation Network based in Seoul collaborate to maximise the science and innovation aspects of events.

Micro-Renewables Targets

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what plans he has to set national micro-renewable targets before November 2008; and if he will make a statement. [78895]

Malcolm Wicks: Section 4 of the Climate Change and Sustainable Energy Act 2006 requires the Government to take a decision as to whether it would be appropriate to designate targets for microgeneration by November 2008. If considered appropriate, targets would then need to be set by March 2009.

We will be closely monitoring the development of the microgeneration market, assessing future trends and undertaking any further analysis and research required in order to take a decision on the suitability of a target within the designated time scales.

OM Energy Ltd.

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what progress the Department has made in relation to the trading activities of OM Energy Ltd.; what support the Government have provided for the company and its associated companies; and if he will make a statement. [79752]

Mr. McCartney: OM Energy is a research stage company and is one of a pipeline of early-stage companies being assisted by UK Trade and Investment's Global Entrepreneur Programme (GEP). The GEP, which aims to attract entrepreneurial talent and technologies based overseas to relocate and carry out business in the UK, has provided normal Dealmaker support including information and guidance to the scientists and founders on the following, during Phase 1 of the project:

- Information on establishing a UK company
- Establishing a UK bank account
- Assigning the core patent to the UK company
- Introductions to non-governmental private equity sources of seed capital for early-stage high-risk research projects
- Filing for worldwide patents with UK patent agents
- Introductions to the UK scientific community to award a contract to characterise the research
- Information on British companies to procure specialist materials required.

Renewable Energy

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what assessment has been made of the potential electricity generating capacity of tidal lagoons in the Severn estuary. [76541]

Malcolm Wicks: Between 1978 and 1994 the Government supported the most comprehensive programme of research and development on tidal energy in the world at an overall cost in excess of £20 million. Part of those studies reported in Energy Paper 46 HMSO 1981 (ISBN 011 4109168 and 410919 2) evaluated two proposals for multiple tidal power lagoons in the Severn estuary.

Telephone Advice Lines

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many telephone advice lines his Department and its non-departmental public bodies support; how many telephone advisers each employs; and how much funding is provided by (a) his Department and its non-departmental public bodies, (b) other Government Departments, (c) the private sector and (d) the voluntary sector. [66581]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department's central records do not contain the information to answer this question. Therefore, the Department of Trade and Industry could answer this question only at disproportionate cost.

Zimbabwe

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry if he will make a statement on the sale of military equipment to the Zimbabwe Defence Force by Avient Ltd. [78639]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave her on 21 June 2006, Official Report, column 1886W.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

BBC Licence Fee

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the final report of the House of Lords BBC Charter Review Committee, what steps she plans to take to ensure there is parliamentary scrutiny of the BBC licence fee bid. [79521]

Mr. Woodward: The level of the licence fee is set by regulations made under the Communications Act 2003, which must be laid before both Houses of Parliament before they can come into effect. The regulations are subject to negative resolution procedure, but the opportunity exists for any change to be debated by both Houses.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will include in the BBC licence fee settlement ring-fenced funding (a) to cover the costs of digital switchover and (b) to help the over-75s and other vulnerable groups with the costs of digital switchover. [79523]

Mr. Woodward: The Government are currently conducting a funding review to determine the level of the licence fee to apply from April 2007. The White Paper, "A public service for all: the BBC in the digital age", sets out the BBC's role in Digital Switchover including helping to establish and fund a scheme to help the most vulnerable TV viewers through digital switchover. The Government will take this issue into account, alongside all other relevant factors, as part of the funding review.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether her Department has assessed the possible impact of the licence fee settlement delay on digital switchover; and if she will make a statement. [79574]

Mr. Woodward [holding answer 22 June 2006]: There is no delay in the licence fee settlement. The Government are currently conducting a funding review to determine the level of the licence fee to apply from April 2007; all relevant factors will be considered as part of the review. An announcement will be made later this year.

Cultural Services (Funding)

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what maximum amount of funding was available to local authorities from the cultural services block in each of the last five years; and what average amount was awarded in each year. [79905]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

The Environmental, Protective and Cultural Services Block is one of seven service blocks supported via formula grant. Formula grant comprises revenue support grant, redistributed business rates and principal formula police grant. Formula grant is an un-hypothecated block grant, i.e. authorities are able to use the money for any service. This means that it is not possible to say how much grant was provided for environmental, protective and cultural services.

Eveline Lowe School, Bermondsey

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when she will announce her decision on whether the application for listing for part of the Eveline Lowe school in Bermondsey, London SE1 has been granted. [80751]

Mr. Lammy: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has received advice from English Heritage and will be making a decision shortly.

London Bombings

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the outcome of the meeting she has had with people severely injured in the London bombings. [77712]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 June 2006]: As Minister responsible for the aftercare of victims of major disasters, I have held meetings with around 150 survivors of the bombings, many of whom sustained physical injuries. These meetings have highlighted many important issues which we must learn from if we are to improve our response to major emergencies in the future. The lessons identified following the 7 July 2006, and the work we are engaging in to make sure things change in the future, will be outlined in a Government paper to be published in due course.

Tourist Attractions (Suffolk)

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which 10 tourist attractions in (a) Suffolk and (b) Bury St. Edmunds constituency attracted the largest number of visitors in each year since 1997. [79391]

Mr. Woodward: My Department does not maintain central records of visitors to tourist attractions. However, Visit Britain and its predecessor have previously carried out periodical surveys of regional attractions. Where data are available the estimated visitor numbers for the most popular attractions covering Suffolk and the Bury St. Edmunds constituency are set out in the following table.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans there are to replace the cadet general purpose rifle used by the cadet forces; and if he will make a statement. [79056]

Mr. Watson: While there are currently sufficient stocks of all types of cadet rifles, future options, including replacement and extending the life of the current weapons, are being considered as part of the Ministry of Defence's normal planning process.

Complaints Management

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date he plans to assess the implementation of his December 2005 Defence Instruction Notice concerning recording and retention of information in respect of the management of complaints; and if he will make a report to the House when his assessment has been made. [79882]

Mr. Watson: Assessment of the implementation of the Defence Instruction Notice concerning the recording and retention of information in respect of the management of complaints will commence in January 2007. It is envisaged that a report will be made to the House in 2008 at the conclusion of Phase Three of the Agreement between the Ministry of Defence and the Equal Opportunities Commission.

Defence Police College

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many (a) new and (b) existing members of the Royal Military Police have attended courses since the opening of the Defence Police college in 2005; and what percentage of the total Royal Military Police personnel this represents; [79885]

European Security and Defence Policy

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the objectives are of the European Security and Defence Policy. [80191]

Des Browne: The European Security and Defence Policy was devised as a means of adding military and civilian crisis management capabilities to the range of instruments—political, diplomatic, economic—already available to the EU to address crisis situations elsewhere in the world.

The UK has succeeded in steering the policy from the outset to ensure that it complements the role of NATO as the cornerstone of European defence.

The existence today of 14 EU-led missions, mostly civilian, on three continents, all in areas of high priority in terms of the UK's foreign policy interests, is evidence that the policy is making a positive difference to international security.

Iraq

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether an inquiry has been conducted into the unlawful killings in Iraq of (a) Gunner David Lawrence of 1st Battalion Royal Horse Artillery and (b) Corporal Marc Taylor of Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers by (i) the Iraqi police and (ii) the British armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [53690]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 27 February 2006]: The conduct or otherwise of inquiries by the Iraqi Police Service is solely a matter for the Iraqi Government. The Royal Military Police Special Investigation Branch (RMP(SIB)) conducted an investigation into the incident in which Gunner David Lawrence and Corporal Marc Taylor died. A copy of the RMP(SIB) report was submitted to the coroner for the inquest into the death of both soldiers which concluded on 15 February 2006.

Joint Personnel Administration

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) why the roll-out of Joint Personnel Administration has been delayed for (a) the Army and (b) the Royal Navy; and what the expected dates are for roll-out for each service; [79661]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the implementation of Joint Personnel Administration in March; and if he will make a statement. [79664]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my Noble Friend (Lord Drayson) gave on 14 June 2006, Official Report, column WA31 in another place to the Noble Lord Garden.

Operation Dominic (Compensation)

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what provisions have been made to provide compensation for (a) British personnel who have suffered injury and (b) families of those who have died as a consequence of the Operation Dominic series of nuclear tests conducted in the vicinity of Christmas Island in 1962. [79784]

Mr. Watson: British service personnel who suffered injury as a result of service, or their surviving spouses, may apply for a war pension, or war widow's pension, under the terms of the war pension scheme. A war pension may be payable in respect of any disablement or death due to service. There are no restrictions on the time or place of service and no time limits for making a claim under the scheme.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he will answer Question 53690, tabled on 16 February, Question 70034, tabled on 9 May, and Questions 70033 and 70145, tabled on 10 May, by the hon. Member for Forest of Dean. [80284]

Mr. Watson: I answered Question 53690, today. Work to answer Questions 70033, 70034 and 70145 is under way and I expect to be in a position to answer them shortly.

RAF Cosford

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received on RAF Cosford being the preferred site for aeronautical training in the Defence Training Review; and if he will make a statement. [80794]

Mr. Watson: I have received many representations recommending Cosford as the preferred site for Aeronautical Engineering training; since January 2006 these have included 99 letters from the public, 14 letters from MPs, five Parliamentary Questions plus various meetings with MPs and officials. But, as I have said previously, we will select the solution which offers the best training capability for Defence.

Royal Military Police

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what training the Royal Military Police receive in the use of the computerised Home Office Large Murder Enquiry System. [79883]

Mr. Ingram: Senior Royal Military Police Special Investigation Branch (RMP (SIB)) personnel attend Home Office approved Senior Investigation Officer Courses, which cover the use the Home Office Large Major Enquiry System (HOLMES) Version 2 and other systems designed to assist in major police investigations. Although RMP (SIB) personnel are no longer trained as HOLMES operators, this capability is maintained by the Ministry of Defence police, whose personnel attend courses provided by Home Department police forces training schools. The Service police forces have access to the system as required.

Royal Navy (Catering)

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether all Royal Navy personnel serving at sea have access to Halal and non-Halal meat options. [79765]

Mr. Watson: Yes.

Service Allowances

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the Answer of 15 June 2006, Official Report, column 1583, on service allowances, for what reason regular service personnel of less than 12 months' service are not entitled to longer separation service allowance. [80497]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The X-Factor is an adjustment made to military pay, recommended by the Armed Forces Pay Review Body (AFPRB), which recognises the relative disadvantages of the conditions of service experienced by members of the armed forces, compared with personnel in the civilian sector.

X-Factor is currently set at 13 per cent. for Regular personnel and is made up of a number of elements, one of which includes an element of separation. Therefore, to avoid double recompense, service personnel must experience a degree of separation (the qualifying period) before Longer Separated Service Allowance (LSSA) becomes payable.

With the roll-out of the Joint Personnel Administration (JPA), LSSA is being replaced by Longer Separation Allowance (LSA). In recognition of the fact some junior personnel, particularly those in the infantry and Royal Marines, deploy immediately after their training, the Initial Qualifying Period for LSA has been set at 100 days of qualifying separated service. (Qualifying separated service requires personnel to be at a location that precludes return to their duty station, family or permanent residence for periods in excess of 10 days). This change from 12 months benefits those who deploy early in their careers.

Territorial Army

Jim Sheridan: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people (a) joined and (b) resigned from the Territorial Army in Scotland in 2005. [62480]

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people in the London borough of Bexley serve in the Territorial Army. [78964]

Mr. Watson: The information is not held centrally in the format requested. Official strength figures for the Territorial Army (TA) are collated for the United Kingdom and not its constituent nations, counties or towns. As at 1 May 2006, the total strength of the TA was 37,270.

Notes:

1. This figure includes 1,090 Mobilised TA personnel and 5,090 members of the Officer Training Corps, but excludes 1,070 Non-Regular Permanent Staff (NRPS). Full-time Reserve Service personnel are also excluded.

2. The figures have been rounded to the nearest 10.

Training (Supervisory Care)

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the principal components are of the new policy on the provision of supervisory care in phase one and two training establishments introduced in March 2006; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the supervisory care directive applicable to (a) Deepcut barracks and (b) Catterick barracks. [79844]

Mr. Watson: The new Supervisory Care Policy for Defence Individual Training Establishments was published as a Defence Information Notice in March 2006 (2006DIN06-049). The policy mandates the determination of a Supervisory Care Directive, underpinned by a Unit Commander's Risk Assessment. The Supervisory Care Directive clearly articulates a Unit Commander's commitment to the care of trainees. It highlights areas where detailed care responsibilities are required, and cross-refers to other policies where appropriate. The Unit Commander's Risk Assessment takes account of the particular factors of the environment, the trainee population and the type of training being undertaken at each training establishment. The new policy mandates that minimum levels of supervision are determined from the Unit Commander's Risk Assessment and must be articulated against the relevant serials during the working day, out of hours, weekend and leave periods. Implementation of the new Supervisory Care Policy is subject to evaluation by the MOD HQ Defence Individual Training Capability (DITC) team in order to establish whether relevant policies have been correctly interpreted and successfully implemented.

The Risk Assessment for Deepcut has been completed and a copy of its Supervisory Care Directive will be placed in the Library of the House. Work on the more complex directive for Catterick is not yet finalised and I anticipate that it will be available for placement in the Library of the House in the coming weeks. I will write to my hon. Friend as soon as that work is complete.

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures he plans to take to monitor the adoption and dissemination of a supervisory care directive in each unit of the Army; by what means he will ensure the minimum standards to be reached in drawing up a directive; what measures he plans to take to correct any omissions and flaws; and what his target is for compliance across the training estate. [79846]

Mr. Watson: Instructions for the implementation of the Supervisory Care Policy for Defence Individual Training Establishments were issued in March 2006. Under this policy the Unit Commander of every training establishment is required to publish a Supervisory Care Directive, which they are to review annually. This Directive is underpinned by the Unit Commander's Risk Assessment which determines the minimum acceptable levels of supervision based on a number of local factors.

The Directorate of Individual Training Capability team conducts a continuing programme of evaluation of Army training establishments looking at policy implementation to establish whether correct and consistent outcomes are being achieved.

Veterans Day

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what funding has been made available by his Department for events in celebration of Veterans Day; and how this funding has been allocated. [76285]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence has made available around £130,000 to support Veterans Day events around the United Kingdom, in addition to the funding for the national event in London. The money has been allocated to bids which best meet the objectives of publicly promoting the Veterans Day messages. The messages include: that veterans have made and continue to make a major contribution to our nation; that veterans can be any age; that the veterans' community is diverse; and that there is support and advice available to veterans from both official and voluntary sources.

TRANSPORT

Aviation (Carbon Generation)

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will meet the Chancellor of the Exchequer to discuss alternative taxation to discourage carbon generation by the aviation industry; and what his policy is on such taxation. [80386]

Gillian Merron: Tax policy is a matter for Her Majesty's Treasury. The Chancellor keeps all taxation policy under review. Any changes are announced in the context of his Budget statement after giving consideration to all relevant environmental, social and economic factors.

Biofuel Production

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding his Department has allocated to encourage biofuel production in the UK in 2006-07. [79963]

Dr. Ladyman: The Government are committed to promoting the use of biofuels for road transport as part of our wider programme to combat climate change. The Government's main support is currently in the form of a 20 pence per litre fuel duty incentive, which has stimulated a growing market in the UK, including new UK production facilities.

The Renewable Transport Fuels Obligation (RTFO), which we announced last year, will provide significant further support to this industry by ensuring a stable, long-term market for biofuels in the UK. It should mean that by 2010, sales of biofuel will amount to over 2 billion litres, or around 5 per cent. of total petrol and diesel sales. A number of firms have reacted very positively to our announcement and are planning significant investment in UK biofuel production capacity.

In addition to the RTFO the Chancellor has announced that, subject to European Union State Aid approval, the Government will introduce a 100 per cent. first year capital allowance for the cleanest biofuels production facilities. This should help support innovation and help develop the lowest-carbon biofuels production methods.

Cargo Transfers

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 22 March 2006, Official Report, column 377W, on cargo transfers, whether any aspect of ship-to-ship transfers of oil and other chemicals within harbour authority areas requires an order under the Harbours Act 1964. [80427]

Dr. Ladyman: It is for individual harbour authorities to determine whether they require a Harbour Revision Order (HRO) to gain powers to conduct operations within their harbours. We have received no applications for an HRO from an English or Welsh harbour authority specifically to enable ship to ship transfers of oil or other chemicals. In the case of harbours in Scotland applications would be made to the Scottish Executive.

Crash Helmets

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many motor cyclists' lives he estimates were saved in each of the last 10 years by their crash helmets. [80204]

Dr. Ladyman: On the basis of four months' experience of compulsory helmet wearing in 1973, it was estimated that around 200 fatal and serious casualties would be saved per annum. Because helmet wearing is now so long established in the UK, it is no longer possible to calculate further effects on road safety: there is no non-helmet wearing group with which to compare.

However, US researchers are able to compare helmeted and unhelmeted riders as some states do not have helmet laws. Comparisons have concluded that the use of a safety helmet is the single critical factor in the prevention and reduction of head injury, with unhelmeted riders being 2.4 times as likely to sustain head injuries as helmeted riders.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many websites there are within his responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79068]

Gillian Merron: The Department for Transport maintains 37 public-facing websites, including those run by our Executive agencies.

The cost of hosting, maintenance and development (excluding staff costs) of the Department for Transport websites is as follows:

M25

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will estimate how many bottles of water were dispensed to motorists who were trapped on the M25 on 9 June following the incident in the vicinity of junctions eight to 10 and the subsequent closure of the motorway; and if he will make a statement. [79312]

Dr. Ladyman: Highways Agency Traffic Officers and Surrey police mounted a joint operation, in association with Surrey county council Emergency Planning Services, to provide welfare to motorists caught in queues on the M25 on 9 June. Traffic officers and the police distributed approximately 1,500 0.5 litre bottles of water to motorists, 600 of which were flown in by police helicopter.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the total duration in hours was of closures of the M25 (a) clockwise and (b) anti-clockwise in each of the past six months; and if he will make a statement. [79313]

Dr. Ladyman: Closures are implemented on the M25 for either planned works or in response to an incident. Closures are only implemented if they are necessary to secure the safety of the travelling public, road workers or those responding to incidents. Wherever possible closures are managed to minimise disruption to the travelling public with all planned closures being undertaken at night. The following tables show the number of planned and incident-related closures on the M25 during the last six months.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what lessons relating to (a) evacuation of the motorway, (b) minimising the jam of vehicles and

(c) other related matters were drawn from the incident in the vicinity of junctions 29 and 31 of the M25 on 17 March 2004; to what extent these lessons were applied to the incident on the M25 between junctions 8 and 10 on 9 June 2006; and if he will make a statement. [79473]

Dr. Ladyman: Although the circumstances of the incidents on 17 March 2004 and 9 June 2006 were significantly different, lessons learnt from incidents such as that in 2004 have enabled the Highways Agency to better manage the recent event. The nature of the earlier incident enabled traffic to pass safely the site of the accident; the more recent one resulted in fire and damage to infrastructure which prevented this from taking place.

Since 2004 the Highways Agency has improved capability for the evacuation of the motorway through detailed and tested joint operating procedures with the local emergency services in the event of a major incident. It has also developed detailed incident management procedures such as the capability to implement rearward relief; the process by which trapped vehicles are turned on the carriageway and returned to the previous exit. These procedures include the support and welfare of motorists where they cannot be assisted from the site.

The period since the 2004 incident has seen significant developments in the Highways Agency's capability to minimise congestion caused by incidents. The introduction of Regional Control Centres as part of the Traffic Officer Service and the commencement of the National Traffic Control Centre provide an ability to divert traffic away from an incident through strategic signing, and around an incident through tactical signing and direction.

The Highways Agency has substantially strengthened its ability to detect and respond to incidents and reduce the resulting congestion. The Traffic Officer Service on the M25 and other motorways is enabling significantly increased resources to be more quickly available at the scene to support the management of the incidents. Traffic officers worked well with emergency services on 9 June to minimise the duration of the incident and quickly restore the motorway to a safe condition. The emergency procedures were implemented and motorists received both welfare and medical assistance as necessary.

The Highways Agency has continued to develop its Incident Support Unit service on the M25 and, following its successful contribution to incident management on the M25, implemented similar services on most of the strategic road network. In addition Regional Control Centres are proactively monitoring the road network quickly to detect incidents and improve communication between responders with the aim of reducing the clearance time.

All major incidents are reviewed soon afterwards jointly by the Highways Agency and emergency services to identify lessons to be learnt in dealing with future incidents. There is an ongoing programme to continually develop incident management capability including innovations such as central reserve screens to prevent visual distraction of motorists on adjacent carriageways and specialist equipment to support the clear-up operation.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) if he will (a) place in the Library and (b) supply to the hon. Member for Thurrock a copy of the full report into the incident between junctions 29 and 30 of the M25 on the 17 and 18 March 2004 which was prepared by Mr. Paul McCreevy, M25 Route Manager North at the Highways Agency; [79474]

(2) if he will make a statement on the hold-up of traffic flows on the M25 consequent to the accident in the vicinity of junctions 29 and 31 on 17 March 2004; what the maximum length in miles was of the resulting traffic queues; what the duration was of the hold-up; what actions were taken by (a) the Highways Agency and (b) Essex and Kent Police (i) to advise motorists of the hold-up and (ii) to ameliorate the delay and congestion; at what time each such action was taken; and why the answers to these questions were not supplied in the executive summary of the report by Mr. Paul McCreevy on the incident placed in the Library and supplied to the hon. Member for Thurrock following his Question answered on 24 March 2004, Official Report, column 982W, on the M25. [79476]

Dr. Ladyman: The maximum length of traffic queuing on the M25 as a result of the incident on 17 March 2004 was 14 miles on the clockwise carriageway and 11 miles on the anti-clockwise carriageway. The maximum length of the traffic queuing on the A128, which was used as the diversion route, was 6 miles.

The M25 clockwise carriageway was closed for 22 hours. The anti-clockwise carriageway was also closed for 1.5 hours for safety reasons while the tanker was being removed.

The Highways Agency advised motorists of the incident and delays by providing radio stations and news media with regular updates, and their website and Information Line also provided up-to-the-minute information. Television and press representatives were invited to the incident scene by Essex police to observe the recovery operation.

The Highways Agency repaired the nearside boundary fence and used a specialist environmental sub-contractor to clean the road surface. This enabled the carriageway to be opened safely for the public after the vehicles and debris had been removed.

Essex police carried out the incident investigation, co-ordinated the recovery operation, and set the diversion signs. They also allowed the trapped clockwise traffic between junction 29 and the incident to escape using lanes 2 and 3. Throughout the duration of the closure, the variable message signs advised motorists that this section of the M25 motorway was closed. Contractors undertaking road works on the A128 were contacted by Essex police and agreed to change the mechanism of temporary traffic lights at the road works in order to give priority to diverted traffic travelling south from the M25.

An Executive Summary and full report were produced at the time of the incident. The summary was a chronological log of events on the day detailing agencies involved and actions taken to clear the incident. A full copy of the report has been sent to my hon. Friend by the Highways Agency, and copies of the document have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average time was for which motorists were detained on the M25 on Friday 9 June following the incident in the vicinity of junctions 8 to 10 and the subsequent closure of the motorway; what the maximum length of time was for which motorists were so detained in the (a) clockwise and (b) anti-clockwise direction; and if he will make a statement. [79475]

Dr. Ladyman: As a consequence of a heavy goods vehicle catching fire on 9 June, the M25 was closed in both directions to ensure the safety of the travelling public and emergency services dealing with the incident. Under the direction of Highways Agency Traffic Officers, a number of vehicles that had already passed the exit slip roads at junction 9 were turned around and were then able to use the available diversion routes.

The Highways Agency estimates that for the majority of vehicles this exercise was undertaken on both carriageways within 2 to 3 hours of the incident occurring.

Some heavy goods vehicles on the clockwise carriageway were too long to turn around and these vehicles remained on the motorway for approximately five hours.

Emergency procedures were implemented to assist motorists who were trapped between motorway exits and the incident, with water provided and medical assistance given to those in need.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the estimated number is of (a) vehicles and (b) passengers who were trapped on the M25 on 9 June following an incident in the vicinity of junctions 8 to 10; and if he will make a statement. [79623]

Dr. Ladyman: As a consequence of a heavy goods vehicle catching fire on 9 June the M25 was closed in both directions to ensure the safety of the travelling public and emergency services dealing with the incident. Following the closure some vehicles were prevented from continuing with their journey to the next exit of the motorway.

The Highways Agency estimates that approximately 1,000 vehicles and 1,200 drivers and passengers were affected in this way.

Emergency procedures were implemented to assist motorists who were trapped between motorway exits following the incident with water provided and medical assistance given to those in need.

Noise Nuisance (Essex)

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress is being made in reducing the noise nuisance caused by train horns in Ardleigh, Essex; and if he will make a statement. [79492]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 22 June 2006]: Network Rail has been served a noise abatement order by Tendring district council regarding train horn noise at Ardleigh. As this now constitutes a legal process I am unable to comment further.

More generally, and in response to public concern at the levels of train horn noise, the rail industry is reconsidering arrangements for the use and application of train horns. A steering group has been set up under the leadership of the Rail Safety and Standards Board to oversee the review and includes representatives from Network Rail and train operators.

Rail Safety

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many signals passed at danger were recorded in each Network Rail Region in each of the last 12 months. [77785]

Derek Twigg: Information on signals passed at danger is published on a quarterly basis by the Office of Rail Regulation. Copies are available in the Libraries of the House.

South West Trains

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the current operational performance of South West Trains; and how many complaints he has received from rail users' groups in Hampshire about failures to operate timetabled services; and if he will make a statement. [78369]

Derek Twigg: The South Western franchise replacement process included a "base-lining" exercise undertaken in 2005, in which performance for South West Trains was reviewed. This showed that operational performance had increased significantly since the December 2004 timetable change under the Public Performance Measure (PPM) which records the percentage of trains arriving within five minutes of their planned destination arrival time. The moving annual average of the PPM statistic rose from 75 per cent. in July 2004 to 87 per cent. by September 2005, and currently stands at 90 per cent.

The Department for Transport has recently received an extensive report from the South Hampshire Rail Users Group setting out a range of complaints associated with the current South West Trains franchise. A response will be made shortly to this specific letter.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what criteria were used in making the decision to reduce services on the (a) Salisbury to Southampton and (b) Reading to Brighton lines. [78371]

Derek Twigg: The decision to change these services was made during the replacement process for the South Western franchises. The replacement process offers the opportunity to review current service levels, and to assess whether value for money is delivered for passengers and taxpayers by their operation.

The South Western franchise has specified that there will be a regular half-hourly service operating between Salisbury and Southampton. This will be formed of the existing Cardiff-Portsmouth hourly service, and a new hourly service that has been created by extending the current Romsey-Totton operation; this creates a net increase in services between Salisbury and Southampton despite a small reduction in Greater Western trains.

The decision to remove services between Reading and Brighton via Eastleigh has been specified in the South Western franchise. Surveys were conducted in September 2005 that confirmed the low utilisation of this service, and the Department for Transport's standard appraisal methods confirmed that the withdrawal of the service represents good value for money.

Most journeys on this service occur on stations between Basingstoke and Eastleigh, and along the South Coast between Havant and Brighton. A new service is proposed to operate between Brighton and Southampton. The specification does not preclude providing a service between Havant and Eastleigh in the future to meet proposed developments or in response to customer demand, subject to the franchisee's commercial position and Network Rail's operational assessment.

Thames Gateway

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what expenditure is planned on improving rail links between central London and the Thames Gateway area. [79283]

Derek Twigg: The Channel Tunnel Rail Link has been constructed from central London to the Kent coast through the southern part of the Thames Gateway at a cost of £5.2 billion. Domestic rail services from Kent, including those in the growth area, will be making use of this new infrastructure from December 2009.

In 2001 the Department of Transport approved a grant of £154 million to finance the development and parliamentary process for the Crossrail scheme. This will serve the Thames Gateway, providing links from Shenfield, Essex and Abbey Wood, south east London through to Stratford, Docklands, central London, Heathrow and on to the Thames Valley. The Department of Transport has also provided funding support to the Mayor to provide extensions to the Docklands Light Railway (DLR).

The GLA and the Mayor are working with TfL to consider the transport implications of growth in the Thames Gateway that falls within the Greater London area.

Trunk Road Islands

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what penalties can be enforced against the Highways Agency for failing to maintain trunk road islands. [80329]

Dr. Ladyman: As long as trunks roads islands are within the boundaries of the highway, they are part of the highway and for maintenance are treated as such. Enforcement of liability for maintenance is covered under section 56 of the Highways Act 1980. An application can be made to the magistrates court under that section of the Highways Act 1980 for an order to keep a highway in repair. If the repair is not carried out within the stipulated period the court can by order authorise the complainant to carry out the works and he can recover the costs incurred as a civil debt from the highways authority.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance his Department has given to the Afghan Government to provide basic services to the population throughout the country; and if he will make a statement. [80344]

Hilary Benn: DFID's aid programme to Afghanistan (£102 million in 2006-07) supports three of the Afghan Government's own objectives, as set out in their Interim National Development Strategy: (i) Building effective state institutions; (ii) improving economic management and the effectiveness of aid to Afghanistan; and (iii) improving the livelihoods of rural poor. These are the key steps needed in Afghanistan to generate a self-sustaining state with the capacity to meet basic social needs and start the process of reducing poverty.

The UK is currently the largest donor to the Government's recurrent budget through allocations to the Afghanistan Reconstruction Trust Fund. This covers recurrent costs such as salaries for teachers and health workers. This is the support the Afghan Government wants, and is the best chance for building effective state institutions that will last and are able to deliver basic services across the country.

The UK also supports a number of key Government of Afghanistan National Programmes, which focus on improving the livelihoods of the rural poor. The National Solidarity Programme (NSP) for example, helps local communities to identify their own needs and provides the means to meet them. Often this includes the provision of basic service infrastructure such as schools and health centres.

DFID also provides 19 per cent. of the EC's commitment to Afghanistan of 1 billion euros (2002-06) and over 10 per cent. of the World Banks Commitment of $250-300 million a year. DFID also contributes to UN agencies. These partners are all actively engaged in the delivery of basic services across the country.

Bali Peace Agreement

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid the UK Government plan to provide to the (a) East Timorese and (b) Indonesians following the Bali peace agreement. [79430]

Hilary Benn: DFID will provide £6 million to East Timor between 2006 and 2009. The bulk of this sum will be spent implementing the National Development Plan which focuses upon poverty reduction and providing better services to poor communities. We are also considering a substantial contribution to help strengthen financial management within Government.

In response to the recent unrest we have provided £110,000 to help alleviate the poor conditions within the refugee camps, which were set up following the recent disturbances in the country. DFID continues to monitor developments there closely and we stand ready to consider further support. We are particularly interested in programmes which promote longer-term peace and stability by addressing the causes of tension and by strengthening dispute resolution processes.

DFID's programme to Indonesia for this year will total £41.5 million. Of this sum, £18.5 million will finance tsunami reconstruction work in Aceh, and a further £3 million has been made available for the relief effort following the earthquake in Jogjakarta last month.

In Indonesia DFID, the Ministry of Defence (MOD) and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) have developed a joint strategy under the Global Conflict Prevention (GCPP) to help establish the conditions in which causes of inter-communal violent conflict can be addressed and a reduction in conflict secured. As part of this strategy, DFID has provided £4.2 million to the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP)'s Crisis Prevention and Recovery Unit (CPRU).

Burma

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) when the policy review of providing aid to internally displaced people in Burma is expected to be completed; [79248]

(2) what studies he has evaluated on the accountability and effectiveness of cross-border aid to internally displaced people in Burma. [79247]

Mr. Thomas: DFID intends to carry out the review of its support to internally displaced people in Burma and refugees on the Thai-Burma border before the end of 2006.

The most recent review of DFID's role on the Thai-Burma border was carried out in June 2004. I have arranged for copies of the document entitled 'Executive Summary to review of DFID's work on the Thai-Burma Border' to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Gaza

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what response the UK has made to the recent UN appeal for £205 million for humanitarian aid in Gaza. [80404]

Hilary Benn: DFID continues to work with both the UN and the European Commission to ensure the most effective and co-ordinated international response to the worsening humanitarian situation in the occupied Palestinian territories. It is our assessment that the most effective way to address this will be through the Temporary International Mechanism.

Indonesian Earthquake (Aid)

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much (a) his Department and (b) the EU has pledged to the emergency response to the Indonesian earthquake; and if he will make a statement. [79907]

Hilary Benn: DFID has pledged £5 million towards the relief effort, including £1 million to the International Federation of the Red Cross, £3 million to the United Nations (UN) agencies and £1 million to non-governmental organisations (NGOs). The £1 million to UK NGOs is made up of £400,000 to Oxfam, £400,000 to Save the Children Fund and £200,000 to Handicap International. DFID's contributions will be used for shelter, health, water and sanitation, emergency packs of essential items for affected families, and livelihoods.

The European Commission (EC) has pledged €3 million to the emergency response. Approximately 17-17.5 per cent. is attributed to the UK which roughly equates to €518,000. The total pledged to date by the European Union member states including the EC is €20.79 million.

Natural Disaster Facility

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the UK's contribution to the ACP-EU Natural Disaster Facility was in 2005-06; what it is planned to be in each of the next three financial years; and if he will make a statement. [79277]

Hilary Benn: The Africa, Caribbean and Pacific (ACP)—European Community (EC) Council of Ministers meeting in Luxembourg on 24-25 June 2005, agreed to establish a Natural Disaster Facility to support regional initiatives in disaster reduction, mitigation and preparedness in the ACP countries. An initial sum of €12 million (approximately £8 million) was allocated from the 9th European development fund (EDF) to support programmes in the period up to the end of December 2007. The UK share of this assistance is 12.7 per cent. (approximately €1.5 million or £1 million). Further support is envisaged under the 10th EDF, which will be committed over the period 2008-13. The UK's share of the 10th EDF will be 14.82 per cent.

Occupied Territories

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when the temporary international finance mechanism to deliver aid to the Occupied Territories is expected to become operational. [80411]

Hilary Benn: On 16 June, the European Council issued a declaration finalising the details of a temporary international mechanism to help support Palestinians' basic needs. The European Commission is urgently taking this forward and expects payments to front-line health workers to begin by mid-July. The World Bank, which will ultimately assume management of the mechanism, expects its operation to be ready in August.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the criteria will be for the three-month review of the temporary international finance mechanism to deliver aid to the Occupied Territories; and if he will make a statement. [80413]

Hilary Benn: The criteria for reviewing the temporary international mechanism are yet to be agreed. Responsibility for this lies with the Consultative Group of organisations and countries who are overseeing the management of the mechanism.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development in what proportion the temporary international finance mechanism to deliver aid to the Occupied Territories will support (a) essential supplies, (b) social services, (c) health, (d) education and (e) utilities. [80414]

Hilary Benn: It has not yet been decided how donor contributions will be divided between the three main channels of support: for the health sector; support for the uninterrupted supply of utilities; and basic needs allowances to meet the essential needs of the poorest segments of the population. The European Commission and the World Bank are urgently undertaking preliminary design work on the temporary international mechanism that will enable donors to determine how their contributions will be used.

The European Commission will contribute €104 million to the mechanism and has invited European Union member states to announce their contributions shortly. We encourage other donors to contribute. The UK will make a contribution of up to £12 million.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) which states and organisations will contribute to the temporary international finance mechanism to deliver aid to the Occupied Territories; [80415]

(2) what funds (a) the UK, (b) other European member states and (c) other members of the Quartet will provide to the temporary international finance mechanism to deliver aid to the Occupied Territories. [80412]

Hilary Benn: The mechanism is open to any donor that wishes to contribute. We are expecting individual European Union member states to release statements regarding their contributions shortly. The UK encourages other donors to contribute.

The European Commission's financing plan for the mechanism is in the order of €104 million. The UK Government will contribute up to £12 million to be disbursed once the mechanism is fully operational.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of (a) the humanitarian situation, (b) access to essential services and (c) rates of poverty and extreme poverty in (i) the West Bank and (ii) Gaza. [80416]

Hilary Benn: DFID is keeping close track of the humanitarian situation in the West Bank and Gaza through the UN Office for the Co-ordination of Humanitarian Affairs (UN OCHA). With assistance from DFID, the UN OCHA has produced the first Monthly Humanitarian Monitor. The main messages from this report are that poverty is rising, particularly among families which depended on salaries or cash payments from the Palestinian Authority and there are emerging problems in the health sector with a number of essential drugs now out of stock. The full report is available online at:

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will consider ways to improve the opportunities for the public to raise their concern about antisocial behaviour with (a) local authorities and (b) police authorities. [80049]

Mr. McNulty: To tackle antisocial behaviour effectively, local agencies like local authorities and police authorities need to listen to and act upon community concerns and priorities, reporting back on what has been done.

The Police and Justice Bill contains provisions for the "Community Call for Action" which will enable local residents to trigger action where community safety partners have failed to address a persistent local problem. The Bill places a duty on a local councillor to respond to a call for action. Where the issue cannot be resolved by informal means, the councillor would be able to refer the matter to the local authority overview and scrutiny committee for consideration. The Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) or Community Safety Partnership (CSP) in Wales on which both local authorities and police authorities are partners would have to respond to any report of the scrutiny committee, and to explain any decision not to take action. Under the terms of the Police and Justice Bill, the commencement of the relevant provisions in Wales is a matter for the National Assembly for Wales.

"Face the People" sessions will also be delivered through the provisions in the Police and Justice Bill and will require senior representatives of the CDRP or CSP to hold regular question and answer sessions open to the public and the media. These sessions will provide the opportunity for local communities to raise issues of concern and ask questions regarding the CDRP's or CSP's work. The requirement would be introduced by regulations arising from an order made jointly by the Home Secretary and the National Assembly for Wales.

Bail Hostels

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what criteria he used for establishing which bail hostels are near schools and should not be used for sex offenders. [80405]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Accommodating certain offenders on licence in approved premises, formerly probation and bail hostels, is an important public protection measure. In approved premises, offenders may be closely supervised and monitored, to ensure compliance with their licence conditions.

There has been concern about the housing of child sex offenders in approved premises adjacent to schools and nurseries. In order to maintain public confidence in our systems for managing the risks posed by such offenders, I took the decision that child sex offenders should no longer be housed in approved premises that are immediately adjacent to schools and nurseries.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of residents at the bail hostel in Wesleyan road, Peterborough are sex offenders. [78920]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The number of sex offenders accommodated in any approved premises, formerly bail and probation hostels, will vary at any one time. Statistical information about the type of offences committed by offenders residing at an approved premises at any one time is not collected centrally.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many former prisoners were resident at the bail hostel in Wesleyan road, Peterborough on (a) 31 December 2004, (b) 31 December 2005 and (c) 31 May 2006. [78921]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The number of residents on post release licences from custody at the Peterborough approved premises was as follows:

		Number
(a)	31 December 2004	24
(b)	31 December 2005	26
(c)	28 February 2006	27

Note:
Latest date available was 28 February.

Fingerprint Centres

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment was made of the pilot project for fingerprint centres for recovered stolen (a) cars and (b) other moveable property; and what conclusions were reached. [79565]

Mr. McNulty: The Metropolitan Police Service utilised one of the fingerprint development laboratories funded by the Home Office's Police Standards Unit. The part they played regarding recovered stolen vehicles was internally assessed by the force and the findings presented to the Police Standards Unit, the Government Office of London (the co-sponsor) and finally to the House of Lords European Secure Vehicle Alliance Parliamentary Group at a plenary session on the 5 November 2003 and a general meeting on 10 September 2003. The laboratories themselves are deemed particularly successful at reducing the time from crime to analysis, and we were informed the force intended extending this approach across more of the force area.

Illegal Immigration

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many illegal immigrants are living in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [74687]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the Home Affairs Committee by my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary on 23 May 2006. No UK Government has been able to answer with accuracy because (a) successive Governments inherit an unknown number from its predecessor and (b) no complete records exist of the number of people who leave the country.

Knife Crime

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been found guilty of wounding someone with a knife in each of the last five years; and how many of these received a prison sentence. [77161]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The specific information requested is not available as we are unable to differentiate between the weapon(s) used in the various offences of wounding when supplying data.

M25

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) police officers and (b) police units were deployed from (i) Surrey police, (ii) Metropolitan police and (iii) Kent police at the incident in the vicinity of junctions 8 to 10 of the M25 and its subsequent closure on 9 June. [79314]

Mr. McNulty: I understand that the incident was dealt with only by Surrey police. The Metropolitan police and the Kent police were notified but did not attend. Surrey deployed both police officers and road policing community support officers, 27 in total. 14 police motor vehicles, one police helicopter and four police motorcycles were deployed.

Manor Lodge Approved Premises

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offenders Manor Lodge Approved Premises in Old Windsor could accommodate (a) before and (b) after refurbishment; and what percentage of sex offenders could be accommodated in each case. [77655]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information is as follows:

(a) Manor Lodge Approved Premises could accommodate 22 offenders prior to refurbishment.

(b) After refurbishment the Approved Premises could accommodate 24 offenders.

(c) The number of sex offenders accommodated in any Approved Premises, formerly bail and probation hostels, will vary at any one time.

Mohammad Sidique Khan

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what information his Department received from the United States Administration on Mohammad Sidique Khan; and on what dates; [79817]

(2) whether his Department was informed by US authorities that Mohammad Sidique Khan was barred from entering the United States. [80011]

Mr. McNulty: It is our policy not to comment on speculation about specific intelligence matters.

Offenders (Licensed Release)

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offenders on licence have been given permission to travel abroad in each of the last 12 months. [79598]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Passports

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what rules the Passport Office applies regarding the length of names. [80036]

Joan Ryan: The space available for the data fields on the personal details page of the passport is limited by International Civil Aviation Organisation standards. In the British passport this allows 30 characters for the surname plus 30 characters for forenames. Longer names are abbreviated on the personal details page and shown in full on the observations page.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2006, Official Report, column 1319W, on passports, whether other biometrics will be stored on the Passport Agency Support System; and if he will make a statement. [79043]

Joan Ryan: The Passport Agency Support System (PASS) only stores the facial image of the passport holder. In the future additional biometrics such as finger images will be collected. There are no current plans for these to be stored in PASS; an evaluation is in progress to decide the most suitable technical architecture solution for this purpose.

Police

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to his written ministerial statement of 21 March 2006, Official Report, column 15WS, on police force restructuring, when he expects to make a report to the House on plans to restructure police forces in the South West. [71379]

Mr. McNulty: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary, announced on 19 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1057-62, that he would not be laying any orders for Home Secretary-initiated police force mergers before the summer recess. This will allow for further discussion and dialogue with police forces and police authorities on the best way forward, including in the South West.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many dogs were deployed by (a) Essex police, (b) the Metropolitan police, (c) City of London police and (d) Hertfordshire constabulary in each of the last five years for which information is available, broken down by type; for what purpose they were employed by each force; what the cost of keeping the dogs was in each year in each case; and how many dog handlers were employed by each force in each year. [80178]

Mr. McNulty: Information for the number of dog handlers employed by each force is given in the table.

Police officers and staff (fte)[1] who based on their primary function are recorded as being dog handlers[2]

	31 March
	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
Essex	45	46	46	45	48
Hertfordshire	29	28	28	26	26
London, City of	15	17	18	17	18
Metropolitan police	226	201	192	221	229

[1] This table includes full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number.
[2] Dog handlers includes those staff employed for general policing, drugs and explosive detection duties. Figures are based on the primary role/function of staff, including those staff with multiple responsibilities.

The other information that has been requested is not collected centrally.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance has been issued on the circumstances in which it is appropriate for a police officer to use a caution for the first offence of a person exceeding the speed limit, rather than pressing charges; and if he will make a statement. [80179]

Mr. McNulty: Where a driver is detected committing a speeding offence it is an operational matter for the police to decide what action to take in the circumstances of that particular case. A number of courses are possible, including no further action, oral warning, caution, fixed penalty or report for prosecution.

The Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) has issued Speed Enforcement Guidelines, available on the ACPO website (www.acpo.police.uk). Elements of this guidance are also included in a section on speed enforcement in the Home Office's Revised Guidance on the Operation of the Fixed Penalty System for Offences in Respect of a Vehicle, available on the Home Office website, www.homeoffice.gov.uk. These documents provide guidance only and do not replace police discretion in individual cases.

Prison Service

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will make a statement on the (a) timing and (b) conclusions of the most recent review by the director of personnel at HM Prison Service on the arrangements for dealing with investigations under Prison Service Order 1300; [78089]

(2) when the Prison Service Management Board last reviewed the arrangements for investigations under Prison Service Order 1300; and what the conclusions of the board were. [78090]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The last formal review of PSO 1300 was carried out, under the direction of the deputy director general, in early 2003. As a result of this review, a revised version of PSO 1300 was published on 19 June 2003. In May 2005, the Prison Service Management Board asked the directorate of personnel to review Prison Service Order 8460, Conduct and Discipline. This review is still ongoing.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what role the Prison Service London area manager has in relation to the multi-agency public protection arrangements strategic management boards that fall within his area. [78091]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1846W.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what checks are made by Prison Service area offices to ensure that data submitted for the purpose of performance management are correct; and if he will make a statement. [78127]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Area offices are responsible for ensuring the accuracy of performance management data. New guidance has been issued which sets out with greater clarity what must be recorded. The data are collated monthly and are discussed when area managers visit establishments and at their regular bilateral meetings with the director of operations. The data will continue to be validated by line management controls and by both a self-audit process and independent audit.

Prisons

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the investigation of the previous governor of HM Prison Brixton; what the nature was of the (a) allegation and (b) investigation; and what the reason was for the subsequent transfer to the Home Office. [78197]

Mr. Sutcliffe: It would be inappropriate to comment while an investigation is ongoing.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether (a) escape from closed prisons and (b) absconding from open prisons are criminal offences; and what the penalties are for escaping from each type of prison. [79619]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Escape from lawful custody is an indictable offence at common law, punishable by an unlimited fine or imprisonment.

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people are in prison, broken down by (a) length of sentence and (b) category of offence; and what the date was of the most recent prison population data capture. [79848]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The most recent published data on (a) length of sentence and (b) category of offence, are for the prison population as at the end of April 2006 and can be found on the Home Office website at http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs06/prisapr06.pdf, tables 1 and 2.

Public Disorder

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offenders were found guilty of (a) drunken and disorderly behaviour and (b) drunken and aggravated behaviour in (i) England, (ii) Bury St. Edmunds constituency and (iii) the Suffolk county council area in each year since 1997. [79396]

Mr. Coaker: Data from the Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform showing how many offenders were found guilty of drunkenness offences in England and Suffolk police force area are in the following table. We are unable to provide convictions for Bury St. Edmunds constituency, as the data are not available at the level of detail required.

Figures for 2005 will be available in the autumn of 2006.

Railway/Underground Crime

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes have been reported at each London Underground station in each of the last five years. [76399]

Derek Twigg: I have been asked to reply.

	Notifiable offences	Million passenger journeys	Offences/ million passenger journey
2001-02[1]	13,746	953	14.42
2002-03	17,360	942	18.42
2003-04	17,490	948	18.45
2004-05	17,394	976	17.82
2005-06[2]	17,124	971	17.63

[1] 2001-02 data cannot be meaningful compared with subsequent years as on 1 April 2002 the BTP adopted the National Crime Recording Standard (NCRS) which saw an increase in recorded crime, equating to an average 22 per cent. increase recorded by all police forces across England and Wales.
[2] The 2005-06 figure for notifiable offences includes 231 offences committed on 7 July 2005.

A table providing data broken down by each London Underground station has been placed in the Library of the House.

Reoffending

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the possible correlation between re-offending rates and participation by inmates in an enhanced thinking skills course in prison; and if he will make a statement. [78198]

Mr. Sutcliffe: There is considerable evidence, originating mainly from North America, to support the effectiveness of offending behaviour programmes in reducing re-offending (McGuire, 2002; Pearson et. al., 2002; Lipton, et. al., 1998). However, UK research examining the effectiveness of the Enhanced Thinking Skills programme in prisons has produced mixed results. An evaluation of the programme before it was accredited found that reconviction fell considerably after treatment (Friendship et. al., 2002). Further studies since accreditation have found no differences in reconvictions between programme participants and matched comparison groups (Falshaw et. al., 2003; Cann et. al., 2003). These findings might be explained by differences in programme delivery and implementation or research design limitations. The current Home Office research programme includes further research on the effectiveness of offending behaviour programmes based on more effective and rigorous research designs.

Road Deaths (Police Investigation)

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) average and (b) longest time taken for a police investigation into a road death was in each of the last 10 years. [79831]

Mr. McNulty: This information is not generally recorded by the police. Incidents are dealt with in accordance with the "Road Death Investigation Manual", published by the Association of Chief Police Officers. The investigation and its duration will, however, vary according to the specific circumstances of the incident concerned and the issues raised.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what sanctions are available to the police to use against (a) individuals, (b) organisations and (c) councils who do not fully co-operate and disclose all information requested in connection with police investigations into road accidents that result in death; and how often such sanctions were applied in each of the last 10 years. [79832]

Mr. McNulty: Generally, anyone who resists or wilfully obstructs a constable in the exercise of his duty is guilty of an offence under section 89(2), Police Act 1996. As regards motoring offences, including those which may have resulted in a fatal accident, the police are empowered under section 172, Road Traffic Act 1988 to ask the registered vehicle keeper who was driving it at the time, and it is an offence not to give that information if possible. Under section 99, Transport Act 1968, the police can examine and copy records relating to commercial vehicles and their drivers. It is an offence not to provide those records, which may provide information relevant to an accident investigation, or to obstruct the police. Details of the circumstances in which police exercise these powers and in which offences are committed are not recorded.

Road Safety

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many convictions there have been for persons using hand-held mobile telephones while driving in each year since the regulation came into force, broken down by constabulary. [80424]

Mr. Coaker: Available information on fixed penalty notices relating to all offences of obstruction, waiting and parking within the Staffordshire police force area during the calendar years 2000 to 2004 (latest available) is given in the table. It is not possible from the data collected centrally to identify the Trent Valley Division within the geographical area covered by the Staffordshire police force.

Information for 2005 will be available early in 2007.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) burglaries, (b) offences involving violence against the person, (c) sexual offences and (d) car and property crimes there were in rural areas in each year since 1997. [78202]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is given in the tables. The 13 forces are: Cambridgeshire, Cumbria, Devon and Cornwall, Durham, Dyfed-Powys, Gloucestershire, Lincolnshire, Norfolk, North Yorkshire, North Wales, West Mercia and Wiltshire.

Further details regarding ACORN classifications are given in Appendix B of Home Office Statistical Bulletin 01/02 entitled "Rural Crime". A copy of this publication is available on the Home Office website at:

Security Service Act

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the operation of the Security Service Act 1989; what recent representations he has received about the operation of this Act; and whether he has plans to amend this Act. [80276]

Mr. McNulty: I have received no representations on the operation of the Security Service Act 1989 and there are no plans to amend it at present.

Terrorism Act

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people (a) arrested, (b) charged and (c) convicted under the Terrorism Act 2000 were (i) Muslim, (ii) British and (iii) foreign. [79055]

Mr. McNulty: Statistics on arrests, charges and convictions under the Terrorism Act (2000) are available on the Home Office website: www.homeoffice.gov.uk/security/terrorism-and-the-law/terrorism-act

These statistics are provided by the police and are not broken down in the way requested.

Travel Documentation (Ireland-England)

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the documentation requirements are for a British citizen wishing to travel between England and the Republic of Ireland. [79961]

Joan Ryan: Travel between the UK and Ireland is subject to the provisions of the Common Travel Area (CTA). Section 1(3) of the Immigration Act 1971 gives the CTA full statutory basis in UK legislation and allows for control-free travel for British citizens to or from Ireland. The only documentation requirements that British citizens may encounter are those imposed by travel operators as part of their conditions of carriage and/or those imposed by the Irish Government on arrival in Ireland.

Young Offenders

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the average cost of (a) keeping a non-violent young offender in prison, broken down by prison category, and (b) alternatives to custody of non-violent young offenders was in each of the last five years. [78646]

(2) what the total cost to his Department of (a) keeping non-violent young offenders in prison and (b) alternatives to custody of non-violent young offenders was for each of the last five years. [78647]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Prison Service does not collect cost data in the format requested.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research his Department has undertaken on comparative recidivism rates of alternatives to custody and imprisonment for (a) non-violent young offenders and (b) non-violent offenders. [78649]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Re-offending rates for adults and juveniles, including re-offending rates by disposal, are published annually on the Home Office website. The latest reports are:

"Re-offending of adults: results from the 2002 cohort" (Home Office Statistical Bulletin 25/05) and

"Re-offending of juveniles: results from the 2004 cohort" (Home Office Statistical Bulletin 10/06).

Re-offending rates vary considerably by type of disposal and some of this can be explained by the differences in the characteristics of offenders given each disposal. For instance, the number of previous offences is one of the key indicators for predicting re-offending and these differ substantially between disposals. For reasons such as this, the rates cannot be used to judge the effectiveness of different sentences. Analysis of re-offending by disposal is discussed further on pages seven to nine of the report on adults and pages eight to 10 of the report on juveniles.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what date Lee Wagstaff died in HM Young Offenders Institution Hindley; what his age was at the time of death; and what the (a) date and (b) result was of the coroner's inquest. [79864]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Lee Wagstaff tragically died at HMYOI Hindley on 17 January 1997, aged 17. The coroner's inquest was held on 24 March 1998, and the jury returned a unanimous verdict that the deceased had taken his own life while the balance of his mind was disturbed.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children with an assessment of vulnerability were sent to young offenders' institutions in 2004-05. [79865]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Figures provided by the Youth Justice Board for England and Wales show that during the period April 2004—March 2005 the number of young people who were assessed as vulnerable by a youth offending team and subsequently placed in a young offenders' institution was 3,370.

WALES

Departmental Finance Director

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of his Department. [80074]

Mr. Hain: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 15 June 2006, Official Report, column 1347. The Director of the Wales Office accounts for its expenditure as an Additional Accounting Officer to the Accounting Officer for the Department for Constitutional Affairs (DCA). The Office has no accountancy-qualified finance director but calls on finance and accounting expertise from DCA as need be.

PRIME MINISTER

Iraq

Mr. Harper: To ask the Prime Minister on which dates since February 2006 he has visited British soldiers injured in Iraq; and what locations were visited on each occasion. [80691]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave the hon. Member on 27 February 2006, Official Report, column 36W.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefits

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the administration cost was of each of the benefits administered by his Department and the agencies for which his Department is responsible in each of the last five years. [78006]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested on administration costs of each benefit is not available in the format requested.

The latest available data on administrative costs, taken from the published accounts of each agency (net of income) is as noted below. No entry in a column indicates a period before the Department became responsible for the agency or before it was created. Figures for 2005-06 are not yet available.

£ million

	Outturn
Agency	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05
Child Support	290	294	323	326
Appeals Service	61	63	73	66
Jobcentre Plus	—	2,951	3,042	3,148
Pension Service	—	513	761	831
Disability and Carers Service (Part Year)	—	—	—	120
Rent Service	—	—	—	39

The administration costs for Jobcentre Plus also include the costs of administering labour market activities. The costs for the Pension Service also include the costs of delivering Pensions Forecasts.

The major benefits administered by each Agency are as follows:

Agency	Benefits
Jobcentre Plus	Jobseekers allowance, incapacity benefit, income support and social fund
Pension Service	State pension and pension credit
Disability and Carers Service	Disability living allowance, carers allowance and attendance allowance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the reasons for the low take-up rate of council tax benefit; and if he will make a statement. [78156]

Mr. Plaskitt: The latest estimates of the take-up of council tax benefit can be found in the DWP report entitled "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up in 2003-04".

This publication contains analysis of the characteristics of those entitled to but not receiving council tax benefit (CTB). Where appropriate, the analysis contrasts the characteristics of those identified as entitled, but not in receipt, with those of recipients of CTB, and explores some of the possible causes of non-take-up.

Copies of the report are available in the Library.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the level of fraud and error in housing benefit was in each year since 1996-97; and if he will make a statement. [77945]

Mr. Plaskitt: The most recent available housing benefit fraud and error estimates are in the table.

Housing benefit fraud and error estimates: amount and proportion of expenditure: Great Britain

	2002-03		2003-04		2004-05
	Amount (£ million)	Percentage	Amount (£ million)	Percentage	Amount (£ million)	Percentage
Official error	140	1.1	150	1.2	150	1.1
Customer error	240	1.9	280	2.2	360	2.7
Customer fraud	250	1.9	170	1.4	170	1.3
Total	630	5.0	600	4.8	680	5.2

Notes:
1. Totals and proportions may not sum due to rounding.
2. These figures are estimated using reviews of around 85 per cent. of HB expenditure (used for measuring performance against the relevant PSA target to reduce fraud and error in HB) together with more approximate estimates of error in the remaining 15 per cent. of expenditure. For further details on this, please see the relevant National Statistics reports in the "Fraud and Error in Housing Benefit" series. These are available in the Library and online at: http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd2/fraud_hb/fraud_hb.asp.
3. Previous estimates were carried out for 1997-98, but a different methodology was used so they are not comparable. No estimates are available for other years.

Financial Assistance Scheme

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the Department expects all those eligible under the financial assistance scheme to have received payment; and if he will make a statement. [78292]

James Purnell: Members do not generally receive payments until they are 65. With the extension of the financial assistance scheme to members of qualifying schemes who were within 15 years of their scheme pension age on 14 May 2004, all eligible members with scheme pension ages of 65 should have received their first payment by May 2019, while all of those with scheme pension ages of 60 should have received their first payment by May 2024.

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many potential recipients of assistance through the financial assistance scheme he estimates will also receive deemed buy-back of contracted out rebates. [78309]

James Purnell: This information is not available. To date only a small number of schemes and members have qualified and opted for deemed buyback, so there is insufficient data on which to base an estimate.

Jobcentre Plus

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the introduction of the Employer Relationship Management System to Jobcentre Plus. [76511]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about the introduction of the Employer Relationship Management System to Jobcentre Plus. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The Employer Relationship Management (ERM) database is due to be introduced to Jobcentre Plus during Summer 2006. The new database brings together other databases currently used by Jobcentre Plus, such as the Labour Market System and the Marketing Access Database. Approximately 3000 staff who engage with employers will use the database to access and manage employer information, allowing them to work with current and potential employers more effectively to identify the right type of vacancies at the right time.

I hope this is helpful.

Medical Assessments

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of medical assessments for (a) disability living allowance, (b) attendance allowance, (c) industrial injuries disablement benefit and (d) incapacity benefit have been appealed in each of the last five years. [76882]

Vera Baird: I have been asked to reply.

The information you asked for is not available in the format requested as data is collected by benefit type rather than by whether a medical assessment was carried out.

The following table gives details of the total number of appeals received for disability living allowance, attendance allowance, industrial injuries disablement benefit and incapacity benefit over the last five years.

Appeals received by the Appeals Service, March 2001 to February 2006

March to February:	Incapacity benefit, without PCA	Incapacity benefit, with PCA	Attendance allowance	Disability living allowance	Industrial injuries disablement benefit	Total

2005-06	7,230	56,660	7,250	80,750	11,630	163,510

Notes:
1. All figures are subject to change as more up-to-date data become available.
2. Figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
3. PCA = Personal Capability Assessment.
4. These data are drawn from management information and should not be used in conjunction with sample statistics drawn from the benefit administration systems.

Pension Credit

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate the Department has made of the amount that will be spent on pension credit for the 125,000 people who lost occupational pension rights from schemes that started to wind up before 6 April 2005; and if he will make a statement. [78412]

James Purnell: It is not possible to estimate the amount that will be spent on pension credit for the 125,000 people who lost occupational pension rights from schemes that started to wind up before April 2005. Information on the individual circumstances of these people is not available.

Pensions

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many former Allied Steel and Wire workers are forecast to receive (a) 80 per cent., (b) 65 per cent., (c) 50 per cent. and (d) none of their expected occupational pension under the recently announced changes to the financial assistance scheme; and if he will make a statement. [78290]

James Purnell: We do not hold information on the ages or pension entitlements of members of the ASW pension scheme and therefore we are unable to estimate the number of individuals eligible.

Post Office Card Accounts (Northamptonshire)

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the take up of the Post Office card account in Northamptonshire. [79563]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested.

Information showing the number of DWP benefit and pension payment accounts paid by direct payment into a Post Office card account for each parliamentary constituency has been placed in the Library.

Sure Start

Joan Ruddock: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many women have received a Sure Start maternity grant in (a) England, (b) Lewisham, Deptford constituency and (c) Lewisham borough in each of the last two years. [79147]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested. Such information as is available is in the table.

Number of sure start maternity grant awards

	England	South east London Jobcentre Plus district
2004-05	203,480	3,240
2005-06	205,750	3,590

Notes:
1. Data are not available by parliamentary constituency or local authority but only by Jobcentre Plus District.
2. In 2004-05 and 2005-06, both Lewisham Deptford parliamentary constituency and Lewisham borough were part of south east London Jobcentre Plus district.
3. Figures are for all awards, irrespective of whether the award was made to the mother or her partner.
4. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 10.

Unemployed Disabled People, Southend

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many disabled people are registered as unemployed in the Southend, West constituency; what encouragement his Department is giving to find them jobs; and if he will make a statement. [80182]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Since 1997 the overall employment rate in the Southend West constituency has increased by 6.9 percentage points to 81.9 per cent., higher than the national average.

Specific information on the number of disabled people registered as unemployed in the constituency is not available. However the number of disabled International Labour Organisation unemployed in East of England aged 16 or over is 30,646.

A 'Pathways to Work' pilot has been operating in Essex since April 2004 providing encouragement, advice and support to disabled people to prepare them for their return to work. So far this has produced 2,710 job entries.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Affordable Housing

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to encourage the provision of affordable housing for key public sector workers in Coventry, South. [79822]

Yvette Cooper: The Key Worker Living programme does not currently operate in the West Midlands. In the West Midlands £148.3 million has been allocated by the Housing Corporation for housing schemes to start in 2006-08. They will provide 3,917 new affordable homes, of which 255 will be in Coventry.

Of the 255 homes being provided in Coventry, 132 will be for social rent, eligibility for which will be decided by the local authority through their nomination procedures. The remaining 123 will be for low cost home ownership. Key public sector workers will be eligible for these units alongside social tenants, those on the housing register and first time buyers prioritised for assistance by regional housing boards.

Brownfield Development

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 22 May 2006, Official Report, columns 1387-8W, on brownfield development, what the figures are for 2005 as derived from the Land Use Change Statistics 21. [80712]

Yvette Cooper: The latest LUCS show that in 2005, on a provisional estimate, 73 per cent. of new dwellings, including conversions, were built on previously developed land.

Of the dwellings built on previously developed land in 2005, 21 per cent. were on land that was previously used for residential purposes (which includes buildings and the land associated with those buildings). This is 14 per cent. of all new dwellings built, a slight reduction from 15 per cent. in 2004.

Further to the answer on 22 May 2006, the tables set out LUCS data from 1986. From 1986-88 the data was collected on small sample sizes and is therefore not comparable to the later data. From 1989 the figures have been collected on a comparable basis.

Building Regulations

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many builders have been prosecuted since 1997 for non-compliance with environmental building regulations. [79385]

Angela E. Smith: As building control is a fully devolved service under the Building Act 1984, no central records are kept of prosecutions arising from non-compliance with building regulations.

City Regions Programme

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding will be allocated to the city regions programme. [79438]

Mr. Woolas: Following the round of "Your City, Your Future" summits held last autumn, the eight core cities were invited to prepare business cases setting out what changes they wish to see to enable improved economic performance across their city-region. Discussions with the core cities are ongoing and we are giving careful consideration to their business case proposals. The evidence and findings to emerge from our work with the core cities will feed into the Treasury led cross cutting review of sub-national economic development and regeneration ahead of the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review.

Civil Servants (Expenses)

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the expenditure has been on temporary overnight accommodation in London for civil servants in her Department and its predecessors in each year since 1997. [78360]

Angela E. Smith: Since 2002 my Department has spent the following on temporary overnight accommodation in London for civil servants.

	Total expense (£)
2006-07 (To date)	11,832.54
2005-06	74,351.45
2004-05	101,380.39
2003-04	95,135.24
2002-03	88,047.06

The information is not readily available for the period 1997 to 2002 because the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was not created until that year.

Coalfield Regeneration Trust

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to reply to question 64451, on the Coalfield Regeneration Trust, tabled on 12 April by the hon. Member for Bassetlaw. [80867]

Yvette Cooper: I answered my hon. Friend's question on 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 125W.

Councillors

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when elected councillors are informed by the Standards Board that a complaint has been made against them. [79378]

Mr. Woolas: A local authority member is informed by the Standards Board that an allegation has been made against him following the Board's decision on whether or not to refer the case for investigation. The average time taken by the Board from the receipt of the allegation to making a decision on whether or not to investigate it is currently nine working days, which exceeds the Board's performance target for this of 10 working days.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many full-time equivalent staff her Department will employ; and how many the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister employed in each year that it existed. [70584]

Angela E. Smith: The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was formed on 29 May 2002. The number of full-time equivalent staff in post at the 31 March in each subsequent year is shown in the table.

Permanent staff in ODPM

31 March	Full-time equivalents
2003	2,221.2
2005	2,465.8

Projected staffing levels for the Department of Communities and Local Government by 31 March 2007 are 2,190 full-time equivalents. However, these estimates are expected to change following the transfer of some work and staff from the Department of Trade and Industry and the Home Office to the Department as part of the machinery of government changes announced in May.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many civil servants from her Department work in 26 Whitehall; and which divisions are based there. [78653]

Angela E. Smith: There are currently 37 staff from the Department for Communities and Local Government in 26 Whitehall as shown in the following table:

Unit	Number of staff
Corporate Strategy and Resources Group	28
Ministerial Group	9
Total	37

All these staff will be moving to Eland House in the next few months.

Equal Pay

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many (a) women and (b) men are employed in the Department; what the average pay was for (i) women and (ii) men in the Department in (1) 1997 and (2) 2006; what women's average pay is as a percentage of men's average pay; and how many (A) women and (B) men the Department employed in each of the last five years, broken down by grade. [67793]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

The Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was formed on 29 May 2002. Figures for years before the creation of ODPM are not available. The following table shows the number of men and women employed in ODPM on the 31 March between 2003 and 2005 by grade.

www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/statistics/employment/index.asp

The following table shows median salaries for men and women and women's median pay as a percentage of men's median pay in March 2003 and March 2006.

Fire Service

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if the Minister with responsibility for the fire service will meet (a) Southend and (b) Essex fire service trade unions to discuss the regionalisation of fire service control rooms; and if she will make a statement. [80173]

Angela E. Smith: I have already agreed to meet the FBU regional secretary for the East of England to discuss the rationalisation of fire and rescue service control rooms.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with the fire brigade's trade unions about the regionalisation of the fire service control rooms; and if she will make a statement. [80175]

Angela E. Smith: Over the last year Ministers have met staff representative bodies (including the FBU, Retained Firelighters Union, Fire Officers Association, Association of Principal Fire Officers, Unison, GMB and others) from the fire and rescue service on a range of issues, including the FiReControl project. Regular contact with those bodies will continue.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many large outbreaks of fire there were in (a) Southend, West constituency, (b) Essex, (c) Hertfordshire and (d) Greater London in each of the last eight years; and if she will make a statement. [80176]

Angela E. Smith: The available information covers parts (b)-(d) of the question. Information on Southend, West constituency is not available centrally.

A large outbreak of fire has been taken to be a fire attended by five or more pumping appliances.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of staff employed at fire service control rooms who will be made redundant as a result of the planned regionalisation; and if she will make a statement. [80249]

Angela E. Smith: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my then colleague, the Member for Bow and Poplar (Jim Fitzpatrick) to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 2 December 2005, Official Report, column 797W.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on the operation of the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004; and what recent representations she has received on the operation of this Act. [80250]

Angela E. Smith: The Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004 has been in operation for less than two years, and the benefits of the move to prevention based fire and rescue services are already evident. Provisional figures for the year to June 2005 show significant decreases in the number of deaths and injuries, the number of primary fires and the number of deliberate fires. In England, by comparison to the previous year, there has been a 21 per cent. fall in deaths in accidental dwelling fires. The number of fires to which the fire and rescue service were called fell by 25 per cent. Within the primary fires category, there was a fall of 7 per cent. in the total number of building fires including a 10 per cent. decrease in non-domestic building fires (i.e. commercial premises, schools, etc.). Deliberate primary fires fell by 20 per cent. That is a tribute to the way our fire and rescue services have exercised their duties and powers under the Act.

The Government have received representations about charging by fire and rescue services for non-fire-fighting related work; operation of Integrated Risk Management Planning (IRMP) under the National Framework; and about the 24 hour delay on powers on entry to domestic premises for fire investigation purposes. On charging, the matters for which fire and rescue authorities may charge are set out in The Fire and Rescue Services (England) Order 2004. We keep that under review and will consult on any changes that we propose. For the National Framework we have recognised that it can assist fire and rescue services in forward planning if the framework has a longer life than one year. We have therefore introduced a two-year Framework for 2006-08 following consultation with the Fire and Rescue Service. Finally on fire investigation, the powers available to the fire and rescue authorities are at least equivalent to those available to the police. Nonetheless, we are considering the points made in conjunction with the Arson Control Forum.

Flag Flying

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many days since May 1997 the St. George's flag has been flown from her Department's buildings. [77745]

Angela E. Smith: The Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) was created on 5 May 2006.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) issue the guidance for flying flags on Government buildings. This includes recommending flying the St. George's Flag on St. George's Day, 23 April, on buildings with two or more flag poles, provided it is flown alongside the Union Flag with the Union Flag in the superior position.

Eland House has a second flag pole and the St. George's flag will be flown on 23 April in future, in line with DCMS recommendation.

Government Office for London

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many staff were employed in the Government Office for London at each civil service grade in each of the last 10 years. [77113]

[1] Prior to 2005 GOL staffing figures were calculated as those staff working in GOL on GOL business. Figures did not include those seconded into GOL who were paid for by their own employer.
[2] Figures up to April 2005 do not include staff on outward secondment, outward loan, maternity leave, special leave, and career breaks for whom we did not pay but who had a right of return to GOL in the future.
[3] March.
[4] Due to the outsourcing of the HR function for all Government Offices and the move to a central database, staffing figures are now calculated as those staff working in GOL on GOL business and on GOL's payroll. In addition, figures include staff on outward secondment, outward loan, maternity leave, special leave, and career breaks for whom we do not pay but who have a right of return to GOL in the future.
[5] Prior to 2003 SCS figures were not recorded centrally in GOL but held by parent departments.

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what projects were managed by the Government Office for London in each year 1996 to 2006; and what the total funding for each project was. [77188]

Angela E. Smith: The Government Office for London (GOL) delivers policies and programmes on behalf of 10 central Government Departments. Programme expenditure figures are available from 1998-99 onwards. I have placed in the Library of the House of Commons tables showing a detailed breakdown of GOL's programme expenditure from 1998-99 to 2004-05, and for the 2005-06 budget (for which final outturn figures are not yet available). The tables make clear that not all programmes are directly delegated to GOL for allocation, but GOL is involved in the delivery and management of them.

	Expenditure (£)
1998-99	1,439,600,000
1999-00	2,202,000,000
2000-01	1,605,269,000
2001-02	2,094,276,000
2002-03	2,529,631,000

Government Office for the North-East

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many whole-time equivalent staff there are in Government Office North East; how many there were in each year since 2001; and what staff reductions are projected in the next three years. [75252]

Angela E. Smith: The figures for whole-time equivalent staff in the Government Office for the North East for each year since 2001 is:

April each year	Number
2001	267
2002	286
2003	274
2004	335
2005	331
2006	298

It is expected that the number of staff will reduce by around a third by the end of 2008, compared to the 2004 figure.

Government Office for the West Midlands

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what strategies for sustainable development the Government Office for the West Midlands has in place. [79967]

Angela E. Smith: The Government's commitment to sustainable development in the regions is set out in "Securing the Regions' Futures, strengthening delivery of sustainable development in the English regions", launched on 25 April 2006. The Government Office for the West Midlands is currently considering, in conjunction with Regional Partners, how it will take this work forward, in particular:

"leading by example, to ensure that sustainable development principles are embedded in the way that we work across all our business as well as in partnership with others, making sustainable development one of our key challenges but one which is central to our new more strategic purpose as set out in the Government Office Review"—(Securing the Regions' Futures, Strengthening delivery of sustainable development in the English regions; p25)

Regional partners are responsible for the development of strategies, in particular the Regional Sustainable Development Framework (RSDF), which provide a framework for sustainable development in the West Midlands. The current RSDF was launched in January 2005. The Government Office for the West Midlands has actively supported and challenged partners to develop and use the RSDF in the development of regional and sub regional policies. It has been, or is being, used in the development of the Regional Housing Strategy, the Regional Rural Delivery Framework, the review of the Regional Economic Strategy and the Phase 1 review of the Regional Spatial Strategy, as well as a range of sub regional policies and plans.

A revised version of the RSDF, that incorporates lessons learned from the use of version 1, has been the subject of public consultation and the final document is in preparation.

The Regional Concordat is also being revised, led by the West Midlands Regional Assembly and supported by partners, including GOWM. This is a framework for partnership working and has sustainable development as one of its central tenets.

Sustainability West Midlands is the equivalent of a regional round table. Regional partners, including the Government Office for the West Midlands, have been very active in supporting and promoting its role as a regional champion for sustainable development. It has worked to embed sustainable development thinking into policy making and to develop the links between policy and practice through a wide range of projects.

The Regional Spatial Strategy for the West Midlands was issued as Regional Planning Guidance for the West Midlands (RPG11) in June 2004 on behalf of the Secretary of State by the Government Office for the West Midlands. A number of local authorities within the region have either prepared or are preparing their local development frameworks as part of the local planning process. These frameworks will include policies on sustainable development at the local level. The drafts seen to date have used the RSDF as a tool to help develop their policies.

Home Inspectors

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how a home inspector will be required to prove that he has valid professional indemnity insurance at the time he produced the report; what discussions the Government have had with the insurance industry to ensure that it will provide such insurance to qualified inspectors; what the expected cost is of professional indemnity insurance to an individual inspector; and whether the Government plan to give grants or loans to inspectors to help pay for professional indemnity insurance. [75417]

Yvette Cooper: In order to be approved by the Secretary of State, certification schemes will be required to have robust systems in place to ensure that Home Condition Reports (HCRs) are covered by indemnity insurance, before they are lodged on the central register.

Discussions have been held with insurers and underwriters covering 60 per cent. of the market volume for insurance for existing residential surveyors to ensure that indemnity insurance will be available for home inspectors. Further discussions are under way in the commercial sector to ensure that costs are kept to a minimum.

It is too early for insurers to quote costs but we anticipate that the cost for existing practitioners will be similar to that which applies now.

Home inspectors will be expected to pay for indemnity insurance, as is the case with chartered surveyors at present.

Housing (Luton)

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make an assessment of the impact on equalities of recent budget decisions by Luton council. [80520]

Meg Munn: Public authorities are legally responsible for assessing the impact on equalities of their own policies (including decisions that revise a policy) and functions. The Commission for Racial Equality has powers of enforcement if the Commission is of the view that a public authority has not complied with the duty to promote race equality. Otherwise it is for a public authority itself, in this case Luton council, to demonstrate how its decisions take account of the duty and this is subject to audit.

Living Naze Community Project

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what correspondence her Department has had with the East of England Development Agency concerning the Living Naze community project in Walton-on-the-Naze. [76352]

Yvette Cooper: There has been no correspondence between the Department for Communities and Local Government and the East of England Development Agency concerning the Living Naze community project in Walton-on-the-Naze.

Local Government

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many written representations her Department has received from (a) district and (b) county councils calling for unitary status. [70570]

Mr. Woolas: Our records show receipt of over 60 written representations in favour of the principle of unitary local government—24 from district council members and officers and eight from county council members and officers.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Government has paid in subsidy to each local authority since 2002. [79379]

Mr. Woolas: A table detailing the amount of central Government grant paid to each local authority since 2002-03 has been made available in the Library of the House.

The data are taken from Revenue Summary (RS) returns for 2002-03 to 2004-05.

Central Government grant is defined here as the sum of Specific grants inside Aggregate External Finance (AEF), General GLA grant and Formula grant (Revenue Support Grant, Redistributed business rates and Police Grant).

Specific grants inside Aggregate External Finance are those revenue grants paid for councils' core services (such as waste collection), excluding funding for local authorities' housing management, and can be paid to any type of authority.

Combined Fire authorities did not receive Formula grant until they became major precepting authorities on 1 April 2004. Waste and waste disposal authorities and Passenger Transport Authorities do not directly receive Formula grant but receive levy income from their constituent authorities. They may, however, receive some specific grants. National Park Authorities do not receive Formula grant but receive specific grants, except Lee Valley Regional Park Authority, which receives levy income from its constituent authorities.

Comparisons across years may not be valid due to changing local authority responsibilities.

The information excludes those grant programmes, such as European funding, where authorities are simply one of the recipients of funding paid towards an area.

Local Government Staff (Salaries)

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average annual wage was of (a) local government chief executives in England and (b) local government workers in each year since 1997. [79879]

Mr. Woolas: The requested information has been calculated from information provided by the Office for National Statistics (ONS) and Local Government Employers (LGE) Organisation and is shown in the following table:

	Chief Executives[1, 3, 6]	Local government services[2, 3, 4, 5]
1997	64,628	—
1998	69,690	—
1999	74,653	17,452
2000	78,815	18,345
2001	82,320	18,856
2002	87,857	19,512
2003	96,699	20,264

[2] Source: ONS: Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE), Table 19.7a, full-time employees, Local authority single status national agreement group, 1999-2004.
[3] England only figures are not available. The Chief Executive figures are for England and Wales and the Local Government Services figures are for England, Wales and Northern Ireland. However, as England is the dominant member of the groupings it is unlikely that the trends would differ if the figures were for England only.
[4] ASHE only collected annual earnings figures from 1999 onwards.
[5] ASHE figures cover earnings rather than basic pay, they are available for earnings less overtime but not for basic pay only.
[6] The Chief Executive figures cover basic salary. Basic salaries are often enhanced by a range of additional bonuses which may include other remunerations such as performance related pay, market supplement, long service supplement, evening meeting allowance and car allowances.
[7] 2004 figures are provisional due to an ONS methodology review.
[8] 2005 figures are not yet available from this source.

Local Strategic Partnerships

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to ensure that local strategic partnerships play a leading role in the reduction of (a) criminal and (b) antisocial behaviour in their areas. [78330]

Mr. Woolas: In the recent consultation on the future of local strategic partnerships, LSP were positioned as the overarching partnership in an area that would bring all relevant service deliverers together. In order for this to work effectively the consultation described the LSP as needing to consist of a board, which will determine the priorities for an area through the Local Area Agreement, and a series of thematic sub-partnerships including the Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) which would deliver against these agreed priorities.

The Home Office's recent Crime and Disorder Act review built on this model and gave further emphasis to the strategic leadership role to the LSP in reducing crime and antisocial behaviour through its setting of the LAA targets. Furthermore, all LAAs contain mandatory targets on both crime and antisocial behaviour, which are developed by LSPs.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department receives annual reports by local strategic partnerships on their (a) performance and (b) auditing of expenditure. [79682]

Mr. Woolas: Outside areas receiving Neighbourhood Renewal Funding Local Strategic Partnerships (LSPs) are voluntary partnerships and hence are not monitored on an individual basis by the Department. There are no requirements for LSPs to report to the Secretary of State on their performance. Where a locality has a local area agreement, the LSP, through the local authority, will report on progress to the Government Office on a six-monthly basis. This report is made available to the Secretary of State.

LSPs do not hold funds, funding is held by partner organisations. Any expenditure will be subject to partners' individual audit requirements.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what external monitoring takes place by Government of local strategic partnerships. [80019]

Mr. Woolas: Outside areas receiving Neighbourhood Renewal Funding local strategic partnerships (LSPs) are voluntary partnerships and hence are not monitored on an individual basis by the Department. There are no requirements for LSPs to report to the Secretary of State on their performance. Where a locality has a local area agreement, the LSP, through the local authority, will report on progress to the Government Office on a six-monthly basis. This report is made available to the Secretary of State.

LSPs do not hold funds, funding is held by partner organisations. Any expenditure will be subject to partners individual audit requirements. Local authorities are the accountable body for LAAs.

Since 2004, LSPs in receipt of NRF resources have been required to develop performance management frameworks. This is primarily a self-assessment process. To ensure the process is robust, Government offices have undertaken an annual review, with the outcomes of performance management forming the basis of these reviews. Government offices will provide DCLG with a report on each of the 86 LSPs by 7 July this year.

Mayor of London

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers the Mayor of London has to make unilateral agreements with representatives of foreign countries on the supply of oil; and if she will make a statement. [73646]

Dr. Ladyman: The Mayor of London acting through the Greater London Authority has a general power, under section 30 of the GLA Act 1999, to do anything he considers will further the Authority's principal purposes of promoting economic development and wealth creation, social development, and the improvement of the environment in Greater London. The use of this general power may enable the Mayor to make agreements with foreign countries on specific matters in certain circumstances, subject to other relevant national, EU and international laws.

Pathfinder Schemes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the funding agreement between her Department and each Pathfinder scheme. [70726]

Yvette Cooper: I have placed in the Libraries of both Houses a copy of the funding agreement up to 31 March 2006 between each pathfinder and the Department. We are currently agreeing with the six pathfinders for whom we have announced offers of funding for 2006-08 variations to those funding agreements to cover the period to 31 March 2008.

Public Pensions (Transferability)

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what measures her Department has put in place to assist pension transferability of public pensions for members of the (a) Local Government and (b) Fire Service Pension Schemes. [79771]

Mr. Woolas: On joining the Local Government Pension Scheme (LGPS), a member may request the LGPS fund to accept a transfer value in respect of some or all of his accrued pension rights, from a previous employment. On transferring out of the LGPS, a member is entitled to request a transfer value of his accrued LGPS pension rights, for payment into a new pension scheme.

Similar arrangements are provided for in the Firefighters' Pension Scheme (FPS) and are being provided for in the New Firefighters' Pension Scheme (NFPS).

Special provisions apply to individual transfers between members of the Public Sector Transfer Club under which a transferee will receive equivalent value service credits in the new scheme in respect of service in their former scheme. The LGPS and the FPS are members of the Club and the objective is that the NFPS should also satisfy the requirements to be a member.

Special provisions exist in the LGPS which allow employees transferring out of local government under a best value contracting out arrangement, either to remain in the LGPS in their new employment or to have access to a broadly comparable scheme.

Special Advisers

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government who the special advisers are to each Minister in her Department. [78409]

Angela E. Smith: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has two special advisers: Dan Corry and Julie Crowley. No other Ministers in the Department have special advisers.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what role is played by special advisers in answering parliamentary questions asked of her Department. [80656]

Angela E. Smith: Special advisers conduct themselves in accordance with the requirements of the 'Code of Conduct for Special Advisers'.

Sustainable Buildings

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the number of homes built since 1997 that do not comply with environmental building regulations. [79384]

Angela E. Smith: Post implementation surveys of amendments to the energy efficiency provisions in Part L of the Building Regulations were carried out in 1998 and 2004 respectively. These surveys examined building control submissions to determine methods of compliance but were not designed to count numbers of non-compliances.

The former Office of the Deputy Prime Minister also commissioned air-tightness tests on 55 new dwellings built in compliance with the 2002 requirements and it subsequently received from The Energy Saving Partnership for Homes the results of a further 99 similar tests on other new dwellings.

The results of these tests and surveys influenced the amendment to Part L that came into effect in April 2006 and the ongoing dissemination and training for builders and Building Control Officers.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

1911 Census

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what discussions she has had with the Information Commissioner on releasing the 1911 census records on a county-by-county basis. [80148]

Bridget Prentice: I have had no discussions with the Information Commissioner on releasing the 1911 census records on a county-by-county basis.

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what discussions her Department has had with genealogy and family history organisations on releasing information from the 1911 census on a section-by-section basis. [80149]

Bridget Prentice: The National Archives (TNA), has held discussions with genealogy and family history organisations on TNA's plans for the digitisation and release of the 1911 census, in order to ensure that the end product meets user needs. These groups will continue to be consulted regularly.

Departmental Bills

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what Government Bills sponsored by her Department are still to be introduced during the current Session; and when, and into which House, each will be introduced. [77510]

Bridget Prentice: I refer the hon. Member to the Leader of the House of Commons response dated 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1431W.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many non-pensionable bonuses were awarded to members of her staff in each of the last three years; and at what total cost. [73010]

Bridget Prentice: The departmental cost for the payment of non-pensionable bonuses for the last three years and the percentage figure of the total paybill is set out in the following table.

The figures do not include the magistrates courts staff who became civil servants within this Department on April 2005 and who currently have separate pay arrangements which do not include bonuses.

Financial year	Number of bonuses paid	Cost of non-pensionable bonuses (£)	Percentage of annual paybill
2003-04	5,760	1,351,358	0.4
2004-05	3,361	1,410,448	0.4
2005-06	3,991	1,848,538	0.5

Dr. David Kelly

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will list the occasions since 1 January 2003 when (a) the Lord Chancellor and (b) (i) Ministers and (ii) officials in her Department have met the Oxfordshire coroner. [74469]

Ms Harman: Neither the Lord Chancellor nor any Ministers have met the Oxfordshire coroner. My officials met the Oxfordshire coroner on 11 August 2003 and on 20 March 2006.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to her answer of 3 May 2006, Official Report, column 1664W, on Dr. David Kelly, how the Oxfordshire coroner ascertained reasons for death by the date of issue of the certificate on 18 August 2003. [74493]

Ms Harman: The Oxfordshire coroner informs me that he was able to ascertain reasons for Dr. David Kelly's death from the post mortem report from the Home Office pathologist, Dr. Hunt, and the toxicology report from Dr. Allen. These reports were admitted in evidence in a resumed hearing of the inquest into the death of Dr. Kelly on 14 August 2003.

Hutton Inquiry

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs at what time and on what day (a) the Prime Minister asked the Lord Chancellor to identify a suitable judge to lead the inquiry into the death of Dr. David Kelly and (b) the decision to appoint Lord Hutton was taken. [65227]

Ms Harman: I refer the hon. Member to the press release issued by the Hutton inquiry on 21 July. A copy is available on the Hutton website.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will list the members of the senior judiciary consulted by the Lord Chancellor prior to the appointment of Lord Hutton to investigate the death of Dr. David Kelly. [65241]

Ms Harman: The Lord Chancellor consulted the Senior Law Lord.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs at what time on 21 July 2003 the press notice concerning the appointment of Lord Hutton was issued by her Department; and at what time and on what day this statement was cleared for release. [80144]

Ms Harman: The press release referred to was a statement by Lord Hutton, received from him and distributed by DCA press office on his behalf. Available records suggest this was done at around 10.15 am 21 July 2003. Preparation of the text of the statement is a matter for Lord Hutton.

Inquests

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs in what circumstances inquests can be closed without a verdict; and on how many occasions this has happened since 1 May 1997. [80143]

Ms Harman: Under section 16 of the Coroners Act 1988 an inquest may be adjourned where the coroner is informed that there are criminal proceedings arising from the death and the coroner may only resume the inquest after the criminal proceedings have concluded there is in his opinion sufficient cause to do so. The Lord Chancellor may also require the coroner to adjourn an inquest under section 17A of the Act where he considers that a judicial public inquiry is likely to adequately investigate the death and the coroner may only resume the inquest if in his opinion there is exceptional reason to do so.

Since 1 January 1997 annual figures for inquests adjourned and not resumed are as follows:

	Number
1997	849
1998	843
1999	772
2000	979
2001	899
2002	1,123
2003	908
2004	943
2005	1,008

Legal Aid (Northamptonshire)

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what assessment she has made of the adequacy of the level of provision of legal aid in Northamptonshire. [79562]

Vera Baird: The Legal Services Commission contracts with service providers throughout England and Wales to provide a range of legal and advice services across different categories of law.

There are currently 35 service providers with a contract to undertake civil legal aid work and 22 service providers with a contract to undertake criminal legal aid work in Northamptonshire. Service providers in Northamptonshire may help people who live outside the area, and people who live in Northamptonshire may visit a service provider in a different area.

Any person residing in England or Wales can access free quality legal advice and information through Community Legal Service Direct. This service is available direct to the public through a telephone line, website and information leaflets.

National Archives

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will list records in the National Archives which have been withheld from public inspection; and for what reason each has been withheld. [80183]

Bridget Prentice: The National Archives (TNA) catalogue has more than 10 million records and of these approximately 218,000 records are closed to public inspection at TNA.

The Public Records Acts of 1958 and 1967 determined access to public records. Since January 2005 access is determined by the passing of the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

The full list of TNA's holdings is on the online catalogue and includes access status of each record.

Parliamentary Questions

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the reasons are for the delay in answering parliamentary questions (a) 74493 tabled on 24 May 2006, (b) 65241 tabled on 19 April 2006, (c) 65227 tabled on 19 May 2006 and (d) 74469 tabled on 24 May 2006 by the hon. Member for Lewes; and when she expects to answer them. [80657]

Ms Harman: The documents necessary to answer the hon. Member's questions had been archived. The questions have been answered on 27 June 2006.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Autism

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much his Department has spent in each year since 1997 on the provision of (a) mainstream and (b) specialist education provision for children with autism. [79331]

Mr. Dhanda: Funding for schools is a shared responsibility between central and local government. The majority of funding is provided by central Government, with Local Authorities (LAs) providing the rest. For the first time this year, schools will receive their funding from a Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) rather than as part of the local government settlement. The DSG is a ring-fenced grant and must be used for schools' budgets. It is for each LA to distribute funding using a locally agreed formula, and for schools' governing bodies to decide how to spend the available resources.

Since 1997-98, total funding for education in England has increased nationally, by £1,170 per pupil from £2,940 in 1997-98 to £4,110 per pupil in 2005-06. This represents a rise of nearly 40 per cent. per pupil.

Support for children with special educational needs (SEN) accounts for a high proportion of all education expenditure. We do not hold information centrally about expenditure on autism but information collected from LAs shows planned expenditure on the education of children with SEN has increased from £2.8 billion in 2001-02 (when data was first available) to £4.1 billion in 2005-06. This is about 13 per cent. of all education spending. The figure of £4.1 billion includes about £1.4 billion for maintained special schools, £2.0 billion for mainstream schools, £481 million for independent and non-maintained special schools and £264 million for LA duties and support services.

In addition, between 1997-98 and 2003-04 the Government allocated a total of £360 million through specific grants, to support SEN. The SEN element of the School Development Grant in 2004-05 was £84 million (not ring-fenced, schools decide how they use SDG). Total SDG for 2005-06 is £674 million. This will increase by 3.4 per cent. per pupil in 2006-07 and 3.7 per cent. in 2007-08.

Book Start Scheme

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many parents in Leyton and Wanstead constituency have received book packs for their babies in the Book Start Scheme since it started in October 2005; and if he will make a statement. [79849]

Beverley Hughes: Booktrust tell me that the total number of Bookstart packs issued between September 2005 and May 2006 in the London boroughs of Waltham Forest and Redbridge is as follows:

	Number
Bookstart baby packs	10,130
Bookstart Plus for toddlers	8,732
My Bookstart Treasure Chest	10,330

This information cannot be further broken down by location. Over the three year period 2005-08 we will be providing £27 million to Booktrust.

Childcare Affordability Programme

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of the Childcare Affordability Programme in London. [80311]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The London Childcare Affordability Programme began in November 2005, with the aim of creating up to 10,000 affordable and flexible child care places. The Department has commissioned an independent evaluation, which began in February 2006 and will be completed in April 2009, to assess the effectiveness of the programme. Interim findings will be published at key points in the study and used to inform the development of policy on affordable child care both in London and more widely.

Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will obtain a reply to the letters of (a) 18 April and (b) 18 May 2006 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton to Mr. J. Korzeniewski, Regional Director of the Learning and Skills Council, Greater Manchester with regard to the Greater Manchester Bangladesh and Community Centre; and what the reasons are for the delay in replying hitherto. [80894]

Bill Rammell: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council. I understand that Mr. Korzeniewski replied to the Greater Manchester Bangladesh Association last month and has copied his response to my right hon. Friend.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many websites there are within his responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79878]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department runs 25 main URL domains for communication, information and services to parents, young people, frontline workers, campaigns and its corporate presence. Public-facing content is being migrated to Directgov.

The cost of maintaining the DfES-run websites is £1.926 million.

Educational Psychology

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills when he will reply to question 69587, tabled on 4 May, on resources for the training of educational psychologists. [80579]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department responded to my hon. Friend's question on 10 May 2006. The following is the question and answer that should have appeared on 10 May 2006, Official Report, columns 254-55W.

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what resources he plans to make available over the next five years for the training of educational psychologists. [69587]

Mr. Dhanda: The full-time equivalent number of educational psychologists in post in local authorities in England as at January 2005 is 2,156, compared to 1,768 in January 1997. There were 100 vacant full-time permanent posts as at January 2005.

Educational psychologists are employed by local authorities and it is for those authorities to determine how many to employ in light of their assessment of local needs and available resources, and to plan for future needs. The Department makes no manpower planning estimates for this group of local employees, nor do we collect centrally information on the number of EPs trained or the cost of EP training, funding for which is not provided by DfES.

There have been no recent discussions between the Department and the British Psychological Society on funding of EP training. Questions relating to clinical psychologists are for my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health.

Flag Flying

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what his Department's policy is on flying the (a) St. George's Flag and (b) EU Flag from departmental buildings; [77749]

(2) on how many days since May 1997 the St. George's Flag has been flown from his Department's buildings. [77748]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answers 14 June 2006]: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport issue the guidance for flying flags on Government buildings. This includes flying the St. George's Flag on St. George's Day 23 April and the European Flag on Europe Day 9 May on buildings with two or more flag poles provided they are flown alongside the Union Flag with the Union Flag in the superior position.

The Department for Education and Skills flies the St. George's Flag and European Flag on the specified days from its two London head office buildings.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will ensure the Union Flag is flown from his Department's buildings on every day the offices are open. [77750]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 14 June 2006]: The Department for Education and Skills follows the rules and guidance on flag flying issued by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. These rules are approved by the Queen on advice from the Department. There are no plans at present to change the number of days flags can be flown from Government buildings.

Further Education, Tamworth

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many 19 to 25-year-olds in Tamworth are studying for a first level 3 qualification. [80138]

Bill Rammell: In the academic year 2004/05 there were 272 19 to 25-year-olds in Tamworth studying for a full NVQ level 3 or equivalent qualification in further education and work based learning[1]. This does not include access to HE qualifications or wholly privately funded study aims.

We do not have estimates below national level for the 'firstness' of learning aims. Research from 2005 showed that nationally 49 per cent. of full level 3 learners in further education and work based learning were studying for their first full level 3 qualification.

Learning and Skills Council

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many compulsory redundancies will arise from the restructuring of the Learning and Skills Council under its Agenda for Change. [79877]

Bill Rammell: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is undertaking a major restructuring programme designed to streamline the organisation and give regional and local directors a more strategic role.

The LSC and PCS Union have been working together to do everything reasonably possible to avoid compulsory redundancies. They have agreed that no compulsory redundancies or issue of notice of compulsory redundancy will take place before 31 October 2006. Both sides will continue to work together on a series of redundancy avoidance measures which include, as appropriate, offers of suitable alternative roles, redeployment, promotion and further training of staff to help them secure posts within the LSC, the wider civil service and beyond.

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the total cost was of overnight accommodation for (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in his Department staying overnight in (i) mainland Great Britain, (ii) Northern Ireland, (iii) the Republic of Ireland and (iv) other countries in each of the last three years. [69036]

Mr. Dhanda: There is no central record of the breakdown of civil servants and special advisers and an assessment of the staff time and associated costs could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps his Department plans to take to monitor the extent to which public bodies which report to him comply, from October, with their duty to conserve biodiversity in exercising their functions, under section 40 of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006. [74404]

Mr. Dhanda: Under Section 40 of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006, all public bodies have a duty to have regard to the conservation of biodiversity in the exercising of their functions. There is no statutory obligation on Departments to monitor the extent to which public bodies comply with this duty. However, we understand

Defra is working with a wide range of partners to develop guidance for public bodies to support the implementation of this duty and will involve all relevant Departments on the development of guidance.

Nursery Education Grant

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment his Department has made of the extent to which the hourly Nursery Education Grant covers the cost for (a) private and (b) voluntary providers of providing child care. [80310]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 26 June 2006]: With effect from April 2006, funding has been channelled to local authorities through the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) to fund educational provision for children aged up to 16 in all types of settings. This includes private, voluntary and independent settings delivering the free nursery education entitlement. The DSG provides the total funding to local authorities. It is then up to the local authority to decide how best to apply the total funding across different settings and age groups.

The level of funding provided to local authorities for under fives is determined by the number of full-time equivalent pupils in the authority, multiplied by the DSG "guaranteed unit of funding". The number of full time equivalent pupils for under fives in PVI settings are calculated according to their age and the number of sessions they complete. The Department consulted widely on the Dedicated Schools Grant between February and May 2005, and on the method of its distribution over summer 2005. The Department will be reviewing various aspects of the funding arrangements over the conning months.

Local authorities are best placed to determine the most effective use of resources at local level and have discretion over the rate at which they fund settings for delivery of early years provision. However, the "Code of Practice on the Provision of Free Nursery Education Places for Three and Four Year-Olds"—a copy of which has been placed in the Library—strongly encourages local authorities to fund provision delivered in different sectors on an equal basis, taking into account local need and circumstances.

Older People (Skills Training)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what paid apprenticeship programmes are available through his Department (a) for people aged over 55 years and (b) for people in retirement. [80746]

Phil Hope: We currently support a pilot programme for adult apprentices, in three sectors, construction; engineering; and health and social care and the LSC has local flexibility to fund some apprenticeship training for adults. We will decide on the way ahead in the autumn in light of the evaluation of current pilot activity, in England, and the availability of resources.

Overseas Adoptions

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the remarks of the Minister for Children and Families in Standing Committee B on the Children and Adoption Bill, on 14 March 2006, Official Report, column 33, when he plans to publish guidelines for fee-charging on overseas adoptions. [80459]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The Children and Adoption Act 2006 allows the Government to charge a fee to prospective adopters in order to contribute to the cost of processing of inter-country adoption casework. Charging will not be introduced before April 2007. The fees charged cannot exceed the cost to the Government of providing this service and we are committed to making charging fair, straightforward and based on income. We are currently working to develop the details of a system for charging based on these criteria. We intend to discuss this with stakeholders in the autumn before publishing details of the scheme prior to its introduction.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills which Private Members' Bills were drafted by his Department in each session since 1997; and which subsequently received Royal Assent. [77836]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department is unable to provide the information without incurring disproportionate cost.

School Milk

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) whether participants in the school milk scheme are required to supply equal amounts of whole and skimmed dairy products; [77761]

(2) what assessment he has made of the impact of participation in the school milk scheme on schools' ability to meet school meals nutritional standards. [77762]

Mr. Dhanda: The new nutritional standards for school food, announced on 19 May 2006, allow only skimmed or semi-skimmed milk to be provided or made available to pupils.

There is no requirement on participants in the EU milk subsidy scheme in relation to the proportion of whole, semi-skimmed or skimmed milk products that should be provided.

There are currently different rates of subsidy for whole milk and semi-skimmed milk. Officials in the Department for Education and Skills, the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the Rural Payments Agency are considering the impact on levels of subsidy of the new nutritional standards.

Sure Start

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures he is taking to guarantee funding of the Sure Start scheme in Waltham Cross, Hertfordshire; and if he will make a statement. [80494]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The Waltham Cross Sure Start mini programme has become a Sure Start Children's Centre. We have made a total of £20,242,933 revenue available to Hertfordshire county council as part of the council's 2006-08 General Sure Start Grant, which includes funding for Sure Start Children's Centres. How revenue is distributed to individual centres is a matter for Hertfordshire. However, we have asked local authorities to ensure that revenue funding is continued to be made available to Sure Start local programmes including mini programmes in their Sure Start Children's Centres plan.

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps he is taking to promote the retention of health visitors by Sure Start initiatives in Hertfordshire; and if he will make a statement. [80495]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The recent Department of Health White Paper, "Our Health, Our Care, Our Say: a new direction for community services" encouraged the delivery of health visitor and midwifery through Sure Start Children's Centres. We have been working closely with the Department of Health to ensure consistent messages to local authorities and PCTs. Health visitors and midwives, whether based in a Sure Start Centre or operating some sessions from it, will provide ante-natal and post-natal support to families of young children in the area. The precise way in which these services are organised is a matter for an individual local authority to determine, working with their local primary care trust and other health sector partners.

Teachers (Criminal Records)

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether newly appointed teachers will be allowed to commence work pending a response from the Criminal Records Bureau. [79805]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 26 June 2006]: Yes. Head teachers will continue to have discretion to allow staff to start work before they receive their disclosure, provided that they have been checked against List 99 and that all other necessary pre-appointment checks have been carried out on them. Head teachers should also reach a judgment on the appropriate level of supervision for such staff.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether he expects all required Criminal Records Bureau checks on teachers to be completed for the commencement of the autumn term. [79807]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) has informed the Department that it expects to meet requirements for processing applications under existing arrangements, for new appointees to take up positions in the autumn term, provided that all applications have been completed correctly and the required identity checks have been made.

In response to Ofsted's recent report, "Safeguarding Children-An evaluation of procedures for checking staff appointed by schools", which identified that some schools did not maintain complete records of employee checks undertaken, the Secretary of State has asked all schools and colleges to make sure they have the records they need to demonstrate that they have undertaken identity, qualifications and List 99/CRB checks on their staff. We expect schools to be able to obtain the necessary information that checks have been undertaken from the individuals concerned or from their local authority or human resources provider. It is only where records cannot be obtained for checks of staff who have joined the school after 1 March 2002 that a new CRB check will need to be undertaken. The CRB will provide its full support to the Department for Education and Skills in managing any additional intake.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Aliens' Employment Act

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many certificates under the Aliens' Employment Act 1955 permitting employment of aliens in the civil service are in force; how many there were in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05 and (c) 2005-06; and in which Departments those holding such a certificate work. [79145]

Mr. McFadden: The total number of aliens' certificates in force during 2005-06 was 67. This compares with 58 in 2004-05 and 57 in 2003-04.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the average cost to the Cabinet Office was of replying to a letter written by (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public, in the last period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum is accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80510]

Hilary Armstrong: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/ Peers correspondence. The report for 2005 was published on Thursday 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 75-80WS.

The information requested is not recorded and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Delivery Unit

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will make a statement on the recent work of the Prime Minister's Delivery Unit. [79557]

Hilary Armstrong: The Prime Minister's Delivery Unit is providing support to Departments on aspects of the delivery of the Government's top public service priorities in health, education, home affairs and housing and planning. The unit is also leading a programme of capability reviews, designed to improve Departments' performance in pursuing their current objectives and tackling future challenges.

Public Sector Information

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 15 June 2006, Official Report, column 1377W, on public sector information, what the estimated viewing figures are of each public information film commissioned since 1997; which Government Department commissioned each film; at which dayparts each film was shown; and what the estimated airtime value was of each film. [79319]

Mr. McFadden: The detail requested for each film and for the period requested can be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However a breakdown of daypart spread and estimated airtime value by client is available for the period 1 January 2001 to 31 March 2006 and has been placed in the Library.

Also included is an estimate of television ratings by client for the period since these data became available in July 2005. These figures cover only public information films currently in circulation.

The figures quoted refer to television broadcast transmissions only. They do not include out of home media, websites or usage by intermediaries such as road safety officers, fire safety officers etc.

HEALTH

A and E Waiting Times

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time was for accident and emergency departments at hospitals in the Greater London area in each of the last five years. [79228]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information is not collected on the average waiting time in accident and emergency (A and E) departments. However, since 2002-03 information on the number and percentage of all attenders who were admitted, transferred or discharged within four hours of arrival at A and E has been collected and published quarterly. Information for national health service organisations in London is shown in the following table for the second quarter of 2002-03 to 2005-06.

Alzheimer's Disease

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if she will make it her policy to allow general practitioners to prescribe Ebixa on the NHS; [79524]

(2) what recent guidance she has issued to general practitioners on the treatment of Alzheimer's disease in its (a) early, (b) moderate and (c) severe stages; and if she will make a statement. [79525]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has not issued any recent guidance to general practitioners on the treatment of Alzheimer's disease in its early, moderate and severe stages and, there are no plans for the Department to issue guidance to general practitioners on prescribing Ebixa on the national health service. Until the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence issues revised guidance to the NHS, its original guidance issued in 2001 continues to apply.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the possible impact of prohibiting Ebixa on the treatment of people in the later stages of Alzheimer's disease who have behavioural problems; and if she will make a statement. [79532]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has not commissioned and evaluated any recent research on the possible impact of prohibiting Ebixa for treatment of people in the later stages of Alzheimer's disease who have behavioural problems. Until the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence issues revised guidance to the national health service, its original guidance issued in 2001 continues to apply.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the possible impact on carers of withdrawing Alzheimer's drug treatments; and if she will make a statement. [79534]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has not commissioned and evaluated any recent research on the possible impact on carers of withdrawing Alzheimer's drug treatments. Until the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence issues revised guidance to the national health service, its original guidance issued in 2001 continues to apply.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will review the decision of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to withdraw access to anticholinesterase drugs from patients at the early stages of Alzheimer's disease; and if she will make a statement. [80383]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) appraisal of these drugs has not yet concluded. Until NICE issues revised guidance to the national health service, its original guidance issued in 2001 continues to apply.

Asthma

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to ensure more people with asthma take-up care plans. [79447]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 22 June 2006]: Meeting the care needs of people with long-term conditions, including better access to care plans, is a key theme of the White Paper, 'Our Health, Our Care, Our Say'.

Departmental officials will be seeking to engage with key stakeholders in taking forward White Paper commitments around care planning and reducing emergency bed stays.

Audiology

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the assessment, fitting and follow-up of digital hearing aids is included in (a) payment-by-results and (b) practice based commissioning; and if she will make a statement. [78641]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The provision of digital hearing aids is not included in payment by results because the entire digital hearing aids service is not part of the reference costs which underpin the tariff. This is due to their treatment as capitalised grouped assets.

As long as the purchase of digital hearing aids in bulk by national health service bodies is deemed to be a capital transaction, they will remain outside the reference costs collections and therefore payment by results.

Practice based commissioning gives practices greater freedom to commission services for their patients. Only core general medical services/personal medical services specialised services, services commissioned regionally and nationally, and national screening programmes are excluded from the potential scope of a practice's indicative budget.

Autism

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking to promote early diagnosis of autism. [79398]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The autism research co-ordination group brings together Government officials, professional bodies and voluntary sector organisations to identify gaps in research, including research on diagnosis, and advises policy makers.

The autism spectrum disorders exemplar follows a patient journey from diagnosis to transition into adult services at age 16. This exemplar illustrates some of the key themes of the children, young people and maternity services national service framework. The exemplar is intended to be useful in a number of ways, providing a multi-disciplinary training tool for staff working with children and young people to raise awareness of specific issues, including early identification, diagnosis and intervention.

The promotion of early diagnosis of autism is a matter for professional bodies.

Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire Strategic Health Authority

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what meetings have taken place between the Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire Strategic Health Authority (SHA) and its constituent primary health care trusts to discuss its operating framework; and when the planned savings required of each organisation within the SHA were agreed. [79652]

Caroline Flint: The Department does not collect details of meetings between strategic health authorities (SHAs) and primary care trusts (PCTs). This is a local matter for Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire SHA and its PCTs.

Child and Adolescence Mental Health Services

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether there are minimum standards for the performance of Child and Adolescence Mental Health Services. [79679]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Improving child and adolescent mental health services (CAMHS) is one of the priorities for this Government, as emphasised by the public service agreement standard of a comprehensive CAMHS to be in place by December 2006. This commitment to improve CAMHS has been backed by significant additional funding, over £300 million in the last three years.

The CAMHS module of the children's national service framework for England (September 2004) sets the framework for CAMHS for the next 10 years. It sets the standard that all children and young people, from birth to their 18th birthday, who have mental health problems and disorders, will have access to timely, integrated, high quality multidisciplinary mental health services to ensure effective assessment, treatment and support, for them, their parents or carers, and other family members.

Choose and Book

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of patients who have been referred to an inappropriate doctor in secondary care under the choose and book system; and if she will make a statement. [67119]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: National data on the number of rejected referrals and the reasons for these such as inappropriate referral are not centrally collected. However, these data are available at an organisational level, for example within general practitioner practices and acute trusts. In future, it is intended that national level data will be collected through the secondary uses service and plans are currently being developed.

Some choose and book referrals, in addition to some non-choose and book referrals, are rejected. Referrals are usually rejected either when referrers have selected inappropriate services or when providers have not given sufficient detail about the services they offer. These rejections are not linked to the information technology system, as choose and book enables providers to describe their services in sufficient detail to allow referrers to identify the appropriate service, and to regularly review and update their descriptions based on feedback.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many appointments on the choose and book system (a) require the use of the telephone and (b) have the option of using the telephone to book the appointment. [75310]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The option of booking by telephone is available for all appointments booked through the choose and book service.

Where service providers have a patient administration system which is compliant with the choose and book application, services are directly bookable and appointment slots may be booked electronically without requiring the use of the telephone.

About a third of the referrals currently made by general practitioners are being made through the directly bookable services.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether the latest figures for the use of the choose and book system are derived (a) from the system's generation of a unique booking reference number and (b) from the booking of an appointment; and if she will make a statement; [75311]

(2) whether the latest figures for the use of the choose and book system are for those appointments which are made entirely electronically and have not involved the patient or general practitioner in using the telephone; and if she will make a statement. [75312]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In May 2006, about 116,000 referrals were made through the choose and book service, which was an increase of approximately 46,000 on the April 2006 figure. These include referrals to outpatient services and clinical assessment services where bookings were made, but excludes re-bookings.

The Department does not centrally collect data on the generation of unique booking reference numbers.

Entirely electronic bookings may be made in the general practitioner's (GP) surgery or via the Internet, where services are directly bookable. No information is collected on how many bookings to directly bookable services were made by telephone, either from within the GP surgery or later by the patient.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2006, Official Report, columns 634W on the choose and book system, what budget had been set for the (a) choice and (b) choose and book anticipated costs (i) for administrative and other staff, (ii) incurred by consultants and acute trusts, (iii) for other computer software and hardware not directly associated with the NHS Connecting for Health Agency and (iv) for other administration infrastructure for each year the programme was budgeted to operate. [73256]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Local budget setting is a matter for individual primary care trusts, acute trusts and strategic health authorities.

Continuing Care

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether individuals receiving NHS funded continuing care will be reassessed under the new criteria. [79646]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The consultation on an improved national framework for continuing care was launched on 19 June 2006. We cannot anticipate what the new framework will be until the consultation is completed and we have considered all responses.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people met the eligibility criteria for continuing NHS health care in each of the last six years; and how many met the criteria at the latest date for which figures are available; [79268]

(2) how many people left continuing NHS health care in each of the last six years; [79269]

(3) how many residents in nursing homes were fully funded by the NHS under continuing care criteria in each year since 1997; [79271]

(4) how many people have been granted recompense for being wrongly denied fully-funded national health service continuing care in each of the last 10 years; and what the aggregate cost of that recompense was; [79273]

(5) how many people have contacted the Health Service Ombudsman regarding their failure to receive continuing care funding for a relative in each year since 1997. [79274]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on the number of people newly eligible national health service continuing care, which has been collected by the Department since 2002-03, is shown in table 1.

Table 1: People newly meeting eligibility criteria for continuing care

	Number
2002-03	11,508
2003-04	14,573
2004-05	15,976
2005-06	20,353

Source:
LDPR line 8229

NHS continuing care can be provided in any setting, including a care home or an individual's own home. The Department does not collect information on the settings in which NHS continuing care is received. Information on the total number of people receiving NHS continuing care is shown in table 2.

Table 2: People receiving continuing care

	Number
2002-03	18,439
2003-04	19,984
2004-05	20,842
2005-06	25,008

Source:
LDPR line 8228

Information on the number of people who ceased to require NHS continuing care is not held centrally.

Of the 11,655 requests for investigations received by 31 March 2004, 86.1 per cent. had been investigated, with 1,796 being found eligible for restitution. No later data is available. We expect that the NHS will pay around £180 million in restitution. The Department does not collect data about the number of people who subsequently took cases to the Health Ombudsman. The Health Ombudsman is entirely independent of the Department and questions should be addressed directly to Ann Abraham.

Cost of Care Analysis

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many local authorities have undergone an independent cost of care analysis on which to base local fee negotiations with independent and third sector care providers. [79647]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not available centrally.

The principles for contracting for care services set out in building capacity and partnerships in care (BCPC) are: fairness to service-users, to taxpayers and service providers; and the encouragement of fair competition. The BCPC is available on the Department's website at: www.doh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/05/36/33/04053633.pdf

Dementia (Residential Care)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many residential care places are available for individuals with early onset dementia. [77230]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I understand from the chair of the Commission for Social Care Inspection, which registers, inspects and regulates care homes, that the information is not collected in the format requested. At 31 March 2006, there were 5,162 care homes registered under the categories of dementia or dementia (elderly), with 192,833 care places.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many full-time equivalent posts have been moved from her Department to the private sector in each year since 1997. [79655]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not held centrally at the Department.

Diagnostic Treatment (Independent Sector)

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the recent progress with her Department's plans to procure extra capacity in diagnostics from the independent sector. [79045]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Invitations to negotiate have now been issued for all seven of the regional diagnostics schemes of the phase two procurement. Preferred bidders are expected to be appointed by August with services starting next year.

Foundation Trusts

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which foundation trusts have (a) opt-in membership arrangements and (b) opt-out membership arrangements; in how many cases in each trust there have been contested elections to the governing body; what the turnout was at each; and what the (i) dates and (ii) results of these elections were. [78111]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: National health service foundation trusts (NHSFTs) are free to decide their own membership arrangements provided that their constitutions meet the requirements set out in schedule 1 to the Health and Social Care (Community Health and Standards) Act 2003. I am advised by the chairman of Monitor, whose statutory name is the independent regulator of NHSFTs, that all NHSFT constitutions are publicly available on Monitor's website at www.monitor-nhsf.gov.uk.

Information relating to the elections to the governing bodies of individual NHSFTs can be obtained by contacting the chairmen of the respective trusts.

General Practitioners (Romford)

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many general practitioners per head of population there are in Romford, Essex. [79627]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The table shows the numbers of general medical practitioners per 100,000 head of population for Havering Primary Care Trust at 30 September 2004-05, which are the latest figures available.

General medical practitioners (excluding retainers and registrars)[1] per 100,000 head of population, for Havering PCT, at 30 September 2004-05

		Number (headcount)
		2004	2005
5A4	Havering PCT
	All practitioners (excluding retainers and registrars)[1]	118	122
	All practitioners (excluding retainers and registrars)[1] per 100,000 head of population	52.4	54.2

[1] General medical practitioners (excluding retainers and registrars) includes contracted general practitioners, general medical practitioner others and primary medical service others.

Note:

2004 population figures from the 2001 Office for National Statistics (ONS) resident estimates have been used for 2005 organisation calculations, as population figures for 2005 at organisation level are not yet available, these figures are therefore subject to change.

Genetic Testing

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps she is taking to monitor performance against the target set in the 2003 Genetics White Paper that anyone taking a genetic test would receive their result within two to eight weeks by 2006; [80063]

(2) what the average waiting time was for results of (a) breast cancer and (b) genetic tests in each of the last three years. [80071]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The Government recognise that some patients have experienced long waits for genetic tests and this will have caused stress and anxiety. This is unacceptable.

So, to improve access and cut waiting times, the genetics White Paper 'Our Inheritance, Our Future—realising the potential of genetics in the NHS', published in June 2003, committed up to £18 million for national health service genetics laboratories in England. This major investment is boosting capacity and supporting modernisation in genetics laboratories, thus helping them meet the rising demand for genetics tests.

To ensure that this investment resulted in real patient benefit, the White Paper set out new standards for genetic test turn around times to be achieved by the end of 2006. These are:

within three days where the result is needed urgently, for example for prenatal diagnosis; within two weeks where the potential genetic mutation is already known, for example, because another family member has already been tested; and within eight weeks for unknown mutations in a large gene.

This money was allocated during the last two financial years (2004 to 2006), and laboratories are working hard to get their new facilities up to speed to meet these standards.

Health Service Commissioning

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 8 March 2006 to question 57167, what responsibility she has for the commissioning of publicly-funded health services from the private sector; if she will make it her policy to collect centrally information relating to the companies which are (a) contracted and (b) due to be contracted to provide such services; and if she will list the centrally negotiated contracts with (i) United Health and (ii) other private sector providers. [63223]

Andy Burnham: The Department is responsible for ensuring that health care services are of high quality and provide value for money and good outcomes for patients, whether commissioned centrally or locally and whether commissioned from the independent sector or from national health service bodies. The Department has not awarded any contracts for the provision of health care services to United Health. United Health holds one contract with the Department. That is for project management rather than service provision.

Other independent sector providers hold centrally awarded contracts for the provision of health care services. These are:

NHS walk-in centres with a commuter focus
Atos Origin IT Services (UK) Ltd.
Walk-In Health Ltd.
Care UK Plc
NetCare Ltd.
Mobile magnetic resonance imaging
Alliance Medical Ltd.
Pharmacy chlamydia screening pathfinder
Boots The Chemists Ltd.
Treatment centres
Capio UK
InterHealth
Nations Healthcare
Partnership Health Group Ltd.
Mercury Health DTC (1) Ltd.
Netcare Healthcare UK Ltd.
UK Specialist Hospitals
Mobile ophthalmology
Netcare Healthcare UK Ltd.

The Department does not collect centrally information about individual companies providing health care services under contracts which are agreed locally with primary care trusts or NHS trusts and has no plans to do so.

Health Services (Surrey and Sussex)

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what contribution the Department made to the two documents recently produced by Surrey and Sussex Strategic Health Authority on the future configuration of local health services. [80732]

Caroline Flint: The Department has made no contribution to the two recent documents produced by Surrey and Sussex Strategic Health Authority on the future configuration of local health services. It is for the local health economy to decide on the configuration of local health services.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research (a) the Department and (b) the NHS (i) has carried out and (ii) is planning into travelling times for patients to hospitals in the Surrey and Sussex Strategic Health Authority area. [80733]

Caroline Flint: The Department does not collect this information centrally, and has no plans to do so.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) meetings and (b) discussions her Department has had with representatives of the Surrey and Sussex Strategic Health Authority in the last 12 months; and whether changes in services provided at Worthing and Southlands Hospitals NHS Trust have been discussed. [80734]

Caroline Flint: The configuration of local services is a matter for local health economies. The Department's recovery and support unit (RSU) liaises regularly with representatives of Surrey and Sussex Strategic Health Authority (SHA) on performance and strategic matters.

The Secretary of State met with Candy Morris, Chief Executive of Surrey and Sussex SHA, on 22 March 2006 to welcome her to the position and discuss general issues in the region.

Healthcare Facility (Oldchurch Park, Romford)

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many nurses will be employed in the new Oldchurch Park Hospital; and how many are employed at the existing Oldchurch Hospital; [79631]

(2) how many of those employed at the Oldchurch and Harold Wood hospitals are expected to be employed in the new healthcare facility being built in Romford. [79657]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Data on the number of staff currently employed at Oldchurch and Harold Wood hospitals that are expected to be employed in the new healthcare facility being build in Romford is not collected.

Data are not collected on the number of nurses employed at the existing Oldchurch Hospital. The number of nurses employed at Barking, Havering and Redbridge Hospitals National Health Service Trust is 2,447, September 2005 being the latest figures available.

North East London Strategic Health Authority has advised departmental officials that the breakdown of funded establishment for nurses in the new hospital, not including midwives, is:

	Number
Qualified nurses	930
Unqualified nurses	488
Total	1,418

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the total cost of the new hospital at Oldchurch Park, Romford is expected to be; [79632]

(2) when she expects the new hospital being built at Oldchurch Park, Romford to be (a) finished and (b) opened. [79639]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: North East London Strategic Health Authority has advised departmental officials that the practical completion date for the new hospital being built at Oldchurch Park, Romford will be 15 October 2006. There will then follow a period of deep cleaning. The hospital is expected to be fully operational by December 2006.

The total cost of the new hospital will be £261 million.

HIV/AIDS

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what HIV/AIDS prevention work is being undertaken in (a) England, (b) Redbridge and (c) Waltham Forest; what change is planned over the next 12 months; what high profile publicity work is being undertaken for prevention; what strategies local public health authorities are adopting; whether these are the same in each area; and if she will make a statement. [78934]

Caroline Flint: Nationally, targeted HIV prevention work is being undertaken specifically for gay men and people from African communities living in England. These are the two groups most at risk from HIV in England. This work is managed by the Terrence Higgins Trust and the African HIV Policy network respectively.

Redbridge primary care trust (PCT) has continued to prioritise HIV/AIDS prevention work as part of the overall sexual health strategy and action plan and they commission four agencies to provide targeted HIV/AIDS prevention work with the most affected communities: gay men and black Africans.

Waltham Forest PCT has an ongoing investment in the promotion of sexual health in schools. This is being delivered by the personal, social and health education coordinator, EduAction. They have also been working very closely with the department of sexual health at Whipps Cross University hospital and are at the stage of thinking with the clinical teams of how they can improve the capacity for prevention and promotion of sexual health delivery by primary care teams. They also participate in the sector wide contracts managed by the London specialised commissioning group.

Nationally and locally, HIV prevention plans will continue to target the groups most at risk from HIV. There are no plans for major new high profile HIV publicity work nationally or locally in the next 12 months, above and beyond the targeted work mentioned above and the broader national sexual health campaign planned for later this year.

Strategies for HIV prevention, along with a wider range of issues on HIV are set out in 'Recommended Standards for NHS HIV services' published by The Medical Foundation for AIDS and Sexual Health in 2004.

Hospital Building

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many major hospital building projects have been completed since 4 May 1979 and are now fully operational, broken down by (a) projects which were given the go-ahead between 4 May 1979 and 30 April 1997 and (b) projects which were given the go-ahead on or after 1 May 1997. [76971]

Andy Burnham: A copy of the full list of operational hospital building projects which were given the go ahead between 1 January 1980 and 30 April 1999, and 1 May 1997 to the present day is available in the Library. Data are not held centrally for schemes before 1 January 1980.

This list has been updated since the previous time this information was used to place data on the record, on 27 February 2006, Official Report, columns 472-73W. The capital value for all schemes has been updated to 2006-07 prices; previously they were at 1999-2000 prices. This in turn means that the threshold we have used for a major hospital building project increases from £50 million to £58.7 million. Three schemes have also opened since the list was last reviewed (the last three on the list).

Independent Sector Treatment Centres

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what approved independent sector treatment centres there are; and how many elective procedures are expected to be carried out at each one each year. [79275]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) contracts stipulate the expected casemix and volume of healthcare to be completed during the five-year period of the contract. The contracts allow flexibility in the actual casemix in order to meet national health service commissioners' needs. The total volumes currently expected for the agreed wave one ISTC contracts are shown in the following table, although actual volumes may change depending on the casemixes that are referred.

Intermediate Care

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the National Service Framework for Older People Standard Three on Intermediate Care has been met in respect of intermediate care beds and supported intermediate care places. [80809]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Since 1999-2000, the national health service has delivered an extra 18,253 beds and places in intermediate care; 272 per cent. more than the combined target.

Laundry Services

Helen Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS hospitals have contracted out their laundry services; and what plans there are for further such contracting out. [73510]

Andy Burnham: Information is collected centrally on hospital trusts that have outsourced all or part of their provision of laundry services and where figures have been reported, these have been placed in the Library. The information represents the position as reported at 31 March 2005, which is the latest available.

The data were provided by national health service organisations on a voluntary basis and they are incomplete. It is for local trusts to determine the extent to which and service should be contracted out.

Ministerial Meetings

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance she issues to Ministers in her Department from (a) this House and (b) the House of Lords on responding to requests from hon. Members for meetings; and if she will take steps to increase the accountability of Ministers to hon. Members. [80027]

Ms Hewitt [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The Secretary of State for Health makes time available to meet hon. Members of all parties, as does her ministerial team from both the House and the House of Lords. She encourages hon. Members to approach parliamentary private secretaries who will facilitate and organise such meetings as required.

The Secretary of State for Health is pleased to learn that the hon. Member met the Minister of State for Health (Reform) on 26 June, following the postponement of two previous meetings due to diary pressures on both sides.

Ministers are fully accountable to Parliament for their policies, decisions and actions, as set out in the Ministerial Code.

Ministerial Visits (Accommodation)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total cost was of overnight accommodation for (a) civil servants and (b) special advisers in her Department staying overnight in (i) mainland Great Britain, (ii) Northern Ireland, (iii) the Republic of Ireland and (iv) other countries in each of the last three years. [69212]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The majority of overnight accommodation is booked via the Department's agent Expotel Hotel Reservations. The costs for the last three years are:

2003-04	1,534,333
2004-05	1,015,621
2005-06	1,620,754

The costs are not routinely broken down by location, or by civil servants and special advisers.

Information on other overnight accommodation is not collected routinely.

National Programme for Information Technology

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on the National Programme for Information Technology, broken down by major cost area; and what the total expenditure on the programme was originally expected to be. [74061]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is shown in the table.

Programme area	Contractor	Lifetime contract value (£ million)	Expenditure to 31 March 2006 (£ million)
Spine	BT	620	239.8
N3 broadband network	BT	530	130.5
Choose and book core contract	Atos Origin (SchlumbergerSema)	64.5	27.1
London LSP	BT CCA	996	1.3
North East LSP	Accenture	1,099	51.6
NW/W Mids LSP	CSC	973	119.3
Eastern LSP	Accenture	934	57.9
Southern LSP	Fujitsu	986	26.5
Total		6,202.5	654

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether all consultants have been provided with a personal computer under the National Programme for Information Technology. [74063]

Caroline Flint: A target to provide consultants with networked desktop personal computer (PC) access to the NHS net had already been substantially achieved by the end of 2002, before the national programme was established.

Additionally, after the inception of the national programme, during 2003-04, the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency undertook an electronic reverse auction procurement on behalf of the programme to supply some 60,000 PCs, driving down the cost of providing personal computers to the staff of national health service organisations in both the short and longer term.

NHS Facilities

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the oral answer of 24 May 2006, Official Report, column 1477, what new NHS facilities were included in the cost of £32 million quoted by the Prime Minister. [80283]

Caroline Flint: The £32 million quoted is the cost of the Gloucestershire Royal hospital redevelopment scheme at the Gloucestershire Hospitals Foundation Trust, which opened in March 2005.

NHS IT Support

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding her Department provides to health trusts to spend on IT; and whether the funding is drawn from the same allocation as frontline patient services. [75134]

Caroline Flint: National health service trusts are paid for the provision of care services commissioned from them by primary care trusts (PCTs). The great majority of funding allocated to PCTs is not hypothecated for specific purposes. Exceptionally, £84 million was allocated for local implementation of the national programme for information technology (IT) in 2004-05, and a further £84 million in 2005-06.

Each NHS organisation is expected to use its resources in a way that delivers the best possible care for patients and value for money. Spending on modern information technology is vital to getting the best out of NHS staff and equipment, and makes them more effective quicker than any other investment. The NHS already spends about £1.2 billion each year on IT, and the Department has have always made it clear that it expects NHS trusts to follow the recommendations in the 2002 Wanless report to increase this over time. Monitoring progress towards achieving this is part of the Department's regular performance management arrangements for the NHS. It has therefore always been recognised that some national programme implementation costs, for example, on training and local hardware upgrades, will be borne locally over the programme's 10-year life.

Nursing Staff (Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust)

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average ratio of trained nursing staff to patients is in hospitals in the Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust. [79633]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Figures on staff to patient ratios are not collected centrally.

Older People Framework

Dr. Marrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, which local health care providers in England have not complied with National Senior Framework for Older People Standard Six in establishing an integrated falls service and risk management procedures. [80641]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Data collected by the Department indicated that by April 2005 74 per cent. of integrated falls services were in place. A national audit of falls and bone health services produced by the Royal College of Physicians in January 2006 found that 74 per cent. of trusts in England are part of a co-ordinated, integrated, multi-professional, multi-agency service for falls. Overall, the audit results suggested that most areas have the infrastructure with the potential to identify need and for provision of specialist falls assessment and treatment.

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the cost was of setting up (a) Yorkshire Wolds and Coast primary care trust and (b) East Yorkshire primary care trust; how much the recent reorganisation of each trust cost; and if she will make a statement; [78991]

(2) how much she expects the reorganisation of primary care trusts to cost; and if she will make a statement. [78992]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The costs of establishing the Yorkshire Wolds and East Yorkshire primary care trusts (PCTs) were met from within the financial allocations to the health authorities and are therefore not identifiable.

Total costs of the reconfiguration of PCTs, announced on 16 May 2006, are dependant on a number of factors, including the number of new organisations, number of people in the new organisations, new pay ranges for very senior managers, as well as changes in estate costs following reconfiguration. For these reasons, it is not possible at present to give definite costs.

Public Health Screening Programmes

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what public health screening programmes were introduced in England in each year since 1979. [78016]

Caroline Flint: The following public health screening programmes have been introduced in England since 1979: congenital hypothyroidism (1981), cervical cancer (1988), breast cancer (1988), Down's syndrome (2001), newborn hearing (2001), sickle cell and thalassaemia (2002), Chlamydia (2002), diabetic retinopathy (2003), cystic fibrosis (2004) and bowel cancer (2006).

Sickness Absence

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will estimate the costs to the NHS resulting annually from sickness absence among health service employees. [77231]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not collected by the Department.

Social Care IT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her Department's report 'Delivering 21st century IT support for the NHS', what progress has been made on taking forward developments in social care IT. [75052]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Prime responsibility for implementing information technology support for social services lies with individual local authorities. However, with a view to delivering the aim of achieving appropriate integration of health and social care information systems in England by 2010 the Department's NHS Connecting for Health agency has undertaken a number of national initiatives to support local action. These include the establishment in 2005 of the electronic social care record board (ESCRB). The board has responsibility for overseeing national implementation of the electronic social care record and ensuring consistency of its implementation by local authorities with social services responsibilities.

The board engages with the work of the national health service national programme for information technology to enable sharing of information across traditional boundaries. The board is providing advice and guidance, and will establish national standards for the electronic exchange of information between health, education and social care agencies in support of implementation of the electronic social care record, whilst recognising the independence of local authorities. It will ensure appropriate links are made with NHS electronic patient records and children's electronic information systems.

Under the auspices of the ESCRB, a study has been commissioned into the options for national implementation of the electronic single assessment process for older people. This is a prime example of shared activity between health and social care. Consultation has been undertaken with health, social care and supplier representatives, and a report is due later this year.

A variety of information systems and tools are now available to support this process. There have been successful local deployments of such systems by national programme suppliers notably in the programme's North East and Eastern clusters. They are subject to the same strict access controls as apply to national programme-delivered patient healthcare records, requiring the use by social workers of a smartcard with identification and a pass code, which can only be obtained upon verification of identity and through a formal user registration process. These systems have demonstrated the value of the technology and its potential to support the rapid development of integrated multi-agency working across all client groups.

In addition, allocations of the £25 million capital expenditure grant recently paid to local authorities by the Department for improving information management made specific reference to the single assessment process in the expectation that the grant will be used to facilitate integration of social care information in the implementation of the NHS care records service.

Stroud Maternity Unit

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what discussions she has had with the Royal College of Midwives (RCM) on the future of Stroud Maternity Unit; and what plans she has to consult formally with the RCM as part of the ongoing review of maternity services; [79689]

(2) what research her Department has commissioned into the (a) financial viability, (b) safety and (c) efficacy of independent maternity units since 1997. [79690]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Ministers have had no discussions with the Royal College of Midwives (RCM) on the future of Stroud maternity unit. On 12 June 2006, the Gloucestershire health community launched a 12-week public consultation on the future of national health service services in the county, including inpatient maternity services. Should the RCM wish to make a formal response to the consultation, it should do so via the consultation co-ordinator at Cheltenham and Tewkesbury Primary Care Trust. Further details can be found online at: www.healthinglouceslershire.nhs.uk.

The Department has not commissioned any research into the financial viability, safety and efficacy of independent (non-NHS) maternity units since 1997. Independent maternity units should meet the standards set out by the Department's "Independent health care: national minimum standards, regulations" document, which was published in February 2002.

The Department commissioned the national perinatal epidemiology unit (NPEU) to undertake a review of evidence about clinical, psychosocial and economic outcomes for women with straightforward pregnancies who plan to give birth in NHS midwifery-led birth centres, both freestanding and those alongside hospital obstetric units, and the outcomes for their babies. The findings, published as the "Report of a structured review of birth centre outcomes, M. Stewart et al, 2004", are available on the NPEU's website at:

www.npeu.ox.ac.uk/birthcentrereview/birthcentrereview_downloads/RevisedVersion7thJuly2005BirthReview2.pdf.

TB Vaccination

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the process is for a young person visiting a country where tuberculosis is prevalent to obtain a vaccination on the NHS. [78071]

Caroline Flint: The Bacillus Calmette-Guerin (BCG) vaccine is recommended for those under 35 years who are going to live or work with local people for more than one month in a country where the annual incidence of tuberculosis is 40/100,000 or greater.

The BCG vaccine for this purpose is available free of charge on the national health service and can be obtained from the local chest clinic although it can be available from other sources depending on local arrangements.

Alternatively, the BCG vaccination can be given on a private basis from a travel clinic offering this service.

Waiting Lists (Barking, Havering and Redbridge Hospitals NHS Trust)

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people are on waiting lists for (a) heart, (b) lung, (c) liver and (d) kidney operations in the Barking, Havering and Redbridge Hospitals NHS Trust. [79624]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not available in the format requested. However, the table shows the number of patients waiting for in-patient admission for the Barking, Havering and Redbridge Hospitals NHS Trust on a provider basis for the quarter ending March 2006.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many residents of Romford constituency are waiting for operations in hospitals within the Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Trust. [79637]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The number of patients waiting for an in-patient admission for the month ending April 2006, on a commissioner basis for Barking and Dagenham Primary Care Trust (PCT) and Havering PCT is 2,873 and 4,490 respectively.

Worthing Hospital

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her oral statement of 7 June 2006, Official Report, columns 260-61, on NHS Performance, what progress she has made in looking into the possible closure of Worthing hospital's accident and emergency department; and whether she plans to discuss this with the Surrey and Sussex Strategic Health Authority. [80727]

Caroline Flint: I am informed by officials that Surrey and Sussex Strategic Health Authority (SHA) has instigated a programme, Creating an NHS Fit for the Future, to ensure it is providing the best and most appropriate care and that it is providing value for money in order to achieve long-term sustainability.

This programme is currently in its discussion phase and events have been arranged to enable as many people as possible to give their views to help shape both the debate and any proposals for change that may arise from it.

Any proposals emerging from the discussion that recommend significant changes to the services provided will be subject to a full public consultation exercise, most likely to take place in the autumn.

No proposals have been made in relation to the future of Worthing hospital's accident and emergency department, so therefore there are no plans to discuss this matter with Surrey and Sussex SHA.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Iran

13. Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with her US counterparts on EU proposals to resolve the dispute over Iran's nuclear programme. [80223]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the oral answer I gave earlier today (UIN 80221), at column 116.

20. Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on UK bilateral relations with the Islamic Republic of Iran. [80231]

Mr. McCartney: Like the rest of the international community, we have serious concerns about Iran's policies in areas such as its nuclear and ballistic missile programmes; attitude towards terrorism; respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms; approach to the Middle East Peace Process; and role in the region. Progress in our relations with Iran will depend on action by Iran to address international concerns in these areas.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make representations to the Iranian authorities on recent suppression of demonstrations (a) in Azerbaijan Province and (b) by women in Tehran. [80272]

Dr. Howells: There were violent demonstrations in the three Azeri populated provinces of Eastern Azerbaijan, Western Azerbaijan and Ardabil at the end of May. Reports indicate that several people died in violent clashes between the Iranian security forces and the demonstrators. Many were arrested, including journalists and students.

On 12 June, the security forces used violence to break up a peaceful women's protest in Tehran. The protest called for an end to legal discrimination against women; for a woman's testimony in court to have equal value to that of a man; and for a woman to be able to choose her employment and where she travels without the prior permission of her husband. Police officers were deployed—some used batons and pepper sprays liberally. According to the Iranian judiciary, 42 women and 28 men were arrested. We understand all except one have now been released. We support the EU's plans to raise the violent actions against the women's protest with the Iranian authorities.

United Nations

14. David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on reform of the United Nations. [80224]

Mr. Hoon: The Government have consistently supported reform of the United Nations to make it stronger and more effective. As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister said in his recent Georgetown speech, we want global institutions—with the UN at the core—to be better able to tackle global challenges. We will continue to work with partners to achieve this important objective.

Palestinian Authority

15. Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on recent developments in relations between the UK Government and the Palestinian Authority. [80226]

Mr. Hoon: We continue to work with Palestinian President Abbas to take the peace process forward.

The Palestinian Government must commit to the Quartet's principles of non-violence, recognising Israel, and accepting previous agreements and obligations. Hamas must start implementing these principles.

Following the Hamas led PA's failure to commit to these principles, the UK and other key donors suspended direct budgetary assistance to the PA. We continue to support the Palestinian people, and on 17 June endorsed a "Temporary International Mechanism" to provide direct assistance.

16. Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on Israel's unilateral policy on a settlement with the Palestinians; and if she will make a statement. [80227]

Mr. Hoon: Both Palestinian President Abbas and Israeli Prime Minister Olmert have committed to negotiations.

My right. hon. Friend the Prime Minister made clear that the priority now is negotiations. These are manifestly the best way to move this process forward.

We remain committed to the vision of two states, Israel and Palestine, and the establishment of a just and lasting peace.

Turkey

17. Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on negotiations on Turkey's accession to the EU. [80228]

Mr. Hoon: Since opening accession negotiations on 3 October, the Commission has been assessing Turkey's existing legislation against the 35 chapters of the EU "acquis" and has now published its reports on five. We were pleased that on 12 June the EU and Turkey opened and provisionally closed negotiations on the first chapter, Science and Research. As both the EU and Turkey recognise, much remains to be done before accession.

European Constitution

18. Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the future of the European Constitution. [80229]

Mr. McCartney: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given earlier today, (UIN 80220), by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Europe at column 128.

23. Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the future of the European constitution. [80234]

Mr. Hoon: There is no consensus among member states on how to proceed with the constitutional treaty. The European Council agreed a twin track approach based on delivering concrete results under the current treaties and further consultations between member states. Decisions on how to continue the reform process will be taken by the end of 2008 with no presumption on the process's outcome or end date.

European Court of Justice

19. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with other EU member states on the role of the European Court of Justice. [80230]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had any recent discussions with EU colleagues on the role of the European Court of Justice.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she has had with her EU counterparts on the role of the European Court of Justice. [80523]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had any recent discussions with EU colleagues on the role of the European Court of Justice.

Afghanistan

21. Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the human rights situation in Afghanistan. [80232]

Mr. McCartney: The Human Rights situation in Afghanistan is improving, but we remain conscious that more remains to be done. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is currently funding seven projects aimed at increasing women's rights and legal awareness and has provided $1 million towards the Afghan Independent Human Rights Commission this year.

The Commission is proving successful. It has closed approximately 40 "private" prisons and had released some 1,600 illegally detained persons.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of progress in advancing (a) good governance, justice and the rule of law and (b) reconstruction and development in Afghanistan since the signing of the Afghanistan Compact; and if she will make a statement. [77167]

Margaret Beckett: Following the inauguration of Afghanistan's National Assembly in December 2005, both the lower and upper Houses of the National Assembly have begun work.

In March 2006, in line with the public administrative recommendations in the Afghanistan Compact, President Karzai has rationalised Government Ministries, of which two were abolished, and reshuffled his Cabinet. Newly appointed Cabinet Ministers appeared before Parliament to receive approval. This process, and the parliamentary vote, was broadcast live on television. In addition, the National Assembly has approved the financial year 2006-07 Budget and raised objections to some of the President's nominations for the Supreme Court. These are clear signs that the democratic mechanisms necessary to support governance and the rule of law are becoming more established in Afghanistan.

Law enforcement capability and judicial reform capacity building have continued apace. The German-led Police Reform programme, assisted by the US, is continuing to develop the Afghan National Police (ANP) into a professional, credible and effective civil force. In June 2006, President Karzai acted upon the final recommendations of the Police Reform Commission in the second round of the police reform process, appointing 86 senior officials and streamlining the ANP's senior command. Counter-narcotics police interdiction operations continue with increased resources and personnel. The Counter Narcotics Police of Afghanistan and the Afghanistan Special Narcotics Force continue to cause disruption to the narcotics trade at a regional level. Working Groups, co-chaired by the Ministry of Justice and international donors, are making progress on law reform, institutional capacity and physical infrastructure, legal education and professional training, legal aid and access to justice, land reform, prisons and juvenile justice. Work continues on criminal and civil procedures, a new penal code, and family, company and anti-terrorism laws.

Technical support to justice institutions has been revitalised with the UN Development Programme's "Strengthening the Justice System of Afghanistan" commencing in February 2006.

Since the launch of the Afghanistan Compact in January 2006, work has continued on long-term reconstruction and development projects throughout Afghanistan. For example, sanitation and waste management programmes in Kabul and provincial cities are in progress. The Afghan Government's National Solidarity programme, supporting small-scale reconstruction and development activities, has now reached over 8.5 million Afghans with more than 4,500 projects completed (88 per cent. of these community projects involve infrastructure such as irrigation, rural roads, electrification and drinking water supply). The Afghanistan Compact sets out clear benchmarks on development issues against which the Joint Co-ordination and Monitoring Board will measure progress.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance her Department has given to the Afghan Government for (a) legislative reform of the public and private sector, (b) building the capacity of judicial institutions and personnel, (c) promoting human rights and legal awareness and (d) rehabilitating judicial infrastructure; and if she will make a statement. [77168]

Margaret Beckett: Together with the World Bank, consultants funded by the Department for International Development (DFID) have worked closely with the Independent Administrative Reform and Civil Service Commission drafting a new civil service law, which was adopted in late 2005. DFID funded consultants have worked closely with the Ministry of Commerce, and US colleagues on the development of a range of legislation aimed at promoting development of the private sector.

Working with Italy, the partner nation for Reform of the Justice Sector in Afghanistan, and other international partners, the UK is helping Afghanistan establish a functional, accessible, equitable and sustainable justice system. In 2004, DFID made a contribution of £0.5 million to the United Nations Development programme (UNDP) project 'Rebuilding the Justice Sector in Afghanistan'; £0.2 million of this has been rolled over to finance the new UNDP 'Strengthening Justice Sector in Afghanistan Project'. Funds from the joint Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO)/DFID/Ministry of Defence Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP) have provided a further £0.5 million to this project, which includes promotion of human rights, strengthening justice sector institutions, rehabilitation and reconstruction of infrastructure and training and capacity building of justice sector personnel. The GCPP also recently provided $1 million to the Afghanistan Independent Human Rights Commission towards their overall core costs for financial year 2006-07.

The FCO's Global Opportunities Fund (GOF) continues to support the promotion of human rights in Afghanistan. Over the past three financial years GOF has provided £240,000 to the Bar Human Rights Committee to deliver human rights legal training; contributed £150,000 to the Women Empowerment Project, implemented by Womankind, focused on promoting women's equal participation in national/provincial government and building gender equality in Afghanistan; and committed £339,000 to the Action Aid projects, Afghan Women Affecting Change and Women's Participation in Governance, aimed at supporting domestic women's rights organisations and women's involvement in local government respectively.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what assessment she has made of the adequacy of resources in place to achieve a sustained and significant reduction in the production and trafficking of narcotics in Helmand province; and if she will make a statement; [77169]

(2) what assistance her Department has given to the Afghan Government to implement programmes to achieve a sustained annual reduction in the amount of land under poppy and other drug cultivation. [77178]

Margaret Beckett: The UK is spending £270 million over three years in support of the Afghan National Drug Control Strategy—including, from 2006, some £25-30 million per annum in Helmand province. Of the total £270 million, approximately 50 per cent. will be channelled into efforts to strengthen and diversify legal rural livelihoods, and much of the remainder devoted to building capacity within the Afghan counter narcotics law enforcement and criminal justice agencies responsible for bringing traffickers to justice. However, UK resources will not, on their own, be sufficient to bring about a sustained reduction in the amount of land under poppy cultivation. As a partner nation for counter narcotics, the UK is therefore working hard to ensure that international assistance is targeted in line with the priorities set out in the National Drug Control Strategy. We have supported the establishment of a Counter Narcotics Trust Fund, to which a number of partners including the US and the EC are now contributing, for this purpose.

Progress is being made: last year saw the conviction of over 150 drug traffickers, and a 21 per cent. reduction in the cultivation of opium poppy. However, sustainable drug elimination strategies take time, particularly when the challenges are as severe as they are in Afghanistan. After last year's decline, this year's cultivation figures are unlikely to decrease further as consolidated progress in areas where governance, security and access to livelihoods have improved is still being outpaced by increased planting in the more lawless south, including Helmand province. Our deployment to Helmand is part of the broader international support for the reconstruction effort, which is vital to the success of the Government of Afghanistan's counter narcotics campaign and to the sustained reduction in the cultivation, production and trafficking of opium poppy.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her assessment is of links between the Taliban and drug smugglers in Helmand province in Afghanistan; and if she will make a statement. [78830]

Margaret Beckett: The Taliban and drug traffickers flourish in the same ungoverned space and they have a confluence of interest in ensuring that central Government is unable to extend its authority to their areas of operation. There is growing evidence of links. At the tactical level, there are some ad hoc links between the Taliban and traffickers where their specific interests coincide. Recently, there has been evidence that the Taliban are encouraging Afghan farmers to grow opium poppy and in the south, including Helmand, the Taliban have encouraged farmers to resist Government eradication efforts. It is unclear how much the Taliban use drug money to facilitate their operations. There are some signs of contacts at the strategic level. We continue to assess the links closely, particularly as UK presence in the south consolidates. We support Afghan efforts to disrupt any linkages.

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps are being taken to ensure that the Afghan National Police Force is paid (a) adequately and (b) on time. [80434]

Dr. Howells: One of the key components in the reform of the Afghan National Police is a pay and rank review, which is currently under way. When this is completed it will ensure that the police are paid adequately and on time.

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what international research she has examined on the conversion of Afghan poppy production into bio-fuels; and if she will make a statement. [80161]

Dr. Howells: There has been no examination of international research into the conversion of Afghan poppy production into bio-fuels by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary. However, in 2001, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office commissioned an independent study into licit cultivation of opium poppy for pharmaceutical use in India and Turkey. The report concluded that diversion from licit cultivation can only be successful if national authorities have the resources and capacity to put control mechanisms in place to ensure they are the sole purchaser of opiates.

The Government of Afghanistan and Parliament have ruled out licit opium cultivation. The Afghan Minister for Counter Narcotics, Habibullah Qaderi, has said,

> "The poor security situation in the country means there can simply be no guarantee that opium will not be smuggled out of the country for the illicit narcotics trade abroad. Without an effective control mechanism, a lot of opium will still be refined into heroin for illicit markets in the West and elsewhere. We could not accept this".

Sudan

22. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in establishing a UN peacekeeping force for Darfur. [80233]

Mr. McCartney: The UN Security Council and the African Union are agreed that a UN force should replace the AU troops currently in Darfur. A joint AU/UN planning mission has just returned from Darfur. The UN Secretary-General will report shortly to the Security Council. The Government of Sudan have, however, not yet agreed to a UN force. We will continue to press them to do so.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations she has made to her counterparts in (a) Khartoum and (b) N'Djamena regarding the recent violence on the Chad-Sudan border; and if she will make a statement. [78826]

Margaret Beckett: We are aware that Chadian rebels and Darfur militia continue to mount cross-border attacks into Eastern Chad from Darfur, which has led to the displacement of 50,000 Chadians. We are also aware of reports of Darfur rebels continuing to be supported by Chad. We are pressing the Government of Sudan to neutralise and disarm the Janjaweed and expel foreign fighters from Darfur as soon as possible, as required under the Darfur Peace Agreement. We are also urging both Governments to fulfil their obligations under the Tripoli Agreement. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development raised this most recently with the Sudanese Deputy Foreign Minister. Our non-resident ambassador to Chad raised this with their Foreign Minister during his last visit to N'Djamena.

Algeria

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government have entered into a Memorandum of Understanding with the Government of Algeria on the use of torture. [79986]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 26 June 2006]: We discuss human rights issues with the Government of Algeria regularly. I did so during my visit to Algiers on 7-8 June. We have not entered into, and are not negotiating, a Memorandum of Understanding on the use of torture.

The Government unreservedly condemn the use of torture as a matter of fundamental principle and works hard with its international partners to eradicate this abhorrent practice. The UK abides by its commitments under international law, including the UN convention against torture and the European convention on human rights, and it expects all other countries to comply with their international obligations. We are active in pressing them to deliver on their human rights commitments.

As far as the deportation of individuals who present a threat to our national security is concerned, we act consistently with our human rights obligations, taking into account the provisions of the Charter for Peace and National Reconciliation, its accompanying policy on clemency and the particular circumstances of each case.

Basseo/Project Cost Handling Strategy

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2006, Official Report, column

1274W, on the Basson/Project Cost handling strategy, how many officials there were from each Government Department; and what the job title was of each one. [79205]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 21 June 2006]: I am unable to provide any more information than that provided in my answer to my hon. Friend on 14 June 2006, Official Report, column 1274W.

Benyam Mohammed

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer given by her predecessor to Q36 of oral evidence taken before the Foreign Affairs Committee on 13 December 2005, what form the misinformation referred to about the case of Benyam Mohammed (al-Habashi) took. [80070]

Dr. Howells: Serious allegations have been made concerning mistreatment of Mr. Al Habashi. As the former Foreign Secretary, my right hon. Friend the Member for Blackburn (Mr. Straw) made clear, Mr. Al Habashi was interviewed once by a member of the UK Security Service while he was in detention in Karachi in 2002. The Security Service had no role in his capture or in his transfer from Pakistan. The Intelligence and Security Committee report "Handling of Detainees by UK Intelligence Personnel in Afghanistan, Guantanamo Bay and Iraq" of March 2005 gave details of the guidance under which such interviews were conducted, and the service officer did not observe any abuse and no instances of abuse were reported to him by Mr. Al Habashi.

The Government, including the intelligence and security agencies, never uses torture for any purpose, including to obtain information. Nor does the Government or its Security and Intelligence Services ever instigate, condone or otherwise support others in the use of torture for any purpose.

British Passports

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British passports have been issued by her Department overseas in each of the last five years, broken down by country; and in how many cases the recipient was issued with a passport for the first time in each case. [79171]

Dr. Howells: The number of British passports that have been issued overseas in each of the last five years is shown as follows. The table also provides a breakdown by issuing country. Data are not available for financial year (FY) 2001-02 as we did not begin to keep records until FY 2002-03. The figures for FY 2005-06 are derived from a source different from that of the previous years and will be adjusted in due course and when global figures are available from the consular annual returns from overseas posts. We are unable to tell in how many cases the recipient was issued with a passport for the first time, as our records do not provide data on the number of first time applicants for passports.

The total number of British passports issued overseas rounded to the nearest thousand is:

FY	Number
2002-03	450,000
2003-04	447,000
2004-05	453,000
2005-06	438,000

Bulgaria

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will visit Bulgaria to ascertain whether it is ready to join the EU on 1 January 2007. [80339]

Mr. Hoon: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has no plans to visit Bulgaria. So far this year, the former Europe Minister my right hon. Friend the Member for Paisley and Renfrewshire, South (Mr. Alexander), my hon. Friend the Minister for the Middle East and the former Home Secretary my right hon. Friend the Member for Norwich, South (Mr. Clarke) have visited Bulgaria to assess EU accession preparations. I plan to visit later this year.

Burma

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the value of frozen assets held under the EU Common Position on Burma was in (a) the UK and (b) all European Union member states. [78258]

Margaret Beckett: The current reported value of assets frozen by UK authorities on the basis that assets are covered by the EU restrictive measures in place in relation to Burma amounts to £3,576.65.

We do not hold figures for assets frozen by other EU member states.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many people on the visa ban list under the EU Common Position on Burma have been (a) refused and (b) granted entry to Europe. [78259]

Margaret Beckett: The United Kingdom does not keep national records of the number of cases involving application of the travel ban by EU member states.

Chad

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of reports of Janjaweed militias committing atrocities against civilians and refugees in Eastern Chad. [78817]

Margaret Beckett: There are indications that some militia groups are now operating in the border area inside Eastern Chad, while others continue to mount attacks from inside Darfur. We are concerned for the safety and security of the estimated 50,000 Chadians displaced as a result of attacks and violence in the east of the country, and for the 200,000 refugees from Darfur now sheltering in camps in Eastern Chad. The UK provided £5 million to the response in Chad last year and is providing an additional £4 million this year. We continue to monitor the situation closely.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the security situation in eastern Chad; and if she will make a statement. [78827]

Margaret Beckett: We are aware that Chadian rebels and Darfur militia continue to mount cross-border attacks into Eastern Chad from Darfur, which has led to the displacement of 50,000 Chadians. We are concerned by the continuing unrest in Eastern Chad and for the safety and security of both displaced Chadians, and the 200,000 Darfur refugees in camps there. We are also concerned about reports of forced recruitment of young men and teenagers from the refugee camps in Eastern Chad by Darfur rebels.

We continue to call on all sides to show restraint and on the Governments of Chad and Sudan to resolve their differences, fulfil their obligations under the Tripoli Agreement and restore calm to the region without the use of violence.

Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when she will reply to the letter to her predecessor dated 18 April 2006 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton, with regard to Mrs. Ahmed. [73854]

Margaret Beckett: I replied to my right hon. Friend on 17 May 2006.

Counter-narcotics Training

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what counter-narcotics training her Department has facilitated for law enforcement agencies in (a) Afghanistan, (b) Jamaica, (c) Turkey, (d) Iran, (e) Pakistan and (f) the Balkans in the last five years. [77172]

Margaret Beckett: Since 2001, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has funded counter-narcotics (CN) training as follows:

	Funding (£)
Jamaica	1,620,000
Turkey	1,406,000
Iran	1,376,000
Pakistan	435,000
Balkans	1,675,000

Afghanistan has been a high priority country for CN assistance since 2002. The UK law enforcement and criminal justice budget for 2006-07 is over £20 million. Within Afghanistan, the UK, as key partner nation, has helped to establish the counter narcotics police of Afghanistan (CNPA)—the lead national drugs law enforcement agency, with its headquarters in Kabul and seven provincial offices—through training, mentoring and equipping the force. The UK also co-ordinates the mentoring of senior officers within the CNPA and has contributed £1.5 million to the Afghan Law and Order Trust Fund which supports salaries and purchases of equipment for the CNPA. Additionally, the UK has assisted the establishment of a Counter Narcotics Criminal Justice Task Force, and is providing mentoring on prosecution and investigation. The UK is also helping to strengthen the borders of Afghanistan through contributions to border management assistance in Tajikistan, Iran and Pakistan.

In Jamaica, the main focus of our training has been to ensure that Jamaican law enforcement agencies become more effective crime fighting forces and in particular are able to dismantle organised drug syndicates, by enhancing their investigation techniques and ability to gather intelligence and evidence. Training has also been provided to the coastguard on interdiction techniques and to deter illegal drug trafficking into and out of Jamaica, as well as customs training at airports.

In Turkey, CN training is delivered through the UK/Turkey Prime Ministers' Action Plan, agreed at the UK/Turkey summit in May 2004. Our CN training assistance to Turkey concentrates on intelligence capability with a view to facilitating joint operational work with UK law enforcement to tackle trafficking in drugs.

In Iran, the UK supports operational engagement to tackle drug traffickers, providing technical advice to Iranian law enforcement agencies, in particular the anti narcotics police, on how Iran can further improve its performance on supply reduction. We are also helping to strengthen border management capability, and improve drug detection work, mainly through contributing to the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime Iran CN programme.

In Pakistan, the UK is helping to improve Pakistan's CN capacity through law enforcement intelligence and interdiction capability training for the Anti Narcotics Force (the UK's key CN partner), including capacity building at sea and airports. We also assist judicial CN training to help to improve the criminal justice processes to bring drug traffickers to justice.

In the Balkans, our aim is to help law enforcement agencies to be better equipped to fight drug traffickers and other organised crime groups at an international level through strengthened border controls, intelligence capability and drug detection training and equipment.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of her Department. [80087]

Mr. Hoon: The finance director of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office is D. R. Todd. He has a BA in Modern History. He was appointed in 2004, after a Whitehall competition, by a selection board including the then Government chief accountant. The Department is in the process of recruiting a qualified professional to succeed Mr. Todd by December 2006, in line with HM Treasury cross-Whitehall recommendations.

EU Air/Sea Patrols

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the status is of EU air and sea patrols deployed in the territorial waters of Mauritania, Senegal and Cape Verde; what the cost of such operations are to the EU; and from what budget they are being funded. [80159]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 26 June 2006]: There are currently no EU air or sea patrols deployed around Mauritania, Senegal and Cape Verde, although the Spanish authorities have been engaged in bilateral co-operation with Mauritanian authorities using EU funding. Action is being planned to counter the illegal migration route through the territorial waters off West Africa at four levels:

external Relations Commissioner Ferrero Waldner has made a commitment of €2 million for a Rapid Reaction Mechanism, which would include air and naval patrols, although not all this funding will be channelled to action around Mauritania, Senegal and Cape Verde;

Frontex (the EU border agency) has allocated an initial indicative €1.3 million to step up patrols as well as other interdiction activities;

the European Development Fund is also being used bilaterally, for instance in Mauritania, to work on strengthening border security mechanisms and to combat illegal migration;

finally as an interim measure some EU member states are making available hardware, manpower and surveillance capability to step up patrols of the affected areas.

European Union (Transparency)

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will bring forward proposals to increase transparency of decision making in the Council of the European Union. [80456]

Mr. Hoon: "An Overall Policy on Transparency" was agreed at the June European Council. Before considering any further proposals on increasing transparency in the Council of Ministers, the Government will want to see how the Finnish presidency implements the policy in practice, and then take full account of the six month review agreed at the European Council.

Falkland Islands

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions her Department has had with (a) other Departments and (b) the Prime Minister's office on the exploration for oil and gas in Falkland Islands waters. [79701]

Mr. Hoon: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office have had discussions on the exploration for oil and gas in Falkland Islands waters with the Department of Trade and Industry, the Ministry of Defence, the Department for International Development and the Cabinet Office. The most recent meeting was held on 13 June.

Foreign Affairs Committee

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what Foreign Affairs Committee recommendations the Department has (a) accepted and (b) implemented since 2001-02; and if she will make a statement. [77494]

Margaret Beckett: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not hold this data in the form sought by the hon. Member and to collate it would incur disproportionate costs. The Foreign Affairs Committee (FAC) produced 59 reports during the period in question. The FCO replies to each FAC report in the form of a Command Paper, in which each of the Committee's recommendations receives a response.

Guantanamo Bay

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her Department's policy is on Guantanamo Bay; and if she will make a statement. [79823]

Mr. McCartney: We have long made it clear that we regard the circumstances under which detainees continue to be held at the detention facility at Guantanamo Bay as unacceptable. As my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has said, it should be closed.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action the European Union has agreed to take to encourage the United States Administration to close the Guantanamo Bay detention facility. [80357]

Mr. Hoon: The EU has made clear its views about the detention facility at Guantanamo Bay, including in May when Austrian Foreign Minister Ursula Plassnik, speaking on behalf of the EU, said

"The US government must take the measures to close the camp as soon as possible".

The United States Government are well aware of the EU's concerns. After the EU-US summit in Vienna on 21 June, President Bush acknowledged these concerns and reaffirmed his wish to close the Guantanamo Bay detention facility.

Human Rights

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations she has received from (a) the Council of Europe and (b) others recommending the establishment of a commission of inquiry to investigate possible human rights violations that transcend national borders. [78825]

Margaret Beckett: The Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe report, published on 7 June, recognised that

"The United Kingdom Parliament has not yet established a formal inquiry into possible British participation in abuses committed by the United States in the course of the 'war on terror', but there have been several noteworthy parliamentary initiatives designed to broaden the public debate and encourage greater openness".

The Amnesty International report 'Partners in Crime: Europe's role in US renditions', published on 15 June, recommended to all Council of Europe member states that they "Initiate, if implicated in a case of rendition, an independent and impartial inquiry into the practice of rendition".

My right hon. Friend the Member for Blackburn (Mr. Straw) the then Foreign Secretary set out in his written ministerial statement of 20 January 2006, Official Report, columns 37-38WS the results of the extensive review of official records back to May 1997.

Iraq

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions her Department has had with US counterparts on the recent US Department of Defense investigation into labour trafficking in Iraq; and if she will make a statement. [77175]

Margaret Beckett: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not discussed recent US investigations into people trafficking in Iraq with US counterparts. I note the recommendations about labour trafficking in Iraq, laid out by the US Department of State in their annual report on trafficking in persons. We will raise this and other issues with the Iraqi and US Governments in the usual way.

The Government regularly discuss all forms of human trafficking through the International Labour Organisation, the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe and the Council of Europe. The UK is also a signatory to the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organised Crime and its optional "Palermo Protocol", specifically concerning human trafficking.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the coalition in Iraq is taking (a) to ensure Iraqi investigation of abuse allegations and (b) to promote public reporting of the investigations; and what the UK's role is in this process. [78818]

Margaret Beckett: The Government take allegations of abuse extremely seriously and raise such allegations with the Iraqi Government at the highest level. We press the Government to investigate fully any allegations and welcome their commitment to make the findings of investigations public.

A joint inspection team comprised of Iraqi and Multi-National Force-Iraq officials has been established, the task of which is to make unannounced inspections at detention facilities and report its findings to the Iraqi authorities.

The Government shall continue to make clear to the Iraqi authorities that all allegations of abuse must be investigated, the abuse ended and those responsible punished. We will continue a close dialogue on this with the newly formed Iraqi Government.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of (a) reports of detainee abuse and (b) extrajudicial police actions in Iraq; and if she will make a statement. [78819]

Margaret Beckett: The Government are aware of such allegations and have raised them with the Iraqi Government at the highest level. We have pressed the Iraqi authorities to investigate allegations fully and make findings public. The Iraqi Government have established judicial investigations into allegations made.

The Government are committed with international partners to provide long-term support to Iraq's rule of law institutions, building their capacity to ensure respect for international human rights norms. The Government's work with the Iraqi police, for example, includes the provision of professional training, including in human rights, and a mentoring scheme that helps implement this training.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the role of the UK representative is on the Joint Committee to Transfer Security Responsibility in Iraq. [78821] represents the views of the Government in working with the Iraqis and coalition partners to oversee the process of transferring lead responsibility for security in each Iraqi province from coalition forces to the Iraqi authorities.

Margaret Beckett: The UK representative on the Joint Committee to Transfer Security Responsibility

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what criteria were developed to guide the transfer of security responsibility in Iraq as agreed by the Joint Committee to Transfer Security Responsibility. [78822]

Margaret Beckett: The criteria set out by the Joint Committee to Transfer Security Responsibility are based on four categories:

Assessment of the threat level—including the terrorist/insurgent threat, the cross-border threat and the threat to infrastructure.

Assessment of Iraqi Security Forces' ability to take on the security task—including an assessment of their capacity to maintain the security situation, their ability to conduct counter-insurgency operations and their ability to co-ordinate the security of strategic infrastructure.

Assessment of the capacity of provincial bodies to govern effectively—including an assessment of the capability of the Governor to oversee security operations, Provincial Security Committee to co-ordinate and monitor operations, the intelligence structure to support the police, and the legal operation of detention systems.

Assessment of the posture and support available from coalition forces—including their ability to reinforce the Iraqi armed forces if required and assist in co-ordinating civil construction activities.

Israel

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 4 May 2006, Official Report, column 1806W, on Israel, if she will make strong representations to the Israeli Government concerning its failure to provide a reply in relation to the treatment of the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton within the two weeks stipulated. [77624]

Margaret Beckett: My Department has been in regular contact with the Israeli embassy on this issue. I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 13 June 2006.

Mr. Kent Taylor

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) if she will approach the Qatari authorities formally about Mr. Kent Taylor, who has been unable to leave Qatar since 2001; [79551]

(2) when she last raised the case of Mr. Kent Taylor with the Qatari authorities; and if she will make a statement. [79552]

Dr. Howells: We have concerns about the length of time it is taking to resolve this case. Although my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has no plans to approach the Qatari authorities about this issue, our ambassador in Doha has raised these concerns with the Qatari authorities, most recently with the Qatari Foreign Minister on 19 June.

NORTHERN IRELAND

A5

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Roads Service has spent on improving the A5 between Derry and Aughnacloy in each of the last five years; how much is planned to be spent in each of the next three years; and what joint plans the Roads Service and the Department for Transport in the Republic of Ireland have to upgrade the A5/N2 Derry to Dublin road. [79977]

David Cairns: The acting chief executive of Roads Service (Mr. Geoff Allister) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to this question.

Letter from Mr. Geoff Allister, dated 27 June 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question about how much the Roads Service has spent on improving the A5 between Derry and Aughnacloy in each of the last five years; how much is planned to be spent in each of the next three years; and what joint plans the Roads Service and the Department for Transport in the Republic of Ireland have to upgrade the A5/N2 Derry to Dublin road.

I have been asked to reply as these issues fall within my responsibility as Acting Chief Executive of Roads Service.

The table below details Roads Service's expenditure on improving the A5 between Derry and Aughnacloy for the five-year period 2001/02 to 2005/06. I should advise that these figures include capital works and the cost of resurfacing works on this particular route.

Financial year	Amount (£000)
2001-02	5,642
2002-03	7,509
2003-04	3,738
2004-05	3,892

With regard to planned expenditure on this route over the next 3 years, I can advise that it is expected that work will commence on the A5 between Ballygawley and Tullyvar (north of Aughnacloy) and Stage 3 of Strabane Bypass. We would also hope to spend over £4m on the A5 on a mix of overtaking lanes and resurfacing schemes. At this stage it is not possible to predict future spend on a year by year basis, as this will depend on the availability of funding during any given year. In addition, the Tullyvar scheme is being improved and upgraded under the Roads Service's Public Private Partnership 2 Project and being delivered using a Design Build Finance and Operate contract.

You also asked about any joint plans Roads Service and the Department for Transport in the Republic of Ireland have to upgrade the A5/N2 Derry to Dublin road. I should first of all advise that Roads Service has good working relations with both the National Roads Authority (NRA) and the Department for Transport in the Republic of Ireland, through the Cross Border Roads Steering Group meetings that are co-chaired by both Chief Executives. Through meetings of this group, information on the programmes of development of the cross border routes in both jurisdictions is shared and compatible strategies for improvement are agreed.

Roads Service's and the NRA's plans for major works at present include proposals to upgrade the existing single carriageway sections of the A5/N2 route between Derry and Ardee, through the construction of widened carriageway to "2 + 1" layouts and thus provide guaranteed overtaking opportunities and improve safety on the route. The relatively low traffic flows on the route do not merit the levels of investment needed to upgrade the route to dual carriageway standard when considered in the context of the need to also upgrade other key routes within the current budget levels.

Caravans

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many new caravan parks have been opened in Northern Ireland in the last three year period, broken down by local authority area; and what estimate he has made of the contribution to local economies from caravaners. [78497]

David Cairns: Table A shows the number of caravan parks by council area that have been granted planning approval in the last three years. Unfortunately, the Planning Service is unable to provide information on the number of caravan parks opened in Northern Ireland as details are not held on the number of approvals that have subsequently been implemented.

Table A: Number of caravan parks granted planning approval between 1 April 2003 and 31 March 2006

District council area	Number
Antrim	1
Ards	3
Banbridge	1
Coleraine	2
Down	4
Fermanagh	3
Moyle	2
Newry and Mourne	2
Total	18

In 2005 an estimated £3.6 million was generated from out-of-state visitors (i.e. visitors from overseas and ROI but excluding domestic) to Northern Ireland choosing to stay in the caravan and camping sector. In 2004 domestic holidaymakers spent £11.3 million during holidays staying in static caravans, and £1.3 million during holidays in touring caravans (these data are currently unavailable for 2005). Annual breakdowns are provided in Tables B and C as follows.

Table B: Estimated spend for out-of-state visitors staying in caravans/camping

	Spend (£ million)
2005	3.6
2004	3.3
2003	3.0

Table C: Estimated spend for domestic holidaymakers staying in towed and static caravans

	Spend (£ million)
	Towed caravans	Static caravans (owned and not owned)
2005	n/a	n/a
2004	1.3	11.3
2003	3.2	13.0

Criminal Injuries Compensation

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total amount paid to victims of crime in Northern Ireland by way of criminal injuries compensation was in each of the last five years. [79999]

Mr. Hain: The Compensation Agency has operational responsibility for the administration of two statutory criminal injury compensation schemes: The Criminal Injuries (Compensation) (Northern Ireland) Order 1988 (the 1988 order scheme) and the Criminal Injuries Compensation (Northern Ireland) Order 2002 (the tariff scheme).

The following table shows the overall total amount of criminal injuries compensation paid in the last five years broken down by scheme.

	1988 Order	2002 Order (Tariff)	Total
2001-02	50,469,842.36	0.00	50,469,842.36
2002-03	52,113,863.08	75,000.00	52,188,863.08
2003-04	46,625,939.74	3,277,783.99	49,903,723.73
2004-05	33,123,066.77	8,281,290.66	41,404,357.43
2005-06	23,773,880.57	15,207,312.92	38,981,193.49

Dental Services

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his Department's preferred ratio is of dentists per head of population in Northern Ireland; and what the ratio was in the last period for which figures are available. [80106]

Paul Goggins: There is no target ratio for dentists per head of population. The aim is to ensure an adequate level of dental provision both in terms of availability and accessibility. In Northern Ireland at November 2004 there were 43 general dental practitioners per 100,000 population. This compares to 37 general dental practitioners per 100,000 population in England, Scotland and Wales. Population figures for 2005 are not yet available.

I am satisfied with the current level of dental provision both in terms of availability and accessibility. Nevertheless, I fully recognise that the General Dental Service, through which the vast majority of our primary dental care is delivered, is in need of reorganisation in order to continue to provide a quality service to patients, address the oral health needs of the population and provide a rewarding career for dental professionals.

In order to achieve this, a new 10-year primary dental care strategy will be published shortly.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) laptops and (b) mobile phones have been bought by each Department under his authority in each of the last eight years; and what the cost was of each category of equipment in each year. [78743]

Mr. Hanson: Due to the detailed nature of the question the answer is laid out in tabular form. Note that some Departments do not have complete records of laptops purchased over the period in question. A similar situation affects the records of mobile phones purchased, and for some Departments the cost of mobile handsets was subsumed in the cost of service contracts.

Fixed Penalties

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was generated by fixed penalty fines in Northern Ireland for each of the past three years. [77351]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

Revenue generated by fixed penalty fines for each of the past three years is set out as follows.

2003-04	3,474,840
2004-05	3,655,710
2005-06	3,842,790

Gastric Bypass Surgery

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures are in place to ensure that people in Northern Ireland who require gastric bypass surgery receive the treatment they need. [79978]

Paul Goggins: Arrangements already exist to help patients with weight-loss management at the Royal Group of hospitals and to refer those who are deemed fit for surgery to centres outside Northern Ireland for treatment. Where a consultant believes that referral is appropriate, the relevant health and social services board will fund this on an Extra Contractual Referral (ECR) basis.

Graveyards (Vandalism)

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many convictions there have been for vandalism of headstones at graveyards in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [79971]

David Cairns: Court statistics relating to offences against property do not include detail relating to the type of property involved, therefore, convictions for criminal damage of headstones at graveyards cannot be separately identified.

Health Trusts

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the estimated additional cost is of establishing the proposed five new health trusts in Northern Ireland. [79997]

Paul Goggins: The establishment of the five new health and social care trusts, as with the other Review of Public Administration proposals, is intended to result in net savings. The resources released will be used to further improve the provision of front line services to the people of Northern Ireland. It is not possible at this stage to calculate precisely the level of net savings because detailed management arrangements have yet to be determined. At this initial stage, however, it is anticipated that the new Trusts will be expected to save in the order of £20 million per annum in administration costs. This will require a one off investment of approximately £40 million, consisting largely of early leaving payments.

Medical Students

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many medical students from outside the UK and Europe Economic Area in Northern Ireland will be affected by the introduction on 3 April 2006 of the ban on universities recruiting such students where UK/EEA students are available. [80237]

Paul Goggins: No medical students from outside the UK and European Economic Area will be affected by the new immigration rules that were introduced on 3 April 2006. There is no ban on universities recruiting overseas students.

Neighbourhood and Estate Code Polygons

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 8 June 2006, Official Report, column 798W, on the Valuation and Lands Agency, if he will place in the Library a copy of the technical documentation relating to the neighbourhood and estate code polygons. [78320]

Mr. Hanson: Maps and schedules of estate codes are currently being prepared and will be placed in the Library at the earliest possible date.

Prisoners

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many mobile telephones were found in the possession of prisoners in each prison in each of the last five years in Northern Ireland. [77361]

Paul Goggins: The number of mobile telephones found in the possession of prisoners in each prison in each of the last five years in Northern Ireland, is shown as follows:

	Maghaberry	Magilligan	Hydebank Wood
2002-03	1	0	1
2003-04	1	0	0
2004-05	1	14	0
2005-06	28	9	1
2006-07 (to date)	7	14	1
Total	38	37	3

At present, prisoners found in possession of mobile telephones are subject to internal disciplinary procedures. It is the Government's intention to extend to Northern Ireland provisions in the Offender Management, Sentences and Procedures Bill that will make it a criminal offence to take a mobile telephone into or out of a prison establishment.

Sexual Offences

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many individuals convicted of rape in the Province received a caution in each of the last 10 years. [80029]

Mr. Hanson: Table 1 shows the number of rape offences (including attempts) cleared by means of charge/summons and by way of a caution for the years 1996-97 to 2005-06.

Table 2 shows the number of persons prosecuted and convicted for rape (including attempts) from years 1994 to 2003, the latter being the most up-to-date available at present.

The different collation methods upon which Table 1 and Table 2 are based should be borne in mind, the former being crime/victim-based while the latter is offender-based. It is not possible therefore to relate the two tables.

Table 1: Number of offences of rape (including attempts) cleared by way of charge/summons and caution, 1996-97 to 2005-06

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps are being taken to improve the conviction rates for sexual assault and rape in the Province. [80032]

Mr. Hanson: I shall shortly be consulting on a reform of sexual offences legislation and shall include a proposal to amend the law to give a statutory definition of 'capacity' in rape cases. This bears on the law on consent and can be an important aspect of a court's consideration of an allegation of rape. In addition the Public Prosecution Service has trained all its prosecutors in the use of 'special measure' provisions which are designed to assist victims and vulnerable or intimidated witnesses to give best evidence. Further training is planned in relation to sexual offence cases. The sexual violence strategy currently being developed for consultation will also make an important contribution to the effectiveness of the immediate support available from the health authorities and the police to victims of rape and sexual assault.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many convictions for sex offences there have been in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years; what the average length of prison sentence received was in each year; and what the (a) longest and (b) shortest sentences given were in each year. [79975]

Mr. Hanson: The following table provides the number convicted of sexual offences, the number sentenced to immediate custody, the average sentence length passed and the minimum and maximum sentence length given in each year.

Data beyond 2003 are not yet available. Data are collated on the principal offence rule, thus only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

Number of convictions for sexual offences, the number sentenced to immediate custody and average, minimum and maximum sentence length given in months 1999-2003

	Number convicted[1]	Number sentenced to immediate custody[2]	Average sentence length (months)	Minimum sentence length (months)	Maximum sentence length (months)
1999	90	56	32.6	1.0	144.0
2000	130	69	32.2	3.0	144.0
2001	112	67	43.0	2.0	216.0
2002	84	41	39.6	3.0	144.0
2003	108	56	35.1	4.0	144.0

[1] Figures include convictions for the offences of rape, attempted rape, buggery, gross indecency, unlawful carnal knowledge, indecent assault, indecent exposure, incest, distributing, taking, copying indecent photographs or pseudo photographs of children.
[2] Offences for which offenders were given immediate custody include rape, attempted rape, buggery, gross indecency, unlawful carnal knowledge, indecent assault, indecent exposure, incest, distributing, taking indecent photographs or pseudo photographs of children.
Note:
Figures include persons sentenced to prison, YOC and custody probation.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the merits of establishing in Northern Ireland an assault, rape, counselling, health centre similar to ones in other parts of the UK. [80207]

Paul Goggins: A sexual violence strategy is currently being developed for Northern Ireland. In developing the strategy the option of establishing a sexual assault referral centre (SARC) for Northern Ireland is being explored.

Sexual Violence Strategy

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when the consultation on a regional sexual violence strategy is expected to be published. [80030]

Paul Goggins: The development of a regional strategy to address sexual violence in Northern Ireland is being taken forward jointly by the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety and the Northern Ireland Office, in conjunction with other Departments and agencies whose responsibilities also have a bearing on matters relating to sexual violence. It is proposed to publish a consultation document by the end of summer 2006. Implementation plans will be agreed with each Department and agency following the consultation process and prior to the strategy being finalised. The implementation plans will be published with the strategy.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland when he expects the final regional sexual violence strategy to be completed. [80031]

Paul Goggins: The development of a regional strategy to address sexual violence in Northern Ireland is being taken forward jointly by the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety and the Northern Ireland Office, in conjunction with other Departments and agencies whose responsibilities also have a bearing on matters relating to sexual violence. It is proposed to publish the final strategy in April 2007.

Special Advisers

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much was spent on overnight accommodation for special advisers in the Northern Ireland Office in each of the last five years. [77214]

Mr. Hain: The information requested by the hon. Member is not readily available for all of the five years. Prior to financial year 2005-06, payments in respect of special advisers in the Northern Ireland Office (NIO) were not separated out from civil servants. The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost. In 2005-06, the NIO restructured the ministerial expenditure codes in order to separately identify Ministers', ministerial support staff and special advisor costs.

The amount spent on overnight accommodation for special advisers in the Northern Ireland Office in the financial year 2005-06 was £1,641.23.

Travellers

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many Travellers camps there are in Northern Ireland; what the location is of each; and how many caravans can be accommodated at each camp. [80105]

Mr. Hanson: Responsibility for the provision of Traveller sites rests with the Northern Ireland Housing Executive which currently operates five serviced sites as follows:

Site location	Number of pitches
Ballinamullan, Omagh	6
The Glen, Coalisland	16
Ballyarnet, Londonderry	8
Daisy field, Londonderry	6
Glen Road Heights, Belfast	10

In addition a number of transit sites are being provided to cater for the needs of transient Traveller families. These will be situated in Strabane, Belfast, Londonderry, Craigavon and Newry and will provide, in total, approximately 40 pitches.

Waste Management/Recycling

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what controls are in place in Northern Ireland to monitor waste intended for recycling to ensure that it is not re-routed to a landfill site. [79912]

David Cairns: There are two specific sets of controls and a general duty of care which applies to waste producers, carriers and those who treat or dispose of waste. The controls in question are Transfrontier Shipment of Waste and licences/permits, which, once authorised, are also audited by the Department.

Waste producers are subject to a general duty of care to ensure that their material reaches an appropriate authorised facility. They also monitor the contract conditions.

The recycling of controlled waste arising in Northern Ireland is undertaken at facilities that are licensed by the Department. The permits for these approved facilities provide for the recording of the processing of material. District councils make quarterly returns on their recycled material.

The Transfrontier Shipment of Wastes Regulations govern the movement of material from Republic of Ireland to Northern Ireland by a system of prior authorisation using consignment notes. This system will approve the material, which is directed towards a suitable, authorised facility.

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what measures his Department is taking to increase the percentage of domestic waste being recycled by councils in Northern Ireland. [79538]

David Cairns: The Department has continued to build on the successful "Wake up to Waste" programme, launched in 2000, by supporting district councils on the design, promotion and delivery of local awareness campaigns. The Northern Ireland Landfill Allowances Scheme, introduced on 1 April 2005, sets annual allowances for the amount of waste that can be landfilled by councils and acts as a driver for increased recycling of waste.

The recently published Waste Management Strategy sets new and challenging targets for councils for the recycling and recovery of household waste. The Department is committed to the development of viable end markets for recycled materials, and is working to ensure the timely procurement and establishment of the required facilities, and the introduction of legislation making provision for incentive schemes to encourage the reduction, re-use and recycling of waste.

TREASURY

Company Tax Credit

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost to the Exchequer of each company tax credit in each year from 2006-07 to 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [80594]

Dawn Primarolo: The estimated cost of research and development tax credits, vaccines research relief, land remediation relief and film tax relief are given in the table.

£ million

	Research and development tax credits	Vaccines research relief	Land remediation relief	Film tax relief
2006-07	770	20	30	20
2007-08	800	20	30	110
2008-09	850	20	40	110
2009-10	900	20	40	120
2010-11	960	20	40	120

Note:
Figures are on a receipts basis and rounded to the nearest £10 million.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of (i) his Department and (ii) HM Revenue and Customs. [80075]

John Healey: The information is as follows:

In respect of HM Treasury:

(a) Mary Keegan is Finance Director.

(b) She is an MA (Somerville College, Oxford) and a Fellow of the Institute of Chartered Accountants in England and Wales. She also holds honorary doctorates from the Universities of Manchester and Oxford Brookes, and is an honorary member of both the Association of Corporate Treasurers and the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy.

(c) She was appointed in September 2004. She was previously Chairman of the UK Accounting Standards Board and before that a senior partner in a large accounting firm where she advised major multinational companies on matters of financial reporting, governance and management.

For HM Revenue and Customs:

(a) Stephen Jones is Finance Director.

(b) He is a Scholar (Balliol College Oxford) and holds a BA, 1st Class Honours, Mathematics [1976]. He is a fully trained HM Inspector of Taxes [1980] and a passed finalist of the Chartered Institute of Management Accountants [2006].

(c) He has extensive experience as a tax inspector and in a range of senior management positions in the Inland Revenue and subsequently HMRC. He was Director of the Large Business Office in the Inland Revenue from 2000-03. In October 2003 he was appointed as Finance Director of the Inland Revenue, a role which he continued with for HMRC on its formation.

Doorstep Lending

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps have been taken by the Government to regulate doorstep lending. [79827]

Mr. McCartney: I have been asked to reply.

Home credit providers (or doorstep lenders) are regulated under the Consumer Credit Act (1974). This Act lays down rules covering:

the form and content of credit agreements;

credit advertising;

the method of calculating the Annual Percentage Rate (APR) of the Total Charge for Credit; the procedures to be adopted in the event of default, termination, or early settlement;

extortionate credit bargains;

the canvassing of loans away from trade premises.

The Act also requires that all traders who make regulated agreements obtain a licence from the Office of Fair Trading.

The Consumer Credit Act (2006) reforms the 1974 Act and (among other things) will provide consumers with tools to challenge unfair lending, and more effective options for resolving disputes. It will also improve the regulation of consumer credit businesses by ensuring fairer practices and through targeted action to drive out rogues. There will also be new regulations covering the post-contractual information given to consumers.

In addition, the Competition Commission is currently conducting a market inquiry into the supply of home credit. Provisional findings and possible remedies were published on 27 April 2006. The statutory deadline for the final report is 19 December 2006.

HM Revenue and Customs

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many searches were carried out by customs officials at border checkpoints in each year since 1997. [80408]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of searches of persons is contained in the Annual Reports for HM Customs and Excise and HM Revenue and Customs. The figures for the year ending 31 March 2006 will be published in the next Annual Report. HM Revenue and Customs do not routinely record the number of other searches they undertake.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many customs officers are deployed at Northern Ireland's ports and airports; how many there were in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [80099]

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many customs officials are stationed at each (a) port and (b) airport in the UK during each 24 hour period. [80837]

Dawn Primarolo: This information cannot be disclosed as this would provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent HM Revenue and Customs' controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of crime.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of customs officials employed in the UK were deployed (a) at fixed ports and airports and (b) in mobile patrols in each of the last five years. [80840]

Dawn Primarolo: In the last five years the percentage of HM Customs and Excise operational front-line staff regularly deployed to ports and airports was:

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what coastal cover is being provided by HM Revenue and Customs in Wales; and how many HM Revenue and Customs officers are allocated to coastal patrols in Wales. [80441]

Dawn Primarolo: Coastal cover is provided by the HMRC Fleet of five revenue cutters. No land based HMRC officers are allocated to coastal patrols.

Income Tax

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of the population who paid income tax in 1996-97 are not paying income tax in 2005-06. [80181]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not available.

Inheritance Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the cost of introducing a marginal rate of inheritance tax of 20 per cent. on estates valued above the zero-rate threshold and at less than £500,000 for the next five years; and if he will make a statement. [80299]

Dawn Primarolo: The impact on receipts of introducing from 2007-08 a marginal rate of 20 per cent. on the band of value between the inheritance tax threshold and £500,000 (indexed for inflation from 2008-09) is estimated to be as follows:

	£ million
	Impact on inheritance tax receipts
2007-08	-355
2008-09	-775
2009-10	-860

2011-12	-995

International Finance Facility

John Battle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 March 2006, Official Report, columns 353-4W, on sterling stamp duty, what proportion of the Overseas Development Aid (ODA) budget is projected to come annually from the International Finance Facility from the time of its projected introduction until 2013; and what contingency budget plans he has to reach the target of 0.7 per cent. of gross national income as ODA for each year until 2013 if the International Finance Facility is not introduced. [80247]

Ed Balls: The UK has announced a clear timetable to reach 0.7 per cent. ODA/GNI by 2013. With the International Finance Facility (IFF), the UK would reach the equivalent of 0.7 per cent. ODA/GNI sooner. Depending on the size of its contribution to the IFF, the UK could reach the equivalent of the 0.7 per cent. target as early as 2008-09. However, a decision on the size and timing of a UK contribution will not be made until the launch of the IFF.

With the support off other OECD DAC countries, the IFF aims to provide up to $50 billion a year in development assistance between now and 2020 to support the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals. The IFF would issue bonds on the international capital markets, leveraging additional frontloaded resources on the basis of long-term pledges from donor governments.

The frontloading principles of the IFF are already being demonstrated in the pilot IFF for Immunisation (IFFIm), which has secured financial contributions from eight countries including the UK. The IFFIm will disburse $4 billion over the next 10 years to scale up efforts to tackle preventable diseases in the world's poorest countries. The World Health Organisation has estimated that these resources will save a total of 10 million lives, including 5 million children before 2015.

Poverty

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures his Department has taken to reduce poverty in Carlisle. [80696]

Mr. Timms: The Treasury has, in partnership with other Government Departments, tackled poverty and promoted economic opportunity through:

Promoting macro-economic stability.

Supporting work for those who can and ensuring that work pays, through the new deals, a national minimum wage and the working tax credit.

Providing financial support for groups at particular risk of poverty, such as child benefit and the child tax credit for families, and the pension credit for pensioners.

Across the UK, these measures have helped lift more than a million people out of poverty since 1997. Tax credits are benefiting more than 550,000 families in the North West region, and in Carlisle, claimant unemployment has fallen by over 50 per cent., youth unemployment has fallen by 70 per cent. and long-term unemployment has fallen by 82 per cent.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures his Department has taken to reduce (a) child poverty and (b) pensioner poverty since 1997. [80048]

Dawn Primarolo: The Treasury has, in partnership with other Government Departments, tackled poverty and promoted economic opportunity through:

Promoting macroeconomic stability.

Supporting work for those who can and ensuring that work pays, through the new deals, a national minimum wage and the working tax credit.

Providing financial support for groups at particular risk of poverty, such as child benefit and the child tax credit for families, and pension credit for pensioners.

Since 1996-97, the number of children in relative poverty has fallen by 700,000 before housing costs, and 800,000 after housing costs have been taken account of; and the number of children in absolute poverty has fallen by 1.8 million before housing costs, and 2.4 million after housing costs.

And compared with the 1997 system, in 2006-07, as a result of the Government's measures including the pension credit, on average pensioners are £29 per week better off; and the poorest third of pensioners are £40 per week better off. 2.1 million pensioners were lifted out of absolute low income between 1996-97 and 2004-05 after housing costs. Over a million were lifted out of relative low income in the same period. Relative low income poverty fell by half a million between 2002-03 and 2004-05: the years pension credit took effect.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures his Department has taken to reduce poverty in the Vale of Clwyd since 1997. [80047]

Dawn Primarolo: The Treasury has, in partnership with other Government Departments, tackled poverty and promoted economic opportunity through:

Promoting macroeconomic stability.

Supporting work for those who can and ensuring that work pays, through the new deals, a national minimum wage and the working tax credit.

Providing financial support for groups at particular risk of poverty, such as child benefit and the child tax credit for families, and the pension credit for pensioners.

Across the UK, these measures have helped lift more than a million people out of poverty since 1997. Tax credits are benefiting more than 240,000 families in Wales, and in the Vale of Clwyd claimant unemployment has fallen by 44 per cent., youth unemployment has fallen by 65 per cent., and long-term unemployment has fallen by 77 per cent.

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department has taken to reduce poverty in the Hartlepool constituency since 1997. [80540]

Dawn Primarolo: The Treasury has, in partnership with other Government Departments, tackled poverty and promoted economic opportunity through:

Promoting macroeconomic stability;

Supporting work for those who can and ensuring that work pays, through the new deals, a national minimum wage and the working tax credit;

Providing financial support for groups at particular risk of poverty, such as child benefit and the child tax credit for families, and the pension credit for pensioners.

Across the UK, these measures have helped lift more than a million people out of poverty since 1997. Tax credits are benefiting more than 220,000 families in the north east, and in Hartlepool claimant unemployment has fallen by 45 per cent., youth unemployment has fallen by 71 per cent. and long-term unemployment has fallen by 87 per cent.

Premium Bonds

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much was (a) invested in Premium Bonds, (b) paid out in Premium Bond winnings and (c) not claimed by winners each month since January 2000; and how many Premium Bond holders there were in each month. [80072]

Ed Balls: Column (a) in the table shows the total amount invested in Premium Bonds since January 2000 on a monthly basis. These figures reflect total held stock rather than net debt financing or sales in that period.

Column (b) shows the amount paid out in Premium Bond prizes since January 2000 on a monthly basis.

Column (c) shows the total amount not claimed in Premium Bond prizes since January 2000 on an annual basis, as supplying monthly data on Premium Bond prizes would incur a disproportionate cost.

National Savings & Investments is unable to supply the information requested on the precise number of Premium Bond holders, as it monitors holdings, not holders. It is possible that individual holders may be counted multiple times if they have not notified NS&I that they have changed their names or address.

Special Advisers

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what role is played by special advisers in answering parliamentary questions asked of his Department. [80652]

John Healey: The 'Code of Conduct for Special Advisers' states that a special adviser may review papers going to the Minister and give assistance on any aspect of departmental business.

Tax Credits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many letters about tax credits from hon. Members have been received by (a) the tax credits office and (b) his Department's Ministers in each month since April 2004. [75792]

Dawn Primarolo: For information up to and including May 2005, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave him on 4 July 2005, Official Report, columns 98-99W.

Details for the further period 1 June 2005 to 31 May 2006 were around:

Letters from hon. Members to TCO

Month	Number
2005
June	800
July	950
August	850
September	800
October	950
November	1,000
December	800
2006
January	800
February	950
March	1,000
April	700
May	800

In addition to those received by the Tax Credit Office, Treasury Ministers received around 2,100 letters from hon. Members in the same period.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many additional tax credit payments were made in each (a) month and (b) quarter since April 2003; what the value was; and if he will make a statement. [76472]

Dawn Primarolo: For the number and value of additional tax credits payments in 2003-04 and 2004-05, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 21 July 2005, Official Report, column 2035W to the right hon. Member for Birkenhead (Mr. Field).

It is no longer necessary for HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) to issue manual payments in cases of hardship following an in-year adjustment. Instead, a new process allows for an adjustment on the tax credits system to reduce the rate of recovery of an overpayment in-year. Information on the number of payments adjusted in this way is not available.

HMRC's Code of Practice 26 (COP26) 'What happens if we have paid you too much tax credit?' explains the circumstances in which additional payments can be made if payments are reduced to recover a previous year's overpayment but the maximum rates of recovery outlined in COP26, are still causing financial difficulties.

Around 250 such payments, with a total value of around £17,500, were made to around 60 claimants in 2005-06.

Monthly and quarterly information is not available.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his answer of 19 January 2006, Official Report, column 1485W, on carers, if he will estimate what the annual cost would be if tax credits were paid to carers allowance recipients on the basis that the 35 hours per week spent caring that qualifies them for caring allowance as an income replacement benefit was considered equivalent to earned income for 35 hours per week of employment. [80400]

Dawn Primarolo: The estimated annual cost if tax credits were paid to carers allowance recipients on the basis that the hours spent caring were equivalent to working for 35 hours per week is around £1 billion. This estimate does not take into account any behavioural changes or any resulting reduction in benefit payments.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many residents in each ward in Luton, South received (a) child tax credit and (b) tax credit in 2005-06; and what the average value of such credits was. [80508]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Doncaster, North (Edward Miliband), on 10 May 2006, Official Report, column 246W.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) in what circumstances a parent would be eligible to claim the child care element of working tax credit if the child care professional employed was (a) a family member and (b) resident in the family home; [80847]

(2) if he will take steps to ensure that relatives who care for children in their own home are eligible for working tax credit. [80848]

Dawn Primarolo: Entitlement to the child care element of working tax credit is set out in regulation 14 of the Working Tax Credit (Entitlement and Maximum Rate) Regulation 2002.

The child care element of working tax credit is not payable in respect of child care provided by a relative of a child, wholly or mainly in the child's home. It is only available for the costs of formal child care and is in line with the Government's commitment to promote good quality and safe provision.

VAT

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will reduce VAT on all forms of construction to the lower rate. [79867]

Dawn Primarolo: VAT is not chargeable on the construction of new dwellings and certain charitable buildings, or on any approved alterations to certain protected buildings.

Under European VAT agreements a reduced rate of VAT of not less than 5 per cent. is available for certain works of construction, renovation and alteration of housing.

To date the Government have been sparing in their use of reduced rates and only applied these where they offer the best targeted, most efficient support for our objectives. In the area of construction, this has included the application of reduced VAT rates for certain residential conversions, to support the creation of new homes through better use of the existing housing stock, and the renovation of housing that has been empty for more than three years, to help bring vacant homes back into use.

While all taxes are kept under review, there are no current plans to reduce VAT on all other forms of construction.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to reduce VAT on social housing labour costs. [80366]

Dawn Primarolo: VAT is not chargeable on the construction of new dwellings or on any approved alterations to certain protected dwellings. Under European VAT agreements a reduced rate of VAT of not less than 5 per cent. is available for certain works of construction, renovation and alteration of housing.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Access to Parliament

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Leader of the House if he will take steps to ensure that any future plans for Parliament Square and surrounding roads which involve pedestrianisation take into account the need for speedy access to the Palace of Westminster by hon. Members and Peers. [80527]

Mr. Straw: Yes.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Leader of the House what the average cost to his Office was of replying to a letter written by (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public in the last period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum is accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80507]

Mr. Straw: The information requested is not held centrally.

The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/Peers correspondence. The report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, column 76WS.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Leader of the House what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of the Privy Council Office. [80082]

Mr. Straw: HM Treasury and the National Audit Office have agreed that the Privy Council Office, which is a small Department, need not have a professionally qualified finance director. Financial management falls within the responsibilities of the director of corporate services, with professional support from a chartered accountant. A second qualified accountant (FCCA) is a non-executive member of the Department's Audit and Risk Committee.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Leader of the House if he will make arrangements for the tabling of written parliamentary questions for answer during parliamentary recesses. [79564]

Mr. Straw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend for Wirral, South (Ben Chapman) on 24 May 2006, Official Report, column 1836W.

Political Party Funding

Philip Davies: To ask the Leader of the House pursuant to the answer of 13 June 2006, Official Report, column 1057W, on the funding of political parties, when Sir Hayden Phillips is expected to make his report. [79520]

Mr. Straw: As set out in the terms of reference published on 20 March 2006, Sir Hayden Phillips is to report to the Government by the end of December 2006 with recommendations for any changes to the current arrangements.

TRANSPORT

Carlisle Northern Development Road

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what role the North West regional assembly will play in determining the priority given to the building of the Carlisle northern development road. [80690]

Dr. Ladyman: We asked the regions to advise us on their priorities for major transport schemes within the indicative regional funding allocations that were announced in July 2005. We are currently considering the North West region's advice, which the North West regional assembly were involved in determining, on the priority it attaches to the Carlisle northern development route and other major transport schemes in the North West. We hope to announce our response to the region's advice before the parliamentary summer recess. This scheme is currently assumed to be funded through the private finance initiative (PFI) with only a small element coming from the regional funding allocation. We are currently considering Cumbria's bid for an increase in PFI funding requirement.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of his Department. [80077]

Gillian Merron: The Department's finance director is Ken Beeton.

Mr. Beeton is a chartered accountant and was appointed to his current post in March 2003. He worked previously at the Department for Education and Skills (DfES), where he gained relevant experience in a range of financial and policy posts. Before joining DfES, Mr. Beeton worked in the private sector and gained relevant financial experience in insurance, building societies, manufacturing and the accountancy profession.

East Riding

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding for which his Department is responsible has been allocated to the East Riding of Yorkshire council for each year since 1997-98. [80531]

Gillian Merron: The East Riding of Yorkshire council has been allocated nearly £62 million in funding in the local transport capital settlements since 1997-98.

Table 1 shows the funding allocated to The East Riding of Yorkshire council in the local transport capital settlements since 1997-98. The funding allocation includes: the integrated transport block; road maintenance; and approximately £5 million provided in 2003-04 for the replacement of the Dutch River Bridge.

The integrated transport block allocations are available for local authorities to use on road and public transport improvements, according to their local priorities.

Additionally Table 2 sets out the bus subsidies received by The East Riding of Yorkshire council. Funding for rail and trunk roads has not been included as it is not possible to allocate it across any specific constituency.

Foreign-registered Vehicles

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate his Department has made of the amount of fines and charges unpaid by the owners of foreign registered vehicles in the UK in each of the past five years. [80827]

Gillian Merron: Information on the amount of fines and charges unpaid by the owners of foreign registered vehicles in the UK in each of the past five years is not collected centrally, and so an estimate could be made only at disproportionate cost.

Parking Act 1989

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the operation of the Parking Act 1989; what recent representations he has received about the operation of this Act; and whether he has plans to amend this Act. [80201]

Gillian Merron: The Parking Act 1989 amended the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 to:

(a) allow the use of cashless parking systems in car parks controlled by local authority orders. Originally, such systems had to be type-approved by the Secretary of State but that requirement was repealed by the Deregulation (Parking Equipment) Order 1996;

(b) include provisions on the display of information at off-street parking places; and

(c) modify the offences and proceedings provisions concerning parking places.

We have not received any recent representations about this Act and do not have any current plans to amend it.

Railways

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress First Great Western trains is making in refurbishing class 43 mark III coaches; and if he will make a statement. [80634]

Derek Twigg: First Great Western ('FGW') announced on 5 June 2006 that it had signed two contracts with Bombardier Transportation to the value of £63 million and £85 million for the improvement and overhaul of its High Speed Train fleet. FGW also said that the first of the new-look trains would be in service in November 2006, with all 405 carriages completed by December 2007.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps are being taken to limit the environmental impact of the Crossrail project. [78612]

Derek Twigg: We are putting a number of mechanisms in place to control the environmental impacts of the construction and operation of Crossrail:

arrangements within the Crossrail Bill for local planning authorities to approve detailed design and construction arrangements; policies, commitments and undertakings entered into outside the Bill; and existing legislation, unless expresely or impliedly disapplied or modified by the Crossrail Bill.

In particular, any nominated undertaker will be contractually bound to comply with controls set out in the 'Environmental Minimum Requirements'—a suite of documents that is being developed in consultation with local authorities and other relevant stakeholders. The nominated undertaker will also be required to take such opportunities as may be reasonably practicable to reduce significant adverse impacts.

The information paper: 'DO2 Control of Environmental Impacts' sets out our approach. A copy of this paper has been placed in the Library and is also available on the Crossrail Bill supporting documents website at:

http://billdocuments.crossrail.co.uk

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment the Government made of the Superlink proposals; and what criteria were used in deciding on the Crossrail option. [78622]

Derek Twigg: The route and service options considered as part of the development of the Crossrail project were appraised in a manner consistent with the Government's New Approach to Appraisal (NATA). Guidance on applying NATA to projects is provided in the Guidance on the Methodology for Multi-Modal Studies (GOMMMS). The information paper 'A1 Development of the Crossrail Route' outlines the alternative Crossrail route options that were considered and the reasons for selecting the preferred scheme. A copy of the paper has been placed in the Library and is also available on the Crossrail Bill supporting documents website at:

http://billdocuments.crossrail.co.uk

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 20 January 2006, Official Report, column 1629W, on railways, what progress has been made in his examination of the case for establishing a direct rail service from Shrewsbury to London. [80334]

Derek Twigg: The West Coast Main Line Progress Report, published in May 2006, sets out the latest position regarding a direct rail service from Shrewsbury to London. A copy of the report has been placed in the House Library.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress has been made in the development of the Crossrail system; and to what extent the system is to be integrated into the Thames Gateway redevelopment. [79282]

Derek Twigg: The Crossrail Bill—a Bill to provide the powers necessary to build Crossrail—is currently undergoing consideration by a Select Committee in the House of Commons. The overall Bill timetable is a matter for Parliament but we currently expect Royal Assent in 2007.

In parallel with the Bill process, Cross London Rail Links Limited (CLRL) are continuing to develop the Crossrail project and recently appointed Bechtel to act as the project's development manager.

The Crossrail project would provide two stations within the Thames Gateway area, Custom House and Abbey Wood, which would increase capacity in this area and improve links with central and west London. Abbey Wood would also provide a convenient cross platform interchange with the North Kent line.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many trains were cancelled in each of the past 12 months, broken down by region. [77783]

Derek Twigg: The following table show the number of all trains cancelled, as a percentage, in the year 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006, by Network Rail route, listed by rail industry four-weekly business reporting period.

Ms Barlow: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it a legal requirement for train operators to provide and maintain toilets on trains, including for disabled people. [79891]

Derek Twigg: The Department has no plans to make provision and maintenance of toilets on trains a legal requirement.

The Rail Vehicle Accessibility Regulations 1998 (RVAR) sets out the accessibility requirements applicable where trains are fitted with toilets.

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has (a) to increase parking facilities and (b) to upgrade station facilities at Warrington Bank Quay. [79944]

Derek Twigg: As part of the current renegotiation of the West Coast Trains franchise, Virgin Rail Group has been asked to develop and implement plans for increased car parking capacity at stations where they are the station facility owner. This includes Warrington Bank Quay station. Virgin Rail Group will be proposing where and when the additional car parking spaces are going to be implemented in their bid submission. Implementation is subject to a positive business case.

The Customer Information System at the station is due to be upgraded this year.

Roads

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average cost to public funds was of a road fatality in the last period for which figures are available. [80199]

Dr. Ladyman: The values used to estimate the benefits of the prevention of road accidents and casualties are set out in the "Highways Economic Note No. 1: 2004 Valuation of the Benefits of Prevention of Road Accidents and Casualties" which can be found on the DfT website at: http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_rdsafety/documents/divisionhomepage/030763.hcsp

The average values, based on 2004 casualty data, are £1,384,463 for a fatality and £1,573,217 for a fatal accident. These amounts are the values to be used in the appraisal of road traffic schemes. The casualty figure takes account of lost output (which includes any non-wage payments paid by the employer), medical and ambulance costs and human costs based on willingness to pay values representing pain, grief and suffering. The accident figure is higher because it includes non-casualty specific costs such as the costs of policing, insurance and administrative costs and damage to property, and because on average more than one casualty is involved in each accident.

Included within these values are the costs to public funds for medical, ambulance and police costs (emergency services) which in 2004 averaged at £817 per fatal casualty and £7,076 per fatal accident. In addition some element of the lost output cost would be considered as a cost to public funds.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much central Government funding has been allocated to East Riding of Yorkshire council for road improvements in each year since 1997-98; and if he will make a statement. [80529]

Gillian Merron: The following table shows the funding allocated to The East Riding of Yorkshire council in the local transport capital settlements since 1997-98. The funding allocation includes the integrated transport block, road maintenance block and approximately £5 million provided in 2004-05 for the replacement of the Dutch River Bridge.

The integrated transport block allocations are available for local authorities to use on road and public transport improvements, according to their local priorities.

2003-04	10,876
2004-05	16,958
2005-06	10,372

In addition central funding support for services, including routine highways services, is provided through revenue support grant. This is not allocated by the Government between individual council services.

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he plans to announce (a) the regional funding allocation for the South West and (b) funding for the upgrade of the A358. [81160]

Dr. Ladyman: We are currently considering the South West region's advice on the priority it attaches to the upgrade of the A358 between Ilminster and Taunton and other major transport schemes in the South West. We hope to announce our response to the region's advice before the parliamentary summer recess.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Bovine TB

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the case for the planned badger cull since the publication of his Department's most recent figures for new cases of notified bovine tuberculosis. [78618]

Mr. Bradshaw: We welcome the fact that the number of new bovine TB incidents in Great Britain overall has decreased over the last few months. However, given the cyclical nature of the disease it is too early to draw any conclusions about whether this is a temporary or more sustained reduction and we will continue to monitor the position closely. The reduction is likely to be caused by a complex combination of factors.

In considering whether to cull badgers, we are taking into account all the evidence including the science, and considering how an effective cull might be delivered on the ground. Any policy must form part of a holistic approach to bovine TB that balances cattle and wildlife controls.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs who the members of the Gamma Interferon Working Group are; and when each was appointed. [78345]

Mr. Bradshaw: Members of the working group were drawn from officials across the Department, the Veterinary Laboratories Agency, the State Veterinary Service, the Welsh Assembly Government and SEERAD. They were appointed in October 2005.

Brixham Fish Market

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 887W, on Brixham Fish Market, what the normal procedures referred to are; and when he expects a decision on the new fish market at Brixham to be made. [80661]

Mr. Bradshaw: In England, Financial Instrument for Fisheries Guidance grant applications are considered in quarterly competitive tranches. Applications are assessed by an internal panel of representatives from DEFRA, the Marine Fisheries Agency and the Regional Development Agencies. Those applications that appear to the panel to best match the criteria are prioritised for funding within budgetary limits. In this instance, the panel considered the Torbay council application on 25 May. A final decision will be made when an assessment of the potential impact of a possible restriction of scallop dredging in Lyme Bay is completed. I expect this to be within the next few weeks.

Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he will reply to the letter dated 12 May from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Ms C. Greenhalgh. [79486]

Mr. Bradshaw: The letter has been transferred to the Cabinet Office as the Department with responsibility for policy on civil contingency planning. Unfortunately, there was a delay in transferring the letter, for which I apologise to my right hon. Friend.

Disposable Nappies

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the time taken for a disposable nappy to decompose. [79267]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Wisard software tool used by the Environment Agency (EA) in their report, "Life Cycle Assessment of Disposable and Reusable Nappies in the UK", assumed a 500 year time boundary for leachate in landfill. The EA therefore concluded that it would take that amount of time for the plastic part of a disposable nappy to decompose. The paper-fluff and faeces should take approximately 100 and 10 years respectively to degrade.

Field Mapping

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment his Department has made of the level of accuracy in field mapping by the Rural Payments Agency; and what measures his Department is undertaking to improve accuracy. [80702]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 27 June 2006]: The Rural Payments Agency (RPA) is responsible for the maintenance of the Rural Land Register (RLR), and information from the RLR is used to support claims to the Single Payment Scheme. The process of digitising land and amending existing land registrations has been amended recently, with activity brought back onto RPA's main computer system. This followed a period when an outsourced provider was used to digitise land during a period of exceptionally high demand.

The digitisation process itself includes a number of quality checks to ensure that the correct land parcel and area are digitised. Where errors are found they are corrected before maps are issued to customers. Further amendments are made where customers identify issues with the maps they receive. RPA is aware of a number of cases where there have been issues with maps sent to customers. The re-establishment of an in-house process will aid the cross check of new and amended land areas to customer details.

Fish Farms

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if he will make a statement on the outbreak of viral haemorrhagic septicaemia at a fish farm on a tributary of the Ouse in Yorkshire; and what steps his Department is taking to prevent the spread of the disease; [78188]

(2) what plans his Department has to instigate the compulsory slaughter of diseased fish reared on fish farms; [78190]

(3) if his Department will compensate those fish farm owners who have their stock compulsorily slaughtered as a result of disease; and if he will make a statement. [78191]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 903W.

On 19 June, the National Control Centre of CEFAS, Weymouth Laboratory confirmed that viral haemorrhagic septicaemia (VHS) has been detected in a sample of grayling taken from the River Nidd below the outlet of the farm infected with the disease, although the infected fish showed no clinical signs of the disease. Further comprehensive sampling and testing is taking place on fish in the river, both below and above the infected farm.

Fish disease experts at CEFAS advise that although there is no scientific evidence that VHS virus infection causes significant outbreaks in wild freshwater fish stocks, any persisting infection in wild stocks could be a source of infection or re-infection for trout farms in the vicinity through VHS virus contamination of the river supply to the farm.

There are no plans at present to carry out compulsory slaughter of fish on farms in the areas of the River Ouse and River Don affected by the current outbreak but the matter will be kept under review. No further cases of VHS have been detected on fish farms.

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the locations are of fish farms on which the presence of viral haemorrhagic septicaemia has been detected in the UK. [78189]

Mr. Bradshaw: Viral haemorrhagic septicaemia was confirmed in rainbow trout at Nidderdale Trout Farm, Low Laithe, Summerbridge, Harrogate, North Yorkshire HG3 4BU on 26 May 2006. No further cases of the disease have been detected so far at any other farm during a comprehensive sampling and testing programme.

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the incidence and spread of viral haemorrhagic septicaemia among farmed fish populations. [78192]

Mr. Bradshaw: Following the confirmation of viral haemorrhagic septicaemia (VHS) in farmed rainbow trout on a fish farm in Yorkshire on 26 May 2006, my Department, through its Executive agency CEFAS, commissioned an epizootiological investigation into the source of the infection. This investigation includes the testing of farmed and wild fish populations which may have had contact with the infected stock, as well as all of the other potential pathways of disease transmission.

The Department has acknowledged the seriousness and potential impact of this most important disease on the UK aquaculture industry, and has previously funded research projects on epidemiology and mathematical modelling of disease outbreaks, the pathogenicity and transmission of different strains of the virus, and studies on the detection of the virus in fish and cell cultures.

Fishing Fleets

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much and what proportion of the EU fund for the modernisation of fishing fleets he expects to be allocated to British-owned vessels. [80160]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 26 June 2006]: No decisions have been taken on what will be funded under the new EU fisheries fund (EFF). The UK expects to receive, subject to confirmation, around €112 million from the EU; the overall EU resources available for the fund will be €3,849 million.

The operational programme to implement the EFF will set out priorities for using the fund and we will consult on this later in the year. Modernising the fishing fleet is only part of the range of measures available, and we do not want to fund anything which could increase capacity.

Our over-arching aim is to have a sector which is sustainable and profitable and supports strong local communities, managed effectively as an integral part of coherent policies for the marine environment.

Freshwater Fish

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to introduce a compensation scheme in response to any need for the compulsory slaughter of freshwater fish stocks; and if he will make a statement. [79855]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 26 June 2006]: My Department has no plans to introduce such a scheme. Under successive Governments, compensation has not been available for the compulsory slaughter of fish due to an outbreak of serious fish diseases; this remains my Department's policy.

Household Waste

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans the Government has to reduce household waste. [79189]

Mr. Bradshaw: The waste minimisation programme run by the Government-funded Waste Resource Action Programme (WRAP) is working to stem the growth of household waste. This is part of a package of measures to enable the UK to meet the requirements of the landfill directive and move towards sustainable waste management.

As part of the programme, WRAP is working with 13 major retailers to reduce the amount of waste from supermarkets, including looking for ways to redesign packaging as well as support for research and development into waste minimisation. It is also working with local authorities to establish greater participation in home composting through its targeted National Home Composting Programme.

In its recent consultation on the review of its Waste Strategy, the Government identified the importance of waste prevention for reducing waste, including in the household. So far only limited progress is being made to prevent waste, and so more needs to be done. The revised Waste Strategy, due to be published later this year, will identify what further steps should be taken.

The revised Waste Strategy will also outline what can be done to build on recent improvements in household recycling. The consultation on the review proposed target increases for household waste recycling to 40 per cent. by 2010, 45 per cent. by 2015 and 50 per cent. by 2020.

Local authorities received £45 million in 2005-06, £105 million in 2006-07 and £110 million in 2007-08 under the Waste Performance and Efficiency Grant to help them develop new and more efficient ways to deliver waste reduction and increase recycling and diversion from landfill.

Landfill Directive

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what percentage of the biodegradable waste required to meet the first EU Landfill Directive has been diverted from landfill in the UK; [78529]

(2) whether local authorities will be financially liable for the UK's compliance in meeting the EU Landfill Directive's targets. [78535]

Mr. Bradshaw: Article 5(2) of the EC Landfill Directive sets three target years (2006, 2009 and 2016) by which member states must reduce the amount of biodegradable municipal waste sent to landfill in proportion to the amount produced in 1995.

The directive also allows member states which landfilled over 80 per cent. of their municipal waste in 1995 to postpone the targets by up to four years. The Government have informed the European Commission of their intention to make use of this four-year derogation, which means the target years for the UK are 2010, 2013 and 2020.

The UK target for 2010 is to reduce biodegradable municipal waste landfilled to no more than 75 per cent. of that produced in 1995. For England, this equates to 11.2 million tones in 2010. It is estimated that in 2003-04, around 14.7 million tonnes was disposed of in this way, with a provisional estimate of a further reduction to around 13.9 million tonnes in 2004-05 (i.e. 124 per cent. of the 2010 target).

In preparation to the first 2010 target year, the UK have already taken steps to reduce the amount of waste being sent to landfill. The Landfill Allowance Trading Scheme (LATS), was launched in April 2005, and is one of the Government's key measures to encourage progressive reductions in the amount of biodegradable municipal waste that disposal authorities are able to send to landfill sites.

Should any waste disposal authority have landfilled more waste than it holds allowances for, it can use the sixth month reconciliation period (from March to the end of September), to trade, borrow or bank allowances to manage their liabilities. Any waste disposal authority which has landfilled biodegradable municipal waste in excess of the allowances it holds at the end of the reconciliation period will be liable to a financial penalty of £150 per tonne (according to section 9(2) of the Waste and Emissions Trading Act 2003).

The LATS regulations also provide for supplementary penalties (in addition to any penalties for exceeding allowances) that are proportional to (a) any fines imposed on the UK in respect of obligations under the Landfill Directive and (b) the amount by which an authority exceeds its allowance in a Landfill Directive target year, or subsequent scheme years following Landfill Directive target years.

Due to the nature of a tradable allowances scheme, it is not possible to assess accurately now whether any waste disposal authority is likely to landfill biodegradable municipal waste in excess to that which it holds allowances for until the Environment Agency has completed the reconciliation process for the LATS year 2005-06, expected by the end of September.

Marine Bill

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to bring forward a draft Marine Bill; and if he will make a statement. [78416]

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to publish a draft Marine Bill; what steps are being taken to ensure that the Marine Bill is introduced and passed at the earliest opportunity; and how the Marine Bill will protect the marine environment of the UK. [78619]

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Government expect to publish the draft Marine Bill. [79057]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA published a consultation document on 29 March 2006 setting out the Government's thinking in a number of key areas to be addressed by a Marine Bill. These include marine spatial planning, nature conservation, licensing reform, and the possibility of setting up a new marine organisation. We had already undertaken initial consultation on some fisheries issues that will also be dealt with in the Bill.

The final scope of our proposals for a Marine Bill, including the strategic direction we should take, will not be decided until we have fully considered the responses to the consultation exercise. The consultation period ended on 23 June 2006. We will publish a summary of the responses within three months.

We will need to take these responses into account before any decision is made on the timing of further consultation on detailed proposals for a draft Bill. Introduction of a Marine Bill will follow later in this Parliament, subject to the availability of parliamentary time. We want to move forward swiftly, but this is a complex area and we must make sure that we take sufficient time to consult effectively and get our proposals right.

The Government's primary purpose for a new Marine Bill is to introduce a stronger framework for the seas, based on marine spatial planning, that balances conservation, energy and resource needs. Together with a planning system for the marine area, we have proposed a number of possible approaches for the reform of marine nature conservation legislation. These include new mechanisms for the conservation of marine ecosystems and biodiversity, including protected areas for important species and habitats.

Marine Conservation

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to promote marine conservation. [79399]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government are committed to a Marine Bill which will introduce a new framework, based on marine spatial planning, that balances conservation, energy and resource needs. The aim is to obtain best value from different uses of our valuable marine resources by maintaining and protecting the ecosystems on which they depend. We are developing integrated criteria for the selection of marine protected areas (MPAs), including those for wider nature conservation.

We are also considering how many additional protected areas might be needed to protect marine ecosystems and biodiversity and fulfil the international commitments we have made in this area.

Poultry Industry

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had within the EU on the provision of financial support to the poultry industry (a) in the UK and (b) other member states. [79587]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 26 June 2006]: A number of recent discussions involving the Commission and member states took place, between 7 April 2006 and 21 June 2006. These culminated in the adoption of an amendment to Article 14 of Council Regulations 2777/75 and 2771/75 on the Common Organisation of the Market in Eggs and Poultrymeat, respectively.

The amendment provides legal powers to make special support measures available to member states in the event of significant evaporation of consumer confidence in poultry products as a direct result of avian influenza, causing the market to collapse.

Radon Gas

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice the Government have issued on the account which should be taken of levels of radon gas in decisions on building new schools. [77686]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

Resistance to contaminants, including radon, is covered by requirement C1 (2) of the Building Regulations. This requirement applies to all buildings including schools.

Recycling

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what representations he has received from local authorities on the recycling of televisions and computer monitors containing cathode ray tubes; [78442]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the national operational capacity for the recycling of televisions and computer monitors containing cathode ray tubes; [78440]

(3) how many (a) televisions and (b) monitors containing cathode ray tubes have been recycled from local authority civic amenity sites since July 2005. [78452]

Mr. Bradshaw: No such representations from local authorities have been received. The majority of inquiries on the recycling of televisions and computer monitors received by DEFRA officials have been referred to the Department of Trade and Industry, who lead on implementation of the waste electrical and electronic equipment (WEEE) directive.

There are an increasing number of WEEE recovery plants opening in anticipation of the UK's implementation of the WEEE directive that are capable of dealing with waste televisions and computer monitors. These plants are regulated by the Environment Agency under a waste management licence.

Information on the number of televisions and monitors which have been recycled from local authority civic amenity sites is not currently gathered by the Department.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many public recycling bins are available in London; and what estimate he has made of the cost of (a) maintaining, (b) emptying and (c) replacing these bins in 2006-07. [79373]

Mr. Bradshaw: Latest available data show that London has 38 civic amenity sites and 2,715 recycling sites. A recycling site usually consists of more than one bin and, therefore, data are not available for numbers of public recycling bins in London. No estimate has been made centrally regarding costs.

A range of information and statistics on waste and recycling in London is available from Capitalwastefacts (an online fact-file developed by the Greater London Authority and London Remade), which is available at the following address:

http://www.capitalwastefacts.com/Home/tabid/36/Default.aspx.

Rubbish Collection (Charging)

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the likely effect of variable charging for rubbish collection on levels of fly-tipping. [78244]

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the merits of the introduction of variable charging for household waste. [78538]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have no current plans to introduce charging for household waste. The Government are considering what further steps are needed to tackle household waste as part of the review of the Waste Strategy, which will be published later this year. We are also looking at the spending pressures local authorities face, with regard to waste management, ahead of the comprehensive spending review.

Variable charging is one of a number of tools that could be used to encourage waste minimisation and recycling of household waste. Local authorities already have powers to run incentive schemes or require householders to separate their waste for recycling. Recent research shows that at least half of English local authorities have run, or are running, some form of incentive scheme and some, such as Barnet, require householders to separate their recycling.

Many countries, including some in the European Union, have introduced successful household waste charging schemes, achieving reductions in waste and increases in the separation of waste for recycling. (Evidence from studies of this international experience shows a small increase in fly-tipping incidents when schemes are introduced, but this quickly tails off where schemes are well designed and effective enforcement action is taken.)

Rural Enterprise Scheme

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department plans to continue to process all applications for the Rural Enterprise Scheme, Processing and Marketing grant that are received up until 30 June; what the status is of the bid from Perry's Cider of Dowlish Wake, Ilminster; and if he will make a statement. [80008]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 27 June 2006]: All applications that are received by the closing date of 30 June and which meet the eligibility requirements for the Rural Enterprise Scheme and Processing and Marketing Grant will be processed and given due consideration for funding.

The bids from Perry's Cider of Dowlish Wake, Ilminster are currently undergoing technical assessment and, subject to meeting eligibility requirements, will be considered for funding by the RDS South West Regional Appraisal Panel at their final meeting on 25 and 26 July.

Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has undertaken into live tests for bovine spongiform encephalopathy; and whether this included studies of prion proteins. [79812]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 26 June 2006]: Scientific investigation of a live animal test for bovine spongiform encephalopathy has been a priority part of the research programmes funded by DEFRA and other Departments for several years. Information on these projects can be found on the DEFRA and Medical Research Council websites:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/research/project data

http://www.mrc.ac.uk/index/current-research/current-mrc_tse_portfolio.htm

A wide range of possible diagnostic markers of the disease have been studied, with a particular focus on prion proteins.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance he has issued on whether cattle suspected of being infected with a transmissible spongiform encephalopathy must be culled within a specified period under EC Regulation 999/2001. [79813]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 26 June 2006]: State Veterinary Service (SVS) staff are instructed to slaughter cattle suspected of being affected by bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE) at the time of their examination. In a minority of cases, the SVS arrange for live suspects to be transported to the Veterinary Laboratories Agency (VLA) in Weybridge, subject to an assessment of fitness to travel and journey time considerations. BSE suspects received at the VLA are slaughtered within 72 hours of arrival. However, most BSE suspects are slaughtered on-farm.

Waste and Resources Action Programme

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the Waste and Resources Action Programme's total annual expenditure was for (a) projects, (b) salaries and (c) office premises in each of the last five years. [78532]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is set out in the following table:

	Project	Salary	Premises
2001-02	4,729,000	1,295,000	198,000
2002-03	12,475,000	2,357,000	233,000
2003-04	26,278,000	4,049,000	346,000
2004-05	43,634,000	6,577,000	450,000
2005-06	68,539,000	8,564,000	497,000

Waste Exports

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to tackle the illegal export of waste televisions and computer monitors containing cathode ray tubes. [78439]

Mr. Bradshaw: Waste electrical electronic equipment, such as television sets and computer monitors containing cathode ray tubes, are classified as hazardous waste for the purposes of shipment out of the UK. Under the Waste Shipment Regulation, the export of hazardous waste to non-Organisation of Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) countries is prohibited. Exports of this waste to other OECD countries is permitted for recovery operations but such shipments would be subject to prior informed consent procedures.

The illegal shipment of waste abroad for disposal under the guise of recycling is totally unacceptable and the UK Government and competent authorities, such as the Environment Agency, take such matters extremely seriously. The Environment Agency will continue to monitor the scale and destination of waste at major UK ports through ongoing inspections, and will not hesitate to take enforcement action where evidence of illegal activity is found.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Clear Skies Scheme

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what the value was of the total funding pot under the Clear Skies scheme. [80772]

Malcolm Wicks: The Clear Skies programme had a £13.25 million budget over three years beginning January 2003.

Housing

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what value the current total funding pot has under Stream 1 of the low carbon buildings programme for householders. [80771]

Malcolm Wicks: The current funding for Stream 1 household applications under the low carbon buildings programme is £6.5 million over three years for the financial years 2006-07 to 2008-09.

Landlords (Retained Deposits)

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (1) how many actions have been initiated by trading standards officers against companies which have unfairly retained deposits paid on student accommodation; [75887]

(2) what estimate he has made of the amount of money unlawfully retained by companies from deposits on student accommodation in the past 12 months; [75888]

(3) what steps he is taking to encourage action against companies which unlawfully retain deposits paid by students who have rented student accommodation. [75889]

Angela E. Smith: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are committed to ensuring that where tenants pay a deposit to their landlord in good faith it will be returned at the end of the tenancy, providing the tenant does not cause any damage or theft to the property. Provisions contained in Part 6 of the Housing Act 2004 will make it a requirement that any landlord who offers assured shorthold tenancies and wishes to take a monetary deposit must safeguard that deposit with a tenancy deposit scheme (TDS).

The Department does not hold information on the actions of trading standards officers or the level of deposits that may have been withheld by landlords.

Zimbabwe

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what his policy is on investment by UK companies in Zimbabwe; and what steps he is taking to improve standards of corporate behaviour in Zimbabwe. [78630]

Mr. McCartney: The EU does not have economic or trade sanctions with Zimbabwe, and therefore we do not place any barriers on investment in Zimbabwe. UK companies will take decisions on investing in Zimbabwe on the basis of their commercial assessment of those investments.

There are no specific initiatives to improve corporate behaviour in Zimbabwe. HMG are however committed to promoting responsible business practice by British companies wherever they operate. We do this through a combination of sector-specific activities, such as;

The extractive industries transparency initiative, which aims to increase transparency over payment by companies to Government and Government linked entities, as well as transparency over revenues by those host country Governments.

The voluntary principles on security and human rights which aims to maintain the safety and security of extractive operations, whilst ensuring that human rights and fundamental freedoms are respected.

HMG also support international organisations active on corporate responsibility such as the UN global compact, which seeks to promote responsible corporate citizenship so that business can be part of the solution to the challenges of globalisation.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Burmese Refugees

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what help he has made available to support relief groups in Thailand assisting those people displaced from their homes in Burma. [76022]

Mr. Thomas: There are three types of internally displaced people (IDPs) in Burma. These are (with the latest available numbers, from October 2005):

(i) people in temporary settlements in ceasefire areas administered by ethnic nationalities (340,000);

(ii) villagers who have been evicted by the Burmese Government and moved into designated relocation sites (108,000); and

(iii) civilians hiding from the Burmese Army in areas most affected by armed conflict (92,000).

The recent military offensive against the Karen people has swelled the number of civilians hiding in conflict areas by at least 15,000. DFID's approach to providing emergency assistance to these IDPs has been to use our comparative advantage (the fact that we have a small presence inside the country and a strong network of relationships with ethnic minority and other groups) to reach the IDPs using local community groups inside Burma. This is a complementary approach to the use of relief teams operating cross border from Thailand, and it enables access to IDPs who would not be reached by any other means, and through a mechanism which is much less well supported by other donors. The development of civil society within the country is also a fundamental step in a successful transition to democracy.

The number of IDPs that we can reach from inside the country is limited. Access is difficult, and the small local groups with whom we are working do not currently have the capacity to deliver greater volumes of emergency relief, although we are working to strengthen their ability to do more. Those delivering assistance to IDPs cross border from Thailand face similar challenges. Therefore we recognise the importance of maintaining co-ordination with all donors (both those delivering assistance cross border, and those working inside the country) to ensure that together we manage to reach as many IDPs as possible.

DFID also provides support to IDPs in temporary settlements in ceasefire areas in eastern Burma through the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), to which we provide £500,000 a year, of which approximately 75 per cent. is attributable to work with displaced people in this area.

In addition, our health, education and rural livelihood projects provide assistance in eastern Burma, and support internally displaced people in temporary settlements and designated relocation sites there, as well as other vulnerable people. For example, in Karen State, our Fund for HIV/AIDS in Burma supports World Vision projects in two townships, Save the Children UK projects in four townships and Care projects in five townships, as well as supporting other national non-governmental organisations (NGOs). DFID-funded rural livelihoods and pre-primary education projects are also about to start in Karen State.

DFID is also providing support to non-governmental organisations (NGOs) working among displaced Burmese people in the refugee camps on the Thai side of the Thai-Burma border—as a grant to the Thai Burma Border Consortium (TBBC) of £1.8 million over three years. In addition, the UK contributes approximately the same amount again as its share of the EC's support to the TBBC. The British embassy in Bangkok advocates on behalf of Burmese refugees living in Thailand through the United Nations High Commission for Refugees (UNHCR) to improve the situation in the refugee camps in Thailand and to bring about a relaxation of the regulations prohibiting freedom of movement and employment outside the camps.

Timber (Papua New Guinea)

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has received regarding illegal logging in Papua New Guinea; and if he will make a statement. [78899]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has been informed of the seriousness of illegal logging in Papua New Guinea by my hon. Friend the Member for Kingswood (Roger Berry) and by the British high commissioner. DFID has no programmes in Papua New Guinea through which it can offer assistance. However, DFID has raised this matter with the European Commission which will consider assistance.

DEFENCE

Abuse of Power Reports

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many persons have been subject to disciplinary or administrative procedures as a result of failure to report an incident of abuse of power in the Army in the past 12 months. [79837]

Mr. Ingram: None. The most recent case concerned Corporal Daniel Kenyon who was convicted in February 2005 of failing to report an incident involving the abuse of Iraqi civilians.

Afghanistan

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for how long he expects British troops to be based in Afghanistan. [80636]

Des Browne: As announced by the then Secretary of State for Defence my right hon. Friend the Member for Airdrie and Shotts (John Reid) on 26 January 2006, Official Report, column 1529, the Helmand Task Force is planned to be a three year deployment. It is impossible to predict exactly how long there will be a UK military presence of somekind, as part of wider international support to the Government of Afghanistan, beyond that period.

Cluster Munitions

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with British manufacturers on the decision of the Belgian Government to ban cluster munitions. [79688]

Mr. Ingram: None.

Combined Cadet Force

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent progress has been made in implementing the plans announced by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in February 2006 to create branches of the Combined Cadet Force in state schools. [80692]

Mr. Watson: Since the Chancellor of the Exchequer's announcement in February 2006, the Ministry of Defence has been working with the Department for Education and Skills and the Treasury to develop plans for a pilot scheme that will further extend Combined Cadet Forces in the state school sector. As was announced on the 27 June 2006 we will be establishing six new pilot schemes in schools across England. Funding arrangements have just been put in place by the Treasury and we are now discussing arrangements with schools who have already expressed an interest in establishing a Combined Cadet Force.

Deepcut (Document Disclosure)

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date he wrote to the chief constable of Surrey police regarding the disclosure of documents to the families of (a) Sean Benton, (b) Cheryl James and (c) Geoff Gray; if he will copy the letter to the legal representatives of those families; and if he will place copies in the Library. [79870]

Mr. Ingram: I wrote to the chief constable of the Surrey police regarding Recommendation 33 of the Deepcut Review on 13 June 2006. A copy of the letter will be provided to the legal representatives of the families concerned. A copy of the letter will also be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list those Government Bills sponsored by his Department that are still to be introduced during the 2005-06 session. [78853]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Leader of the House on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1432W.

Iraq

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list contracts in excess of £500,000 his Department has entered into in connection with Iraq since the beginning of 2003; on what date each was entered into; whether the civilian contractor in each contract had military connections; what the nationality of each civilian contractor was in each case; what each contract was for; whether each contract was awarded following competitive bidding; whether work was wholly carried out in Iraq; and what estimate he has made in each case of the comparable cost of similar work carried out in the UK. [61481]

Mr. Ingram: I will place three lists of contracts in the Library of the House. The first shows works contracted by the Multi-National Division (South-East) Civil Secretariat with total value in excess of £500,000, and wholly carried out in Iraq, from 2003, detailing the company, service provided, and date each contract was entered into. Second are those contracts let by the Defence Communications Service Agency for and in support of British operations in Iraq. And third are those contracts placed for movement of freight or personnel by air or surface means, awarded following competition. Two of these contracts (DTMA/CB/0803 and DTMA/CB/0813) were let for air support entirely within Iraq/surrounding area. Two further contracts (DTMA/CB/0703 and DTMA/CB/0720) were let specifically for aeromedical tasks between Cyprus and the UK. The remaining movement contracts were placed for the transport of freight/personnel mainly between the UK/Europe and Iraq/Gulf States in support of Op TELIC. Comparable costing for these is inappropriate. Further details are not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on which dates since February 2006 (a) he and (b) his Ministers have visited British soldiers injured in Iraq; and what locations were visited on each occasion. [80693]

Des Browne: Defence Ministers frequently visit members of the armed forces injured in Iraq. Since February Defence Ministers have visited injured personnel on four occasions as follows:

My predecessor, my right hon. Friend the Member for Airdrie and Shotts (John Reid), visited the Field Hospital at Shaibah Logistics Base on 18 March 2006.

I too visited the Field Hospital at Shaibah Logistics Base, Iraq on 18 May 2006. The Minister of State for the Armed Forces visited injured personnel as part of his visit on 8-9 May 2006 to 7th Armoured Brigade in Germany.

The Under-Secretary of State for Defence my hon. Friend the Member for West Bromwich, East (Mr. Watson) visited the Royal College of Defence Medicine at Selly Oak on 16 June 2006.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what average time has elapsed before inquiries into the deaths of British service personnel in Iraq have commenced. [80141]

Des Browne: The information requested is not held centrally and can be obtained only at a disproportionate cost. However, the Service Police initiate an investigation immediately they are notified of the death of any member of the armed forces in Iraq. Wherever possible, it is their policy to issue an Initial Case Report within 24 hours of notification unless prevented by operational circumstances.

Missile Defence

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the role is of the Missile Defence Centre within his Department; and if he will make a statement. [79950]

Des Browne: The UK Missile Defence Centre was opened by the former Minister of State for Defence Procurement on 18 July 2003. It provides the primary technical interface between the UK and the US Governments in this area of research and development. The centre is jointly resourced by Government and Industry, and will act as a showcase for the specialist expertise and equipment which UK Industry has to offer to the US Missile Defence programme. The MDC also facilitates the exchange of information on the evolving US system, to inform the technical advice provided to policy makers.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions the UK Government has had with the US authorities on acquiring ballistic missile defence (a) technology and (b) equipment from the US. [79951]

Des Browne: We have had no recent discussions with the US about the acquisition, in the form of purchase or ownership, of ballistic missile defence technology or equipment. We continue to work closely with them on co-operative technology programmes through the UK Missile Defence Centre.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which Private Members' Bills were drafted by his Department in each Session since 1997; and which subsequently received Royal Assent. [78852]

Mr. Watson: None.

Royal Military Police

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the terms of reference were of HM Inspectorate of Constabulary's thematic review of the Royal Military Police Special Investigation Branch; what the target date is for completion; and what arrangements he plans to make for publication. [79880]

Mr. Ingram: The terms of reference for the Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) inspection of the Royal Military Police (RMP) Special Investigations Branch (SIB) are as follows:

(a) To inspect SIB specialist policing functions in the investigation of major and serious crimes, including investigations conducted on operations, and to identify any areas for improvement (in the context of current good practice, where applicable).

(b) To identify any other transferable good practice emerging from inspection.

(c) To alert Deputy Provost Marshal (Investigations) of any issues that may impact upon the conduct of a live investigation.

(d) To deliver a draft report to the Provost Marshal (Army) for his consideration on behalf of the Adjutant-General and Director General Security and Safety.

(e) To deliver a final report for the attention of the same.

The inspection of the RMP SIB started on 1 April 2006 and the HMIC is due to provide a report by 31 July 2006.

The final report will be published, both in hard copy and on the HMIC website.

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the merits of bringing the Royal Military Police Special Investigations Branch under the oversight of the Independent Police Complaints Commission. [79881]

Mr. Ingram: The Royal Military Police (RMP) Special Investigations Branch (SIB) has a minimal interface with the general public in comparison to their civilian counterparts. As a result, complaints by third parties unconnected to the armed forces about the conduct of the RMP (SIB) are far less likely to occur. We do not therefore consider it appropriate for the RMP (SIB) to be brought under the oversight of the Independent Police Complaints Commission.

However, a comprehensive redress of complaints system exists for all service personnel, including service police personnel, who wish to complain or express a grievance about any matter related to their service. Improvements were proposed under the Armed Forces Bill which included a redress panel system where panels would include an external, independent member for certain types of complaints, and an external reviewer focusing on process, delay, fairness, and the effectiveness of the procedure, and providing recommendations for improvements where necessary. Further to the Deepcut Review, we plan to extend the role of the external reviewer, renamed the Service Complaints Commissioner, who would have statutory powers to receive a complaint or allegation from a service person, family or other third party, to place it in the hands of the chain of command and to be notified of the outcome. The Commissioner would have direct access to Ministers and would publish an annual report on the complaints process.

These proposed arrangements will now be subject to the full process of parliamentary scrutiny in the context of the remaining stages of the Armed Forces Bill's passage through Parliament.

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what training is available to members of the Royal Military Police in the conduct of European Convention of Human Rights Article 2—compliant investigations into an overseas death in barracks. [79884]

Mr. Ingram: Members of the Royal Military Police (RMP) Special Investigation Branch (SIB) follow standard police investigative procedures and receive training that conforms to UK Home Office standards, modified to take account of the Military Criminal Justice System. As such, both their training, either basic or continuation, and their investigative techniques, are compliant with the European Convention on Human Rights.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Biodiversity

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps her Department plans to take to monitor the extent to which public bodies which report to her comply, from October, with their duty to conserve biodiversity in exercising their functions, under section 40 of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006. [74406]

Mr. Woodward: Under section 40 of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006, all public bodies have a duty to have regard to the conservation of biodiversity in the exercising of their functions. There is no statutory obligation on Departments to monitor the extent to which public bodies comply with this duty. However, we understand DEFRA is working with a wide range of partners to develop guidance for public bodies to support the implementation of this duty and will involve all relevant Departments on the development of guidance.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the average cost to her Department was of replying to a letter written (a) by an hon. Member and (b) by a member of the public in the latest period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum is accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80469]

Mr. Lammy: The information requested is not recorded and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/peers correspondence. The report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78WS.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of her Department. [80091]

Mr. Lammy: My Department's finance director is Nicholas Holgate. He has a degree in economics and is an associate member of the Chartered Institute of Management Accountants. His relevant experience comprises 18 years' employment in HM Treasury, including three years as head of strategy, finance and purchasing.

Horse Racing

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps her Department is taking to enable the Government to meet their manifesto commitment to end their financial involvement in horse racing. [80844]

Mr. Caborn: The Government's 2005 manifesto commitment with regards to horse racing stated,

"Having passed the necessary legislation the Government remains committed to completing the sale of the Tote to a Racing Trust".

My Department is pursuing a closed sale of the Tote to a consortium of racing interests.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what consultation (a) has taken place and (b) is planned on the extension of the horse racing levy beyond 2009; and with whom. [80845]

Mr. Caborn: No decision has been taken to extend of the Horserace Betting Levy beyond 2009, although the matter is under consideration by my Department following the publication of the phase two report of the Future Funding of Racing Review Group, Chaired by Lord Donoughue of Ashton.

In order to inform this consideration the Review Group subsequently produced a further report (a copy of which has been placed in the Libraries of both Houses) aimed at identifying improvements that could be made to the Levy Board's operation. The group received submissions from:

Arena Leisure Plc
Ascot Racecourse
The Association of British Bookmakers
The British Horseracing Board
Gala Coral Group Plc
GG Media Ltd.
Industry Committee (Horseracing) Ltd.
The Jockey Club
Ladbrokes Plc
The National Association of Bookmakers
The National Trainers Federation
Northern Racing Ltd.
The Racecourse Association
The Racehorse Owners' Association
The Rails Bookmakers' Association
Satellite Information Services Ltd.
Timothy Hale (in support of the RCA)
Watson Bookmakers Ltd.
Weatherbys Ltd.
William Hill Plc

Should the Government decide to extend the levy beyond 2009 further consultation will be carried out.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to her statement of 18 March 2005, Official Report, column 29WS, on funding of horse racing, what progress has been made in working with football leagues to develop solutions to the funding difficulties arising from a judgment by the European Court of Justice. [80846]

Mr. Caborn: I have met with representatives of the premier league, football leagues, Scottish football leagues on a number of occasions to discuss the impact of the European Court of Justice's ruling on database rights.

I understand that a deal is now under negotiation between Football Dataco, which licenses football fixture data, and British bookmakers which I am optimistic will provide guaranteed funding for the football leagues in the short to medium term.

Internet Gambling

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representations she has received from gambling addiction support and campaign groups on problem gambling on the internet. [80852]

Mr. Caborn: We have received a number of representations from gambling addiction support groups, faith groups and others about problem gambling and the internet.

We are engaged in regular discussions with these bodies via my Department's Gambling Act Implementation Community Liaison Group.

Public Consultations

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 14 June 2005, Official Report, column 1223W, on consultations, what mechanisms are in place to ensure value for money in public consultations. [80758]

Mr. Lammy: In order to ensure that consultation is as effective as possible, my Department follows the Government's code of practice on consultation. By following the code i.e. carrying out comprehensive consultation and taking on board the views of those likely to be affected and the views of experts, the Government are more likely to meet its policy objectives. Following each formal consultation, the DCMS is obliged, under the code, to give feedback regarding the responses received and how the consultation process influenced the policy in question.

Radio Licences

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will bring forward legislation to allow her Department (a) to intervene in and (b) to review the decisions taken by Ofcom in connection with the granting of radio licences; and if she will make a statement. [80170]

Mr. Woodward: The Government have no plans to introduce powers to allow them to intervene in Ofcom's licensing decisions, nor do they believe there is a case for a review at this time.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what appeals mechanism is available to radio stations which have their request for a radio licence rejected by Ofcom; and if she will make a statement. [80171]

Mr. Woodward: If an unsuccessful applicant believes that Ofcom has acted unlawfully then they can ask for the decision to be judicially reviewed.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what radio licences have been granted in each county in England and Wales since the enactment of the Communications Act 2003; what applications for such licences have been rejected; what the reason for rejection was in each case; and if she will make a statement. [80172]

Mr. Woodward: The matter raised is the responsibility of the Office of Communications (Ofcom), as independent regulator for the communications sector. Accordingly my officials have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to respond directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Scottish Bed Tax

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent assessment her Department has made of the likely impact of a bed tax on the Scottish tourism industry. [81144]

Mr. Woodward: The Department has not made such an assessment. As is appropriate in the case of an independent review, my Department will fully assess the potential impact of any recommendations that Sir Michael Lyons makes in his final report on the function, future role and funding of local government once he has made them.

The Public, West Bromwich

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether work has recommenced on The Public arts organisation in West Bromwich. [80623]

Mr. Lammy: Some enabling works on the site of The Public will take place during the summer, but it is anticipated that more significant activity will recommence on the site in early October.

Following the agreement of a rescue package for the arts organisation The Public Charity Ltd., the artistic content and gallery commissions have been reviewed and work on testing the content for the gallery will begin shortly.

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the role of the Arts Council is in the tendering process for the future use of The Public in West Bromwich. [80624]

Mr. Lammy: Arts Council England are part of a stakeholder group which currently also includes the other funders, Sandwell metropolitan borough council, Advantage West Midlands and the Government office for the west midlands. The brief for the tendering process was written with the joint agreement of this group. Representatives of Arts Council England were involved in the shortlisting of submissions and were on the interview panel for the shortlisted proposals.

Tourism

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many tourist information centres were (a) in operation, (b) opened and (c) closed in England in each year since 2000; [80273]

(2) how many tourists used information centres in England in each year since 2000; [80274]

(3) how much funding Tourism England committed to supporting tourist information centres in each year since 2000. [80275]

Mr. Woodward: Most tourist information centres (TICs) are controlled by local authorities and not funded or managed centrally. The provision of tourism services by local authorities, including TICs, is a discretionary matter for them.

However, VisitBritain has recently conducted a consultation on a strategy for providing national leadership for the tourist information network in England. The proposals, put forward after extensive discussion with the National TIC Steering Group and regional partners, include a range of actions designed to increase efficiency and service standards; increase revenue opportunities; and ensure integration with the 'Englandnet' business support tool.

It is hoped that these actions will strengthen the TIC brand and allow VisitBritain to market the network in Britain and overseas.

Until March 2006, VisitBritain part-funded One NorthEast and the Yorkshire Tourist Board (YTB) to conduct co-ordination of the network. Between 2000 and 2003, this work was carried out by the regional tourist boards, led by the English Tourism Council. The costs of this work centrally were as follows:

2000-01	110,000
2001-02	100,000
2002-03	97,070
2003-04	56,500
2004-05	56,500
2005-06	56,500

Unfortunately, detailed annual records of the number of TICs and their visitor numbers are not held centrally. There were approximately 560 TICs in 2000 and there are about 514 now. YTB made a rough estimate in 2002 that around 75 million visits were made to England's TICs. The acquisition of improved data on these matters is an important element of VisitBritain's current proposals.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Finance Director

Chris Huhne: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of the Electoral Commission. [80078]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it does not have a specific post of finance director, but that the responsibilities of its Director of Corporate Services, Roger Gough, include Finance, as well as Human Resources, IT, Procurement and Facilities. Mr. Gough has a Diploma in Management. Before becoming Director of Corporate Services at the Electoral Commission, Mr. Gough was a Director of Resources in the magistrates courts service for seven years.

TREASURY

Building Costs (2012 Olympics)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of possible inflation of building costs in (a) London, (b) the West Midlands and (c) England as a result of the construction work associated with the 2012 Olympics. [80132]

Mr. Timms: The Treasury has made no estimate of the possible inflation of building costs as a result of the construction work associated with the 2012 Olympics. As announced in January, the Public Sector Construction Clients' Forum, set up by the Office of Government Commerce, is carrying out a project to examine the construction industry's capacity to deliver planned national capital construction programmes, including the provision of the Olympics infrastructure, in the period 2005 to 2015.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average cost was to his Department of replying to a letter written by (a) an hon. Member, (b) a Member of the House of Lords, (c) a member of the public writing to a Minister at the Department and (d) an internal letter written by another Minister, in the last period for which figures are available; and how much of the cost was accounted for by (i) officials time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80169]

John Healey: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to correspondence from Members of both Houses of Parliament. The report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78ws.

Information relating to costs is not recorded and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Custom Entry Clearances

Nick Harvey: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the answer of 13 June 2006, Official Report, column 5767W, on AK-47s, what UK custom entry clearances have been issued to UK-based companies for the import into the UK from Bosnia of (a) military vehicles and (b) assault rifles since June 2003. [79909]

Dawn Primarolo: Since June 2003 UK Customs have issued six entry clearances to UK companies in respect of imports of military vehicles from Bosnia that have been recorded under Commodity Code heading 871 00000 which covers military vehicles.

Since June 2003 UK Customs have issued nine entry clearances to UK companies in respect of imports under Commodity Code 9301 9000 (other military weapons, other than revolvers, pistols and arms in heading 9307). Entry clearance is issued on the basis that import licenses had been granted prior to importation.

Death Statistics

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he plans to take to ensure that the data on deaths that would be released under clause 11 of the Police and Justice Bill cannot directly or indirectly be misused by commercial organisations; how the activities of commercial organisations will be monitored in relation to the use of such data; and what penalties would be available if the data were misused. [80536]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, 28 June 2006:

As Registrar General for England and Wales, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what steps are to be taken to ensure that data on deaths that would be released under clause 11 of the Police and Justice Bill cannot directly or indirectly be misused by commercial organisations; how the activities of commercial organisations will be monitored in relation to the use of such data; and what penalties would be available if the data were misused. (80536)

It is the case now that death registration data is in the public domain as soon as any death is registered. The data is, however, difficult to access in bulk in England and Wales and is not accessible using modern technology. The intention of the provision is to reduce the scope for criminal activity arising from the fraudulent use of a dead person's identity, and to do so by making data available more quickly and in a more accessible format than is permitted at present.

It is recognised that provision of the data quickly and in bulk does create a need for additional controls. Any commercial organisation seeking to utilise data on deaths would need to demonstrate clearly that it would be used in such a way as to fulfil the intent of the clause by enabling the prevention, detection, investigation or prosecution of offences, and no data will be released unless that is the case. A regime is being designed, based on those criteria, to enable rigorous assessment of applications for receipt of the data.

The data will be released subject to strict conditions, and subsequent misuse of it will, lead as a minimum to withdrawal of the supply of data to the organisation concerned; further penalties would depend on the nature of the improper use.

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the most recent death rate from heart disease was in (a) Stoke-on-Trent, (b) the West Midlands and (c) England. [80604]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 28 June 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the most recent death rate from heart disease was in (a) Stoke-on-Trent (b) the West Midlands and (c) England. I am replying in her absence. (80604)

The latest year for which figures are available is 2004 and these are given in the following table.

Death rates[1] from coronary heart disease[2] for Stoke-on-Trent local authority, West Midlands Government Office Region and England[3], by sex, 2004[4]

	Stoke-on-Trent	West Midlands	England
Male	215	157	155
Female	85	73	73

Coronary heart disease—ICD-10120-125
Deaths were selected using the original underlying cause.
[3] Usual residents of these areas.
[4] Deaths registered in 2004.

Invoice Payments

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of bills presented by private organisations to (a) HM Treasury and (b) HM Revenue and Customs were paid within (i) 10 days, (ii) 20 days, (iii) 30 days, (iv) 60 days and (v) 90 days in the last period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [80642]

John Healey: The Treasury aims to pay all invoices within contractual conditions or 30 days from the receipt of goods or service, whichever is the later. We monitor performance against the 30 day target. Further analysis could be undertaken only at disproportionate cost.

For the 12 month period ending 31 March 2006, 94.7 per cent. of undisputed Treasury and Debt Management Office invoices and 99.5 per cent. of undisputed Office of Government Commerce invoices were paid within 30 days. HMRC settled 98.8 per cent. of invoices within 30 days of receipt of goods or service.

Improving payment performance continues to be a priority and is reported in the relevant resource accounts.

Long-term Unemployment

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in (a) Hartlepool constituency, (b) the Tees Valley sub-region and (c) the North East Region were long-term unemployed in each year since 1989. [80539]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 28 June 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your parliamentary question about unemployment. (80539)

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles statistics of unemployment for local areas from the annual local area Labour Force Survey (LFS) and Annual Population Survey (APS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

Table 1 shows the number of long-term unemployed for the Hartlepool parliamentary constituency, the Tees Valley sub-region and the North East region for each 12 months ending February 1999 to February 2004, from the annual LFS, and for the 12 months to December 2004 from the APS. Data are not available for earlier years.

These estimates, as with any from sample surveys, are subject to a margin of uncertainty. Changes in the estimates from year to year should be treated with particular caution.

ONS also compiles statistics for local areas of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance (ISA). Table 2 shows the annual average number of people claiming ISA for more than 12 months resident in the Hartlepool parliamentary constituency, the Tees Valley sub-region and the North East region for the calendar years 1989-2005. Data are not available for the Hartlepool constituency prior to 1996.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what records are kept in his Department of Private Members' Bills introduced; and if he will make a statement. [80168]

John Healey: The Treasury complies with the requirements of the Public Records Act 1967 and maintains such records of Private Members' Bills and other parliamentary business as may be required for operational purposes. Information relating to Private Members' Bills is available from published sources and from the House authorities.

Recruitment

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on recruitment, search and selection agencies in each of the last five years. [68335]

John Healey: The Treasury and its agencies do not record recruitment, search and selection agency costs separate from other recruitment expenditure. This information could therefore be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Sickness Absence

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff in his Department have had (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in each of the last three years. [73036]

John Healey: The information requested in respect of the Treasury is as follows:

Two	125	165	193

Spring Departmental Report

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date he plans to publish the HM Revenue and Customs Spring Departmental Report; in which month the Spring Report was published in each of the past five years; and if he will make a statement. [80010]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 27 June 2006]: The HMRC Spring Departmental Report 2006 will be published on 29 June 2006 (Cm6832).

Tax Credits

Anne Milton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 25 January 2006, Official Report, column 2222W, on tax credits, what the results of the surveys to assess the effectiveness of tax credits communications were; and if he will place the results of the surveys in the Library. [50584]

Dawn Primarolo: Summaries of the tracking research have been placed in the Library of the House.

Teenage Pregnancy and Life Expectancy

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the most recent (a) teenage pregnancy rate and (b) life expectancy rate was in (i) Stoke-on-Trent, (ii) the West Midlands and (iii) England. [80602]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 28 June 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the most recent (a) teenage pregnancy rate and (b) life expectancy rate was in (i) Stoke-on-Trent, (ii) the West Midlands and (iii) England. I am replying in her absence. (80602)

Available figures are estimates of the number of pregnancies that resulted in a live birth, stillbirth or termination.

Teenage conception rates for 2004 (the most recent year for which data are available) are given in Table A. Data for 2004 are provisional.

Figures for life expectancy at birth for English regions and local authorities are published annually by ONS based on three-year rolling averages. The most recent figures, for 2002-04, are included in Table B.

Table A: Teenage pregnancy rate, 2004

Region	Rate[1]
Stoke-on-Trent	67.4
West Midlands	45.0
England	41.5

[1] Rates for women aged under 18 are based on the population of women aged 15-17.

Table B: Life expectancy at birth (years) by sex, 2002-04[1]

Region	Male	Female
Stoke-on-Trent	73.2	78.7
West Midlands	75.9	80.6
England	76.55	80.91

[1] Results are based on deaths registered in 2002-04 and mid-year population estimates for these years.

Tobacco Products (Duty)

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of (a) the proportion of tobacco products consumed in the UK on which duty has not been paid due to smuggling and fraud in each year since 1997 and (b) the resultant cost to the Exchequer. [80793]

John Healey: HM Revenue and Customs estimates of the proportion of tobacco products consumed in the UK on which duty has not been paid due to smuggling and fraud are available from 1999-2000.

The proportion of cigarettes and hand rolling tobacco consumed in the UK on which duty has not been paid due to smuggling and fraud and the resultant cost to the Exchequer for 2000-01 to 2003-04 are given in Table 3.3 and Table 3.5 respectively of "Measuring Indirect Tax Losses—2005", published by HM Revenue and Customs in December 2005 and is available from the House of Commons Library. The proportion of cigarettes and hand rolling tobacco consumed in the UK on which duty has not been paid due to smuggling and fraud for 1999-2000 can be found in Table 3.2 and Table 3.5 respectively of "Measuring indirect tax losses" published in November 2002 by HM Customs and Excise, also available from the House of Commons Library, with the corresponding resultant cost to the Exchequer in Table 3.1 and 3.4 respectively.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

City Regions Programme

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the likely effects of the city regions project on (a) Herefordshire and (b) other low wage economies. [80188]

Mr. Woolas: Cities and city regions are often the economic drivers of economic growth within the wider region. Economic growth within the cities and city regions will often provide knock on benefits to the wider region. We are conscious, however, that no one size fits all and in considering the business case proposals from the core cities we are giving careful thought as to their impact on smaller towns and rural areas outside the city region.

My officials are working with DEFRA who are looking into the impact of city regions on rural areas both within and outside city regions. This research includes a number of case studies, one of which concentrates on the Birmingham city region and its impact on South Shropshire, the rural district with the highest proportion of employees earning less than two-thirds of the English median.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average cost to her Department was of replying to a letter written (a) by an hon. Member and (b) by a member of the public in the latest period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum is accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80471]

Angela E. Smith: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/Peers correspondence. The report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78WS.

The information requested is not recorded and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Draft Housing Regulations

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will place in the Library copies of the responses to his Department's consultation on Houses in Multiple Occupation and Selective Licensing Draft Regulations. [62287]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

I have made arrangements for copies of the responses received to the consultation exercise on the draft regulations relating to Houses in Multiple Occupation (HMOs) and Selective Licensing to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

EU Directive 2002/91/EC

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) local authorities will be funded under the new burdens procedure for the implementation of articles 7 to 10 to

EU directive 2002/91/EC and (b) the polluter pays principle will apply in relation to the implementation of these articles. [78260]

Angela E. Smith: The EU energy performance of buildings directive will impact on a number of areas of local authority responsibility as it will on other property owners. The new burdens requirement does not apply to policies which apply the same rules to local authorities and to private sector bodies, unless these have a disproportionate effect on local government. My officials are engaging with key stakeholders including local authorities on how the directive will be implemented.

A statutory instrument and supporting regulatory impact assessment is scheduled for early 2007 and a decision on whether the new burdens procedure and funding applies will be taken at that point. Consistent with polluter pays principles this regulatory impact assessment will also include the social cost of carbon when assessing the costs and benefits of implementing articles 7 to 10 of the directive.

Fire Service

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many deliberate (a) vehicle fires and (b) fires there were in (i) Southend-on-Sea, (ii) Essex, (iii) Hertfordshire and (iv) England and Wales in each year since 1990. [80251]

Angela E. Smith: The available information covers deliberate primary fires attended by fire and rescue services at the locations listed in (ii), (iii) and (iv) of the question.

Information for Southend-on-Sea is not available centrally.

Home Information Packs

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to what criteria the energy performance certificate within home information packs will have to conform to meet the EU directive on the energy performance of buildings; what standard measurement scale will be used; whether different measurements will be required where there are different types of construction within the same building; and whether the energy performance certificate will be required to include information on (a) roof insulation, (b) cavity wall insulation, (c) hot water tank insulation and (d) improvements that could be made. [75419]

Yvette Cooper: The regulations laid before Parliament on 14 June 2006 and made under part 5 of the Housing Act 2004 require that the Energy Performance Certificate within the Home Condition Report complies with the legislation implementing the EU energy performance of buildings directive.

The methodology used to prepare reports will be the reduced data standard assessment procedure (RDSAP) for residential property up to 450 sq m. For larger or more unusual homes, the methodology used will be the simplified building energy method (SBEM).

Home inspectors will collect a standard data set that identifies size, construction, levels of existing insulation, heating and heating controls. It will provide both energy and environmental impact ratings on an A-G grade. It will also give an indication of energy costs, suggestions for measures to cut energy bills and improve the home's performance ratings, and for other measures to reduce CO_2 emissions.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the likely annual cost to vendors of home information packs; and what estimate she has made of the total annual value to purchasers of the packs. [76033]

Yvette Cooper: The regulatory impact assessment published on 14 June 2006 alongside the home information pack regulations sets out the expected costs and benefits of home information packs. A copy of this document is in the House Library.

Estimates of the cost of the components of HIPs in the current market suggest an average cost of around £600 to £700 plus VAT to compile. Most of this cost is not new and is being met at present by both sellers and buyers. Some providers have already said they would offer HIPs at reduced cost or even free.

HIPs are expected to reduce the abortive and duplicated costs to consumers caused by failed transactions which result from survey or valuation inspection findings.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the annual number of derogations the Government will grant as a result of information for home information packs not being available at the time of sale. [76068]

Yvette Cooper: The legislation does not provide for the Government to make derogations. The home information pack regulations laid on 14 June 2006 allow for cases where despite all reasonable efforts, certain documents are unavailable or cannot be obtained. In such cases, marketing may begin without those documents. Where documents are temporarily unavailable, efforts to obtain the missing information must continue, with documents added to the pack as soon as they are available. The pack must also make clear what information is missing, why, and what steps are being taken to obtain it.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the likely impact of home condition reports contained in home information packs on the market value of low value properties. [76086]

Yvette Cooper: It is important that sellers and buyers should have reliable information about the condition of properties they are considering up front, particularly as this reduces significantly the risk of transaction failure, wasted costs, duplication and unexpected repair costs once the buyer has moved in. The Home Condition Report will bring transparency to the process and ensure that negotiations regarding sale price reflect the condition of the property.

The Government commissioned research in 2000 and 2003 on the potential implications of home information packs (HIPs) for low value and low demand properties. They also consulted in March 2003 on whether there should be special arrangements in such cases. The findings of the research and consultation showed that buyers, sellers and local property professionals felt that HIPs could help the functioning of the market in those areas, and that exempting particular properties or areas of properties could reduce demand and therefore prices even further.

Local Authority Employees (Assaults)

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) physical and (b) verbal assaults there have been on local authority employees in each of the last five years, broken down by (i) employment type and (ii) region. [80866]

Mr. Woolas: This information is not held centrally and cannot be collected without a disproportionate cost.

Local Government

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the letter sent by listing officers to local authority chief executives to which reference was made in ODPM council tax letter 1/2005. [70569]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 28 June 2006.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) of 20 January 2006, Official Report, column 1699W, on council tax, when he placed in the Library a copy of the draft letter from the Valuation Office Agency to local authorities on sharing information. [66312]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

The draft letter from the Valuation Office Agency to local authorities on sharing information has now been placed in the Library.

Neighbourhood Management Schemes

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she is reviewing the roll-out of neighbourhood management schemes across England; and if she will make a statement. [79233]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 21 June 2006]: The Government funded Neighbourhood Management Pathfinder programme was established in July 2001 with the creation of 20 Pathfinders with an additional 15 Pathfinders launched in December 2003. Further Government funding for neighbourhood management schemes is included in the neighbourhood element of the Safer and Stronger Communities Fund of Local Area Agreements, enabling 84 local authorities covering the most disadvantaged neighbourhoods to develop and extend neighbourhood management schemes if they wish.

In addition to the 35 Neighbourhood Management Pathfinders, and new initiatives being developed under the neighbourhood element, there are already over 200 other neighbourhood management initiatives, usually set up by local authorities or Local Strategic Partnerships and mostly funded by the Neighbourhood Renewal Fund.

Social Services (Child Removals)

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many children were removed from their parents by social services in each year since 1995. [78338]

Mr. Dhanda: I have been asked to reply.

The numbers of children who have been removed from their parents as a result of an Emergency Protection Order (EPO) being issued by the family courts, in response to applications from local authority social/children' services, are shown in the following table. The table shows the number of children who started to be looked after following the making of EPOs during each of the years ending 31 March 1995 to 31 March 2005.

Children who started to be looked after during the years ending 31 March 1995 to 31 March 2005 by legal status on starting[1, 2, 3]

Emergency protection order	Number
1995[4]	1,500
1996[4]	1,600
1997[4]	1,500
1998[5]	1,700
1999[5]	1,700
2000[5]	1,700
2001[5]	1,200
2002[5]	1,400
2003[5]	1,300
2004[4]	1,300
2005[4]	1,400

[1] Only the first occasion on which a child started to be looked after in the year has been counted.

[2] Historical data may differ from older publications. This is mainly due to the implementation of amendments and corrections sent by some local authorities after the publication date of previous materials.

[3] To maintain the confidentiality of each individual child, the data are rounded to the nearest 100 if they exceed 1,000 and to the nearest 10 otherwise. Numbers from 1 to 5 inclusive are suppressed and replaced by a hyphen (-). Zero (0) is shown only when the number submitted was zero. As a consequence of our rounding and suppression figures may not sum to the total.

[4] Figures are taken from the SSDA903 return which before 1997-98 and since 2003-04 covered all looked after children.

[5] Figures are derived from the SSDA903 one-third sample survey between 1997-98 and 2002-03.

Swindon Borough Council

Mr. Wills: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many meetings officials from the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister held with Swindon borough councillors in (a) 2003, (b) 2004 and (c) 2005. [80859]

Angela E. Smith: The information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Benefit Delivery Centres

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on progress on the implementation programmes for benefit delivery centres. [76509]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question on the progress of the implementation programmes for Benefit Delivery Centres. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The roll out of the Benefit Delivery Centres is expected to be completed by March 2008.

The move to Benefit Delivery Centres involves the development of detailed implementation plans for each site. These include the steps required to move work from the sites currently processing claims to the new Benefit Delivery Centre to ensure the minimum disruption to performance and customer service.

The first site, in Wellingborough, went live as a Benefit Delivery Centre in April 2006. We are considering the lessons learned from the implementation of that site to inform the main phase of delivery, planned to start in the autumn.

In the interim, to ensure we maintain optimum levels of customer service, we are continuing to deliver benefits from our existing network of offices. Our strategy, in advance of full implementation, is to concentrate work at fewer sites where this is possible. In the last two years we have already reduced the number of processing sites by around 50 per cent. This allows us to move more quickly to the model of Benefit Delivery Centres, which builds upon an improved, more consistent level of customer service.

I hope this is helpful.

Benefits (Peterborough)

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what average time was taken to rate a claim for (a) jobseeker's allowance and (b) income support in (i) Peterborough constituency and (ii) the Peterborough city council area in each of the last 10 years. [76621]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 28 June 2006:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question regarding the average time taken to rate a claim for (a) Jobseeker's Allowance and (b) Income Support in (i) Peterborough constituency and (ii) the Peterborough city council area in each of the last 10 years. This falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Our measure of the time taken to process a claim is the actual average clearance time. Prior to April 2006 the Jobcentre Plus internal key management indicator for processing claims for Income Support (IS) and Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA) was 12 working days. Since April 2006, these key management indicators have become official Jobcentre Plus targets; the IS clearance target is 11 days and the JSA clearance target is 12 days.

I am unable to provide information for the last 10 years as our system only holds data from April 2002 when Jobcentre Plus began operations.

For the period April 2002 to March 2005, information is available for the old Peterborough Jobcentre Plus district, which included the constituency of Peterborough and the Peterborough city council area. From April 2005 information is only available for the whole of Cambridgeshire.

The available information is in the following tables.

Claim processing times in Peterborough Jobcentre Plus District

	Benefit	Target in days	Actual average clearance time in days
April 2002 to March 2003	Income Support	12	14.44
	Jobseeker's Allowance	12	12.19
April 2003 to March 2004	Income Support	12	19.65
	Jobseeker's Allowance	12	12.38
April 2004 to March 2005	Income Support	12	16.84
	Jobseeker's Allowance	12	12.45

Claim processing times in Cambridgeshire

	Benefit	Target in days	Actual average clearance time in days
April 2005 to March 2006	Income Support	12	13.99
	Jobseeker's Allowance	12	12.72
April 2006 to May 2006	Income Support	11	17.37
	Jobseeker's Allowance	12	17.47

Jobcentre Plus Management Information System Programme.

Jobcentre Plus is transforming the service it provides by making it available via the telephone, via the internet and through the personal service offered to people in Jobcentre Plus offices. We are also committed to implementing a major efficiency programme to deliver headcount savings.

On 30 January we launched a national action plan designed to reduce clearance times. The plan focuses on providing delivery units with specific tools and best practice guidance to enable them to improve their performance. Senior operational managers provided a formal assurance at the end of February that they were complying with all elements of the national action plan.

The chief operating officer is monitoring performance very closely and is addressing performance variations in benefit clearance times in specific locations and the actions required to clear backlogs. It should be acknowledged that concentrating on backlogs of work may initially cause average clearance times to rise.

I hope this is helpful.

Carer's Allowance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will introduce proposals to enable carers to receive carer's allowance after the age of 60. [80384]

Mrs. McGuire: Carer's allowance, formerly known as invalid care allowance, has always been available to carers aged below state pension age. From 1994 it was made available to women aged between 60 and 65, and from 2002 we abolished the upper age limit for making a claim.

People entitled to carer's allowance can have the additional amount for carers, currently £26.35 a week, included in the assessment of their pension credit. This applies both to those in receipt of carer's allowance and those who cannot be paid because they are receiving at least an equivalent amount from a state pension. It is a basic principle of the social security system that only one benefit at a time can be paid for the same purpose. Even though the circumstances which give rise to carer's allowance and state pension are different, they are both designed to provide a degree of replacement for lost or forgone income. We have no plans to change the current arrangements.

As at November 2005, more than 42,500 people aged 60 or over were receiving carer's allowance and more than 181,800 had the additional amount for carers included in their pension credit.

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the amount of carer's allowance for which there was eligibility but no claims in each of the last five years. [80446]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 26 June 2006]: Entitlement to carer's allowance depends on whether the qualifying conditions are satisfied, and this can be reliably established only after a claim has been made. There are no data available from which a reliable estimate might be made of the number of carers who would meet the conditions if they claimed.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what support the benefits system provides for those who become carers of vulnerable people after they themselves have passed retirement age; whether this differs from those who become carers before their age of retirement; what plans he has to change the system to improve the treatment of carers who are over retirement age; and if he will make a statement. [66763]

Mrs. McGuire: Carers have equal access to the full range of income maintenance social security benefits, whether they are above or below state pension age. In particular, they are able to apply equally for carer's allowance, which is an income maintenance benefit for people who regularly spend at least 35 hours a week caring for a severely disabled person.

Lower-income people of pension age may receive pension credit in addition to their state pension. Pension credit recipients are guaranteed a weekly income of £114.05 for a single person or £174.05 for a couple. Carers entitled to carer's allowance have the carer's additional amount, currently £26.35 a week, included in the assessment of their pension credit. For both working age and pension age carers entitled to carer's allowance, additional help is available through the carer premium, also set at £26.35 a week, in housing benefit and council tax benefit. This premium is available to working age carers in income support and income-based jobseeker's allowance.

The overlapping benefits rules, which mean that two income maintenance benefits cannot be paid together, also apply equally to carers below state pension age receiving benefits such as incapacity benefit and to pension age carers receiving basic state pension.

We have no plans to change these arrangements.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what aggregate amount was paid to senior civil servants in the Child Support Agency in bonus payments related to performance in 2005-06. [78050]

Mrs. McGuire: Bonus payments to senior civil servants in the Child Support Agency for performance in 2005-06 have still to be decided. Annual bonus payments are normally paid in July.

Criminal Offences

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list the criminal offences created in legislation sponsored by his Department since April 2005, broken down by Act. [76901]

Mrs. McGuire: The Disability Discrimination Act 2005 (c.13) is the only DWP sponsored primary legislation since April 2005. The criminal offences created in that Act are:

(i) Section (7)(2)(b) adds 'a rail vehicle accessibility compliance certificate' to the list of relevant documents in section 49(1) of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995, in respect of which it is already an offence for such a document to be forged, altered etc or for a false statement be made knowingly for the purpose of obtaining such a document. The amendment has yet to be brought into force;

(ii) Section 8(2) inserts a new subsection (5) into section 49 of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 Act to make it an offence to falsely pretend to be a person authorised to inspect rail vehicles for conformity with rail vehicle accessibility regulations. The provision has yet to be brought into force;

(iii) Section 9 inserts a new section 21A into the Chronically Sick and Disabled Persons Act 1970 (c.44) in relation to badges issued outside Great Britain; subsection (4) of the new section makes it an offence to display a badge purporting to be a recognised badge unless it is a recognised badge and is displayed in accordance with regulations to be made under subsection (3). Subsection (8) makes it an offence to fail without reasonable excuse, to produce a badge when required to do so by a constable or enforcement officer. This provision came into force as regards England on 30 June 2005.

(iv) Section 10(3) inserts a new subsection (2B) into section 16B of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 which makes it an offence for a person knowingly or recklessly to make a false or misleading statement to the effect that publication of a particular advert would not be unlawful by reason of the operation of subsection. (2); For the sake of completeness, the following provisions of Schedule 1 to that Act make amendments to other primary legislation which insert new offences into that legislation:

(v) Schedule 1, Part 2, paragraph 43(3) inserts a new subsection (6A) into section 105 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 (c.27). This makes it an offence to leave a vehicle stationary in contravention of any prohibition or restriction, where an immobilisation device could have been fixed to the vehicle if it had not been displaying a current recognised badge (defined by section 21A of the Chronically Sick and Disabled Persons Act 1970), where the vehicle was not being used in accordance with regulations under s21A of the 1970 Act and in circumstances where a concession would not be available to a vehicle lawfully displaying a recognised badge. This provision also came into force as regards England on 30 June 2005.

(vi) Schedule 1, Part 2, paragraph 44(3) inserts subsection (1A) into section 117 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 (c.27). This makes it an offence for a person to display a badge purporting to be a recognised badge (defined by new section 21A of the Chronically Sick and Disabled Persons Act 1970) where they are also breaching a provision of an order relating to parking under the 1984 Act and where the circumstances are such that a concession would be available to someone lawfully displaying a recognised badge. The offence will not be committed provided the badge is a recognised badge and is being displayed in accordance with regulations under section 21A of the 1970 Act. This provision also came into force as regards England on 30 June 2005.

(vii) Schedule 1, Part 2, paragraph 46(3) inserts subsection 2A into section 70 of the Road Traffic Act 1991 (c.40). This creates an offence for cases where an immobilisation device could have been fixed to a vehicle in a designated parking space, had a current recognised badge (defined by section 21A of the Chronically Sick and Disabled Persons Act 1970) not been displayed on the vehicle, if the vehicle was not being used in accordance with regulations under that section and the circumstances were such that a disabled person's concession would not be available by virtue of displaying a non-GB badge. This provision also came into force as regards England on 30 June 2005.

(viii) Schedule 1, Part 2, paragraph 48(2) inserts subsection (5A) into section 79 of the Traffic Management Act 2004 (c.18). This states that regulations to be made under that section shall provide that an offence is created where a person is in charge of a vehicle in circumstances where an immobilisation device would have been fixed to the vehicle had a current recognised badge not been displayed on the vehicle and the vehicle is not being used in accordance with regulations under section 21A of the Chronically Sick and Disabled Persons Act 1970 and the circumstances are such that a disabled person's concession would not be available by virtue of displaying a non-GB badge. This provision also came into force as regards England on 30 June 2005.

Departmental Hospitality

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will keep a separate record of the amount spent annually by his Department on alcohol for hospitality purposes. [77191]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions does not currently keep a separate record of expenditure on alcohol for hospitality purposes. Such expenditure is included within the hospitality account. The Department's current intention is not to subdivide further this analysis of expenditure as it is likely to require significant additional administration and be unlikely to be accurate.

All expenditure on hospitality is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on the principles set out in Government Accounting. Accordingly, alcohol is provided only as an exception and only with the specific written authority of a small number of designated senior civil servants.

Departmental Staff

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the (a) operation and (b) staffing of the Appeals Service from March 2007. [78489]

Vera Baird: My hon. Friend's question to ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the (a) operation and (b) staffing of the Appeals Service from March 2007 onwards has been referred to the Department for Constitutional Affairs for reply. With effect from 3 April 2006, the Appeals Service, now known as Social Security and Child Support Appeal Tribunal (SSCSA), transferred from the Department for Work and Pensions and became part of the Tribunals Service, an Agency of the Department for Constitutional Affairs.

The SSCSA continues to meet all of its targets and delivers an efficient service in line with the Tribunals Service 2005-06 Business Plan.

Resource for the SSCSA transferred from DWP to DCA. The staffing of SSCSA will be maintained in line with its workload and the resources available to the Department overall.

Disabled Staff

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many disabled staff his Department has employed in each year since 2000. [79934]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is contained in the table.

The information is representative of the disabled status as voluntarily declared by individual members of staff. Not all staff who are registered disabled declare themselves as such for departmental records, and the true figure may be higher than the figures shown.

These figures represent a snapshot of the Staff in Post on 1 April for each year shown and the proportion of disabled staff. The Department for Work and Pensions was created in July 2001, and figures prior to 2002 were unobtainable.

Table 1: Number and proportion of disabled staff in DWP

	Staff in post	Staff in post with a declared disability	Percentage of staff in post with a declared disability
2006	127,795	6,429	5.25
2005	134,494	6,896	5.13
2004	142,675	7,094	5.38
2003	139,906	7,485	5.76
2002	138,578	7,941	5.99

Industrial Action (Newcastle)

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his policy is on the industrial action on the Newcastle Civil Service Estate between the Public and Commercial Services Union and MacLellan. [80555]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions does not have a policy on the industrial action on the Newcastle Civil Service Estate. The dispute is between the Public and Commercial Services Union and MacLellan. The staff involved were formerly part of Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs.

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the potential impact of the industrial action between Public and Commercial Services Union and MacLellan on the work of his Department carried out on the Newcastle Civil Service Estate. [80557]

Mrs. McGuire: The industrial action between Public and Commercial Services Union and MacLellan has had minimal impact on the Department for Work and Pensions business in Newcastle. Core business has not been affected and security has not been compromised.

Jobcentre Plus

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the implementation of the Working Together programme in Jobcentre Plus. [76520]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 28 June 2006:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about the implementation of the Working Together programme in Jobcentre Plus. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The Working Together programme has been developed in response to the significant challenges our business faces. It provides an opportunity for everyone across Jobcentre Plus to be involved in creating the working environment needed to ensure the continued success of our organisation, and helps to build understanding and commitment to our vision and to new ways of working. It also ensures our managers have the skills, tools and confidence to lead their people through change.

Working Together is currently rolled out in 384 sites, 370 of which are Jobcentres, 8 are Contact Centres, and 6 are Benefit Delivery Centres. Managers receive coaching from Working Together facilitators and people are given the time and resources to help create a better working environment, and work with their managers to implement development plans.

To date, 46 per cent of our staff are participating in the Working Together programme and the remainder will participate in the near future.

Feedback to date from participants of the programme has been very positive and our formal evaluation process starts in July.

Jobseeker Assistance

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what arrangements are made by his Department (a) to assess and (b) to report the incidence of learning disabilities among jobseekers. [76318]

Mrs. McGuire: The Labour Market System (LMS) is the computer system used in Jobcentre Plus, part of the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP), that holds details of customer personal information, employer vacancies and opportunities provided by suppliers of training and work-based learning activities.

There is a marker on LMS for 'people with a disability'. However that is only used when the customer themselves identify that they have a disability which would be a barrier to work. Not everyone with a disability will identify themselves in this way so any data will only include a proportion of those who have a disability. The marker covers all disabilities but it does not break the figure down by type.

No other specific arrangements have been made to assess or report the incidence of learning disabilities among jobseekers.

Medical Assessments

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average cost is per appeal against a medical assessment decision for benefit entitlement. [76885]

Vera Baird: The hon. Gentleman's question to the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions regarding what the average cost is per appeal against a medical assessment decision for benefit entitlement has been referred to the Department for Constitutional Affairs for reply. With effect of 3 April 2006, appeals against social security benefit decisions are now the responsibility of the Tribunals Service, which is an Agency of the Department for Constitutional Affairs.

The information the hon. Gentleman has asked for is not available in the format requested as unit costs are measured over the entire appeal caseload and not broken down specifically by benefit type.

The average unit cost for processing an appeal is £253 and takes into account all Agency costs including overheads.

Pathways to Work

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) when he expects to let contracts with private and voluntary sector providers to manage Pathways to Work in new areas; [77935]

(2) what steps he is taking to ensure that the Pathways to Work procurement process complies with the duties and other provisions established under the Equalities Act 2006. [77936]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We are still finalising our plans for a national roll-out of Pathways to Work. In our Green Paper we said the next phase of the roll-out will be delivered primarily through voluntary and private sector providers contracted locally. The private and voluntary sectors have already demonstrated the value of their specialist knowledge and expertise in existing DWP programmes and will continue to provide major benefits. We hope to make an announcement shortly, which will lead to the start of the procurement exercise.

We will ensure that providers comply with the Equalities Act 2006. The accreditation process prior to the award of a contract confirms that providers have robust equality and diversity policies, and the Jobcentre Plus terms and conditions place contractual obligations on providers in respect of the Equalities Act 2006.

Pensioner Benefits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the (a) number and (b) proportion of pensioners entitled to (i) means tested benefits and (ii) pension credit in (A) 2010, (B) 2020, (C) 2030, (D) 2040 and (E) 2050 based on the proposals set out in the Pension White Paper Cm 6841; and if he will make a statement. [75512]

James Purnell [holding answer 8 June 2006]: The information is not available in the format requested. The information available is shown in the following table.

The numbers eligible for pension credit in the future are subject to a range of uncertainties and a number of factors including policies on uprating different benefits. Table 1 shows the projected number and proportion of pensioner households eligible for pension credit under the proposals contained in the White Paper "Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system."

Table 1: Projected number and proportion of pensioner households eligible to pension credit for selected years under the White Paper proposals

	Number of pensioner households eligible (£ million)	Proportion of pensioner households eligible (percentage)
2010	4.15	44
2020	3.45	41
2030	2.95	31
2040	2.80	27
2050	2.95	29

Notes:

1. Long-run projections of the number and proportion of pensioners eligible for means tested benefits under the White Paper proposals are not available.
2. Projections of the number and proportion of pensioners eligible for pension credit are sensitive to modelling assumptions and to projected changes in the distribution of pensioner incomes.
3. The estimates of proportions shown here are the mid-points of projections taken from two separate micro-simulation models. Modelling of the reform proposals does not include any increase in private saving from the introduction of personal accounts, which would further reduce the numbers eligible for pension credit.
4. Projections of the number of pensioners eligible for pension credit are derived from the projected proportions eligible and projections of the number of pensioner households in Great Britain.
5. These projections assume: continued earnings uprating of the standard guarantee credit; earnings uprating of the savings credit threshold from 2008 to 2014; earnings uprating of the basic state pension from 2012; price uprating of the maximum savings credit from 2015; measures to improve coverage of the basic state pension described in the White Paper.
6. Estimates cover all those aged above women's state pension age in the private household population of Great Britain.
7. Estimates account for equalisation of state pension age between 2010 and 2020. They also account for the proposed further increases in state pension age described in the White Paper. The estimates assume that the minimum age at which people can claim pension credit rises in line with women's state pension age.
8. Estimates are calibrated to the mid-points of the 2004-05 National Statistics range estimates of non-eligibility to pension credit, which adjust 2004-05 family resources survey data to take account of possible biases in reporting. Although the estimates here are not presented as ranges, they are subject to a margin of uncertainty.
9. Estimates of the number of pensioner households eligible are rounded to the nearest 50,000.

Security Guards

Mr. Nicholas Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions his Department has had with the Security Industry Association on the licensing of security guards on the civil service estate. [80558]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions has not had any discussions with the Security Industry Association regarding the licensing of security guards on this Department's civil service estate.

Working-age Benefits

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make a statement on the pilot of a revised process for handling new and repeat claims for working-age benefits. [76518]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie dated 28 June 2006:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about the pilot of a revised process for handling new and repeat claims for working-age benefits. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The pilot is intended to improve customer service by making the service clearer for both customers and staff and streamlining the new and repeat claims process. The main features of the pilot are:

improved information for customers to ensure that they are directed to the right services;

a free telephone claim line number;

fast-track procedures for people making repeat claims and for people who do not require an immediate work focused interview; and streamlined arrangements for collecting information to support claims.

The pilot has been running since 27 February 2006 for customers served by Jobcentre Plus offices in Grimsby, Scunthorpe, Barton and Immingham, and was extended to customers in Central London from 24 April. A full evaluation of the pilot will be carried out before any decisions are made to extend the revised process nationally.

I hope this is helpful.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Ambassadors

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 22 November 2005, Official Report, Column 1895W, on ambassadors, how much of the Frais was spent on (a) the EU presidency, (b) the G8 presidency and (c) the visit of HRH the Prince of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall. [79237]

Mr. Hoon: £6,145 of the Frais of our ambassador in Washington was spent on the visit by their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall in November 2005. The UK's G8 and EU presidencies ran for one year and six months respectively. To provide figures on the amount of Frais spent on both presidencies would require consideration of hundreds of events in 2005 and would incur disproportionate costs.

I would like to take this opportunity to correct the figure of £29,000 previously stated as having been underspent against the ambassador's Frais provision in financial year 2004-05, in the written reply to my hon. Friend by the then Foreign Secretary my right hon. Friend the Member for Blackburn (Mr. Straw) on 22 November 2005, Official Report, Column 1895W. The ambassador's Frais provision was underspent by £27,935 and it was that amount that was carried forward to financial year 2005-06. Taking into account this rollover, there was no increase in the ambassador's total Frais allocation for 2005-06.

Amnesty Law

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what advice the British high commissioner, Mr. Francois Gordon, gave to Dr. Besigye (a) while he was in detention, with particular reference to applying for amnesty under the Amnesty Law which governs the forgiveness of former rebels, and (b) after the elections, with particular reference to the acceptance of the results of the elections; and if she will make a statement. [79945]

Mr. McCartney: As chair of the Partners for Democracy and Governance group, the British high commissioner, Mr. Francois Gordon, has met Dr. Besigye on several occasions before and after the February 2006 elections. At these meetings, both parties agreed that the conversations would remain private and confidential.

Ascension Island

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the position of those who have acquired property on Ascension Island. [80214]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 308W. All property on Ascension Island belongs to the Crown. Nevertheless, some parties have entered into arrangements that have no basis in law. We will seek to bring these arrangements into line with legislation that is currently being reviewed. In undertaking this work individual circumstances will be considered sympathetically.

Bermuda Regiment

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many persons conscripted to the Bermuda Regiment have (a) declined to serve, (b) gone absent without leave for more than one month and (c) been (i) charged with and (ii) convicted of (A) desertion, (B) being absent without leave and (C) similar offences; what sentences were imposed in each case; and if she will make a statement. [79264]

Mr. Hoon: Neither my Department nor the Ministry of Defence hold the information requested. Officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office have contacted the Bermuda Regiment directly and the Regiment has provided the following information.

For 2006, of the 541 men called up for service in the Bermuda Regiment two were registered as Conscientious Objectors, seven were exempted as 'ministers of a religious denomination', 14 were conditionally deferred to serve in the St. John's Ambulance Brigade, and 94 did not report for medical examination, nor explain their absence in advance. Of these 94 men, 51 are believed to reside in Bermuda, while the whereabouts of the remaining 43 is unknown.

The Bermuda Regiment is a part-time regiment, and the maximum accumulated time put in by any member of the regiment is equivalent, at its maximum, to thirty days in one year. The regiment considers that a man who has been absent without leave for more than three consecutive scheduled or ordered appearances is a long term absentee (LTA). At the time of this parliamentary question the Bermuda Regiment has on its books a total of 65 LTAs.

On the question of desertion the Bermuda Defence Act 1965 makes no provision for such a charge.

Under the Defence Act every soldier who fails to perform military duties is charged internally with unauthorised absence. So far in 2006, 21 such cases have been heard, and all have been found guilty. The commanding officer handed out the following sentences: extra duties (three); monetary fines (four); and re-start the military year (11). The remaining three cases have been referred to the magistrates court, for which there is provision in the Defence Act, where they remain outstanding.

Burma

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information the Government have received about the fatal beating of Burmese democracy activist, Thet Naing Oo. [79253]

Mr. McCartney: We are not able to confirm events surrounding the death of Thet Naing Oo, but believe reports that he was beaten to death by Burmese police officers are broadly accurate. We do not accept the version of events given by the Government media.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has made to the Burmese Government on the recent human rights violations in Karen State. [80034]

Margaret Beckett: We condemn the attacks carried out by the Burmese army on civilians in northern and western Karen State.

My right hon. Friend the Minister for Trade, raised our concerns on a range of human rights abuses in Burma, including the recent attacks in Karen State, when he summoned the Burmese ambassador on 15 June.

The EU issued a statement on 3 May calling on the Burmese to cease human rights abuses. The statement was sent to the Burmese Ministries of Information and Foreign Affairs.

The statement can be found at the following website: http://www.eu2006.at/en/News/CFSP_Statements/May/0305Myanmar.html?null.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps she is taking to ensure that Burma is formally discussed at the UN Security Council and a resolution is agreed. [80056]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer my hon. Friend the Minister for Trade gave the hon. Member for Portsmouth, South (Mr. Hancock) on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1454W.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to her answer of 16 May 2006, Official Report, columns 892-93W, on Burma, if she will make a formal written request to the Burmese Government to meet Daw Aung San Suu Kyi. [80345]

Margaret Beckett: In accordance with an agreed common position, EU Ministers believe that it would be inappropriate to visit Burma at this time. Aung San Suu Kyi has been under house arrest since 2003. I shall therefore not be writing to request a meeting with Aung San Suu Kyi. We have repeatedly called for Aung San Suu Kyi to be released, most recently when my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Trade summoned the Burmese ambassador on 15 June.

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the last time was that British embassy officials in Rangoon, Burma, were permitted to see Aung San Sui Kyi; and what report on the state of her health was received. [80784]

Mr. McCartney: Our ambassador in Rangoon last met Aung San Suu Kyi on 25 April 2003. Since she was detained on 30 May 2003, the Burmese Government have refused all requests by our ambassador to call on her. United Nations Under-Secretary-General for Political Affairs Ibrahim Gambari was permitted to see Aung San Suu Kyi on 20 May 2006 and commented that she looked well. Aung San Suu Kyi was reported to have fallen ill earlier this month. She was examined by her doctor but was not admitted to hospital. We understand she has now recovered.

Charles Munyaneza

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answers of 6 February 2006, Official Report, column 769W, and 24 May 2006, Official Report, column 1858W, on Charles Munyaneza, what steps the Government has taken in response to the international arrest warrant issued by the Rwandan Government (ref: RPGR 206/GEN/MJD/RE) in respect of Mr. Charles Munyaneza and submitted to the UK Government in February 2006 for action by the appropriate authorities. [80766]

Joan Ryan: I have been asked to reply. It is a matter of established policy and practice that we do not comment on whether a person may be facing arrest for extradition purposes.

China

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 5 June 2006, Official Report, column 311W, on China, whether the Government or their representatives and officials had direct contact with Mr. Ching Cheong prior to his arrest on 22 April 2005. [80262]

Mr. McCartney: We can find no record of any direct contact between Mr. Ching Cheong and the Government, their representatives or officials prior to his detention in April 2005.

Extradition Treaty

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with representatives of the United States of America on their ratification of the Extradition Treaty of March 2003; and if she will make a statement. [80121]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had any discussions with US representatives about the UK/US Extradition Treaty. However, the then Foreign Secretary my right hon. Friend the Member for Blackburn (Mr. Straw) wrote to US Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice about this matter on 20 April. A copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House and a copy sent to my hon. Friend.

Falkland Islands

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions the Government have held with (a) the Falkland Islands Government and (b) the Argentine Government on exploration for oil and gas in Falkland Islands waters. [79698]

Mr. Hoon: The Government hold regular discussions with the Falkland Islands Government on the exploration for oil and gas in Falkland Islands waters. Most recently these included a meeting between both the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Director General for Defence and Intelligence and the Overseas Territories Department with representatives of the Falkland Islands Government, on 15 June.

There have been no discussions with the Argentine Government on the exploration for oil and gas in Falkland Islands waters since the South West Atlantic Hydro Carbons Commission ceased to meet in July 2000.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what Government policy is on supporting the Falkland Islands in their exploration for gas and oil in their territorial waters. [79699]

Mr. Hoon: The Government are committed to the offshore prospecting policy pursued by the Falkland Islands Government, which is entirely consistent with the United Kingdom's sovereign rights over the Falkland Islands.

Hamas

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what her latest assessment is of Hamas's position on meeting the conditions of the international community for donor funding. [80282]

Mr. McCartney: We remain deeply concerned that the Hamas-led Palestinian Authority has not committed to the Quartet's (EU, US, UN and Russia) three principles: to renounce violence, recognise Israel and accept all previous agreements and obligations. Hamas need to start implementing these principles and make clear the path they intend to take now that they face the responsibilities of government.

International Nuclear Fuel Supply Agreement

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, pursuant to the answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 1001W, on the International Nuclear Fuel Bank, when she plans to make public the joint US-UK proposals to the International Atomic Energy Agency for a new international nuclear fuel supply agreement; and if she will make a statement. [79851]

Margaret Beckett: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister announced UK support for the proposal on 26 May during his foreign policy speech at Georgetown University, Washington DC. The UK, alongside France, Germany, the Netherlands, the Russian Federation and the United States, formally presented the initiative to the International Atomic Energy Agency Board of Governors on 12-15 June.

Iraq

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what resources the UK has committed to the promotion of civil society in Iraq; and if she will make a statement. [78820]

Margaret Beckett: The UK has committed over £12 million to programmes that are building civil society capacity in Iraq.

The Department for International Development's (DFID) Political Participation Fund, totalling £7.5 million, supports initiatives which aim to increase opportunities for political representation and participation of poor, vulnerable and marginalised people in the political process. Projects funded so far include voter education and media and monitors training for elections. DFID has also provided 82 grants to civil society organisations. During 2006 the Fund will help to support the constitutional review process and the provincial elections.

DFID's Civil Society Fund (CSF), totalling £5 million, is supporting projects that strengthen the capacity of Iraq civil society organisations. The CSF has supported partnerships between nine international non-governmental organisations and their networks of Iraqi civil society groups. Projects have helped develop women's leadership, provided training for Iraqi trade union leaders, developed child rights, supplied social work training and helped build Iraqi capacity in mine risk education. The civil society organisations receiving support include trade unions, women's groups and humanitarian agencies.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 25 May 2006, Official Report, column 1989W, on the Iraq medal, when she expects to publish the eligibility criteria for the second Iraq medal. [79668]

Margaret Beckett: The eligibility criteria, together with other details of the Iraq Reconstruction Service Medal, will be published when they have been considered by the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals, and approved by Her Majesty the Queen. I hope that this will be done before the House returns after the summer recess.

Joseph Kony

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the reports that the Ugandan President Yoweri Museveni has accepted an invitation from the Lord's Resistance Army leader Joseph Kony to start peace talks; and if she will make a statement. [80287]

Mr. McCartney: President Museveni has indicated a willingness to talk to the Lord's Resistance Army (LRA) with a view to ending the conflict in northern Uganda. However, we are not aware of any reports that President Museveni has accepted a specific invitation from the LRA to start peace talks. We have seen the media reporting of the meeting between Kony and the Government of Southern Sudan and the reports that they delivered a message from Kony to President Museveni, but the contents of the message have not been shared with us.

The Government of Uganda, along with the Governments of Sudan and Democratic Republic of the Congo, is obliged to give effect to the International Criminal Court arrest warrants, for the arrest of five LRA Commanders, including Joseph Kony.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance her Department is offering to (a) Uganda, (b) the southern Sudanese and (c) the Democratic Republic of the Congo to arrest the Lord's Resistance Army leader Joseph Kony and his commanders for whom the International Criminal Court has issued an international arrest warrant; and if she will make a statement. [80288]

Mr. McCartney: The International Criminal Court (ICC) issued warrants for the arrest of five Lord's Resistance Army (LRA) Commanders, including Joseph Kony, in October 2005. Responsibility to implement the arrest warrants lies in the first instance with the states on whose territory the five LRA commanders are believed to be, namely, Uganda, the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) and Sudan. We have not received any requests for assistance in this regard from the Governments of Uganda, the DRC or Sudan.

The UK is a strong supporter of the work of the ICC in its efforts to bring to justice the perpetrators of war crimes and crimes against humanity. We continue to urge the Governments of Uganda, the DRC and Sudan to fulfil their commitments to co-operate with the ICC, and to help implement the warrants for the arrest of the five senior LRA commanders, including Kony, as soon as possible.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of reports that South Sudan's Vice President (a) recently met the Lord's Resistance Army Chief Joseph Kony, (b) gave Mr. Kony $20,000 and (c) delivered a message from Mr. Kony to Mr. Museveni; and if she will make a statement. [80285]

Mr. McCartney: We have seen the media reporting of the meeting between Joseph Kony and the Government of Southern Sudan (GoSS) and are aware of the associated reports that they have provided financial assistance. We have also seen reports that the GoSS delivered a message from Kony to President Museveni, but the contents of the message have not been shared with us.

We continue to urge the Government of Sudan to fulfil their commitment to co-operate with the International Criminal Court (ICC) and to help implement the warrants for the arrest of the five senior Lord's Resistance Army commanders, including Kony, as soon as possible. Our ambassador in Khartoum pressed Salva Kiir, President of the Government of Southern Sudan, on the Government's ICC obligations on 10 May 2006. The UK-led UN Security Council delegation, which visited southern Sudan on 8 June 2006, also raised the issue with President Kiir.

Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which Private Members' Bills were drafted by her Department in each Session since 1997; and which of those subsequently received Royal Assent. [77491]

Margaret Beckett: Since 1997 the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has assisted in the drafting of one Private Member's Bill, the Commonwealth Bill, in partnership with the hon. Member for Havant (Mr. Willetts). This Bill received Royal Assent in 2002.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans she has for legislation in the next Session of Parliament; and if she will make a statement. [77493]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 16 June 2006 by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House, Official Report, column 1431W.

Madagascar

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 13 June 2006, Official Report, column 1149W, on Madagascar, what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of diplomatic links with Madagascar. [80131]

Mr. McCartney: Once the new non-resident ambassador to and Honorary Consul in Madagascar are accredited, we expect diplomatic links with Madagascar to be adequate to meet our objectives. Our requests for accreditation remain with Malagasy authorities. We await their response.

Palestine

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) when she expects the Quartet aid mechanism to the Palestinians to take effect; and if she will make a statement; [78828]

(2) what representations she has made to her US counterparts regarding the form and implementation of the Quartet aid mechanism to the Palestinians; and if she will make a statement. [78829]

Margaret Beckett: We welcome the agreement on the Temporary International Mechanism reached at the 15 June European Council, and the 17 June Quartet (EU, US, UN and Russia) statement endorsing it. The full text of the statement can be found on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?Pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1150454868713.

The UK has played an important role in establishing the mechanism, holding regular discussions with our EU and Quartet partners, including the US. There are still some technical details to work out, but the European Commission and World Bank are now working to set this up as quickly as possible.

We hope parts of the mechanism will begin to deliver support in July.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in establishing new mechanisms for funding the Palestinian people. [80278]

Mr. McCartney: We welcome the agreement on the Temporary International Mechanism reached at 15 June European Council, and the 17 June Quartet (EU, US, UN and Russia) statement endorsing it. The UK has played an important role in establishing the mechanism, holding regular discussions with our EU and Quartet partners, including the US. There are still some technical details to work out but the European Commission and World Bank are now working to set this up as quickly as possible.

We hope parts of the mechanism will begin to deliver support in July.

A copy of the 17 June Quartet statement can be found on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website at:

http://www.fco.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1150454868713.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment she has made of law and order in the West Bank and Gaza. [80279]

Mr. McCartney: We remain concerned by the continuing violence in the West Bank and Gaza. All violence in Israel and the Occupied Territories acts as an obstacle to peace. We call for an end to rocket fire from the Gaza Strip on Israeli civilian targets. We also condemn the incursion into Israel by Palestinian militants on 25 June 2006 in which two Israeli soldiers were killed. We support President Abbas' efforts to restore order, using legally constituted security forces. And we call on the Israeli Government to ensure that any military actions are proportional and ensure that civilians, particularly children, are not harmed.

Project Coast

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information was (a) shared between (b) supplied to and (c) given by those attending the ad hoc meeting held on 13 January 2006 to discuss the Basson/Project Coast handling strategy; what other (i) documents and (ii) knowledge are held by the UK Government about Project Coast; and if she will make a statement. [79315]

Mr. McCartney [holding answer of 27 June 2006]: Participants at the meeting shared draft answers to the parliamentary questions under consideration and discussed these to ensure that they represented consistent, full and accurate answers. The Government hold information from a variety of sources on its files, including from the Truth and Reconciliation Commission in South Africa on the files from that period. To identify every document would incur disproportionate costs.

Royal Visit (USA)

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 24 November 2005, Official Report, column 2246W, on the Royal visit (USA), what contact representatives of the Prince of Wales's United States Foundation had with her Department's staff during their Highnesses' official visit to the US; which official events organised by the Government they attended; whether they accompanied their Royal Highnesses on the journey between Washington DC and New York; and if she will make a statement. [79235]

Margaret Beckett: Before the visit by their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall to the USA, representatives of the Prince of Wales's US Foundation held discussions with a number of Foreign and Commonwealth Office staff as part of the programme preparations to ensure events ran smoothly. US Foundation representatives attended the reception in Washington hosted by our ambassador, and the New York reception hosted by the consul-general, both held in honour of the Royal Highnesses.

None accompanied the Prince of Wales and the Duchess of Cornwall on the journey between New York and Washington DC.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 24 November 2005, Official Report, columns 2246-7W, on the Royal visit (USA), what each gift which was not a signed photograph was; to whom each gift was presented; and what total costs were reimbursed by her Department for such gifts. [79236]

Margaret Beckett: I refer my hon. Friend to the reply I gave him on 22 June 2006, Official Report, Column 2152W. The total costs of gifts reimbursed was £3,438.38.

The list of gifts, other than signed photographs, which were presented during the visit to the United States is as follows.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 17 November 2005, Official Report, column 1488W, on the United States (Prince of Wales's visit), whether anyone from the Prince of Wales's United States Foundation accompanied the Prince on his official visit to the US in 2005 at public cost. [79238]

Margaret Beckett: No-one from The Prince of Wales's United States Foundation accompanied His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales on his official visit to the US at public expense.

Somalia

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the implications of the recent talks between the Somali Government and the Islamic Courts Union militia; and if she will make a statement. [79925]

Mr. McCartney: We welcome any talks destined to resolve Somalia's problems peacefully. We have urged both sides to engage in dialogue and resolve Somalia's conflict through the framework of the transitional charter and the transitional federal institutions.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the security situation in Somalia. [80320]

Mr. McCartney: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Clwyd, South (Mr. Jones) today (UIN 79925).

South Korea

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she had with the South Korean Foreign Minister concerning South Korea's support for the St. Kitts and Nevis Declaration at the recent International Whaling Commission meeting; and if she will make a statement. [80711]

Mr. McCartney: The Declaration was presented to the meeting on 17 June. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not discussed it with her South Korean counterpart.

UK views on whaling are well known.

Special Advisers

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what role is played by special advisers in answering parliamentary questions asked of her Department. [80649]

Margaret Beckett: Special advisers in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office have no formal role in answering parliamentary questions, which are drafted by officials and signed by Ministers. I take advice from my special advisers on a range of issues, which includes the answers to parliamentary questions.

Sudan

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the recent peace treaty in the east of Sudan. [80271]

Mr. McCartney: Preliminary talks between the Government of Sudan and the Eastern Front began in Asmara on 13 June, under Eritrean mediation. A UK representative was present. A Declaration of Principles and an agreement to cease violence was issued on 19 June. Formal talks are scheduled to start in mid-July. We support the parties in this effort and press them to negotiate in good faith in order to reach a mutually acceptable agreement.

The Sudan People's Liberation Army has successfully and peacefully completed its withdrawal from Hamishkoreib. This is a positive and important step. We continue to urge all sides to exercise restraint and not to take action that may inflame the situation.

Uganda

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment she has made of the invasion of the Ugandan High Court by armed commandos on 16 November 2005; and if she will make a statement. [79946]

Mr. McCartney: Following the presence of armed commandos in the grounds of the High Court on 16 November 2005, we urged the Ugandan Government to do all they could to restore public confidence in the security services. As EU presidency at the time, the UK issued a statement on 18 November 2005 calling for this and also calling for the Ugandan Government to 'ensure that the security force's responses are strictly proportionate to the threats they face in any given situation'. The full text of the statement can be found at the following website:

http://www.eu2005.gov.uk/servlet/Front?pagename=OpenMarket/Xcelerate/ShowPage&c=Page&cid=1107293561746&a=KArticle&aid=1131976425734&date=2005-11-18.

On 31 January 2006, the Constitutional Court declared that the deployment of armed commandos had been a deliberate attempt to intimidate and influence the judiciary.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of her Department. [80092]

Vera Baird: The information is as follows:

(a) The Director General of Finance at the Department for Constitutional Affairs is Ms. Barbara Moorhouse.

(b) Ms. Moorhouse holds an MA in politics, philosophy and economics from Oxford university and is a chartered management accountant. She is an associate member of the Association of Corporate Treasurers and of the Financial Reporting and Review Panel. From 1996-2002 she was a member of CIMA Council.

(c) Ms. Moorhouse was appointed in March 2005. She has previously held a number of senior financial, strategic and commercial roles in multinational companies.

Post Office Network Services

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what services (a) her Department and (b) its associated public bodies (i) make available and (ii) have made available in the last five years through the post office network; through how many outlets the service is or was made available; and how many relevant transactions were undertaken in each case in the most recent year for which figures are available. [79203]

Bridget Prentice: Neither DCA nor any of its associated public bodies use, or have used, the services of post office network in the course of their business over the last five years.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Ulster Volunteer Force

6. Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what information he has received on the Ulster Volunteer Force's intention to enter a ceasefire. [79740]

Paul Goggins: In their latest report the IMC stated that the UVF remains an active, violent and ruthless organisation. The UVF's recent statement that it will make no announcement about future intentions until after 24 November is completely unacceptable.

Housing

8. Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on housing policy in Northern Ireland. [79742]

Mr. Hanson: The Government's objective is to ensure that everyone has access to a decent home in the tenure of their choice at an affordable cost. The policy is progressed within the Government's Regional Development Strategy and other important initiatives such as Neighbourhood Renewal and the Fuel Poverty Strategy.

Northern Ireland Assembly

9. Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on recent progress towards devolved Government in the Province. [79744]

Mr. Hain: The Preparation for Government Committee at the Assembly is continuing to work to identify the issues that need to be addressed in preparation for devolved Government. The Government remains committed to doing all it can to support the process.

10. Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made towards the permanent re-establishment of the Northern Ireland Assembly. [79745]

Mr. Hanson: The Preparation for Government Committee at the Assembly is continuing to work to identify the issues that need to be addressed in preparation for devolved Government. The Government remains committed to doing all it can to support the process.

EU Funding

11. Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made in increasing EU regional funding for Northern Ireland. [79746]

Mr. Hanson: Recent improved economic performance means that for 2007-13 Northern Ireland will benefit from an allocation of the EU structural funds available to the UK under the EU's competitiveness and employment objective. Northern Ireland will also benefit from special PEACE funding and Territorial Co-operation funding.

The allocations of competitiveness and employment funding to UK regions are still under discussion following a recent UK-wide consultation process that ended on 22 May 2006. We will ensure that Northern Ireland gets a fair share of the resources available to the UK.

Post-primary Education

12. Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the future of post-primary education in Northern Ireland. [79747]

Mr. Hain: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave some moments ago to the hon. Member for Blaydon.

Secondary School System

13. David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the future of selection in Northern Ireland's secondary school system. [79748]

Mr. Hain: The Draft Education (Northern Ireland) Order 2006, to be debated later today, contains a provision banning academic selection in Northern Ireland after the 2008 Transfer Tests. This will be effective from 25 November if the Northern Ireland Assembly is not restored before that date. If it is restored by 24 November a vote will be required in the Assembly to ban academic selection.

Community Festivals

14. Mr. Devine: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what Government support is available for new and emerging community festivals in Northern Ireland. [79749]

Mr. Hain: A new Community Festival Fund came into operation on 1 April 2006. The Northern Ireland Events Company administers the fund on the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure's behalf. Approximately £450,000 is available to new or existing festivals that meet the core criteria.

Its main purpose is to improve the capacity of existing, new and emerging community festivals and to make them more sustainable.

Child Sex Abuse

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 23 May 2006, Official Report, column 1598W, on child sex abuse, how offender clusters have been monitored in Northern Ireland over the past 10 years; and how offender clusters will be scanned for in the future. [77207]

Paul Goggins: Further to my answer to the hon. Gentleman of 23 May 2006, the Police Service of Northern Ireland, in line with the National Intelligence Model (NIM), use the Integrated Crime Information System (ICIS) to monitor offender clusters. NIM became available in 2001, prior to this the PSNI identified clusters through local intelligence

Civil Partnerships

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many same-sex couples in Northern Ireland have applied to legalise their relationship, broken down by council area. [78551]

Mr. Hanson: Civil partnership was introduced in Northern Ireland from 5 December 2005 and after that date couples could give notice of civil partnership registration. Up to 15 June 2006 notice has been given for 110 civil partnerships in Northern Ireland of which 70 are in the Belfast registration district, nine in Derry and six in each of Newry and Mourne and North Down districts. None of the remaining registration districts has received five or more notices.

Civil Servants

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to his answer to the hon. Member for Foyle (Mark Durkan) of 15 May 2006, Official Report, columns 701-2W, on the Northern Ireland Civil Service, which wards were included within Antrim Coast and Glens when calculating the number of Northern Ireland civil service vacancies. [74345]

Mr. Hanson: The correct title for the parliamentary constituency in question is East Antrim constituency, not Antrim Coast and Glens as provisionally recommended by the Boundary Commission. The corresponding wards in East Antrim constituency, to which these figures previously supplied refer, are Killycrot and Central Ward.

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many civil service posts, expressed as whole time equivalent staff-in-post plus vacancies, there were (a) in each Department and agency in Northern Ireland and (b) in total at 1 April; and if he will make a statement. [76558]

Mr. Hanson: The number of civil service posts, expressed as whole time equivalent staff-in-post plus vacancies, in each of the 11 Northern Ireland Departments and the NIO, and their agencies at 1 April 2006 are as follows;

Criminal Offences

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will list the criminal offences created in legislation sponsored by his Department since April 2005, broken down by Act. [76903]

Mr. Hanson: No criminal offences have been created by Acts since April 2005. The offences created by Order in Council since April 2005 will be placed in the Library.

Departmental Expenditure

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the levels of under-capacity and over-capacity are in the accommodation of (a) each of the Northern Ireland departmental headquarters and (b) each of their out-offices; and what the annual recurring costs are associated with each of (i) the Northern Ireland departmental headquarters buildings and (ii) each of their out-offices. [78559]

Mr. Hanson: It is not possible to determine over or under-capacity in accommodation currently as there is no set space standard. However it is estimated that less than 1.5 per cent. of floor space is vacant. In the longer term, the Workplace 2010 initiative aims to provide a more flexible and modern working environment and will introduce space standards against which over and under capacity can be measured.

Tables setting out the recurring costs for buildings—or parts thereof—that are headquarter buildings and also for out-offices on a departmental basis will be placed in the Library. The figures shown are for 2005-06 and include items such as rent, rates, maintenance, fuel and furniture charges.

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cars are (a) owned and (b) leased by each department under his authority in Northern Ireland; what models the cars are; what type of petrol each requires; what the fuel efficiency is of each model; and for what purpose each car is used. [78748]

Mr. Hanson: Details of the cars, leased and owned by each department under my authority are listed in the following table.

Cars have been defined as passenger-carrying vehicles for the purpose of this response.

[78560]

Mr. Hanson: The total number of employees (permanent and temporary), based on a head count, working in each of the 11 Northern Ireland Departments and NIO, including agencies, and in each of the departmental headquarters location at 1 January 2006 (20 June 2006 for NIO) was as follows;

I have placed in the Library a table showing the number of employees (permanent and temporary), based on a head count, working in departmental headquarters and each of the other offices of each Department.

Departmental Travel

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions officials in (a) each Department in Northern Ireland and (b) the Northern Ireland Office have flown by (i) first class and (ii) business class in each of the last three years; and what the total cost was in each case. [75082]

Mr. Hanson: Details of how many occasions officials in (a) Northern Ireland Departments and (b) the Northern Ireland Office have flown by first class and business class to any destination are set out in the following tables.

(a) The figures in respect of officials in Northern Ireland Departments relate only to those booked through the NICS contracted booking agents during the period and do not include any travel booked through other channels as to obtain this information would be at disproportionate cost.

The current travel contract commenced on 1 October 2004 and details of all flights to any destination booked since that date are set out as follows. There were no first class flights booked during this period.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many websites there are within his responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79065]

Mr. Hanson: The Northern Ireland Civil Service Departments and their Agencies and the Northern Ireland Office and its Agencies have a total of 88 websites. During the last financial year the total cost of maintaining these websites was approximately £1,362,399.

Dissident Republican Paramilitaries

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 19 April 2006, Official Report, column 723W, on dissident Republican paramilitaries, whether on 11 January he was in possession of any information to the effect that dissident Republican paramilitaries were engaged in a major recruitment drive in Northern Ireland. [69244]

Paul Goggins: In previous answers to this question (27 February, 16 March and 19 April 2006) the hon. Member was advised that the 8th IMC report published on 1 February 2006, indicated evidence that dissident Republican groups were attempting to recruit members. I can advise that the 10th IMC report published on 26 April 2006 repeats this earlier assessment that dissident Republican groups are attempting to recruit members.

Northern Ireland Memorial Fund

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what total amount has been paid out by the Northern Ireland Memorial Fund in each year since it was created; how many people received money from the fund in each year; and how much has been paid out by the fund to people from (a) the Unionist community and (b) the nationalist/republican community. [65327]

Mr. Hanson: The Northern Ireland Memorial Fund was established in 1999 to provide practical support to those bereaved and injured as a result of the troubles.

The total amounts paid out and the number of people benefiting in each year are as follows:

Year ending	Amount (£)	Number of people
2000	491,450.04	1,227
2001	898,141.21	2,309
2002	1,971,244.68	3,619
2003	1,781,356.96	3,421
2004	1,056,444.16	2,174
2005	1,252,397.33	2,377
2006 (January to March)	307,439.08	1,201
Total	7,758,473.46	16,328

Applicants are asked to provide details on how they meet the fund criteria in terms of bereavement or injury. The Northern Ireland Memorial Fund does not require details on community background and therefore cannot provide information relating to money paid in respect of either the Unionist or nationalist/republican community.

Prisons

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many escapes from (a) prisons and (b) young offender institutions in Northern Ireland there have been in each year since 1990. [78737]

Paul Goggins: The following table sets out the number of prison escapes since 1990. The Maze prison closed in 2000, Maghaberry and Magilligan are male adult prisons and Hydebank Wood is a young offender centre and female prison.

	Maze	Maghaberry	Magilligan	Hydebank wood
1991	—	—	—	1
1995	—	—	1	1
1997	1	—	—	—
2000	—	—	—	1
Total	1	Nil	1	3

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many prosecutions there have been for supplying illegal drugs in prisons in Northern Ireland in each year since 1998. [78739]

Mr. Hanson: The court proceedings and sentencing data sources do not include information on the circumstances surrounding the commission of an offence. While the total number of prosecutions for supplying illegal drugs is collated, those which occurred in prisons cannot be separately identified.

Rape

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average length of sentence in Northern Ireland for (a) rape and (b) serious sexual assault was in each of the last five years, broken down by whether the defendant pleaded guilty. [80028]

Mr. Hanson: Due to a change in the data source for prosecutions and sentencing data, information disaggregated by defendant plea is not available beyond 1999. The 1999 data is provided in the following table.

Table 1 also provides the number sentenced to immediate custody for rape (including attempts) and indecent assault in 2000 to 2003 and the average length of custodial sentence passed for each.

Figures beyond 2003 are not yet available.

Table 1: Number sentenced to immediate custody[1] and the average sentence length in months[2] for rape, attempted rape and indecent assault 1999-2003

		Rape[3]		Indecent assault[4]
	Plea	Number sentenced to immediate custody	Average sentence length (months)	Number sentenced to immediate custody	Average sentence length (months)
1999	Guilty	7	89	24	23

2002	n/a	9	79	[5]21	31
2003	n/a	9	92	37	21

[1] Figures include persons sentenced to prison, YOG, and custody probation.
[2] Rounded to nearest whole number.
[3] Includes attempts.
[4] Indecent assault includes indecent assault on female, indecent assault on male, indecent assault on female child and indecent assault on male child.
Note:
Figures are based on principal offence rule.

Rates

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether he proposes to freeze rates on industrial property at 25 per cent. for the period 2007-08. [80450]

Mr. Hanson: No. I will, however, reflect on the Assembly resolution.

Recycling

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made in encouraging people in Northern Ireland to recycle. [80096]

David Cairns: The Department of the Environment, building on its "Wake up to Waste" programme, has continued to support the design, promotion and delivery of local waste awareness campaigns. This has made a major contribution to the dramatic increase in household waste recycling from 5 per cent. in 1999 to 23.4 per cent. in 2005.

The recently published "Waste Management Strategy" also contains policies and actions aimed at increasing resource efficiency through the promotion of recycling.

Security Expenditure

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the likely impact on security expenditure if the Northern Ireland Assembly is successfully re-established and the paramilitary ceasefire remains permanent; and if he will make a statement. [78515]

Paul Goggins: The safety of the people of Northern Ireland remains the Government's paramount priority; however there is no correlation between the successful re-establishment of the Assembly and the Government's plans for security expenditure in Northern Ireland.

The latest IMC and HCD reports are encouraging. Progress remains dependent on the maintenance of an enabling environment and it is in everyone's interest that Northern Ireland continues to move forward economically, socially and politically.

Politicians elected by the people of Northern Ireland need to take key decisions, which is why we must succeed in getting the Assembly up and running as soon as possible.

Senior Smart Pass

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people aged over 65 years in Northern Ireland have a senior smart pass; and what percentage this is of the total number eligible. [78733]

David Cairns: Since 2002 188,126 senior smart passes have been issued.

There is no record of the number of passes issued to people who have subsequently died and it is therefore not possible to say how many senior smart passes are currently in circulation as a proportion of those eligible.

Sustainable Development

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland, pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 16 March 2006, Official Report, column 106-7WS, on sustainable development, whether the Planning Service in Northern Ireland plans to change the basis on which planning applications submitted before the date of that statement are assessed. [80236]

David Cairns: The Planning Service has no plans to change the basis on which planning applications submitted on or before 16 March 2006 are assessed.

Those planning applications in the system on or before 16 March 2006 will not be affected by Planning Policy Statement 14 "Sustainable Development in the Countryside" (PPS 14) unless they are still being processed when the draft policy is confirmed. At that stage PPS 14 will be have to be taken into consideration.

Victims Memorial

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what progress has been made in providing a permanent memorial in Northern Ireland to victims of terrorism. [80747]

Mr. Hanson: The Government are aware of the sensitivities surrounding the issue of memorials in Northern Ireland and the lack of consensus on the issue. However, we do not feel that the time is yet right to consider establishing a permanent memorial. We appreciate that many would like to see some form of permanent memorial to those who have suffered as a result of the troubles.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Private Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the size is of his private office in square feet. [78222]

The Deputy Prime Minister: 802 square feet.

HEALTH

Aircraft Trails

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research her Department has (a) commissioned and (b) reviewed on the impact on health of the trails left by aircraft in the sky; and if she will make a statement. [79516]

Caroline Flint: There has been no research commissioned or reviewed on the impact on health of vapour trails left by aircraft in the sky.

Ambulance Service

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions she has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the establishment of cadet training in the ambulance service; and if she will make a statement. [80525]

Ms Rosie Winterton: [holding answer 27 June 2006]: We have no record of any discussion between the Secretary of State for Health and the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the establishment of cadet training in the ambulance service. However, cadet training does take place in different parts of the health service and cadet schemes have been introduced locally by trusts and strategic health authorities as a means of strengthening and widening access to different professions in the national health service.

Audiology Services

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consultation took place with (a) charities, (b) patient groups and (c) NHS trusts prior to the decision to exclude audiology services from the Government's 18-week waiting time target for treatment; and if she will make a statement. [80461]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The Department conducted a six-week consultation exercise in autumn 2005 on the "Commissioning an 18-week patient pathway: Proposed principles and definitions: A discussion document". This consultation exercise asked for comments on a wide range of issues, including on delivering shorter waiting times for audiology services. The Department specifically requested feedback on the document from the patients' association, the patients' forum, and the national health service, along with professional bodies. The Department also received feedback from Royal National Institute for the Deaf.

The majority of audiology and adult hearing services are accessed directly from primary care and are outside the scope of the 18-week pathway, which is focused on hospital pathways. Hearing and balance conditions that do need to be referred to a medical consultant will be subject to the 18-week's target. We do not intend to reconsider this principle. However, reducing the time that patients wait for directly accessed services is important and an action plan is being developed to improve access to audiology services outside the 18-week pathway.

Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire Strategic Health Authority

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will establish a departmental inquiry into the use of funds by Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire Strategic Health Authority and how the planned savings expected of its constituent organisations were determined. [79653]

Caroline Flint: The role of the Department is to ensure that strategic health authorities (SHAs) comply with the operating framework guidance published on 26 January 2006. Individual SHAs are responsible for the performance management of their national health service organisations and for ensuring that they achieve financial balance.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many operations were carried out in each NHS surgical centre within Gloucestershire, Avon and Wiltshire strategic health authority area in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by appropriate data field; and how many were carried out on the NHS in the private sector, broken down by appropriate data field. [80016]

Caroline Flint: There are two national health service treatment centres in Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire strategic health authority (SHA); one is located in Weston and the other in Swindon. In 2005-06, the Weston area healthcare trust completed 1,621 first finished consultant episodes (FFCEs), and Marlborough NHS trust completed 4,354 FFCEs. In 2005-06, there were no independent sector treatment centres in this SHA.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to her answer of 16 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1546-47W, on health care (Stroud), which primary care trusts and health trusts in the Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire Strategic Health Authority area are placed in which category of turnaround arrangement; and what effect placing in each category has on their expected contribution to that strategic health authority's re-balancing of funding. [79691]

Caroline Flint: The turnaround assessment stage resulted in KPMG rating organisations as:

immediate priority, where there is the need for urgent intervention to drive turnaround;

additional expertise/resource needed to support the turnaround;

drive or focus—maintaining a high priority of actions; and regular challenge of management, encouraging to share what works and deliver easy wins.

Organisations in the Avon, Gloucestershire and Wilshire Strategic Health Authority (SHA) were placed in the following categories:

Organisation/primary care trust (PCT)	Category
Kennet and North Wiltshire PCT	1
West Wiltshire PCT	1
Weston Area Health NHS Trust	1
Cotswold and Vale PCT	2
North Somerset PCT	2
RUH Bath NHS Trust	3

The categories were produced by KPMG after discussions with the local NHS in December 2005 and February 2006. They assist local management in prioritising turnaround work and do not lead to a specific contribution to the SHA's financial plan.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will take steps to ensure that NHS trusts and primary care trusts in the Avon, Gloucestershire and

Wiltshire strategic health authority area which do not have deficits are not required to contribute financially to rectifying the deficits of other such trusts in the area. [80015]

Caroline Flint: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given on 8 June 2006, Official Report, column 835W.

Carbon Dioxide Emissions

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate she has made of the volume of carbon dioxide emitted by NHS organisations in each year since 1997; [79037]

(2) what estimate she has made of the total cost to the NHS of purchasing energy in each year since 1997. [79046]

Caroline Flint: Record investment in new facilities and capacity to reduce waiting times is reflected in the size of the national health service estate increasing by 14 per cent. in the past five years. Carbon and CO_2 emissions, relative to the size of the estate, have fallen by an average of 0.5 per cent. per year over the same period, demonstrating greater energy efficiency and the use of cleaner fuels. Future shifts towards more local energy efficient healthcare facilities, in line with the recent White Paper "Our health, our care, our say", will ensure that this trend is continued.

Energy costs are principally influenced by changes in utility supplier prices and the quantum of energy consumption. Carbon emissions are mainly influenced by the amount and type of energy used. The information requested is shown in the table.

	Energy cost (£ million)	Carbon dioxide emissions (million tonnes)
1997-98	198.58	3.04
1998-99	178.46	3.06
1999-2000	184.46	3.05
2000-01	199.97	3.18
2001-02	246.27	3.45
2002-03	247.84	3.46
2003-04	263.67	3.47
2004-05	312.31	3.40

Cost-benefit Analysis

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the recent White Paper, what cost-benefit analysis her Department has undertaken of the proposal to move the six clinical areas into the community. [79656]

Andy Burnham: A project is under way to look at how care can be made more convenient for patients in the six speciality areas referred to in chapter six of the White Paper "Our health, our care, our say: a future direction for community services". An evaluation of demonstration sites showing how care can be made convenient for patients has been commissioned from the national primary care research and development centre at the university of Manchester and the intention is to publish the results in the summer of 2007.

Healthcare Facility (Oldchurch Park, Romford)

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) who will be liable for building maintenance and site costs at the new healthcare facility being built at Oldchurch Park, Romford; [79626]

(2) what steps are being taken to limit the environmental impact of the construction of the new Oldchurch Hospital in Romford. [79641]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: North East London strategic health authority (SHA) has advised departmental officials that Sodexho will be responsible for the day-to-day maintenance of the building. Long-term maintenance of the building will be undertaken by a combination of Sodexho and Catalyst. All maintenance and replacement costs of medical equipment will be covered by Siemens. The SHA advises that there will be no maintenance costs from national health service funds.

North East London SHA has advised departmental officials of the following steps that are being taken to limit the environmental impact of the construction of the new Oldchurch Hospital.

Parking

The trust reports that it has provided 1,351 spaces, the maximum the planning authority and the Mayor of London would allow. This was an increase of roughly 250 spaces more than had been allowed under the outline consent. Parking for bicycles is also provided in a number of locations.

Public transport

The new hospital incorporates a new bus station with standing for seven buses. At the onset, Transport for London will operate between two and four services through the new hospital site.

Road access

The new hospital will be accessed from Rom Valley Way via an enhanced traffic light controlled junction, together with a new roundabout, pedestrian pavements and road crossing facilities. The Oldchurch Road has been widened and a traffic control junction provided at Oldchurch Rise. Use of Oldchurch Rise entrance on to the site will be restricted to ambulances and public transport.

Impact on the surrounding area

The trust reports that it is contributing funds under the Section 106 agreement for the London borough of Havering to implement parking restrictions in adjoining roads. This is in addition to contributions towards replacement leisure facilities, public footpaths and cycleway. A children's play area and kickabout pitch for local children was built and handed over before construction commenced.

I understand that the new hospital building is relatively low rise and is positioned centrally on the site, with the public open space wrapping around it, which together with appropriate landscaping thereby minimises the visual impact. The new hospital incorporates traditional materials such as brick and timber, thereby creating a softer visual statement.

Energy saving

The trust reports that the new hospital is built with the latest Building Control Part L regulations concerning heat loss, which together with use of combined heat and power technology, will create a building substantially more efficient that the buildings to be vacated.

Hearing Aid Council (Amendment) Act

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make a statement on the operation of the Hearing Aid Council (Amendment) Act 1989; what recent representations she has received about the operation of this Act; and whether she has plans to amend this Act. [80197]

Mr. McCartney: I have been asked to reply. The Department is happy with the operation of the said Act. As might be expected, there were protests earlier this year when the retention fee for dispensers was increased, but no Act amendment representations have been received. The Hampton report in 2004 suggested for economies of scale that the possibility of merging the duties of the Hearing Aid Council into other bodies should be considered, and the department, in conjunction with the council, continues to explore this.

Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which Government Bills sponsored by her Department are still to be introduced during the current Session; and when, and into which House, each will be introduced; [77514]

(2) what plans she has for legislation in the next session of Parliament; and if she will make a statement. [77515]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1431W by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House of Commons (Mr. Straw).

Macugen

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what arrangements are in place for provision on the NHS of the drug Macugen for age-related macular degeneration in advance of a decision on licensing and National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence appraisal; and if she will make a statement. [80635]

Andy Burnham: The Department has made it clear that patients should not be refused a treatment simply because guidance from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence is unavailable. In these circumstances, we expect primary care trusts to take full account of available evidence when reaching decisions on whether to provide the treatment.

Mantoux Skin Test

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she is taking in relation to the use of the Mantoux skin test for tuberculosis within the NHS in advance of the manufacturers of the purified protein derivative utilised in the test applying for a licence for the product. [80314]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Eddisbury (Mr. O'Brien) on 26 June 2006, Official Report, columns 239-40W.

Maternity Units

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment she has made of the likely impact on the number of home births if Stroud maternity unit closes; [75989]

(2) if she will carry out an evaluation into the closure of Stroud maternity unit, including evidence from service users. [76079]

Caroline Flint: The Government are committed to offering, by 2009, all women the choice of how and where they give birth, including in hospital, a midwifery-led unit and at home.

It is for primary care trusts and national health service trusts to determine the appropriate pattern of service-provision locally, taking into account the needs of local people, evidence of effectiveness and available resources.

Ministerial Meetings

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many meetings Ministers in her Department have held with hon. Members in each of the last three years, broken down by political party. [80026]

Ms Hewitt: The information requested for the past three years could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. However, we can provide the number of meetings Ministers have had with hon. Members for the last six months. Since 1 January 2006, Ministers in the Department have met with 191 Labour hon. Members, 37 Conservative hon. Members and six Liberal Democrat hon. Members.

NHS Managers

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many managers were employed in the NHS in England on 1 April (a) 1997 and (b) 2006. [65309]

Ms Rosie Winterton: In the same period, the national health service budget has grown from £33 billion in 1996-97 to £77.8 billion in 2005-06; and the number of staff has increased by over 300,000. Managers make up less than 3 per cent. of the NHS work force.

NHS Pension Scheme

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the announcement by the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry of 18 October 2005 on public service pensions, that all sector scheme negotiations would be completed by March 2006, when she will announce the details of the consultation on the new proposed benefit structure for new entrants for the NHS Pension Scheme; whether the negotiations have been completed; and if she will make a statement. [78008]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Negotiations are continuing between NHS employers, on behalf of the Department and the NHS staff side. Following completion of the negotiations, consultations will take place on the proposals including time scales for implementation of a new pension scheme.

NHS Staff

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many newly qualified (a) nurses and (b) doctors have not been able to find relevant employment within six months of qualifying in each of the last three years; and if she will make a statement. [78357]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not collected centrally.

Obesity

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions she has had with ministerial colleagues on promoting the cross-Government campaign to raise public awareness of the health risks of obesity. [67329]

Caroline Flint: At a bilateral meeting on 15 June, my hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Health, Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport and I discussed further development of the cross-Government campaign to promote every-day activity and to raise public awareness of the health risks of obesity.

Opencast Sites

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment has been made of health effects on people living close to open-cast sites; and whether differences have been observed in health effects during different seasons of the year. [80422]

Caroline Flint: No assessment has been made since 1999 when a statement appertaining to the possible effects of exposure to particles generated by open-cast mining was placed on the committee on medical aspects of air pollution's (COMEAP) website. No assessment of seasonal factors has been made. The COMEAP opinion may be found on the COMEAP's website at:

www.advisorybodies.doh.gov.uk/comeap/.

Operations

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 17 May 2006, Official Report, column 1117W, on operations, if she will publish the same data for the years 1988-89 to 1996-97 for England only. [74122]

Andy Burnham: The information requested has been placed in the Library. 1989-90 is the earliest year for which data is available. In more recent years as more activity has shifted from in-hospital settings to out-patients and primary care, growth in day cases has slowed and ordinary admissions have started to reduce. This trend is expected to continue.

Patient Transport

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the average ambulance travel times between (a) the centre of Littlehampton, (b) Rustington and (c) Wick and (i) St. Richards hospital in Chichester and (ii) the Royal Sussex County hospital in Brighton. [80626]

Caroline Flint: The information requested is not collected centrally.

PM2.5 Particulates

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment has been made of the health effects of PM2.5 particulates, with particular reference to (a) respiratory and (b) cardiovascular health. [80420]

Caroline Flint: The committee on the medical effects of air pollutants (COMEAP) has recently published a report on air pollution and cardiovascular disease. This report focuses on particulate matter and, in so far as the available data permit, on particulate matter that is 2.5 micrometres or smaller in size (PM2.5). The comprehensive report can be found on COMEAP's website at www.advisorybodies.doh.gov.uk/comeap/. No recent assessment of effects of PM2.5 on the respiratory system has been made. This will be addressed during COMEAP's work on the quantification of effects of air pollutants on health. Work so far has focused on PM2.5 and effects on mortality. It seems that the majority of the effects reported in the literature reflect the effect of particles on the cardiovascular system.

Policy Research Programme

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding is available to the policy research programme within the Department in 2006-07. [80705]

Andy Burnham: The policy research programme budget is currently £32.5 million per annum.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the mental health research priorities are within the policy research programme. [80706]

Andy Burnham: Current priorities in mental health for the policy research programme are:

research to support the national suicide strategy;

new roles in the mental health work force;

mental health legislation;

adolescent mental health; and evaluating the care services improvement partnership.

Primary Care Trusts

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what population is served by each primary care trust. [77519]

Andy Burnham: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 23 May 2006, Official Report, column 1762W, on primary care trusts, what range of work is in hand; and what arrangements Surrey and Sussex strategic health authority have in place to ensure delivery. [79763]

Caroline Flint: The Department is supporting the national health service in delivering the Government's targets on retinopathy screening by supporting local delivery with a United Kingdom national screening committee (NSC) programme, carried out with professional organisations and Diabetes UK, which aims to reduce variability, help the development of a systematic approach where none exists and improve performance and quality. This includes Surrey and Sussex strategic health authority (SHA).

Funds have also been made available to support the purchase of digital cameras and related equipment for diabetic retinopathy screening. The capital funds increase so that the largest sum is available from April 2005—£5 million in 2003-04, £9.6 million in 2004-05 and £12.4 million in 2005-06.

Furthermore, primary care trusts (PCTs) are monitored on their progress towards achieving the target. The target is included within the local delivery agreements between SHA and PCTs, which are reviewed quarterly through a data return to the Department.

Public Health Pilots

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was allocated by her Department to pilot projects targeting public health, including those relating to obesity, in each of the last two years; how much is projected to be allocated during the next 12 months; and if she will make a statement. [68841]

Caroline Flint: The Department has allocated central funding to a range of pilot projects aimed at improving public health. Examples of public health related pilots include HIV and syphilis community testing, early abortion and genito-urinary medicine development pilots, local exercise action pilots, school pedometer pilots and piloting the new healthy start scheme. An exact funding figure is not available, but in excess of £3 million was allocated in 2005-06 and similar funding is expected in the coming 12 months.

Special Advisers

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what role is played by special advisers in answering parliamentary questions asked of her Department. [80653]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: [holding answer 27 June 2006]: Special advisers conduct themselves in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Bullying

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what measures his Department is taking to tackle the bullying of autistic children in schools. [79330]

Jim Knight: This Government makes it clear that all forms of bullying are unacceptable. We have introduced a series of measures to prevent and tackle bullying in our schools as well as providing support for the victims of bullying. We intend to issue guidance for schools and local authorities in the coming months on how to draw up and implement an effective anti-bullying policy, and this will look at how to address the needs of all bullied children including those with autistic spectrum disorders.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many incidents of racist bullying were recorded by (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in each of the last five years. [80513]

Jim Knight: We are unable to provide this information as we do not collect these data centrally. However, individual schools are required to record all incidents of racist bullying and local authorities may keep records for their own area.

Cadet Forces

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the expansion of cadet forces in schools; and if he will make a statement. [80660]

Mr. Dhanda: The Ministry of Defence (MoD) is running a pilot project with a small number of state schools to establish new cadet forces (CCF) in these schools. In order to do this the MOD has drawn on an existing list of schools that had already indicated interest. The Department has discussed this list with the MOD.

Funding for this is being provided directly by the Treasury. The Department has therefore not had any discussions with the Chancellor of the Exchequer around, nor any involvement in the funding of, this pilot project.

Community Sports Facilities

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what cross-departmental discussions have taken place with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on ensuring that the Building Schools for the Future programme delivers effective community sport facilities in new build and refurbished schools. [80597]

Jim Knight: Ministers from this Department meet our Culture Media and Sport counterparts regularly to discuss our joint schools PE and sports strategy, including curriculum matters and the community use of facilities. There is also regular contact between our respective departmental officials, including those from Partnerships for Schools, the delivery body for Building Schools for the Future.

Education Expenditure, Bristol

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average expenditure was per pupil in Bristol in the (a) 1996-97 and (b) 2005-06 financial year. [80589]

Jim Knight: The following table gives a breakdown of the available data for City of Bristol (a) 1996-97. However, the information requested at (b) 2005-06 financial is not yet available. The Department is due to collect the section 52 outturn data relating to the 2005-06 financial year from August 2006.

City of Bristol combined local authority and school based expenditure[1] per pupil[2] per pupil

	£ per pupil
1996-97[3, 4]	2,990
2004-05[4]	4,240

[1] The combined LA and school based expenditure includes all expenditure on the education of children in LA maintained establishments and pupils educated by the LA other than in maintained establishments. This includes both school based expenditure and all elements of central LA expenditure except youth and community and capital expenditure from revenue (CERA).
[2] 1999-2000 saw a change in data source when the data collection moved from the RO1 form collected by the ODPM to the Section 52 form from the DfES. 2002-03 saw a further break in the time series following the introduction of Consistent Financial Reporting (CFR) and the associated restructuring of the Section 52 outturn tables.
[3] Pupil figures include all pre-primary pupils, including those under fives funded by the LA and being educated in private settings, pupils educated in maintained mainstream schools and other LA maintained pupils. The pupil data for pupils attending maintained nursery, primary, secondary and special schools are taken from the DfES Annual Schools Census. Private voluntary and independent (PVI) under five pupil numbers are taken from the Early Years census but are only included from 1999-2000 onwards. Also included are other LA maintained pupils which includes all pupils attending schools not maintained by the authority for whom the authority is paying full tuition fees, or educated otherwise than in schools and pupil referral units under arrangements made by the authority drawn from the Form 8b submitted to the DfES. Also included as other LA maintained pupils are all pupils attending pupil referral units who are not registered at a maintained mainstream school drawn from the DfES Annual Schools Census. All pupil numbers are adjusted to be on a financial year basis.
[4] Figures prior to 1999-2000 exclude any expenditure on service, strategy and regulation. For Bristol LA this would add roughly £9 to the 1996-97 unit cost.
Note:
Figures are rounded to the nearest £10. Cash terms figures as reported by City of Bristol local authority as at 23 June 2006.

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how much funding has been allocated to special needs education provision in the Bristol local education authority area in each year since 2000. [80590]

Jim Knight: The information requested is set out in the following table:

Budgeted net expenditure on the provision of education for children with special educational needs in Bristol local authority since 2000-01— Cash terms figures as reported Bristol local authority as at 26 June 2006

2000-01	22,602,000
2001-02	28,522,000
2002-03	28,361,000
2003-04	30,917,000
2004-05	30,758,000
2005-06	32,844,000
2006-07	35,097,000

Notes:
1. Includes planned expenditure on the provision for pupils with statements and the provision for non-statemented pupils with SEN, support for inclusion, inter authority recoupment, fees for pupils at independent special schools and abroad, educational psychology service, local authority functions in relation to child protection, therapies and other health related services, parent partnership, guidance and information, the monitoring of SEN provision and inclusion administration, assessment and co-ordination. Also included is the funding delegated to nursery, primary and secondary schools identified as "notional SEN" and the individual schools budget (ISB) for special schools. Does not include any contribution to combined budgets or fees for pupils at independent schools for pupils without SEN.
2. The ISB for special schools will include some general education costs for pupils with SEN in addition to those costs specifically for SEN while the figures recorded against "notional SEN" are only indicative of the amount that might by spent by schools on SEN. From 2004-05 onwards "notional SEN" delegated to nursery schools was reported on Section 52 for the first time and accounts for £0.5 million, £0.6 million and £0.6 million of the 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 totals respectively. In 2005-06 and 2006-07, Bristol LA also budgeted £3.7 million and £5.3 million for SEN transport expenditure but this is not included in the above table as figures are not available prior to 2005-06.
3. Figures are rounded to the nearest £1,000.
4. 2006-07 data is provisional and is therefore subject to change by the local authority.

Source:
The data are drawn from Bristol local authority's Section 52 Budget Statements (tables 1 and 2) submitted to the DfES.

Free School Meals

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what proportion of children in (a) each local authority which retains grammar schools, (b) each grammar school within each such authority and (c) other secondary schools within each authority received free school meals on the latest date for which figures are available. [79798]

Jim Knight [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The information requested has been placed in the House Library.

GCSE (Foreign Languages)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills in which foreign languages pupils were entered in GCSEs for schools in Tamworth in 2005. [80137]

Jim Knight: Pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 in maintained schools in Tamworth constituency were entered in French, German, and Spanish GCSE full courses in 2004/05.

GCSE Results

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average annual change in point scores at GCSE was in (a) specialist schools, (b) grammar schools, (c) academies and (d) all secondary schools between 2001 and 2005. [79802]

Jim Knight [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The information requested is outlined in the following table. Due to a change in the point score system there is a break in the series in 2004.

Notes:
1. Some grammar schools are specialist.
2. There were no academies in 2001.

Learning and Skills Council

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what powers the Learning and Skills Council has (a) to open new post-16 facilities and (b) to withdraw funding from existing post-16 facilities (i) with and (ii) without the agreement of the local education authority for the area; and what (A) informal and (B) formal consultation is required before such proposals are (1) made and (2) implemented. [80864]

Bill Rammell: The LSC has powers to propose new school sixth forms and 16-19 schools under section 113A of the Learning and Skills Act 2000 as inserted by section 72 of the Education Act 2002, as part of local 16-19 reorganisation, where it can demonstrate that the proposals will improve participation, raise standards or broaden the range of provision or following recommendations in an Ofsted area inspection report. The LSC also has powers to propose new Further Education Colleges under section 51 of the Further and Higher Education Act 1992. In both circumstances the legislation requires the LSC to consult formally and widely, including with the local authority. Reorganisation proposals made by the LSC are decided by the Secretary of State.

The Learning and Skills Act 2000 places a duty on the LSC to make best use of resources (Section 2), gives the LSC the powers to secure the provision of funds to providers of post-16 education and training (Section 5) and impose conditions (Section 6). These powers cover the provision of funding to FE corporations and other providers of post-16 education and training.

Section 7 of the Act gives the LSC the power to make a grant to a local authority to be applied as part of the authority's local schools budget and with a view to the grant being used for the purpose of or connected with the provision by schools of post-16 education.

The LSC has discretion whether to provide, increase, reduce or withdraw funding. However the LSC must exercise its powers reasonably and this means it would normally be expected to consult with the recipient of any funding before withdrawing funding and take into account any representations they wish to make. The LSC must also take into account all relevant matters in reaching any decisions including the need to fulfil its statutory duties to secure proper or reasonable provision.

Missing Children

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will take steps to collect and publish information on the support services available to children who run away or go missing from care or home in each children's services area. [80003]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 26 June 2006]: Each local authority, through their children's services authority arrangements, is required by the Every Child Matters: Change for Children programme to set up an accessible children's services directory, including information on services for vulnerable young people such as those who run away or go missing. Local authorities must also produce a Children and Young People Plan setting out how services, including those for vulnerable young people, will operate. Such services are for local authorities to determine, in partnership with the relevant stakeholders in their area, according to local need.

Many local authorities have already placed their service directories on their existing website, while others have created new sites, giving them easy-to-find titles appropriate to local community circumstances (e.g. Help4me.info in Cheshire and Merseyside).

In 2005 the Department commissioned research by the National Family and Parenting Institute to look at how local authorities were linking up their directories. From those who took part, we have compiled a list of local authority children's services web links. These are available on the Every Child Matters website. However, my Department has no other current plans to collect and publish information nationally on what specific services operate in every area.

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress has been made in giving teachers more support online on how they can help prevent running away; and if he will ensure that the schools pack produced following the Social Exclusion Unit report on running away is available online. [80004]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The schools pack referred to was developed by Shelter and Connexions, and launched by the Department in 2004. It is available via the teachernet website (teachernet.gov.uk) and Shelter's own website. Shelter also produced a pack for personal social and health education (PSHE) teachers: "Talk before you walk", which is available via their website.

Opportunity exists within the current PSHE and citizenship frameworks for schools to explore issues to do with recognising and managing risks involved in running away. The Department is however not prescriptive with schools about what issues they must explore, what resources they must use, or how they should access them, to achieve the learning objectives set out within those frameworks.

DfES has also run six development projects to test out community-based responses. When we disseminate the lessons learnt so far from these later this year, this will include information, materials and support models from work with schools in the pilot areas.

New School Buildings (Energy Efficiency)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps are taken to ensure that the new builds under Building Schools for the Future use energy efficient methods. [79697]

Jim Knight: All new buildings must comply with the latest 2006 edition of Part L of the Building Regulations "The Conservation of Fuel and Power". Approved Document L (ADL) in support of Part L of the Building Regulations was published in March 2006 and has considerably increased the energy efficiency required of all new buildings including schools compared with the 2002 edition. In addition the new Building Research Establishment Environmental Assessment Method "BREEAM Schools" which all new build schools are required to complete gives credits for improving the energy efficiency beyond the requirements of ADL. DfES expects all major new build and refurbishment school projects to achieve a very good or excellent rating on "BREEAM Schools".

New Technologies

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of the Department's budget was spent on researching new technologies in the last period for which figures are available. [76810]

Phil Hope: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Trade and Industry (Jim Fitzpatrick) on 21 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1882-86W.

Parent School Advisers

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress is being made in establishing the pilot areas for parent school advisers; and if he will make a statement. [80551]

Jim Knight: 20 local authorities have accepted an invitation to run pilots for parent support advisers in schools. There will be 600 advisers in primary and secondary schools, and recruitment will start this summer. They will take a preventive role, supporting children and families where there are early signs that additional help is needed. They will build on the best that schools are already doing to raise standards by enhancing home-school relationships.

Pupil Attainment

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what information his Department collects on pupil attainment and social class. [79800]

Jim Knight [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The Department for Education and Skills collects the following information on pupil attainment.

1. Results for the foundation stage profile.

2. Results at key stages 1, 2 and 3.

3. Results at GCSE and equivalent qualifications approved for use pre-16 4. Results at GSE/VCE A/AS levels and equivalent qualifications approved for use post-16.

The Department does not collect details of the social class of pupils. However, one commonly used measure of low socio-economic status is eligibility for free school meals (FSM). Pupil attainment figures broken down by FSM eligibility are calculated by the Department.

Attainment figures have also been available since 2004 by ACORN (A Classification of Residential Neighbourhoods). The ACORN classification combines geography with demographics and lifestyle information to categorise UK postcodes into five categories. This classification describes people according to the neighbourhood in which they live, and works on the premise that people living in the same neighbourhood will have similar purchasing habits and attitudinal characteristics.

The Department also uses the Indices of Deprivation 2004 and the Income Deprivation Affecting Children Index developed by the Social Disadvantage Research Centre of the University of Oxford on behalf of the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) to identify deprived areas and highlight variations between areas.

Pupil-Teacher Ratio

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average pupil-teacher ratio is in (a) secondary schools, (b) specialist schools, (c) academies and (d) grammar schools in England. [79799]

Jim Knight [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The following table shows the pupil to teacher ratio in maintained secondary schools, special schools, academies and grammar schools in England, January 2006.

Pupil teacher ratios[1] in maintained secondary schools, specialist schools, academies and grammar schools in England, January 2006[2]

	Pupil teacher ratio
Local authority maintained secondary schools	16.6
Specialist schools	16.4
Academies	14.5

[1] The pupil teacher ratio is the full-time equivalent number of pupils divided by the full-time equivalent number of qualified teachers. Dually registered pupils are excluded.

Qualifications and Curriculum Authority

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what estimate he has made of the proportion of staff at the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority who will (a) relocate and (b) resign when it relocates; and if he will make a statement. [78339]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Board of the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority, as it considers the plans for the relocation of the organisation, in response to the review by Sir Michael Lyons on relocating public sector jobs outside London and the south-east.

The QCA Board agreed in principle to relocate by March 2010 at its March 2006 meeting, and in May agreed the criteria it will use in considering possible locations. Decisions on its preferred location are expected at the September meeting of the QCA Board, after which recommendations and a business case will go to the Secretary of State, although the final decision is for the Chief Secretary to the Treasury on the advice of the Office of Government Commerce.

School Attendance

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children living in England attend schools in Wales, broken down by (a) type of school, (b) sex and (c) age. [79582]

Jim Knight [holding answer 22 June 2006]: The Department only collects information on pupils who attend schools in England and therefore we are unable to supply information requested. This is a matter for the Welsh Assembly.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many children living in Wales attend schools in England, broken down by (a) type of school, (b) age and (c) sex. [79583]

The aforementioned figures include schools that closed as a result of the amalgamation or merger of two or more schools; schools that have closed but reopened as voluntary schools with a religious character; and schools that have closed in local authorities that have moved from a three-tier to a two-tier system.

School Fires

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how many (a) fatal and (b) non-fatal injuries resulted from school fires in each year of the last 10 years; [79593]

(2) how many fires there were in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in each (i) region and (ii) local education authority in each of the last 10 years; and how many were started deliberately. [79571]

Jim Knight [holding answer 22 June 2006]: The Department does not collect these statistics, but does have some figures from the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG). The latest figures we have for England and Wales cover 2000-04.

	Number of fires
2000	1,275
2001	1,529
2002	1,332
2003	1,313
2004	1,291

The available data cannot differentiate between primary and secondary schools, or between the public and independent sectors. For all the years covered, 61 per cent. of the school fires were considered to be the result of deliberate fire setting.

There have been no fatalities due to school fires in the last 10 years, but school fires resulted in 46 non-fatal casualties in 2002 and 40 in 2003—the latest figures we have from DCLG. Of the 86 people injured in those two years, 54 were over 18 years old, 29 were aged 11-17, two aged between five and 10, and the age of one casualty is unknown.

Schools Budget

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the total school budget was of each local authority for 2004-05; and what proportion was delegated to schools in each authority. [80622]

[1] Total schools' budget is drawn from local authorities Section 52 Budget Statements submitted to the DfES. This is calculated as the gross elements of any grants plus the net elements of the remainder of the budget.
[2] The total amount delegated to schools includes the individual schools' budget as well as any school standards grants, devolved standards fund allocation, excellence in cities grant, additional targeted transitional grant, advance of transitional grant and support for schools in financial difficulty.
[3] Cash figures are rounded to the nearest £1,000 and, therefore, may not sum due to rounding. Figures as reported by local authorities as at 23 June 2006.

Special Needs Standards

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how much (a) the Government and (b) local authorities have spent commissioning Edison to help local authorities to meet special needs standards; [79167]

(2) what role Edison is playing in helping local authorities to meet special needs standards; and if he will make a statement. [79168]

Jim Knight: The Department has not commissioned Edison Schools UK, nor has it made an assessment of the role Edison is playing, to help local authorities meet their duties in regard to special educational needs (SEN). Local authorities have duties to identify, assess and arrange suitable provision for children with SEN and to keep their arrangements for special educational provision under review. Local authorities can buy in consultancy advice to help them with their special needs duties, as can schools, including special schools. The Department does not record how much local authorities have spent commissioning Edison nor what, if any, of this has been spent on SEN consultancy. Through programmed annual performance assessments and periodic joint area reviews of children's services, Ofsted and other inspectorates inspect how local authorities meet their duties, including any arrangements they make with private or voluntary sector organisations.

Specialist Schools

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of pupils at each specialist school which selects a proportion of its pupils by aptitude for its specialist subjects is so selected at each school. [79801]

Jim Knight [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The Department does not collect this data. However all schools including specialist schools are bound by the limitations set within the School Admissions Code of Practice. Relatively few such schools select in this way. When the Department last collected such data in summer 2001, only 45 schools or 6.5 per cent. of those that were specialist at the time did so.

Swimming Pools

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what funding is available for swimming pools through the Building Schools for the Future programme; and whether there are plans to extend this provision. [80596]

Jim Knight: Funding for Building Schools for the Future is allocated formulaically, based on pupil numbers and our area guidelines for secondary schools, published in 'Building Bulletin 98'. Within 'Building Bulletin 98' swimming pools are considered to be a 'supplementary area'—in other words they are not part of the core school facilities which we fund.

While Building Schools for the Future funding allocations do not include money for new swimming pools, we do allow existing pools to be refurbished within the programme. It is for each local authority to decide how to make the best use of its overall Building Schools for the Future funding allocation across the schools in a particular project and the scope of works at each school. A decision could be taken locally to put some of the available funding towards a swimming pool instead of the second of the two PE spaces allowed for in our guidelines, but only if the resulting provision satisfies the school's PE curriculum as well or better than the standard provision.

There is also the option of exploring other sources of funding to supplement that from Building Schools for the Future. In order to help facilitate that locally the Department has produced guidance on joining-up funding in the context of Building Schools for the Future.

Teachers

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many teachers are teaching classes in (a) mathematics, (b) English, (c) biology, (d) physics, (e) chemistry, (f) French, (g) German, (h) history and (i) geography in secondary schools in England who have no higher qualification than an A-level in the subject. [80037]

Jim Knight: Information on the number of teachers teaching by subject and qualification is collected in periodic staffing surveys the last of which was conducted in November 2002.

The following tables provide the available information.

Secondary Schools Curriculum and Staffing Survey 2002.

Research by the National Foundation for Education Research (NFER) conducted during 2005 and published by the Department in January 2006 indicated that 92 per cent. of all teachers teaching science were science specialists with 44 per cent. holding a biology specialism, 25 per cent. holding a chemistry specialism, 19 per cent. a physics specialism and 5 per cent. a specialism in another science. An estimated 2 per cent. of teachers teaching science did not hold a post A-level qualification in science. In addition, the research estimated that 76 per cent. of teachers teaching maths were maths specialists. An estimated 14 per cent. held no post A-level qualification in maths. For both maths and science, the research suggested that specialists deliver a greater proportion of the curriculum time than their relative size within the work force would suggest. For example, although only 10 per cent. of teachers teaching science at Key Stage 4 hold a degree in physics, they deliver 43 per cent. of the curriculum time for GCSE physics with the rest supplied mainly by those with a chemistry degree or those with an initial teacher training specialism in science. Central Government capital support for investment in schools has increased from under £700 million in 1996-97 to £5.8 billion this year and will rise further to over £6.3 billion by 2007-08. Progress is being made year-by-year in improving the quality of the school building stock. The bulk of schools capital is now allocated by formula to authorities and schools so that they can address their local priorities, including the replacement of decayed temporary accommodation, on which we have set a high priority. Given the high levels of funding, authorities have the opportunity to replace temporary classrooms where they are considered to be unsuitable.

Modern, high quality mobile or demountable classrooms provide a good environment for teaching and learning where there is short-term need. They might, for instance, be needed to cope with a short-term increase in pupil numbers, or where extensive remodelling or rebuilding of permanent accommodation means providing temporary accommodation on the school site, rather than transporting children elsewhere.

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of half days were missed due to unauthorised absence from maintained mainstream schools in (a) Bury St. Edmunds constituency, (b) Suffolk and (c) England in each year since 1997. [79388]

Jim Knight [holding answer 21 June 2006]: The percentage of half days missed due to unauthorised absence in maintained mainstream schools in (a) Bury St. Edmunds constituency, (b) Suffolk and (c) England in each year since 1997/98 is shown as follows.

Unauthorised absence is absence without leave from a teacher or other authorised representative of the school. This includes all unexplained or unjustified absences, such as lateness, holidays during term time not authorised by the school, absence where reason is not yet established and truancy.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what percentage of schoolchildren took unauthorised absence from school in (a) Torbay and (b) England in 2005-06. [79554]

Jim Knight: Figures for unauthorised absence from schools in 2005/06 are not yet available. The percentage of pupils who missed at least one session due to unauthorised absence in primary and secondary schools in (a) Torbay local authority and (b) England in 2004/05 are shown as follows.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Testing

Miss Widdecombe: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department to which procedures animals may be subject over the course of a two-year carcinogenicity study; and what the severity is of each procedure. [80442]

Joan Ryan: Under project licence authorities issued under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986, a two year carcinogenicity study would involve a series of regulated procedures forming a single protocol. The regulated procedures in the series would entail the administration of the test substance by one of a number of routes, for example, orally, by injection, through inhalation, or applied to the skin. Each route would be expected to produce only mild, momentary discomfort. Occasional blood samples may also be taken in some cases. The licence authorities require that animals will be humanely killed before any tumours produced during the observation period cause serious adverse effects. Overall the protocol would be expected to be of mild or moderate severity.

The International Conference on Harmonisation of Technical Requirements for Registration of Pharmaceuticals for Human Use (ICH) and the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) publish International guidelines for the conduct of carcinogenicity studies for pharmaceuticals and chemicals, respectively, to which studies conducted in the United Kingdom are expected comply.

Cash Delivery Crime

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what measures (a) have been introduced since 1997 and (b) are planned to combat violent crime against cash delivery personnel in (i) rural and (ii) urban areas. [80398]

Mr. Coaker: Since 1997 the security industry and the police have introduced a number of measures to combat cash-in-transit (CIT) attacks. This includes disseminating good practice, increased use of technology to protect CIT deliveries and close working between the industry and the police to share intelligence relating to cash-in-transit robberies.

Earlier this year the then Minister for Policing, Security and Community Safety, my right hon. Friend the Member for Salford (Hazel Blears) met with representatives of the GMB Union, Group Four Security and the BSIA to identify the next steps to address the problem issue of cash-in-transit robberies.

Officials have continued to meet with the representatives as recently as 22 June, and are developing a programme to address a number of issues around CIT attacks. This includes engaging other Government departments on how to implement environmental crime reduction measures, developing good practice guidance in conjunction with ACPO, and examining delivery procedures that expose CIT personnel to the risk of attack. This work will include sending out a strong deterrent message to perpetrators of such crimes.

This is in addition to the continued work to tackle violent crime involving guns and other weapons.

CCTV

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the use of closed circuit television footage in (a) deterring and (b) prosecuting offenders who commit assaults on the street. [71630]

Mr. McNulty: CCTV can be an important tool in the fight against crime and disorder. However, evidence shows that its potential has not been fully realised and that a national strategy is needed. The Home Office and the Association of Chief Police Officers are undertaking a review of CCTV, to determine how it may be used more effectively in reducing and detecting crime and terrorism. The review's findings will be known in the autumn.

On the subject of deterrence, some work has already been done. In the recent Home Office evaluation of CCTV (Gill, M., and Spriggs, A. (2005) Assessing the Impact of CCTV. Home Office Research Study 292. London: Home Office, www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs05/hors292.pdf), it appears that the likelihood of certain types of offence being committed was affected by the presence of cameras. It is the offences where the offender does a quick target 'risk assessment' that tend to be affected by the presence of CCTV.

The Home Office has no figures available on the extent of, or success of the use of CCTV in the context of the prosecution of offenders who commit offences.

Child Trafficking

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations he has received on child trafficking in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [76364]

Mr. Coaker: The consultation exercise on proposals for a UK action plan on human trafficking, which ran from January-April this year, received 180 responses. 65 of these raised issues around child trafficking. A summary of the consultation responses was published on 21 June. The responses will contribute towards the development of the UK action plan on human trafficking which will include actions specific to child trafficking.

Additionally, the cross Government ministerial group on human trafficking is working in partnership with non-Government organisations (NGOs) in tackling human trafficking. A separate stakeholder child trafficking forum, led by the Home Office meets regularly, providing an opportunity for Government officials and NGO representatives to discuss key issues.

Clear-up Rates

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what was the number of crimes notified to the police but not cleared up in (a) 1997 and (b) 2004. [80177]

Mr. McNulty: There were 3,340,094 undetected crimes in England and Wales in 1997 and 4,245,654 in 2004. The two figures are not comparable because of changes to the detections counting rules implemented in April 1999.

Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will obtain a reply to the letter of 24 April 2006 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton to Mr. K. Sheehan of the UK Passport Service with regard to Mrs. C. Lim; and what the reason is for the delay in replying hitherto. [80695]

John Reid: The letter of 24 April was received in Kevin Sheehan's office on 25 April. Unfortunately, due to an administrative error, the letter has been mislaid. Mr. Sheehan has personally contacted the office of my right hon. Friend to apologise for the delay and has obtained a copy of the letter. A reply will be sent on 29 June.

Crime Statistics

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment has been made of the impact on public perception and fear of crime of listing separately as public order offences in crime statistics multiple alcohol-related offences committed at night. [55504]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office has not made an assessment of the impact on public perceptions of the recording or reporting of particular crimes.

The British Crime Survey routinely provides information on crimes where the offender was perceived to be under the influence of alcohol, and separately also provides information on people's worry about crime, including violent crime. The BCS does not measure people's perceptions of alcohol-related violence specifically, but does measure people's perceptions of antisocial behaviour including people being drunk or rowdy in public places. This information is routinely published in the annual volume and quarterly updates for 'Crime in England and Wales'.

According to the 2004-05 BCS 16 per cent. of people were very worried about violent crime, and 22 per cent. of the people said that people being drunk or rowdy in public places was a fairly or very big problem in their local area. Based on the 2004-05 BCS victims believed the offender or offenders to be under the influence of alcohol in about half of all violent incidents (48 per cent.). This information is available in the Library, and via Home Office website http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/crimeew0405.html

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of reported crime in the Humberside Police Authority area resulted in a conviction in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [80453]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not available. Recorded crime data are based on offences and court proceedings data are based on offenders. The two data series are therefore not directly comparable.

Criminal Records Bureau

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what penalty clauses exist in the contract with Capita for the operation of the Criminal Records Bureau; and if he will list occasions on which such clauses have been invoked. [75297]

Joan Ryan: Capita do not operate the Criminal Records Bureau. The disclosure service operates as a contract between the Criminal Records Bureau and Capita Business Services based upon a public private partnership agreement. Under this agreement, Capita are required to perform contractually specified Services and to develop, deliver and maintain the technical infrastructure of the disclosure service. This is to enable the Home Office to discharge its responsibilities under part V of the Police Act 1997 and other supporting legislation including the Protection of Children Act, 1999, to make available to approved organisations information regarding the criminal or related background of individuals.

Other services carried out by the Criminal Records Bureau that are not undertaken by Capita are carried out by civil servants and include the sensitive matching of an applicant's personal details to records held on the Police National Computer (PNC) and other lists held by the Department of Health and the Department for Education and Skills.

A contract schedule sets out the service levels for Capita to meet. A further schedule sets out the service credits that apply should Capita fail to meet the agreed service levels. There is provision within this contract for liquidated damages to be charged in the event of late delivery to agreed changes in the service.

In each year since financial year 2001-02, the following payments have been received from Capita for service credits and liquidated damages:

2001-02	555,000
2002-03	1,718,000
2003-04	1,528,000
2004-05	53,000
2005-06	92,000

The hon. Member will appreciate that with a contract of this size and complexity, the CRB would not be able to list and explain the context of each occasion when service credits and liquidated damages have occurred without employing disproportionate resources.

However, as an illustration, between August 2001 and November 2001, liquidated damages were applied due to the delays in launching the disclosure service and some of the associated services. Subsequent service credits were also applied in 2003 for operational delays within the disclosure process. These payments relate to the early years of the service.

The contract was originally estimated at £400 million to run over 10 years. In each year since financial year 2001-02, CRB have paid Capita the following as service payments:

	£ million
2001-02	12.1
2002-03	33.5
2003-04	58.5
2004-05	44.1
2005-06	47

There have been no performance related-payments made in any of the above financial years.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals have received an incorrect assessment from the Criminal Records Bureau in each year since its inception; and if he will make a statement. [77484]

Joan Ryan: The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) has issued 8.9 million disclosures since its launch in March 2002 to 31 March 2006. In that time, there have been 2,273 occasions where disclosure applicant details were matched by the CRB to a person with the same or very similar details who has a criminal record and, where the details had been challenged by the applicant, their dispute was subsequently upheld. The following table illustrates the breakdown, in each financial year.

		Upheld disputes
Financial year	Number of disclosures issued	Number	Percentage
2002-03	1,441,704	256	0.017
2003-04	2,287,109	623	0.027
2004-05	2,434,290	761	0.031
2005-06	2,772,929	633	0.022
Total	8,936,032	2,273	0.025

These cases are clearly regrettable, but represent a very small proportion of cases—0.025 per cent. of the total number of disclosures issued.

CRB staff use searching and matching techniques and arrangements approved by police forces. As with the police, when making their decision they must bear in mind that the source of much of the information recorded on the police national computer (PNC) database is provided by the individual concerned at the time of his or her arrest. CRB have to consider that the individual may deliberately choose to give or, in the heat of the moment, may be confused and give incomplete or incorrect information. The CRB is acutely aware of the human consequences of making an incorrect matching decision and does not do so lightly.

There may also be occasions when a person's identity has been stolen or their personal details used when someone else is in contact with the police. It is for these reasons that the CRB must err on the side of caution when an individual has the same or very similar personal details to those of someone who has a criminal record. This is because it is better to be safe than run the risk of letting an inappropriate person through.

When a disclosure is disputed the only safe way to resolve the situation is by asking the applicant to have his or her fingerprints taken at a local police station to help either confirm or overturn the original matching decision. There have been instances where the fingerprinting procedure has confirmed that an individual who has challenged the accuracy or the validity of the conviction information has been subsequently proved to be the owner of that conviction record.

The CRB will always apologise if the original matching decision is later found to be incorrect. In the event of a dispute the CRB notifies the prospective employer who would be aware of the CRB's code of practice that asks them not to take any precipitative action and defer any employment decision until the dispute is resolved. When a disclosure is disputed the CRB will inform all parties that this is the case, including the employer. Where the information contained in the disclosure is found not to relate to the applicant, a fresh disclosure will be issued free-of-charge to both the applicant and the registered body. 90 per cent. of disputes are resolved within 21 days.

A public consultation exercise was conducted in October 2003 about making greater use of fingerprinting at an earlier stage in the application process and to aid the matching and decision-making procedures. The overwhelming response was not in favour of such a measure.

It is worth noting that under the previous police checking arrangements, individuals were not able to see the criminal records information disclosed about them. The information would have been passed only to the prospective employer and not to the job applicant and the prospective employer would have had no obligation to pass on the contents of the information to the individual.

Criminal Records Data

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements are in place for sharing criminal records data of individuals from European Union countries admitted to the UK under the Workers Registration Scheme; and if he will make a statement. [79472]

Mr. McNulty: There are currently no arrangements in place for sharing criminal records of individuals from EU member states under the Workers Registration Scheme. The scheme exists to monitor the labour market impact of nationals of the new member states taking employment in the UK. It does not regulate their entry nor their fitness to take a particular job, and those registering under the scheme are not asked to provide details of criminal convictions.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what consultation has taken place with law enforcement professionals in the UK on the European Union pilot project on the sharing of EU citizens' criminal records; and if he will make a statement; [79419]

(2) whether the UK plans to take part in the European Union pilot project on the sharing of the criminal records of EU residents; and if he will make a statement. [79460]

Mr. McNulty: The European Union has put in place a Council Decision on the sharing of criminal conviction information between member states. There has been active consultation with the Association of Chief Police Officers, the Association of Chief Police Officers (Scotland) and the Police Service for Northern Ireland to ensure that the UK has arrangements in place to comply with the Council Decision.

It is proposed for the future enhancement of these arrangements to introduce an electronic method for exchanging criminal record information. To this end there is currently a 'pilot' taking place between Germany, Belgium, Spain and France. Further consultation with the relevant parties will be carried out before a decision is taken on whether to join the pilot.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions UK officials have had with law enforcement officials in (a) Bulgaria and (b) Romania on the implications for crime and law enforcement in the UK for those countries accession to the European Union in January 2007; and if he will make a statement. [79421]

Mr. Coaker: I have asked law enforcement authorities to work together to assess the impact of accession on the UK's crime and law enforcement and to take necessary mitigating action. Cooperation on law enforcement is a key part of the UK's relationship with Bulgaria and Romania. We continually engage with Bulgarian and Romanian law enforcement officials. The Commission Monitoring Report of 16 May recognised recent progress in tackling organised crime but highlighted the need for further action in preparation for accession. In our contacts with the Bulgarian and Romanian Governments we have repeatedly stressed the need to address the concerns of the Commission. We are also providing some capacity building support to the Bulgarian and Romanian law enforcement authorities.

Extradition

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been extradited (a) to and (b) from the UK in each of the last five years. [80834]

Mr. Byrne: The figures given in the table are for England and Wales only, as at 23 June 2006. They do not include extraditions to or from Scotland and Northern Ireland, where Ministers and judicial authorities have devolved powers to make or grant requests. They also exclude surrenders from or to the Republic of Ireland, prior to one January 2004, as those were made under the Backing of Warrants (Republic of Ireland) Act 1965, rather than under extradition legislation.

[1] The figures for 2004 and 2005 include extraditions to England and Wales made under part 3 of the Extradition Act 2003, and extraditions from England and Wales made under Part one of the Extradition Act 2003. Parts 1 and 3 of the Extradition Act 2003 implemented the European Arrest Warrant system with effect from one January 2004.

Firearms Certificates

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 10 November 2005, Official Report, column 652W to the hon. Member for Teignbridge (Richard Younger-Ross), on firearms certificates, what the equivalent information is for (a) England, (b) London and (c) each London borough. [29444]

The offence of possession of offensive weapons without lawful authority or reasonable excuse is covered under the Prevention of Crime Act 1953 S.1. The offence of having an article with a blade or point in a public place is covered by the Criminal Justice Act 1988 S.139.

Foreign Prisoners

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Somalian nationals were prosecuted for criminal offences in the UK in each of the last five years. [68882]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Hizb-ut-Tehrir

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will ban Hizb-ut-Tehrir under his powers of proscription of extremist and terrorist organisations; and if he will make a statement. [76535]

Mr. McNulty: The Terrorism Act 2006, which received Royal Assent on 30 March, widened the criteria for proscription to encompass those groups which glorify terrorism. All possible candidates for proscription will be considered against these widened criteria. We do not comment on individual groups that may be possible candidates for proscription.

The list of proscribed organisations is kept under constant review. For further information on proscribed groups please see:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/security/terrorism-and-the-law/terrorism-act/proscribed-groups?version=1

Hunting Act

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions have been brought under the Hunting Act 2004, broken down by offence. [80156]

Mr. Coaker: The Hunting Act 2004 came into force on 18 February 2005. Data on the number of prosecutions in 2005 will be available this autumn.

Khat

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his Department has conducted research into the prevalence of the use of khat in (a) England and (b) the London borough of Newham. [80632]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has not conducted research into the prevalence of khat use either nationally or at a local level. However, in 2005 the Home Office published the results of an interview study with 602 Somali people from communities in London, Birmingham, Bristol and Sheffield. This study reported the level and nature of khat use found among those interviewed as well as their attitudes towards khat use and their perceptions of its social and health effects, but it was not designed to assess general prevalence levels. The report is available in the House of Commons Library and on the Home Office website.

Labour Party Conference

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the costs of policing the Labour party conference in September 2006 will be met by Greater Manchester police. [76506]

Mr. McNulty: The Home Office provide special grant to police authorities to pay for the policing of the main annual party conferences.

Greater Manchester police have submitted a bid of £3.2 million (revenue) plus £1 million (capital) for policing the 2006 Labour party autumn conference. The application is being considered and a decision will be taken shortly.

Ministerial Meetings

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when (a) he and (b) his predecessors have met (i) the chairman and (ii) the members of the Sentencing Guidelines Council to discuss their roles within the criminal justice system. [80644]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Home Secretary has regular meetings with the Lord Chief Justice to discuss matters of mutual interest. The previous Home Secretary visited the Sentencing Guidelines Council on 4 May 2006 and met the members.

National Wildlife Crime Intelligence Unit

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of the funding for the National Wildlife Crime Intelligence Unit for 2006-07 is being provided by his Department; and what arrangements are in place for the future funding of this Unit. [80769]

Mr. Coaker: In 2006-07 the Home Office is providing 5 per cent. of the funding towards the National Wildlife Crime Unit. This is one half of one full-time post.

Discussions about the future funding of the Unit will take place later in the year.

Offender Managers

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Government expect to have a named offender manager for all offenders. [80375]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Based on current planning assumptions, all offenders sentenced to a community order or custodial sentence will have an offender manager by September 2008.

Parking Tickets

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many parking tickets were issued by the Trent Valley division of the Staffordshire police force in each of the last five years. [80142]

Mr. Coaker: Available information on fixed penalty notices relating to all offences of obstruction, waiting and parking within the Staffordshire police force area during the calendar years 2000 to 2004 (latest available) is given in the following table. It is not possible from the data collected centrally to identify the Trent Valley division within the geographical area covered by the Staffordshire police force.

Information for 2005 will be available early in 2007.

Fixed penalty data for obstruction, waiting and parking offences[1], Staffordshire police force area, 2000-04

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department why it took until 22 May 2006 to send a substantive reply to question 48371 on HMP Chelmsford tabled by the hon. Member for West Chelmsford for answer on 6 February; and if he will make a statement. [73866]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 5 June 2006]: I am sorry the hon. Member did not receive a more prompt reply to his question.

Ministers and officials make every effort to answer questions substantively in accordance with performance guidelines. However this delay is unacceptable.

I have asked those responsible for oversight of my Department's PQs to improve our performance.

Passports

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people who applied to renew their UK passports in 2005 did so with a current address in the Irish Republic. [80750]

Joan Ryan: The number of passports issued by the British embassy in Dublin in financial year 2005-06 is 10,817.

Identity and Passport Service (IPS) do not issue passports to applicants with a current address outside of the UK. This is due to the security issues relating to distributing passports by post.

Applicants who reside in the Irish Republic and who do not have a valid UK address are required to renew their passports via a local British embassy office.

Police

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he will announce final proposals for police force restructuring in the South West of England. [77127]

Mr. McNulty: As my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary announced during the course of Home Office oral questions on 19 June, no Orders for Home Secretary initiated police force mergers will be laid before the summer recess. Instead, we want to spend the coming months engaging with police forces and police authorities, including those in the South West, in discussions on the best way forward.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what financial assistance his Department intends to give to Lancashire and Cumbria police authorities to assist in their voluntary merger. [79818]

Mr. McNulty: We have currently offered Lancashire and Cumbria police a total of £17.8 million in restructuring grants, reflecting our commitment to paying 100 per cent. of reasonable set up revenue and capital costs of restructuring, net of reasonable savings, and reflecting their trailblazer status. We expect to come to a final agreement in the autumn.

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the cost of bringing protective services in the four Welsh police forces up to the level considered fit for purpose in the report Closing the Gap. [60353]

Mr. McNulty: The case submitted by the four Welsh police authorities in December 2005 identified costs and benefits of force merger, including a considerable investment to provide an uplift in protective services.

Our assessment, based on independent financial review and professional moderation, is that the same benefits could be realised for a much lower investment. The Home Office continues to work with Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary and the Welsh police forces and authorities to review the business case, to refine the costs and benefits of providing the necessary uplift in protective service provision while achieving best value for money.

The operational assessment that a single authority and force for Wales is the best for protecting people better from serious crime and terrorism remains unchanged.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been shot by police firearms units and subsequently not been charged with any offence in each of the last five years. [76396]

Mr. McNulty: This information is not collected centrally.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been shot by police firearms units resulting in (a) an injury and (b) a fatality in each of the last five years. [76397]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not collected in the form requested. Since 2001 there have been 27 separate incidents where conventional weapons were discharged by armed police officers in England and Wales. I understand from ACPO that 16 people have been fatally shot, and a further six people have received an injury. A breakdown by year is shown in the following table.

Number of incidents at which firearms discharged by a police officer (England and Wales)

	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006[1]
Fatal	4	2	2	2	6	—
Injury	—	2	2	1	1	—
No injury	—	1	1		1	1
Not known	—	—	—	—	1	—

[1] To 31 March 2006

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the estimated cost involved in the reorganisation of existing police forces into the Yorkshire and Humber regional force is; and from where the required resources will be provided. [67511]

Mr. McNulty: Based on financial projections currently available and being refined, a net saving from restructuring of £37 million is projected during the first five years of operation of a combined authority.

The Government have undertaken to pay 100 per cent. of reasonable set up revenue and capital costs, net of reasonable savings.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make a statement on the future of the (a) civilian staff and (b) specialist police staff involved in level 2 operations and forensic management who are working at the new Gloucestershire constabulary headquarters at Quedgeley if the proposed police restructuring goes ahead. [65519]

Mr. McNulty: The proposed merger of police forces into new strategic forces addresses an identified weakness in current provision and is intended to strengthen forces' ability to deliver protective services to the public. No decision has yet been made in respect of forces in SW England including Gloucestershire. Decisions about future posts will be for the new strategic forces management teams to determine. Should a new force be created, staff and police officers in post in precursor forces at the time its creation would transfer to the new force.

Private Security Companies

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he estimates the backlog of licence applications will be cleared by the Security Industry Authority. [79289]

Mr. Coaker: Having received a large number of late applications, the SIA currently has a backlog waiting to enter the system. This is currently adding between two and four weeks to the processing time, so it is now taking up to 10 weeks to process most applications. The SIA has put significant additional resources into clearing this backlog, and expect it will have been cleared by early August.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many private security companies were not compliant with the Private Security Industry Act 2001 at 21 March (a) 2001 and (b) 2006. [79291]

Mr. Coaker: The Private Security Industry Act 2001 requires individuals (not companies) who undertake designated activities to hold the appropriate Security Industry Authority (SIA) licence. Security companies can seek to achieve approved company status (ACS) but this scheme is voluntary.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how long he expects applications submitted for the licensing of close protection industry operatives to take to be processed; [68444]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to reduce the backlog of close protection licences. [68445]

Mr. Coaker: The information is as follows.

(a) The SIA have a published target of processing 80 per cent. of all applications within six weeks, measured from the date that a properly completed application enters the processing system to the date that a licence is issued. Since September 2005, there has been a backlog of applications that have been waiting to enter the system. These have added an additional time of between two and four weeks to the process, so it is now taking up to 10 weeks to process most applications. As of 13 June there were 7,933 of applications for the manned guarding sector in this backlog.

(b) The SIA has put significant additional resources into clearing this backlog, and expect that by early August applications will achieve the SIA's published target.

Restorative Justice

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps have been taken to increase the use of restorative justice. [80376]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government strongly support the use of restorative justice given its proven benefits for victims. We published our restorative justice strategy in July 2003, best practice guidance for practitioners was issued in December 2004 and guidance on setting up adult restorative justice schemes was issued to local criminal justice boards in March 2005.

Restorative justice has been a central part of the youth justice system since the Crime and Disorder Act 1998. Contact with the victim or reparation can be part of all youth justice disposals, including Final Warnings, Referral Orders, Reparation Orders, Action Plan Orders and Supervision Orders.

We encourage the use of restorative justice in the adult criminal justice system, particularly as a service to victims and it can, for example, be delivered as part of a conditional caution. We are building an evidence base on the impact of restorative justice on re-offending to inform our longer-term strategy for adults.

Sentencing Bodies (Appointments)

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions his Department has had with (a) the Department for Constitutional Affairs, (b) the Lord Chancellor and (c) the Lord Chief Justice on the appointment of members to the (i) Sentencing Guidelines Council and (ii) Sentencing Advisory Panel. [80354]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Home Secretary, the Lord Chancellor and the Lord Chief Justice consult each other, as required by statute, on the appointments to the Sentencing Guidelines Council and the Sentencing Advisory Panel.

Terrorism

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) trained surveillance teams and (b) individuals are employed by the Home Office to monitor terrorist suspects in the UK. [66870]

Mr. McNulty: The monitoring of terrorist suspects is primarily carried out by law enforcement and intelligence agencies, not the Home Office.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance his Department has given to police officers on identifying those who should be stopped and searched under the Terrorism Act 2000. [50229]

Mr. McNulty: We are continuing to work with police and other stakeholders to develop detailed guidance on the circumstances in which stop and search powers under the Terrorism Act 2000 should be used in order to increase consistency and reassure the public that the powers are used appropriately. This work has had considerable input from police authorities, community representatives and other interest groups. Interim guidance was published on 22 December 2005 by the National Centre for Policing Excellence on this subject, and can be viewed on the ACPO website. A final version of the guidance will be published later this year.

The Home Office also published the Stop and Search Manual in March 2005, which provides guidance on best practice in relation to all stop and search powers. The Codes of Practice issued under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 also include guidance on the use of stop and search powers, both generally and specifically in relation to powers under the Terrorism Act.

Young Offenders

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the re-offending rate was for inmates detained at (a) local authority secure units, (b) secure training centres and (c) young offenders' institutions in the last period for which figures are available. [79863]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Re-offending rates are not available broken down by type of custodial institution.

The most recent information on the re-offending of juveniles was published in June 2006 as 'Juvenile re-offending: results from the 2004 cohort. Home Office On-Line Report 10/06'. The report is available on line at: http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs06/hosb1006.pdf. This includes re-offending rates for juveniles given custodial sentences.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the House of Commons finance director. [80084]

Nick Harvey: The House's director of finance and administration since 1997 is Andrew Walker. He has over 20 years experience in the Inland Revenue and HM Treasury in a variety of tax and management positions. He is assisted in his duties as finance director by appropriately qualified and experienced staff in the Financial Management Directorate. He is due to complete an accountancy qualification course (CIPFA) during 2007-08.

Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Martin Horwood: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what recent estimates have been made of the level of greenhouse gas emissions produced by the House estate in the form of (a) carbon dioxide, (b) methane, (c) nitrous oxide, (d) tetrafluoromethane, (e) hexafluoroethane and (f) sulphur hexafluoride. [80773]

Nick Harvey: The total quantity of carbon dioxide emissions produced on, or attributable to, the House of Commons element of the parliamentary estate in 2005-06 is estimated at 10,300 tonnes. The released quantities of the other five greenhouse gasses are not measured but the quantities are estimated to be small.

Parliamentary Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will make it his policy to ensure that unnumbered Command Papers are indexed in PIMS, together with their location and date of publication; and if he will make a statement. [81244]

Nick Harvey: The Library already indexes all unprinted Command Papers in PIMS. Unprinted (or unnumbered) commands appear in the Vote as being laid "by Command", (as opposed to "by Act"), and are treated accordingly. They are given running numbers which start each session, for ease of retrieval. These numbers appear in PIMS. Each unprinted Command Paper is also retrievable by subject, issuing department, date or name of organisation etc.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Rural Post Offices

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what steps he will be taking to encourage cross-departmental working on the future of rural post offices. [79425]

The Deputy Prime Minister: As Chairman of the Cabinet Committee on the Post Office Network (MISC 33) set up in May of this year, I have a key role in bringing together different Departments to discuss issues relating to rural post offices and to deliver agreement on actions.

The Government remains committed to rural post offices as demonstrated by our £750 million package of support—£150 million per year for five years to 2008—through the Social Network Payment.

I will continue to work with ministerial colleagues to ensure that Government policy-making in this area is coordinated effectively.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Honour Crimes

22. Dr. Kumar: To ask the Solicitor-General what work the Crown Prosecution Service is doing in relation to crimes known as honour crimes. [80904]

The Solicitor-General: The CPS is determined that when these crimes are uncovered they will be prosecuted firmly, fairly and robustly. The CPS wishes to encourage victims and witnesses of honour crimes to come forward and send out a message that this behaviour will not be tolerated. They are working closely with partners in the criminal justice system and the community and voluntary sector to raise awareness and develop strategies for tackling and preventing honour crimes.

Sentencing

23. Keith Vaz: To ask the Solicitor-General if he will assess how the Crown Prosecution Service can better inform victims about the length of a sentence given to a criminal. [80905]

The Solicitor-General: The Prosecutors' Pledge, introduced by the Attorney-General in October 2005, requires prosecutors to support victims from point of charge through to any appeal. The Pledge underpins the Code of Practice for Victims of Crime, implemented in April 2006. The Code requires Witness Care Units to explain to victims the effect of the sentence within one working day. Further information may be provided to victims who require it by the CPS or the Probation Service.

Craig Sweeney

Mr. Martyn Jones: To ask the Solicitor-General if he will refer the case of Craig Sweeney to the Court of Appeal as an unduly lenient sentence. [80898]

The Solicitor-General: My right hon. Friend the Attorney-General is considering the papers in this case, and will reach a decision shortly. As in all cases of this type, he has to comply with a strict time limit of 28 days from the date the sentence was passed in making his decision.

The power to refer is exercised in the public interest. The Attorney will make his decision purely on the merits of the case and not in response to political or public pressure.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of his Department. [80083]

Mr. Thomas: Richard Calvert is Director of Finance and Corporate Performance at DFID. He is a member of the Chartered Institute of Management Accountants and has a masters degree in law. He has held a range of policy and operational posts in DFID including serving in the UK Delegation to the EU in Brussels, as Private Secretary to the Secretary of State, and as Head of the Information and Civil Society Department.

Before taking up his present post in September 2003, he worked on secondment as Head of Service Quality in the Children, Schools and Families Directorate at Hertfordshire county council.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many websites there are within his responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79064]

Mr. Thomas: The information requested is as follows:

Overall costs maintaining DFID websites are as follows:

Main DFID website and two country office sites—£127,097 for 2005.

Developments magazine—£11,500 for 2005.

Research for Development portal—£293,464 set up costs for 2005.

Specialist audience sites include:

AIDSPortal—£355,000 since 2004.

Sending Money Home—£9,650 to set up. There are no maintenance costs.

Good Humanitarian Donorship initiative—£1,500 to set up. There are no maintenance costs.

Financial Deepening Challenge Fund's website—average costs are £2,000 per year.

Illegal-Fishing.info—£40,000 to maintain in 2005.

Asia 2015 Conference website—£14,000 to set up and maintain in 2005.

PASS Livelihoods—£36,824 from October 2005-September 2006

The Business Linkages Challenge Fund—£2,565 for January-December 2005.

EC-PREP—£2,500 for January-December 2005.

There are a number of websites set up as part of DFID funding to contractors or professional organisations. Contractors are responsible for maintaining these and have therefore not been included here. Figures are included as part of the overall contract.

HIV/AIDS

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the recent UN General Assembly Special Session on HIV/AIDS. [80322]

Mr. Thomas: The United Nations General Assembly High Level Meeting agreed a Political Declaration which met virtually all of the UK's objectives, including: committing countries to develop, by the end of 2006, ambitious national plans to scale up towards universal access by 2010 to comprehensive HIV prevention programmes, treatment, care and support, with interim targets for 2008; to ensure that no credible, sustainable national plan should go unfunded, recognising the need to provide from donor countries, national budgets and other sources $20-23 billion annually by 2010 for AIDS responses; and to intensify efforts to develop new technology especially microbicides and vaccines.

Middle East

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what discussions he has had with his counterparts from Arab states regarding their potential contribution to the temporary international mechanism to channel assistance directly to the Palestinian people; [80998]

(2) what discussions he has had with his EU counterparts about the sums of money the EU expects to commit to the temporary international mechanism to channel assistance directly to the Palestinian people set out in the European Council Presidency Conclusions of 15 and 16 June. [80927]

Mr. Thomas: The UK has encouraged contributions to the temporary international mechanism for Palestinian basic needs from the European Union, Arab donors and other members of the international donor community. The European Community is making a contribution of €105 million. We are expecting individual EU member states to release statements regarding their contributions shortly. The mechanism is open to any donor that wishes to contribute.

Plant Breeding

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what funding has been allocated by his Department to strengthen public sector research on seed varieties (a) in the UK and (b) overseas; and if he will ask the World Bank to increase its lending for such projects; [79836]

(2) if he will list the public sector projects his Department has funded for plant breeding in developing countries in the last three years; [79789]

(3) whether his Department has (a) undertaken and (b) commissioned research into (i) the extent of the role of the private sector within the global seed industry and (ii) the impact of the private sector's role on (A) developing new plant varieties for poor farmers and (B) the diversity of genetic resources available to public plant breeders. [80391]

Mr. Thomas: DFID has allocated a total of £15.8 million to support public sector research on improved seed varieties, including plant breeding, over the past three years. The vast majority of research supported has been carried out overseas, with some advanced research being carried out at UK institutions, including the John Innes centre and the university of Leeds.

DFID is already working with the World Bank and other donors to see how we can increase the quality and quantity of aid given for agricultural research. For example, we are working in Africa to support regional agricultural research programmes. We expect this will lead to increased grants and loans for research from the World Bank and other donors. We expect some of these funds will be used to support plant breeding and development of new seed varieties that meet the needs of poor farmers.

DFID's Plant Sciences Research Programme managed by the centre for arid zone studies at the university of Wales at Bangor allocated £3.6 million over the last three years for plant breeding research with overseas partners. This included work on: resistance of pearl millet to downey mildew, nematode resistance of rice, banana and potato, aluminium tolerance in wheat, new breeding methods based on farmer participation in design and selection of varieties of rice, maize and cassava, and genetic marker assisted methods for pearl millet improvement.

DFID also provides core funding to the international agricultural research centres of the Consultative Group for International Agricultural Research (CGIAR). Centres vary in the proportion of their budgets devoted to plant breeding. Of the core support DFID has given to centres, over the last three years, we estimate that £12.2 million has been used to support research on plant breeding and improving crop varieties for the benefit of poor people in developing countries.

DFID has not undertaken, or commissioned, research into the extent of, and impact on, the role of the private sector within the global seed industry. However policy research has been carried out which examined the pros and cons of revenue generation from public plant breeding and links to the private sector. (Tripp and Byerlee 2000, http://www.odi.org.uk/NRP/57.html). DFID is also supporting the Seeds of Development Programme managed by the university of Cornell. The purpose of this programme is to better understand the role of private sector in achieving agricultural growth which benefits poor people by improving their access to better quality seeds.

Somaliland

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance his Department has provided to Loughborough university's water engineering development centre in its work on developing Somaliland's water programme. [80592]

Mr. Thomas: We are aware of Loughborough university's links with Somaliland. We do not support these directly but are funding a number of projects with UNICEF who have supported some of Loughborough university's activities in Somaliland. UNICEF also undertake considerable work in water and sanitation with the authorities in Somaliland on behalf of DFID and a number of other donors.

Water Provision

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the role of private companies in delivering water in developing nations. [80321]

Mr. Thomas: DFID's assessment is that there are circumstances when the private sector can play a role in meeting the needs of poor people. This is because, in spite of extensive technical assistance, public water utilities in developing countries have found it difficult to improve their performance and outreach. This has come about for a variety of reasons that we need to understand and learn from. DFID continuously assesses and learns from examples of public and private sector participation in delivering water.

There are good and bad examples of both public and private service provision. The best approach often involves partnerships between the public sector, the private sector and communities. An important factor for success is effective regulation, with enforceable contracts that set out clearly what is expected. One example is a four-year public-private partnership in South Africa focusing on poor rural communities, which has brought water to more than nine million people in five provinces.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY

Animal Experiments

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what funding the National Centre for the Replacement, Refinement and Reduction of Animals in Research received in 2005-06 (a) in total, (b) from the Medical Research Council, (c) the Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council, (d) from pharmaceutical companies and (e) from other sources; and what the percentage change in funding is for 2006-07. [80770]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The National Centre for the Replacement, Refinement and Reduction of Animals in Research (NC3RS) received £954,402 from its funders during 2005-06 as follows:

Medical Research Council (MRC)	600,000
Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council (BBSRC)	66,667
Home Office	125,000
Industry	75,000
Charity	75,000
Other	12,735
Total	954,402

The Centre's budget for 2006-07 funding is projected to increase by 141 per cent.

Copyright Infringement

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what budget his Department has set for helping businesses combat (a) copyright infringement and (b) industrial espionage in each year since 1997. [80240]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department, especially through the Patent Office, helps businesses to combat copyright infringement in a number of ways, for example through raising awareness of the intellectual property system and the value of intellectual property, as well as coordinating enforcement action against intellectual property crime. However, as our awareness activities usually cover the whole range of intellectual property and as copyright infringement on a commercial scale is usually associated with other offences, we do not have figures available relating specifically to copyright infringement.

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent representations he has received on copyright infringement. [80241]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have not received any recent representations specifically relating to copyright infringement, apart from the hon. Member, although I am aware of the concerns of the creative industries in this area.

In December last year the Chancellor asked Andrew Gowers to lead an independent review of the Intellectual Property Framework. The review is looking at practical issues affecting businesses and consumers and will report to the Government this autumn.

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many prosecutions for copyright infringements there have been in England and Wales in each year since 1997. [80242]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following figures are the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts under the various copyright offences in England and Wales.

	Number of defendants
1997	169
1998	158
1999	152
2000	151
2001	110
2002	97
2003	111
2004	134

Notes:
Figures for 2005 are not yet available. Figures relating to specifically copyright offences before the crown court are not available.

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent estimate he has made of the cost of copyright infringement is to (a) the UK economy and (b) the EU economy. [80244]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Currently there are no reliable estimates of the value of counterfeit goods being sold in the UK. This lack of evidence makes it impossible to estimate the cost of copyright infringement to both the UK and the EU economies. But our recently published National Intellectual Property Enforcement Report provides a general assessment of the threats and challenges faced by IP rights' owners and how our IP crime strategy is dealing with these issues.

The Patent Office and the DTI are helping to sponsor the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) in an international study to develop methodologies and a clearer assessment of the scope and scale of counterfeiting and piracy throughout the world. The Study is scheduled to produce its first results towards the end of 2006.

The EU-US action strategy for the Enforcement of Intellectual Property Rights statement issued last week recognised the need for the OECD study to provide reliable data.

Counterfeit Goods

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent estimate he has made of the value of counterfeit goods sold in the UK. [80243]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There are currently no reliable estimates of the value of counterfeit goods being sold in the UK. But our recently published National Intellectual Property Enforcement Report provides a general assessment of the threats and challenges faced by IP rights' owners and how our IP crime strategy is dealing with these issues.

The Patent Office and the DTI are helping to sponsor the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) in an international study to develop methodologies and a clearer assessment of the scope and scale of counterfeiting and piracy throughout the world. The Study is scheduled to produce its first results towards the end of 2006.

Defence Industry

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what his Department's areas of responsibility are with regards to (a) the defence industry and (b) the export of weapons. [80260]

Malcolm Wicks: The information is as follows:

(a) The Enterprise and Business Group of the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) is responsible for the Government's manufacturing strategy. In this role, it promotes the legitimate interests of a wide range of UK businesses including the UK defence industry and its supply chain and also works to secure investment and research and development that bring benefits to the UK economy. It is Government policy, as set out in the Defence Industrial Strategy, for wider industrial factors to be taken into account on major defence equipment procurements and DTI contributes to this industrial analysis.

(b) Separately, the Department discharges the statutory functions vested in the Secretary of State by the 'Export Control Act 2002'. Principally, this is to process applications for licences to export items whose export is controlled by that Act. This function is carried out by the Export Control and Non-Proliferation directorate, a part of Energy Group.

Departmental Websites

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many websites there are within his responsibilities; and what the total cost of maintaining such websites was in the last year for which figures are available. [79062]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We operate one core DTI website, www.dti.gov.uk, within which there are links to a wider community of websites managed by partner agencies and other arm's length bodies. We are aware of 48 DTI websites hosted by other domains.

The support for the Department's core website is included in the overall service charge paid monthly under the IT service contract in place since 1 April 1999. There is no separation of website costs in this charge.

Information about the Department's other websites is not held centrally and to gather it would involve disproportionate cost.

Energy Review

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Wellingborough (Mr. Bone) of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 874W, on the Energy Review, how many of the responses to the Energy Review were from (a) individuals, (b) businesses, (c) schools, (d) academia, (e) non-government organisations and (f) other organisations; and what proportions of each were (i) in favour of and (ii) opposed to the extension of nuclear energy generation. [80382]

Malcolm Wicks: We received over 5,300 responses to the Energy Review consultation, expressing a range of views on many aspects of the energy industry. Releasing figures for only some of the responses to the consultation, out of context and without accompanying analysis, has the potential to mislead the public by focusing on the views and comments of only one section of the respondents.

We will publish a summary of the responses to the Energy Review consultation in the coming weeks. The responses are currently being posted in full on the DTI website: www.dti.gov.uk/energy/review.

Nuclear Power Industry

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much the Government spent on nuclear power in each of the last five years. [80832]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government's expenditure on civil nuclear energy from 2001 to 2006 is set out as follows.

Figures for direct Government expenditure (but not including spending by the Research Councils) on nuclear fission are given in the following table:

Financial year	Nuclear fission (£ million)
2001-02	2.0
2002-03	2.1
2003-04	2.1
2004-05	2.2
2005-06	2.3

Note:
Expenditure is in support of emergency support arrangements provided by the Met Office in the event of a nuclear release into the atmosphere, and includes a contribution towards the cost of the underpinning meteorological modelling capability

In addition, expenditure by the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council on research in aspects of nuclear fission is as follows:

Financial year	Nuclear fission (£ million)
2001-02	0.33
2002-03	0.31
2003-04	0.21
2004-05	0.11
2005-06	0.95

Figures for nuclear fusion R and D are given in the following table:

Financial year	Nuclear fission (£ million)
2001-02	14.4
2002-03	14.6
2003-04	15.6
2004-05	19.5

In terms of British Energy, a loan facility was provided to the company in 2002 to support it through its restructuring. This loan was re-paid in full with interest in December 2003 and no further drawings can be made. As a result of the restructuring which completed in January 2005, the Government have taken direct financial responsibility for BE's historic spent fuel liabilities. The following payments have been made since restructuring to meet those historic spent fuel liabilities: 2004-05—£185 million; 2005-06—£189 million. The Government are also underwriting British Energy's decommissioning fund to the extent that its liabilities outweigh its assets. In return the company is making enhanced payments into the fund. On current valuations, the assets of the fund exceed the liabilities.

The Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA) assumed responsibility for the UK's historic nuclear legacy on 1 April 2005. The legacy is made up of experimental facilities created 30 and 40 years ago and which were built without any consideration at the time for future decommissioning and clean up. About 80 per cent. of the total legacy costs relate to Sellafield and Dounreay—neither of which ever produced much electricity. In its approved Strategy the NDA set out its proposals for nuclear clean up which is estimated to be £62.7 billion. This is the life time cost of clean up—likely to take up to 100 years plus to implement.

Under the 2004 Spending Review the NDA received a budget of £2.2 billion for 2005-06—about half of which was to be raised by the NDA's commercial activities. Following the successful conclusion of the EC State Aid Review on 4 April 2006, financial responsibility for decommissioning BNFL sites has passed to the NDA under the Energy Act 2004. Until this point BNFL held nuclear funding assets of some £17.3 billion on its balance sheet to fund future decommissioning costs. Following the transfer of the nuclear decommissioning liability to the NDA, these assets have been transferred back to the Government.

Figures relating to spend by the Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs are unavailable and could be compiled only at disproportionate cost.

Racial Abuse Complaints

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how many complaints of racial abuse in his Department have been (a) investigated and (b) upheld in each of the last five years. [72903]

Mr. Darling: The number of formal complaints of discrimination on the grounds of race investigated and upheld in the past five years is contained in the following table:

	Complaints made	Complaints upheld
2005	3	0
2004	5	2
2003	2	1
2002	3	0

Renewable Energy

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what support is being given by the Government to companies interested in generating energy from tidal lagoons. [76542]

Malcolm Wicks: This type of scheme is the application of conventional technology therefore the primary mechanism for Government support is the Renewables Obligation.

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what recent representations he has received on tidal lagoon electricity generation; and what contribution he expects this method of generation to make to the Government's targets for the use of renewables. [76543]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has received a number of representations from two organisations regarding a single tidal lagoon project in the U.K.

The Government have set a target of 10 per cent. of electricity in the UK to come from renewables by 2010. However, we have not specified what level of contribution should come from individual technologies. That is left to industry, being consistent with the Government's policy of an open and competitive energy market.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry how much public subsidy was given to the renewable energy industry in each of the last nine years. [80044]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer the hon. Member to my reply to the hon. Member for Leominster (Bill Wiggin) on 12 September 2005, Official Report, column 2262W.

Rural Post Offices

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1748W, on the Rural Post Office Network, why he is not working to a specific timetable for the consultation on the future of the Rural Post Office Network. [80868]

Jim Fitzpatrick: With a funding support package of £150 million a year for the rural network in place until 2008, we believe it is more important to ensure that we have the fullest possible data and information on which to assess future options than to work to a prematurely predetermined consultation timetable.

Small Arms Trade

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what (a) standard individual trade control licences and (b) Open individual trade control licences have been issued to (i) York Guns, (ii) Jago Ltd. and (iii) Procurement Management Services Ltd. since June 2003 for the transfer of small arms from Bosnia to Iraq or any other destination countries. [80458]

Malcolm Wicks: Trade control licence applications are made to the Government in confidence and the information they contain is therefore exempt from disclosure. Further, the Government can neither confirm nor deny that an export licence has been applied for in this instance.

The Government publish details of trade control licences issued, in their annual and quarterly reports on strategic export controls. The Government's annual reports are available from the Libraries of the House and the DTI Export Control Organisation website at http://www.dti.gov.uk/europeandtrade/strategic-export-control/index.html.

Smart Grids

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Trade and Industry what research he has commissioned into the evolution of smart grids to enhance the existing national grid. [80017]

Malcolm Wicks: The joint DTI/Ofgem/industry 'distributed generation co-ordinating group' (DGCG) commissioned a key study on this topic that was led by the Institution of Electrical Engineers to work with all parties in the sector to form a vision for future networks. This work reported last year—the "Technical Architecture" report is available at:

http://www.ofgem.gov.uk/temp/ofgem/cache/cmsattach/11732_TA.pdf

The group's work continues under the re-formed Electricity Networks Strategy Group (ENSG).

Separately, Ofgem and British academics, supported by DTI and British companies, have been active participants in the European Union's Technology platform that has developed a vision for Europe's Electricity Networks of the Future. Their 'SmartGrids' report was published recently and is available at:

http://europa.eu.int/comm/research/energy/pdf/smartgrids_en.pdf

DEFENCE

Aerospace Industry

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer by the Minister of State for Industry and the Regions (Margaret Hodge) of 15 June 2006, Official Report, column 1410W, on the aerospace industry, what discussions he has had with BAE Systems on securing ongoing export contracts for the Brough site; and if he will make a statement. [79875]

Mr. Ingram: The Government's decision to acquire the Hawk 128 for the Royal Air Force helped to secure in 2004 a major order from India for 66 aircraft. The Government of Bahrain has also ordered the aircraft. The Ministry of Defence, through the Defence Export Services Organisation, is giving BAE Systems strong support to win further export orders.

My noble Friend, the Minister for Defence Procurement (Lord Drayson) has regular meetings with BAE Systems to discuss a range of topics, including matters affecting the company's plans for work to be undertaken at their Brough site where the Hawk aircraft is manufactured.

Afghanistan

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many mobilised reservists from each of the three services are deployed in Helmand Province, Afghanistan. [80722]

Mr. Watson: The number of reservists serving in specific areas of an operation's Joint Operational Area (JOA) is not recorded. However, the number of reservists serving in the Operation HERRICK JOA on 31 May 2006 was:

	Number
Royal Navy	2
Army	142
Royal Air Force	10

Aldermaston

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the planned expenditure on hydrodynamic testing at the Aldermaston Atomic Weapons Establishment is in each of the next three years. [78952]

Des Browne: It is planned to spend in the order of £5 million on hydrodynamic testing at the Atomic Weapons Establishment this year, rising to around £6 million by the end of 2007-08. The precise budget beyond that has not been finalised.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the projected capital costs are for the construction of the centralised Explosive Handling Facility at the Atomic Weapons Establishment, Aldermaston. [79093]

Des Browne: Mature costings are not available and disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice commercial interests.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the projected capital costs are for the construction of new Material Science facilities at the Atomic Weapons Establishment sites at Aldermaston and Burghfield. [79094]

Des Browne: Mature costings are not available and disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice commercial interests.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans there are to introduce a petaflop computing capability at the UK Atomic Weapons Establishment. [79095]

Des Browne: Petaflop technology is not expected to be available before the end of the decade.

Ballistic Missile Interceptors

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions the Government have had with US authorities on siting land based ballistic missile interceptors in (a) the UK and (b) UK territorial waters. [80385]

Des Browne: Officials work closely with the United States on joint technology programmes and to further our understanding of the US ballistic missile defence system. Their discussions include the modelling of possible missile defence architectures. However, we have had no discussions about the use of specific sites for interceptors in the United Kingdom.

Defence Training Review

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what dates his Department has met (a) employees and (b) consultants of Foresight Communications to discuss (i) the Defence Training Review and (ii) other matters, in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [78110]

Mr. Watson: To my knowledge, no members of the Ministry of Defence who are involved with the Defence Training Review have met employees or consultants of Foresight Communications in the last 12 months. I cannot answer for everyone within the Department on this matter as the information is not held centrally and would incur disproportionate costs to retrieve.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 709W, on departmental staff, what assessment he has made of the reasons for the change in the number of staff failing to achieve an acceptable mark in their annual report since 2002-03; and what measures have been put in place to address the issue. [80789]

Mr. Watson: The increase in numbers year on year was partly due to the introduction of industrial staff to performance appraisal as part of the Ministry of Defence four year pay deal. Also, the figures provided in the answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 709W, were, as explained, a snapshot at the end of the reporting year. We have, throughout the pay deal, raised line manager awareness of the impact on pay of failing to address poor performance at the end of the reporting year and the increase in numbers show that managers were responding to this. The Department remains keen for line managers to deal with poor performers and to manage them out if they do not respond to encouragement and assistance to improve their performance.

Departmental Televisions

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many television sets are in operation in the Department (a) in total, (b) in Minister's private offices and (c) in each office building in the Department; and how many television licences are held by the Department. [62798]

Mr. Watson: The information requested on the total number of televisions, their locations and licenses is not held centrally and could not be collected without disproportionate cost and effort. However, in respect of the Department's three central London office buildings, there are 100 televisions in the Main Building—of which there is one in the office of each of the four Ministers; 83 in the Old War Office Building; and 10 in St. George's Court. Two TV licences are held for the Main Building, and one each for the Old War Office Building and St. George's Court.

Future Aircraft Carrier Project

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what impact he expects negotiations with the US Administration on the transfer of technology and software for the Joint Strike Fighter to have on the Future Aircraft Carrier Project. [80723]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 27 June 2006]: We remain optimistic that our negotiations with the US administration on the transfer of technology and software for the Joint Strike Fighter will be successful and as such will have no impact on the Future Aircraft Carrier programme. We remain fully committed to the Future Aircraft Carrier programme which represents a quantum step up in military capability for the UK's armed forces.

Hutton Report

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 16 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1524-25W, on the Hutton Report, at what time of day, and on what day, the press statement from his predecessor, the right hon. Member for Ashfield (Mr. Hoon), reference 168/03 and dated 19 July 2003, available on the Government News Network website, was (a) cleared for release and (b) released under embargo to the media. [81218]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 16 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1524-25W.

Iraq

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many mobilised reservists are deployed in Iraq, broken down by service. [80721]

Mr. Watson: On 31 May 2006 each service had the following number of reserve personnel serving in the Operation TELIC Joint Operational Area:

	Number
Royal Navy	1
Royal Marines	2
Army	422
Royal Air Force	63

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to publish the findings of the investigation into the fatal attack of 13 May on British troops serving in Basra. [80869]

Mr. Ingram: The Service Police Report resulting from the Royal Military Police (Special Investigation Branch) investigation into the fatal attack of 13 May on British troops serving in Basra is not yet complete. Service Police Reports are not made public, although they are provided to the relevant Coroner's Office for use at the inquest.

It has yet to be decided whether a Service Board of Inquiry into this incident will be held. If there is to be a Board of Inquiry, its findings will be made available to the next of kin of the deceased once it is complete.

The Army is in contact with the families of the deceased soldiers and is keeping them informed of developments.

Joint Personnel Administration

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what changes (a) have been made and (b) are planned to (i) concessionary travel, (ii) living allowances, (iii) other allowances and (iv) compensation for each of the armed forces as a consequence of the introduction of Joint Personnel Administration; and if he will make a statement. [79662]

Mr. Watson: Due to the amount of information requested I have placed a detailed response in the Library of the House.

Joint Striker Fighter

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions his Department has had with the US Defense Department on sharing of (a) stealth technology and (b) flight control software for the Joint Strike Fighter project. [80724]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 27 June 2006]: As part of the continuing process of preparing to operate the Joint Strike Fighter as a sovereign capability, Ministers and senior officials have had a wide range of discussions with US counterparts on all aspects of the Joint Strike Fighter programme. As my noble Friend, the Minister for Defence Procurement, has previously explained in another place, those discussions have raised the issue of information access and explained the UK's requirements for operational sovereignty. These detailed discussions continue and we remain optimistic that they will be successful.

Meteor Beyond-visual-range Air-to-air Missile

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the results of MBDA's first test firing of the Meteor beyond-visual-range air-to-air missile on 9 May; and whether the development of the Meteor missile is on schedule. [79542]

Mr. Ingram: The first firing of a Meteor missile took place on 9 May. The missile maintained full guidance control throughout its planned flight. Data were successfully collected during the flight and the debris was recovered. A second firing was successfully conducted on 20 June, the data from which are now being analysed.

The Meteor programme remains on schedule to achieve the in-service date declared in the Major Project Report 2005.

Missile Effectiveness

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the (a) Storm Shadow air-launched cruise and (b) Brimstone anti-tank guided missile, with particular reference to deployment in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan; and whether it is meeting military requirements. [79539]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence conducts assessment of its weapons systems on a regular basis. Details of these assessments cannot be released as this could prejudice the safety and security of our armed forces.

Project Hyperion

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the conclusions of Project Hyperion will be announced. [80796]

Mr. Ingram: I hope to be able to make an announcement before the recess.

Suicide Vulnerability

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what right of appeal is available to a trainee in the UK armed services discharged as a result of being discovered to be at risk following an assessment made as a part of the suicide vulnerability risk management policy. [79840]

Mr. Watson: Service personnel are not discharged from the armed forces as a result of being discovered to be at risk following an assessment made as part of suicide risk management policies.

There are a number of reasons why service personnel could be discharged from the armed forces, such as for medical reasons, on compassionate grounds, or because the individual is thought to be temperamentally unsuitable to service life. If a service person does not agree with the reason for their discharge, they have the right to submit a redress of complaint. If an individual is discharged on medical grounds they may also submit an appeal to a Medical Appeal Board.

Training Exercises

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of training exercises have been suspended in the last 12 months. [81143]

Mr. Ingram: Of the 548 training events recorded in the Defence Exercise Programme for the period 1 July 2005-30 June 2006, 63 (11 per cent.) were suspended.

Trident

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether evidence from experiments conducted in (a) existing and (b) proposed hydrodynamic testing facilities will be used to support the decision on whether to reuse or replace the Trident warhead pit. [79090]

Des Browne: Evidence from hydrodynamics experimentation, both current and future, represents an essential supporting element in all decisions in connection with UK warhead assurance and in-service life.

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the (a) Trident missile, (b) nuclear warheads, (c) guidance systems and (d) submarine launch platforms are each expected to be (i) no longer available and (ii) beyond refurbishment. [81340]

Des Browne: The expected life of each element of the UK's nuclear deterrent was set out in a memorandum provided by the Ministry of Defence to the House of Commons Defence Select Committee, which was published on the Committee's website on 20 January 2006 (http://www.publications.parliament.uk/pa/cm200506/cmselect/cmdfence/835/835m04.htm).

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Poverty

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the likely effect on child poverty of proposals in A New Deal for Welfare: Empowering People to Work to introduce the Employment and Support Allowance. [77937]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We believe that work is the best route out of poverty. It builds family aspirations, fosters greater social inclusion and can improve an individual's health and well-being. Our Green Paper sets out proposals aimed at achieving an employment rate equivalent to 80 per cent. of the working age population. We will do this by reducing the number of people on incapacity benefits, by helping lone parents into work and by increasing the number of older workers.

We propose to significantly reduce the number of people claiming incapacity benefits through a three pronged approach: reducing the number of people who leave the workplace due to illness; increasing the number leaving benefits and better addressing the needs of all those on benefit with additional payments to the most severely disabled people.

Work is still under way in relation to the proposals, and an assessment of the potential impact on child poverty will form part of this. We are currently reviewing the DWP contribution to reducing child poverty across all current and planned policies and, in the autumn, we will be setting out our new strategy for how we can make faster progress towards reaching our goal of halving child poverty by 2010.

Child Support Agency

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of cases recorded on the Child Support Agency old rules scheme would pay (a) increased and (b) decreased payments if migrated to the new rules scheme. [77946]

Mr. Plaskitt: For those cases with a full maintenance assessment on the child support computer system (CSCS) in February 2006, we estimate that around (a) 60 per cent. would have an increased liability and (b) 40 per cent. would have a decreased liability if the new scheme rules were applied to their current reported circumstances.

We estimate that the majority of changes in maintenance liabilities will be for less than £10 per week. To give non-resident parents and parents with care time to adjust to their new amount, most changes are phased in by fixed annual steps.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the average number of Child Support Agency staff who are involved in each case from first application to the establishment of regular payments. [77947]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many unprocessed cases were held by the Child Support Agency during each month of the last year for which figures are available; [77949]

(2) what his latest estimate is of the backlog of new claims held by the Child Support Agency. [77951]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what his latest estimate is of the backlog of new claims held by the Child Support Agency.

You also asked how many unprocessed cases were held by the Child Support Agency during each month of the last year for which figures are available.

As at March 2006, the Agency had a total 333,000 uncleared potential applications. This consisted of 66,000 old scheme applications and 267,000 new scheme applications. These figures can be found in table 1 and table 2.1 of the latest issue Agency's 'Quarterly Summary Statistics' (QSS), a copy of which is available in the House library.

The following table shows the number of uncleared potential applications across both schemes for each month of the last year.

Although the total volume of uncleared potential applications fell by 8% between January 2005 and March 2006, the Agency recognises that this remains unacceptably high. The Agency therefore has a 2006/07 target to ensure that, by March 2007, the volume of new scheme uncleared applications outstanding at March 2006 is reduced by 25 %.

Number of uncleared potential applications across both schemes, March 2006

	Total agency uncleared applications	New scheme uncleared applications	Old scheme uncleared applications
April 2005	352,000	266,000	86,000
May 2005	346,000	265,000	82,000
June 2005	341,000	263,000	78,000
July 2005	340,000	263,000	76,000
August 2005	339,000	264,000	75,000
September 2005	333,000	261,000	73,000
October 2005	331,000	262,000	70,000
November 2005	328,000	259,000	69,000
December 2005	327,000	259,000	68,000
January 2006	327,000	260,000	67,000
February 2006	332,000	265,000	67,000
March 2006	333,000	267,000	66,000

Notes:

1. The definition of an uncleared potential application differs between new and old schemes. Old scheme cases are considered cleared when they have been processed through to an assessment. New scheme cases are only considered cleared when they have received a calculation and have a payment schedule in place.
2. These figures include all uncleared potential applications from those received in the latest month to those received more than a year ago.
3. Numbers are rounded to the nearest thousand.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what his latest estimate is of the average time it takes the Child Support Agency to bring cases from first application to assessment; [77950]

(2) how many and what proportion of eligible parents received their first payment from the Child Support Agency within the target time of six weeks in each month of the last year for which figures are available. [77948]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your Parliamentary Questions about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what his latest estimate is of the average time it takes the Child Support Agency to bring cases from first application to assessment.

You also asked how many and what proportion of eligible parents received their first payment from the Child Support Agency within the time limit of six weeks in each month of the last year for which figures are available.

As at the end of March 2006, of those cases that progressed to calculation since the introduction of the new scheme, the average time from first contact to calculation was 181 days (26 weeks). Of such cases, 24 per cent received a calculation in less than 6 weeks; 48 per cent between 6 weeks and 6 months; 16 per cent between 6 months and a year; and 12 per cent took more than a year.

It should be noted, however, that the Agency does not regard an application as being cleared once a calculation alone has been carried out, but only once collection arrangements have been agreed with the non resident parent. Additionally, since not all Child Support Agency applications result in a calculation, an application is also defined as cleared if the case is closed; the parent with care is identified as claiming Good Cause or is subject to a Reduced Benefit Decision; or the application is identified as being a change of circumstances on an existing case as opposed to a new application.

As of the end of March 2006, for all cases cleared since the introduction of the new scheme, the mean average time taken to process a new-scheme application from the date of first contact to clearance, as defined above, was 204 days (29 weeks). Of those cases cleared, 25 per cent did so in less that 6 weeks; 41 per cent between 6 weeks and 6 months; 17 per cent between 6 months and a year; and 17 per cent took more than a year. These figures exclude 126,000 applications that came through the Jobcentre Plus interface and which have been cleared, but for which insufficient management information exists to enable age at clearance to be determined.

The Agency does not have a time limit for the time taken for a parent with care to receive their first payment. Information regarding the number and percentage of cases receiving a first payment within six weeks or longer is attached.

Once a case has received a calculation, a method of collection must be agreed with the non-resident parent and set up by the Agency which, in the cases of a Direct Debit or a Standing Order, may take a few weeks. The day on which payment is due from the non- resident parent is then specified by the Agency having taken in to account the date of any other income payable to the non-resident parent, which may result in a delay of up to 4 weeks to make payment to the Agency. The Agency then has to process the payment from the non-resident parent and make payment to the parent with care.

Delays may occur if a non resident parent does not comply. For an employed non-resident parent the Agency can then impose a Deductions from Earnings Order (DEO). Where this occurs, the Agency must contact and liaise with the employer to set up the DEO, wait for the subsequent payment from the employer, which in itself can take over 20 days, before money is available to be paid to the parent with care.

The elapsed times between a payment request by the Agency and actual payment by the non resident parent mean that, it is unlikely that it would be possible for many parents with care to receive maintenance payments within 6 weeks of their first contact with the Agency.

The Agency published its 2006 Client Charter on 28th April 2006. This sets out the minimum standards of service which we aim to meet in future for each of our main business areas. The first three service standards which relate to first contact and payments are attached.

I hope you find this helpful.

Child Support Agency Client Charter—Service standards relating to first contact and payment

Standard 1

If the parent with care can give us contact details for the non-resident parent, we will start gathering information from the non- resident parent within four weeks of the application being received. We will aim to make an accurate decision on the application within 12 weeks, but in some cases this may take as long as 26 weeks.

If we do not have current contact details for the non-resident parent, we will trace them as quickly as we can. These applications may take longer to progress. In the small number of cases where we cannot trace the non-resident parent, we will not be able to progress the application.

Standard 2

Where we are collecting child maintenance, we aim to make a first payment to the parent with care within six weeks of making the initial payment arrangements with the non-resident parent.

If the non-resident parent has a job but either fails or refuses to pay, we will aim to obtain payment via a Deduction from Earnings Order (DEO) within four months of making initial payment arrangements.

Where the non-resident parent has still not paid four months after initial payment arrangements were made, we will refer the case to our specialist enforcement unit.

Standard 3

We will make maintenance payments to parents with care within a week of receiving the money from the non-resident parent.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average administration cost per case on (a) the new and (b) the old Child Support Agency scheme was in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [77953]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the average administration cost per case on (a) the new scheme and (b) the old scheme was in each of the last five years for which figures are available.

The Child Support Agency is funded to administer child support applications and payments regardless of whether the case is administered on the new scheme or the old scheme. The actual costs of administering child support cases under each scheme are not separately identified and as such we cannot supply information to the level of detail required.

The cost of administering the Child Support Agency in 2004/05 was £325.6 million. Figures for 2005/06 will be available when the Agency's Annual Report and Accounts are published. A change in accounting policy proposed by the Department for Work and Pensions, will lead to a restatement of 2004/05 expenditure reported in the Agency's annual accounts. This reflects the incorporation of costs associated with the Modernisation Programme in the accounts of individual Agencies rather than charging such costs directly to the central Departmental Resource Account. It is expected that the restated 2004-05 figure will increase expenditure to around £425 million. Costs for 2005/06 will be prepared on the same basis.

I hope you find this response helpful.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints have been made to the Child Support Agency in each year for which figures are available. [77954]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive, Mr. Stephen Geraghty. He will write to the hon. Member with the requested information.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many complaints were made to the Child Support Agency in each year for which figures are available.

The volumes of complaints received direct from clients, their representatives and MPs to the Child Support Agency or to our Ministers, for which information is available, are in the attached table.

It should be noted that it is difficult to use this information to make meaningful comparisons over time due to changes in the way that information has been recorded. In particular whilst the volume of stage 1 written complaints undoubtedly rose between 2002-03 and 2003-04, this is likely to have been due in part to more rigorous recording of complaints received at the time, and the introduction by the Agency of a three tier complaints process during 2003-04.

It should also be noted that the volume of complaints has stabilised. In the twelve months up to March 2006, the Agency received a total of 55,000 complaints. This compares to 55,000 for the 12 months up to May 2005 (the earliest period for which comparable data for total numbers of complaints received is available).

Further, to put the attached figures into context, the 55,000 complaints received in the 12 months to March 2006 represent less than 4% of the 1.5 million cases dealt with by the CSA.

I hope you find this answer useful.

MP Complaints to Business Units	[3]—	[3]—	[3]—	4,175	4,818	4,537	5,317	8,871	9,729

[1] Whilst the Agency did receive stage 1 telephone complaints prior to 2002-03, their volumes were not recorded.

[2] Although 671 stage 1 telephone complaints were recorded between December 2002 and March 2003, their volumes were not recorded throughout the whole year, thus preventing meaningful comparison with later years.

[3] Whilst the Agency did receive complaints directly to the Chief Executive, treat official complaints, and MP complaints to Business Units prior to 2000/01, their volumes were not recorded.

[4] During 2003-04 complaints sent directly to the Chief Executive were not recorded separately from those complaints that were escalated to him as part of the 3-stage process. Therefore, although 7,183 complaints in total were received during 2003-04, it is not possible to separate out those complaints received by the Chief Executive directly (as opposed to those escalated via the complaints process), thus preventing meaningful comparison with data for earlier years.

[5] In April and May of 2004, the Chief Executive received a total of 1,435 complaints however, is not possible to separate out those complaints received by the Chief Executive directly, as opposed to those escalated to stage 3 of the complaints process). From June 2004-March 2005, after which time such complaints were recorded separately, the Chief Executive received 4,393 direct complaints and 2,549 complaints escalated upwards from stage 2. Again, these recording issues prevent meaningful comparison of this category with earlier years.

[6] Treat official letters are those received by a Minister from a member of the public, and referred for initial consideration to an official of the agency.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his latest estimate is of the average time taken to resolve complaints to the Child Support Agency about (a) old scheme cases and (b) new scheme cases. [77956]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what his latest estimate is of the average time taken to resolve complaints to the Child Support Agency about (a) old scheme cases and (b) new scheme cases.

The Agency had a 2005/06 internal target to ensure that 68% of stage one client complaints were resolved or had a resolution plan in place within 15 working days of receipt of the complaint from the client.

I cannot provide the average time taken to resolve complaints but information on the Agency's 2005/06 performance against this standard is set out in the table below.

	Percentage of complaints which have been resolved, or have a resolution plan within 15 working days of receipt of the complaint for 2005/06
Old child support scheme	90
New child support scheme	88
Overall	89

Note:
This target is measured by checking a 10% sample of cases which have been resolved or have a resolution plan in place.

I hope you find this response helpful.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time taken to process compensation payments made to Child Support Agency clients for administrative errors was in 2005-06. [77957]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time taken to process compensation payments made by Child Support Agency clients for administrative errors was in 2005-6.

Financial redress is made to clients in cases where maladministration has occurred. The Agency does not hold robust information to distinguish administrative errors from other acts of maladministration.

However, in the 2005/06 financial year 80% of financial redress payments for maladministered cases were processed within 30 days

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the 10 largest total (a) compensation and (b) maladministration payments made by the Child Support Agency to a single individual have been since May 1997, including separate payments made in relation to a single case requiring compensation; and if he will make a statement. [77958]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds, dated 29 June 2006:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the 10 largest total (a) compensation and (b) maladministration payments made by the Child Support Agency to a single individual including separate payments made in relation to a single case requiring compensation have been since May 1997; and if he will make a statement.

The Agency does not have sufficient robust information to give you precisely the information you requested. I apologise for this but can give you information on the ten highest financial redress payments awarded due to maladministration between the period 1 December 2001 to 31 May 2006.

The table below contains the available information.

1	41,000.00
2	27,961.66
3	22,160.08
4	19,965.36
5	19,056.49
6	18,980.90
7	16,000.00
8	14,905.97
9	14,732.40
10	14,648.55

Maladministration and compensatory payments in excess of £10,000 represent a small fraction (just over 0.01%) of the total number of such payments made by the Agency.

I hope you find this response helpful.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total cost was of compensation payments made to clients of the Child Support Agency for administrative errors in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [77959]

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the total cost of compensation payments made to clients of the Child Support Agency for administrative errors was in each of the last five years for which figures are available.

Financial redress is made to clients in cases where maladministration has occurred. The Agency does not hold robust information to distinguish administrative errors from other acts of maladministration.

The following table summarises the financial redress payments made to clients in each of the last five years, as outlined in the Agency's Annual Report and Accounts. Figures for 2005-06 will be available in the Agency's 2005-06 Annual Report and Accounts.

	Financial redress paid to clients (£)
2000-01	3,053,000
2001-02	2,590,000
2002-03	2,478,000

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints of (a) harassment, (b) bullying and (c) discrimination in the workplace there were against Child Support Agency staff in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [77960]

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases of (a) harassment (b) bullying and (c) discrimination have been reported to the Child Support Agency in each of the last five years.

The numbers of harassment, bullying and discrimination cases formally reported to the Agency in the last five years are as follows:

	Number of cases reported
2001/02	49
2002/03	32
2003/04	44
2004/05	22
2005/06	16

The nature of the complaints does not allow separation of the data into the constituent elements of harassment, bullying and discrimination.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the key performance metrics are for measuring the performance of the EDS contract with the Child Support Agency. [77969]

Mr. Pleskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply for the Chief Executive. As he is out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the key performance metrics are for measuring the success of the EDS contract with the Child Support Agency.

In August 2005, the Department realigned its IT contracts with Electronic Data Systems (EDS), including that covering the Child Support Reforms (CSR), into the Standard Services Business Allocation (SSBA). The realigned contract is intended to deliver industry standard services at market competitive prices to the Department as a whole including Child Support Agency.

Under the SSBA, EDS is required to meet contractual levels for live operational services across a full range of industry standard measures. The key criteria on which EDS' performance is measured in respect of CS2 (the principal IT system used by the CSA) are:

The level of system availability (where the current target is 99.2%, rising to 99.6% over time);

The level of desktop infrastructure availability (where the current target is 99.2%, rising to 99.4% over time);

Accuracy and timeliness of payments to parents with care (where the target is 100%).

The Department is entitled to financial remedies if these targets are not met. In addition, the Department can benchmark EDS services against external industry comparators to help achieve ongoing performance and value for money.

The general contract realignment included resolution of outstanding CSR contractual issues with EDS. As part of this agreement, EDS is required to deliver a staged programme of work to fix agreed defects on CS2. The Department is monitoring delivery of this programme to planned milestone dates and to agreed testing acceptance and implementation quality criteria. Once all the relevant services have been transformed, application reliability, which affects processing times, will also become a contractual service level.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library the latest list of change requests made to EDS by the Child Support Agency. [77972]

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, if he will place in the Library the latest list of change requests made to EDS by the Child Support Agency.

The following table shows the latest list of change requests made by the Child Support Agency.

Change requests	Benefits
CR1 (chargeable defects)	This allows the business to prioritise and approve small IT fixes during the testing phase which are identified as chargeable, without delaying the current testing and delivery timescales.
Change Release 1.1 (Integration Test Project)	To ensure continuity of the development activity for Change Release 1.1 whilst business requirements are re-affirmed.
Management Information Improvement Project	This will supply management information for the key core process areas of the business to assist performance management.
Call Off Scans	This will allow the Agency to meet its legal requirement to maintain the accuracy of data on the CS2 system and also allow the business to obtain detailed case information.
HSBC Bank Files	This updates and changes the way bank files are handled between the Agency/Department and HSBC and creates an automatic link between the banking system and Agency systems.
Programme Launch	This will ensure that a defined and contracted programme of work is accepted, is jointly regarded as representing the best IT solution to support of the Agency's change programme. In turn this will mean that relevant EDS resource can be effectively and efficiently managed and projects implemented.
Year- end scans on FMS	This will allow the analysis of Agency debt to support year-end accounting activities, the development of policy proposals and emerging plans.
Weeding and Archiving	This allows the Agency to maintain efficient weeding and archiving of data.
Data Management System Performance Changes	This will reduce the overall time of the Data Management System batch run, and thereby minimise impact on the online working day start time.
Notifications Survey - DWP (CSA)	This will improve clarity of client notifications.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many telephone calls to the Child Support Agency (a) were received, (b) received an engaged tone and (c) were disconnected during the interactive voice response process in the period April 2002 to May 2006. [77973]

Mr. Pleskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many telephone calls to the Child Support Agency (a) were received, (b) received an engaged tone, (c) were disconnected during the interactive voice response process in the period April 2002 to May 2006.

The latest information is contained in the table. Please note that point (c) has been interpreted as referring to the total number of calls abandoned (for example, by clients who do not have a National Insurance number to hand and hang up to go and find it before calling back) or lost during the automated part of the process.

Further information on the Agency's telephony performance is available in Table 16 of the latest edition of the Agency's Quarterly Summary of Statistics. A copy of this document is available in the House library, as well as on the internet, at http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/csa.asp.

The Agency has shown significant and sustained improvement in telephony performance. Specifically:

Average waiting times to answer calls from the queue improved in 2005/06 compared to 2004/05, from 2:29 minutes to 1:21 minutes for new system calls; and 0:56 seconds to 0:28 seconds for old system calls.

In 2005/06, 91% of the calls available in queues for Agency employees were answered. This is up from 84% in 2004/05.

I hope you find this helpful.

Telephony outcomes, 2002-03 to 2005-06

Attempted client calls to both CS2 and CSCS numbers	4,145,000	6,051,000	5,738,000	5,352,000
Calls for which outcome not recorded	45,000	145,000	48,000	42,000
Calls for which outcome recorded	4,100,000	5,906,000	5,689,000	5,310,000
Of which:
Calls that received an engaged/busy tone	See note	498,000	126,000	50,000
Calls abandoned/lost during the IVR process.	528,000	362,000	320,000	317,000

Notes:
1. Data is presented for calls made regarding cases on the new system (CS2) and the old system (CSCS) combined.
2. "Attempted client calls" excludes calls attempted outside working hours.
3. "Calls for which outcome not recorded" are those that were received but for which, due to data problems, the eventual outcome was not recorded. The volume of such calls has decreased significantly in the last 3 years as management information systems have improved.
4. "Calls for which outcome recorded" are those which were received and for which there is management information to track the eventual outcome.
5. IVR denotes the automated touch tone part of the process where clients enter their details via the telephone key pad. Once callers have cleared this part of the process, they enter a queue to be answered by a CSA employee. Note that there is no IVR process on the old system.
6. Numbers are rounded to the nearest thousand. Components may not sum to totals due to rounding.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what policies are in place with regard to (a) migrating Child Support Agency cases on the old rules system to the new rules system and (b) migrating them back onto the old rules system. [77978]

Mr. Plaskitt: We have always said that we would not consider transferring the bulk of the old scheme cases onto the new scheme until the new scheme was working well.

Child support legislation allows an old scheme case to transfer to the new scheme where an old scheme case has prescribed links to a new scheme application.

There is no policy for converting cases back to the old scheme. But where a re-application for child support maintenance is made within 13 weeks of an old scheme application ceasing, "linking rules" will provide for the new application to be assessed under old scheme rules.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what total amount of outstanding debt is owed to parents with care via the Child Support Agency; and what proportion of this is deemed uncollectable. [77980]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply form the Chief Executive. As he is currently out of the country, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what total amount of outstanding debt is owed to parents with care via the Child Support Agency; and what proportion of this is deemed uncollectable.

The outstanding debt balance for 2004/05 is £3,252.75 million for both new scheme and old scheme cases, of which £1,984.42 million has been classified as probably uncollectable. This information is shown the table below.

2004-05	Debt Position (£ million)
Collectable	637.79
Possibly uncollectable	599.54
Deferred	31.00
Probably uncollectable	1984.42
Total	3252.75

I am unable to provide the outstanding debt amount owed to the parent with care as there is no differential applied to the outstanding debt balance between the Secretary of State and the parent with care.

This response is based on the position at the end of the financial year 2004/05. The 2005/06 figures are currently being audited by National Audit Office and will be published in the Agency's Annual Report and Accounts.

Definitions of Collectability of Debt

Collectable

Amount outstanding which the debt analysis exercise revealed is likely to be collected. This takes into account factors such as regular contact with the non-resident parent, where regular payments are being made or an arrears agreement has been set up.

Possibly Uncollectable

Amounts outstanding which the debt analysis exercise revealed some uncertainty over whether it will be collected. The amounts are considered doubtful where, for example, payments have been infrequent or it has not been possible to establish an arrears agreement or impose a deduction of earning order.

Deferred Debt

Debt deferred by the Agency, provided non-resident parents meet certain conditions on payment of regular maintenance and the remaining debt outstanding.

Probably Uncollectable

Amount outstanding which the debt analysis exercise revealed is likely to be very difficult to collect due, for example, to the lack of contact with, or the personal circumstance of, the non-resident parent. In many of these cases the Agency has suspended recovery action until such time as the individual's circumstances change.

National Insurance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether under his proposals for pensions a man with childcare responsibilities requiring a career break will receive national insurance contribution credits. [80316]

James Purnell: As part of our package of proposed reforms, published in Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system (Cm 6841), we want to make the state pension scheme fairer and more widely available. The changes would give people more certainty about what state pension entitlement they are building up, while retaining the contributory principle.

Replacing home responsibilities protection with national insurance credits for those reaching state pension age on or after 6 April 2010 means the person awarded child benefit for a child under age 12—whether that is a man or a woman—would be entitled to national insurance credits. The credits, which would count towards both the basic and additional state pension in the same way as paid contributions, would therefore be available to men on career breaks if they were awarded the child benefit.

Pension Credit

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many residents in each electoral ward in Carlisle constituency receive pension credit. [81105]

Pensioner Poverty

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what measures his Department has taken to reduce pensioner poverty in Coventry South since 1997. [80585]

James Purnell: The seventh annual 'Opportunity for all' report (Cm 6673) sets out the Government's strategy for tackling poverty and social exclusion and reports progress against a range of indicators.

The Government have introduced a number of measures since 1997 to help older people enjoy a better standard of living, such as minimum income guarantee, and then its successor, pension credit, winter fuel payments, free TV licences for over 75s and increases above inflation in the basic state pension. The minimum level of income pensioners are expected to live on has increased by a third in real terms since 1997. As at November 2005, 4,800 people in Coventry South constituency were receiving pension credit.

Between 1996-97 and 2004-05 numbers of pensioners in Great Britain in relative low income, after housing costs, have fallen by over a third from 2.8 million to 1.8 million. Pensioners are now less likely to be in low-income than younger people, on an after housing costs basis. Information on the numbers of pensioners in low income is not available at constituency level.

The Pensions White Paper "Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system" (Cm 6841) announced our commitment to uprate the pension credit standard guarantee and the basic state pension in line with earnings growth ensuring that we continue to tackle pensioner poverty.

Prescribed Disease A11

Mr. David Hamilton: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects the changes to the terms of prescription for Prescribed Disease A11 to be put in place. [69201]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Our current plans are to introduce the changes in June 2007.

State Pension

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether under his proposals for pensions women with no childcare responsibilities will qualify for a full basic state pension with 30 years' contributions. [80315]

James Purnell: The proposals, published in the White Paper, Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system (Cm6841), are designed to enable more women and men to maximise their state pension entitlement, while retaining the contributory basis of the system.

Under these proposals, women with no childcare responsibilities who reach state pension age on or after 6 April 2010 would qualify for a full basic state pension on the basis of 30 years' contributions. The thirty qualifying years could be achieved through paid national insurance contributions, the award of credits, or a combination of both, including our proposed more generous crediting arrangements. The proposals would apply equally to men in this position.

Work Search Premium Pilots

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to evaluate the Work Search Premium pilots. [76512]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Work Search Premium (WSP) pilots are running in eight Jobcentre Plus districts. Lone parents participating in the pilots are paid a £20 a week premium for a maximum of 26 weeks to help with the costs associated with searching for work. Participation is voluntary and certain eligibility criteria must be met. Participants agree to undertake intensive work search and will also be entitled to help with the cost of formal childcare while undertaking work search activities.

The evaluation of the pilots aims to assess the long and short term effect of the pilots on lone parents and movements off benefit and into work. It consists of a quantitative impact assessment which will estimate the net impact of the WSP pilots on patterns of flows off Income Support and other working age benefits like jobseeker's allowance, as well as other outcomes like entry into work.

The first published report, which we expect to publish in the autumn, will use 12 months of programme data and will examine the impact of the WSP on those lone parents already claiming benefit at the time of introduction of the pilot. A report covering 30 months of data will be published in autumn 2008, and one covering 48 months of data will be published in spring 2010.

In addition, qualitative evaluation will explore the impact of the pilots on the attitudes, motivations and responses of eligible lone parents, and examine the effectiveness of delivery. This will include interviews with lone parents and Jobcentre Plus lone parent advisers. We expect this report to be available in spring 2007.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Energy Efficiency

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the main barriers to the UK making more and better use of energy efficiency methods; and what steps his Department is taking with other Departments to overcome these barriers. [79684]

Ian Pearson: The Energy Efficiency Innovation Review, published jointly by Her Majesty's Treasury and DEFRA last December, assessed the barriers to the increased take-up of energy efficiency measures. These include high up-front investment costs, lack of access to capital, split incentives, other market failures, the hassle factor, lack of consumer information and mistrust of suppliers or installers. Further information can be found on the DEFRA website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/energy/review/.

This evidence has been used to inform the Review of the UK Climate Change programme, published in March this year, and the ongoing Energy Policy Review. For example, in the household sector, the Energy Efficiency Innovation Review identified consumer misapprehension of the costs and benefits of energy efficiency as a key barrier. The Government have subsequently announced a £20 million initiative to promote consumer uptake of energy efficiency measures, working with energy suppliers and local authorities.

Environmental Liability Directive

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects the consultation on the implementation of the Environmental Liability Directive to start. [79213]

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 6 June 2006, Official Report, column 499W, on the Environmental Liability Directive, why the first of the two consultations on the Environmental Liability Directive on policy options has been delayed. [80390]

Ian Pearson: The first public consultation on the implementation of the Environmental Liability Directive will be launched later this year.

The Government are still considering how best to present the options for transposing the Directive. The Directive raises many issues because of its relationship with existing domestic environmental protection legislation. The Government want to ensure that the issues are clearly set out for optimum stakeholder engagement.

Municipal Waste

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he will report on the progress of his Department's 10 demonstration plants to encourage new technologies to treat biodegradable municipal waste. [78537]

Mr. Bradshaw: A full report of all of the demonstration projects will be published as soon as DEFRA have completed due diligence and agreed contracts with technology providers.

At present DEFRA have completed four contracts and it is anticipated that a number of others will be completed by the end of June 2006.

The four signed contracts are with Bioganix, Greenfinch/South Shropshire, Premier Waste and Novera. Further information on these technologies is available on the DEFRA website at the following address:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/waste/wip/newtech/dem-programme/index.htm

Rural Stress

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has commissioned into stress in rural areas; what assessment he has made of levels of stress in rural areas; and what measures are being taken to reduce levels of stress in rural areas. [79581]

Barry Gardiner [holding answer 22 June 2006]: In 2003 DEFRA funded a study by Exeter university reviewing research on rural stress. In 2005 a study into "The Wider Social Impacts of Changes in the Structure of Agricultural Businesses" also considered issues of stress in the farming community.

Copies of these reports are available online at:

http://www.centres.ex.ac.uk/crr/pdf1/reports1/StressReview FinalReport.pdf

http://www.defra.gov.uk/rural/research/soc_impact.htm

DEFRA is closely involved with a number of voluntary and community organisations working to alleviate the level of stress in rural areas through the Rural Stress Action plan. The plan supports £300,000 worth of projects each year, and funds are committed until March 2008.

Since it began in 2000 there have been two full evaluations of the Rural Stress Action plan. Copies of these can be found on the DEFRA website.

Thames Water (Leaks)

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications of the failure of Thames Water to meet its leakage targets for the regulatory year 2005-06; and if he will make a statement. [80613]

Ian Pearson: The failure of Thames Water to meet its leakage targets for the regulatory year 2005-06 is disappointing. The Economic Regulator, Ofwat, has already said that it views the issue as serious and will carefully scrutinise the company's annual return before deciding on regulatory action. Ofwat is responsible for setting leakage targets and has powers to deal with poor performance. I will not pre-empt Ofwat's response on this issue.

Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathies

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what definition of research he uses in relation to (a) the Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathies (No. 2) Regulations 2006, Part 2(4) and (b) EC Regulation 999/2001. [79811]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 26 June 2006]: It is not possible to define research specifically in the context of the above regulations; indeed, it is not deemed necessary to do so. My Department, in collaboration with other funding bodies, seeks to facilitate investigations that will further scientific knowledge on Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathies (TSE) but has to take into account the likelihood of success, scope for sound interpretation of data and relevance to policy needs before funds can be committed. Investigations that are specifically addressed by the above regulations and which are statutory obligations would normally be classed as surveillance, namely investigations that determine the existence of TSEs in individual animals or targeted populations. Research and surveillance are complementary, and evidence arising in one area inevitably impacts on the other.

TRANSPORT

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many staff in his Department have had (a) five or more, (b) four, (c) three and (d) two periods of sick leave of less than five days in each of the last three years. [73114]

Gillian Merron: The figures for the Department for Transport and its agencies for periods of sick leave of less than five days in the last three years are as follows:

Periods of sick leave	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Five or more	1,395	1,378	1,516
Four	780	733	919
Three	626	602	826
Two	1,044	1,066	1,525

The Department is committed to managing sick absence effectively and to putting in place the recommendations of the 'Managing Sickness Absence in the Public Sector' report. The DfT Board takes an active interest in the issue of attendance management, and a number of steps have already been taken.

Overseas Visits

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what overseas visits have been made by Ministers in his Department in (a) 2004, (b) 2005 and (c) 2006. [80499]

Gillian Merron: Information about overseas visits undertaken by Ministers in the Department for Transport on official business, during 2004, 2005 and to date in 2006, has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the 'Ministerial Code' and 'Travel by Ministers', copies of which are available in the Library. Since 1999, the Government have published on an annual basis a list of all overseas visits by Cabinet Ministers costing in excess of £500. Copies of the lists are available in the Library. Information for 2005-06 is currently being compiled and will be published when it is ready.

Rail Services (Cheltenham Spa)

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) earliest and (b) last trains (i) to Cheltenham Spa from London Paddington and (ii) from London Paddington to Cheltenham Spa were on (A) 6 June 1986, (B) 6 June 1996 and (C) 6 June 2006; how many direct and indirect train services were provided on a weekday between Cheltenham Spa and London Paddington on each of those dates; and how many of those services were direct in each case. [80826]

Derek Twigg: The earliest and last trains (direct) to/from Cheltenham Spa and London Paddington on weekdays were as follows:

	1986	1996	2006
First Services
London Paddington to Cheltenham Spa	06:40	05:30	06:48
Cheltenham Spa to London Paddington	05:18	06:03	05:59
Last Services
London Paddington to Cheltenham Spa	22:05	21:00	19:45
Cheltenham Spa to London Paddington	21:10	21:00	22:10

The number of direct and indirect train services on weekdays to/from Cheltenham Spa and London Paddington was as follows:

	At 6 June each year:
	1986	1996	2006
London Paddington to Cheltenham Spa
Direct	14	4	8
Indirect	0	15	14
Cheltenham Spa to London Paddington
Direct	13	4	9
Indirect	0	13	16

Note:
The connecting services shown are where connections are made at Swindon.

Reorganisation Strategies for DfT

Mrs. Dunwoody: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will ensure that all measures for handling surplus staff arising from the Shared Service Programme set out in 'Reorganisation Strategies for DfT' are followed by his Department and its agencies. [79778]

Gillian Merron: The Department and its agencies will follow the principles of fairness and transparency set out in that document.

Road Safety

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents involving heavy goods vehicles were reported to the police in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and how many involved foreign-registered heavy goods vehicles. [81080]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of personal injury road accidents reported to the police involving heavy goods vehicles in each year from 2001 to 2005 is shown in the following table. Identification of foreign registered vehicles involved in personal injury road accidents is possible only from 2005, the latest year for which data are available.

Accidents involving heavy goods vehicles[1] and accidents involving foreign registered foreign goods vehicles: 2001-05

	Heavy goods vehicles (HGVs)	Foreign registered HGVs
2001	13,631	—
2002	12,427	—
2003	12,205	—
2004	11,542	—
2005	11,162	1,098

[1] Heavy goods vehicles are goods vehicles over 3.5 tonnes maximum gross weight.

South West Trains

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what account was taken of plans for future housing and infrastructure in the formulation of the new South West Trains franchise; and if he will make a statement. [78365]

Derek Twigg: The specification for the new South Western franchise has been developed to build upon the current franchise operation. The future levels of forecast demand have been based on standard rail industry modelling assumptions.

A new and improved service will operate between Salisbury and Romsey via Southampton Central and Southampton Airport Parkway, replacing the Romsey-Totton service via Eastleigh. The new service will create a regular half-hourly Salisbury-Southampton service, create new travel opportunities between Salisbury and Southampton airport, and allow stops to be made at Dunbridge and Dean.

In addition, services in South Hampshire and Dorset have been enhanced to provide a second train each hour through to Weymouth from London, and cross-Bournemouth services to be improved. It is also proposed that an hourly semi-fast Southampton-Brighton service be introduced to connect these major urban areas.

Franchise replacements are not vehicles for significant infrastructure investment. However, they do need to consider infrastructure schemes that have committed funds to enable their delivery, and the South Western franchise process has adhered to this approach.

Vandalism

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many incidents of vandalism were reported to the British Transport Police in the last 12 months, broken down by (a) Government office region and (b) constituency. [77784]

Derek Twigg: The British Transport Police do not record vandalism offences by either Government office region or constituency and therefore this data can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Coroners (Northern Ireland)

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many (a) coroners and (b) deputy coroners there have been in Northern Ireland in each year since 1997. [80058]

Ms Harman: The number of coroners and deputy coroners in Northern Ireland since 1997 is set out in the following table:

	Presiding judge	Full-time coroners	Part-time coroners	Deputy coroners
1997	—	1	6	5
1998	—	1	6	5
1999	—	1	6	5
2000	—	1	6	5
2001	—	3	6	5
2002	—	3	6	5
2003	—	3	6	5
2004	—	3	6	5
2005	—	3	6	5
2006	1	3	0	1

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the (a) legal background and (b) practitioner experience is of each (i) coroner in Northern Ireland, (ii) deputy coroner who served between 1997 and 2006 and (iii) newly appointed (A) coroner and (B) deputy coroner. [80059]

Ms Harman: With the exception of one part-time coroner who was a barrister, all coroners and deputy coroners who served between 1997 and 2006 were solicitors. Of the two full-time coroners appointed in April 2006, one was a barrister and the other was a solicitor. In addition a High Court judge was appointed to the office of coroner in May 2006 to be the presiding judge for the Coroners Service.

With effect from 15 October 2002 in order to be eligible for appointment to the position of coroner or deputy coroner in Northern Ireland a person must be a barrister or a solicitor of at least five years standing.

The professional standing of coroners appointed since 15 October 2002 is as follows:

Date appointed	Barrister/solicitor	Number of years standing
3 April 2006	Solicitor	19
3 April 2006	Barrister	13

Prior to 15 October 2002 eligibility for appointment as a coroner or deputy coroner in Northern Ireland was based on having practised for not less then five years as a barrister or solicitor. Details of the number of years in practice of individual coroners appointed prior to 15 October 2002 are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Court Service (Suffolk)

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will make a statement on the recent performance of the Court Service in Suffolk. [79392]

Ms Harman: Figures are provided to cover performance against key targets over financial year 2005-06 compared with the previous year. The information is as follows:

Departmental Pensions

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs if she will estimate the pension liability of her Department over the next 30 years. [75279]

Bridget Prentice: The hon. Member is referred to a technical Note by HM Treasury which was placed in the Library of the House on 2 March 2006, Official Report, columns 388-90, following an oral statement in Parliament by the then Chief Secretary to the Treasury.

Pension liabilities are not estimated for individual departments, they are estimated for individual pension schemes, as shown in the breakdown of liabilities per pension scheme given in Table 1 of the technical Note.

Dr. David Kelly

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 14 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1255-67W, on Dr. David Kelly, what discussions took place between (a) the coroner, (b) the deputy coroner, (c) the assistant deputy coroner of Oxfordshire and (d) anyone else responsible to the Oxfordshire coroner and (i) her Department and (ii) Lord Hutton before the local registrar's decision to issue a certified copy of entry in the register of deaths for Dr. David Kelly. [81212]

Ms Harman: Dr. Kelly's death was registered on 18 August 2003 following the adjournment of the inquest at the request of the Lord Chancellor under Section 17A of the Coroners Act 1988. My officials met the coroner on 11 August 2003. At the outset of Lord Hutton's inquiry the coroner was in contact with the inquiry secretariat to explore the boundaries of their respective jurisdictions and to provide the inquiry with information relating to Dr. Kelly's death. No other discussions took place between the coroner, the deputy coroner, the assistant deputy coroner of Oxfordshire and anyone else responsible to the Oxfordshire coroner and either my Department or Lord Hutton.

Electoral Fraud

Chris Ruane: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many incidents of (a) postal vote fraud and (b) other electoral fraud there were in (i) European elections, (ii) parliamentary elections and (iii) local elections in each of the last 30 years. [79077]

Bridget Prentice: Information in this detail is not collected centrally. However, I refer my hon. Friend to the previous answer on 13 June 2005, Official Report, column 181W, for information on electoral fraud convictions. Since then, I am aware that in Halton, in May 2006 a former Labour councillor was convicted and fined for electoral fraud offences relating to the local and European parliamentary elections in 2004.

Judges (Part-time)

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs pursuant to the answer of 30 January 2006, Official Report, columns 151-52W, on judges (part-time), if she will maintain and publish a central list of part-time judges. [79756]

Ms Harman: Following the implementation of the Constitutional Reform Act in April 2006, the Judicial Communications Office, in supporting the Lord Chief Justice, has taken over responsibility for maintaining and publishing lists of the judiciary from my Department. On the Judicial website, there are currently lists of full-time judiciary down to and including circuit judges (www.judiciary.gov.uk). I understand that they are considering what further information can be included and whether in due course these lists can be extended to include all salaried or fee-paid holders of judicial office.

Magistrates

David Davis: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the total funding allocated for the training of magistrates was in each of the last eight years. [79956]

Ms Harman: The management information currently available within DCA and HM Courts Service is not able to easily extract the data for the periods requested. Therefore, this information cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost. With the inception of HMCS last year, consistent systems and processes to merge magistrate courts are being established to ensure that the data are easily captured and will be available for the future period.

MMR Vaccine

Mr. Baron: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how much legal aid has been spent on (a) solicitors', (b) barristers' and (c) experts' fees in respect of the MMR vaccine litigation cases in which all proceedings are complete; which firms of solicitors, barristers and experts have received payments for these cases; and how much has been paid to each firm. [73868]

Vera Baird: The Legal Services Commission (LSC) is still awaiting confirmation of the outcome of the final detailed assessment by the court. Once this has been completed, and the LSC has settled the claims, I will write to the hon. Member.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs which barrister was paid (a) £463,782, (b) £445,601 and (c) £424,659 in legal aid fees in the MMR vaccine litigation, as referred to in the answers to House of Lords questions HL 3418 and HL 3419; what hourly rate was paid to each barrister; and whether these payments represent risk rates paid because the service providers would be unlikely to profit from a case which was not successful. [74076]

Vera Baird: Final assessment for the advocates involved with this litigation have yet to be made by the courts. I will therefore write to the hon. Member with the information requested, when the final payments have been settled.

Personal Protection (Judiciary)

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how much was spent on providing personal protection to members of the judiciary in each year since 1997. [81001]

Ms Harman: It is the policy of this Department not to disclose details or the cost of security provided to individuals as to do so may compromise their security.

Post-mortem Reports

Chris Ruane: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the recommended time is within which a family should be sent a copy of a post-mortem report; and in how many cases such reports were written and sent (a) within the recommended time and (b) after the recommended time in the most recent period for which figures are available. [79829]

Ms Harman: There is no recommended time within which a family should be sent a copy of a coroner's post-mortem report, although good practice recommends that a copy should be sent on request to the immediate next of kin in advance of the inquest. There are accordingly no central records kept relating to the post-mortem reports sent by coroners.

Private Members' Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what Private Members' Bills were drafted by her Department in each Session since 1997; and which of those received Royal Assent. [77509]

Vera Baird: Members will consider a range of possible subjects before introducing their Private Members' Bills.

Government draftsmen do draft some Bills in advance which are available as one of the options for Members to consider before they make their selection.

However, Members may make subsequent amendments or revisions to a Government drafted Bill, or use it as the basis for a Private Member's Bill in the future.

The information requested is therefore not collected.

Queens's Counsel (Northern Ireland)

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many Queen's Counsel have been appointed to the Bar in Northern Ireland in each year since 1997; what the community background was of the appointees; and whether there were any declared family relationships between members of the appointing panel and any of the appointees. [80064]

Bridget Prentice: Queen's Counsel have been appointed in Northern Ireland since 1997 as follows:

	Number of Queen's Counsel appointed
1999	12
2001	13
2006	16

Prior to the 2006 Silk round the community background on appointees was not recorded.

Of the 16 Queen's Counsel appointed this year, seven are Protestant, six are Roman Catholic, and three did not indicate their community background.

During the recent selection process one member of the panel absented himself from the panel's deliberations in respect of one applicant who was his daughter-in-law.

Special Advisers

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what role is played by special advisers in answering parliamentary questions asked of her Department. [80645]

Bridget Prentice: Special advisers conduct themselves in accordance with the requirements of the code of conduct for special advisers.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

European Sports Review

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress she is making in implementing the recommendations of the Independent European Sports Review. [81004]

Mr. Caborn: The first step following publication of the Review is for all interested parties to consider its recommendations very carefully before deciding whether these should be implemented and, if so, how.

My officials and legal advisers are consulting with other Government Departments, the football authorities and other interested sporting bodies. I intend to respond formally to the review in September.

Olympics

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress she is making in her discussions with the Home Office on granting an exemption from firearms legislation for target pistol shooting training for the Olympics; and if she will make a statement. [81006]

Mr. Caborn: I have written to my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary to draw his attention to the impact that the current firearms legislation places upon our elite shooters' ability to train for major international shooting competitions in Great Britain. I have asked ask him to consider how this situation could be improved within the parameters of the existing firearms legislation. To date I have not received a response.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 23 May 2006, Official Report, columns 1640-1W, on the London Olympics, when discussions with the English Institute of Sport (EIS) and the Summer Olympic Sports are expected to be finalised; and when a decision is expected to be made on the amount of funding allocated to each sport for use on EIS Services within the World Class Pathway Summer Olympic programme 2006-09. [81198]

Mr. Caborn: In line with its investment model UK Sport has confirmed the indicative value of existing EIS services for each funded summer Olympic sport through to 2009. In addition, these sports now have a guideline figure to be spent on Sports Science and Sports Medicine within their total World Class Performance Pathway funding.

Those sports that already have a relationship with the EIS are in the process of determining how best to allocate the additional financial resource they have received for Sport Science/Sports Medicine services for the period 2006-09. These decisions are likely to be finalised after the summer competition season, in September or October this year.

The new sports with no existing relationship are at the very early stages of planning their performance activity and are unlikely to finalise their Institute service requirements until later in the year.

UK Sport, the EIS and the Summer Olympic Sports will continue to discuss the role of the Institute network in supporting athletes throughout the build up to the Beijing Olympic games and beyond.

Rowing Safety

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions she has had about rowing safety; and if she will make a statement. [81005]

Mr. Caborn: Since the adjournment debate on rowing safety in March, I have met with my hon. Friend the Member for Ashton-under-Lyne (David Heyes) and his constituents Stephen and Jane Blockley to hear their concerns on the issue. I have also written to the Amateur Rowing Association to ask them to clarify the matter of boat buoyancy and to the international rowing governing body FISA to better understand its position on that issue.

Safety in any water sport is paramount and given that there is divided opinion on the issue I consider that it would be helpful to have an objective view of the current guidance and evidence available. I have therefore asked Sport England to identify an appropriate organisation to undertake an independent review of rowing safety.

Shrewsbury

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will visit Shrewsbury (a) to see the plans for a new theatre and (b) to discuss Shropshire's role in the 2012 Olympic games. [80337]

Mr. Caborn: I am aware of plans to build a new theatre in Shrewsbury and understand that Arts Council England's West Midlands office is in contact with the council over the project.

I do not have plans to visit Shrewsbury at the current time. However, representatives from the DCMS and the London Organising Committee for the Olympic games (LOCOG) will be visiting Much Wenlock in Shropshire as part of the forthcoming 2012 Regional Roadshow on 10 July.

The Roadshow aims to ensure that local communities and businesses are fully engaged with the cultural, sporting, economic and social aspects of the games. It forms a valuable part of the work currently being taken forward by the Nations and Regions Group, chaired by Charles Allen and supported by LOCOG, to maximise benefits in every nation and region of the UK.

Special Advisers

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what role is played by special advisers in answering parliamentary questions asked of her Department. [80646]

Mr. Lammy: Special advisers conduct themselves in accordance with the requirements of the code of conduct for special advisers.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

32 (The Royal) Squadron

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs in respect of what official duties the Minister for Europe used 32 (The Royal) Squadron for flights on (a) 29 September 2003 and (b) 30 September 2002; what the take-off and landing times were of each flight; whether the carbon emissions were offset in respect of each flight; which other transport options were considered on each occasion; why other transport options were not used; and if he will make a statement. [66159]

Mr. Hoon: The then Ministers for Europe used 32 (The Royal) Squadron to fly to Brussels to attend the General Affairs and External Relations Council, on behalf of the then Foreign Secretary, my right hon. Friend the Member for Blackburn (Mr. Jack Straw) on both 29 September 2003—my right hon. Friend the Member for Rotherham (Mr. MacShane)—and 30 September 2002—my right hon. Friend the Member for Neath (Mr. Hain). The flight details on each occasion were as follows:

29 September 2003				30 September 2002
Departed	Time	Arrived	Time	Departed	Time	Arrived	Time
RAF Northolt	6.45 am	Brussels	7.35 am	Northolt	6.00 am	Brussels	6.55 am
Brussels	3.15 pm	Bournemouth	4.45 pm	Brussels	3.30 pm	Blackpool	4.30 pm
Bournemouth	5.5 pm	RAF Northolt	5.30 pm	Blackpool	4.45 pm	RAF Northolt	5.25 pm

Carbon dioxide emissions arising from 32 Squadron flights are included in the Government's carbon offsetting commitment. Carbon emissions arising from the use of these flights have been recorded and offset in the same way as the use of scheduled flights since April 2005.

In accordance with the guidance in "Travel by Ministers", other transport options were considered on each occasion. On both occasions, the option of the Minister and officials travelling by 32 (The Royal) Squadron to Brussels was chosen to enable Ministers to meet their commitments in an efficient way. The rules on the use of special flights are set out in "Travel by Ministers". The annual lists of overseas travel by Cabinet Ministers costing over £500 set out when special flights are used, and the purpose of each trip. Copies are available in the Library of the House.

Afghanistan

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) primary schools, (b) middle schools and (c) high schools there were in the Helmand region in each year since 2003; and how many of these schools have been closed due to (i) security risks and (ii) activities of insurgent groups. [80432]

Dr. Howells: In light of the security situation in Helmand detailed education statistics are difficult to obtain.

According to a 2005 survey by the UN Children's Fund, UNICEF, there were 253 schools in Helmand. Of 117,000 students, approximately 8,900 were girls. According to Helmand provincial Government's Department of Education there are now 224 Government of Afghanistan approved schools in the province. Of those, only 64 are currently operating in dedicated buildings. 66 schools are currently closed due to destroyed facilities or threats against teachers. To date we have been unable to obtain a more detailed breakdown of how many of these schools were closed because of Taliban action.

The UK and other international partners are working closely with the Afghan Government to improve the quality and accessibility of education for all children across Afghanistan, in particular girls who were deprived of the opportunity under the Taliban.

Algeria

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations she has received regarding the compatibility of the proposed memorandum of understanding with Algeria regarding the deportation of persons with international human rights law; and what steps she is taking to ensure that any eventual agreement will fully meet the requirements of international law. [80995]

Mr. McCartney: The Government have received a range of representations on the deportation of persons to Algeria, including from international human rights institutions and non-governmental organisations such as the UN Special Rapporteur on Torture, and Amnesty International.

The Government continue to believe that memoranda of understanding or comparable arrangements provide a framework to deport foreign nationals whom we believe threaten our security, in a manner consistent with our international human rights obligations. Any decision to deport is subject to appeal through the UK court system.

In the case of Algeria, such deportation takes full account of the provisions of the Algerian Charter for Peace and Reconciliation, its accompanying provisions for clemency and the particular circumstances of each case.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what stage negotiations for a memorandum of understanding with Algeria regarding the deportation of persons has reached; and if she will make a statement. [80996]

Mr. McCartney: The deportation of persons who pose a threat to the UK's national security is a subject of discussion between the British and Algerian Governments.

The Government continue to believe that memoranda of understanding or comparable arrangements provide a framework to deport foreign nationals whom we believe threaten our security, in a manner consistent with our international human rights obligations. Any decision to deport is subject to appeal through the UK court system.

In the case of Algeria, such deportation takes full account of the provisions of the Algerian Charter for Peace and Reconciliation, its accompanying provisions for clemency and the particular circumstances of each case.

Belarus

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will adopt a total trade ban on Belarus in response to malpractice in the presidential elections. [80607]

Mr. Hoon: Our trade relations with Belarus are conducted through the EU. All EU restrictions imposed in response to the fraudulent presidential elections are designed to target the regime, not the people of Belarus. As such, a unilateral trade ban in response to the fraudulent elections is not being considered at the moment.

Separately, Belarus faces possible withdrawal of the general system of preferences (GSP)—the system of preferential trading arrangements through which the EU extends preferential access to its markets to developing countries. Eligibility for GSP benefits depends on International Labour Organisation monitoring of labour standards and an investigation last year uncovered serious and systematic violations.

Darfur

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if she will make a statement on the decision of the UN to suspend operations in part of Darfur; and what assessment she has made of the extent to which that decision was a consequence of the Government of Sudan's reluctance to agree to the handover of security from the African Union to the UN. [81337]

Mr. McCartney: On 25 June, the Government of Sudan suspended all UN activity in Darfur apart from humanitarian assistance provided by the World Food Programme and the UN Children's Fund, UNICEF. They lifted the suspension the following day. There has been some impact on the UN's humanitarian work in West Darfur, but minimal disruption elsewhere.

This was a provocative act by the Sudanese Government in response to the UN helping a prominent Darfur rebel. The Government of Sudan should allow all UN humanitarian agencies and non-governmental organisations unimpeded access in Darfur.

The Sudanese Government currently oppose an international force for Darfur. However the UN Secretary-General has said he hopes to see a UN force in Darfur, the Security Council has taken a strong line in favour and the African Union wants to see the UN take over in Darfur, as do many prominent African countries. We will continue to press the Government of Sudan to accept it.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what action the UK plans to take through the UN Security Council to put pressure on the Government of Sudan to agree to the introduction of UN troops as part of the Darfur Peace Agreement. [81338]

Mr. McCartney: The UK led the recent UN Security Council mission to Sudan. That visit was important in securing Sudanese Government agreement for a joint UN/African Union Technical Assessment Mission (TAM) to deploy to Darfur. The TAM has now made its visit. It will make detailed technical recommendations shortly to the UN Secretary-General on establishing a UN force for Darfur, who will then report to the Security Council. Once he has done so, the Security Council will debate the mandate of a future UN force. We are continuing to press the Government of Sudan to accept such a force.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with the Government of Sudan on how to disarm the Janjaweed in Darfur. [81339]

Mr. McCartney: We continue to press the Government of Sudan to neutralise and disarm the Janjaweed and expel foreign fighters from Darfur as soon as possible. On Friday 23 June, the Government of Sudan publicly began disarming a small group of Janjaweed in South Darfur. We welcome this step, and call on the Government to continue this work and to present a plan for neutralising and disarming the Janjaweed/armed militias, which they are required to do under the Darfur Peace Agreement.

Ethiopia

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations her Department has made to the Ethiopian government regarding (a) the detention of prisoners of conscience, (b) freedom of expression and opinion and (c) human rights. [80620]

Mr. McCartney: We remain concerned about the internal situation in Ethiopia. We have made representations to the Government of Ethiopia on numerous occasions both at ministerial and official level. Most recently our ambassador to Ethiopia had discussions with Prime Minister Meles on 24 April.

We have also raised issues of respect for human rights, freedom of expression and the cases of those detained in connection with the political disturbances in 2005. We welcome the establishment of a Commission of Inquiry into the events of last June and November and look forward to its report.

Falkland Islands

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate she has made of the reserves of oil and gas in Falkland Islands waters. [79611]

Mr. Hoon: Only further exploratory drilling will allow for a dependable estimate on the size of the reserves of oil and gas in Falkland Islands waters. Initial exploratory drilling was unable to ascertain the level of oil and gas reserves and is unlikely to restart before 2007.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment the Government have made of the potential contribution of the search for oil and gas in Falkland Islands waters to the provision of energy in the UK; and whether the Government are taking action to support such exploration. [79702]

Mr. Hoon: Only further exploratory drilling will allow for a dependable estimate on the size of the reserves of oil and gas in Falkland Islands waters. It is not therefore possible currently to assess the potential contribution to the provision of energy in the UK. Initial exploratory drilling was unable to ascertain the level of oil and gas reserves and is unlikely to restart before 2007.

The Government are committed to the offshore prospecting policy pursued by the Falkland Islands Government.

Human Rights

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions she has had with China on the human rights records of the countries in Africa with which it trades. [79433]

Mr. McCartney: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had specific discussions with China on human rights in Africa. We continue to develop our dialogue with China on Africa, and to encourage China to engage with Africa in a way that promotes human rights, conflict prevention, sustainable development and democratic and accountable governance. I raised these issues with the Chinese ambassador on 21 June and urged China to develop a wider strategic concept of its engagement in Africa commensurate with its growing economic presence. I also raised China's engagement in Africa with the Chairman of the UK Friendship Group of the China National People's Congress during my meeting with him on 13 June.

Iraq

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what account will be taken of the views of the Iraqi Government when considering troop withdrawal from Iraq; and what assessment she has made of the recent comments by Iraq's (a) Prime Minister and (b) National Security Adviser on this issue. [80430]

Dr. Howells: We are committed to Iraq for as long as the Iraqi Government judge that the coalition is required to provide security and to assist the Iraqi security forces. All decisions on the presence of multinational forces in Iraq reflect regular and intense consultation with the Iraqi authorities. Recommendations on the transfer of security responsibility in each of Iraq's provinces and cities from coalition to Iraqi security forces are made jointly, with the ultimate decision being made by the Iraqi Prime Minister.

This process was reflected in Prime Minister Maliki's 19 June statement announcing the forthcoming transfer of security responsibility in Muthanna province and Mowaffak al-Rabaie's article of 20 June. We remain committed to providing what support we can to help the Iraqi authorities achieve our shared goal of a stable and democratic future for Iraq.

Libya

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she had with the Libyan Government on bringing those responsible for the death of PC Yvonne Fletcher to justice. [80331]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had personal discussions with the Libyan Government about WPC Fletcher's case. I raised this with the Libyan authorities during my visit to Libya on 25 to 27 June. We continue to press for progress in our contacts with Libya.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions she had with her Libyan counterpart on the situation in Darfur. [80332]

Mr. McCartney: My hon. Friend the Minister of State for the Middle East, Kim Howells, raised the situation on Darfur with Abdulrahman Shalgam the Libyan Secretary of Foreign Affairs in Tripoli on 26 June. The UK's Special Envoy for Darfur also visited Libya earlier in June to hold talks about Sudan.

Student Visas

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many student visas have been issued to students from (a) Russia and (b) the Ukraine in each of the last eight years. [79783]

Dr. Howells: The number of student visas issued in Russia and the Ukraine in each of the last eight years are as follows:

	Russia	Ukraine
2004-05	3,734	2,098
2003-04	8,900	1,895
2002-03	2,757	2,715
2001-02	7,131	3,325
2000	2,450	4,218
1999	3,525	3,319
1998	6,036	3,867
1997	9,267	3,590

Prior to 2001-02, entry clearance statistics were published by calendar year, rather than financial year.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Every Child Matters

13. Kali Mountford: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress has been made in implementing the Every Child Matters: Change for Children programme. [80892]

Beverley Hughes: We have made good progress. 863 children's centres are now operational. We are on track to deliver 2,500 centres by 2008. Over 1,500 schools are offering access to a core menu of extended services, and we are on track to have 2,500 extended schools in place by this September. From April this year £115 million has been available in support of our 'Youth Matters' reforms to radically improve opportunities and support for young people.

17. Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress has been made in implementing the Every Child Matters: Change for Children programme. [80896]

Beverley Hughes: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for Colne Valley (Kali Mountford) earlier today.

Language Learning

14. John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what support his Department is making available to primary schools to ensure primary school pupils have the opportunity to learn a second language as early as possible. [80893]

Jim Knight: Our commitment is that by the end of this decade every key stage 2 pupil will have the opportunity to learn a foreign language.

Between 2005 and 2008 we are investing £115 million to support our National Languages Strategy, £60 million of this will specifically support primary schools in introducing language learning programmes. This includes initial teacher training for new primary teachers with a language specialism, and in service training for teaching and non-teaching staff.

Teenage Pregnancy

15. Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress is being made on meeting the Government's target to reduce teenage pregnancy. [80894]

Beverley Hughes: Teenage pregnancy rates are declining steadily. Between 1998 and 2004, the under-18 conception rate fell by 11.1 per cent. and the under-16 conception rate fell by 15.2 per cent. Both rates are now at their lowest level since the mid-1980s. We know from the best performing areas what works, and will be sharing these lessons with all local authorities to accelerate progress towards our target to halve the under-18 conception rate by 2010.

Building Schools

16. Mr. Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will visit Northumberland to discuss school building programmes and school budgets in the county. [80895]

Jim Knight: I am eager for the chance to visit Northumberland to discuss school building programmes and school budgets in the county. I am looking in my diary to find a suitable opportunity.

Youth Opportunity Card

18. Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress has been made in establishing pilot projects for the Youth Opportunity Card. [80897]

Beverley Hughes: Progress is being made in establishing the Youth Opportunity Card pilots. We have chosen the ten local authorities where the pilots will run and are working closely with them and with other key partners to develop a workable delivery model. As with all initiatives there is a lot of detailed work to be done and we need to take the time to ensure we get it right.

TREASURY

Air Passenger Duty

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will take steps to ensure (a) that funds raised from the UK air passenger duty are separately identified when they are redeployed and (b) that a greater percentage of those funds is directed to the international finance facility. [81101]

Ed Balls: The UK is committed to developing innovative financing mechanisms to support accelerated progress towards the millennium development goals, and has announced that it will hypothecate part of the existing air passenger duty to provide a long-term stream of finance to the International Finance Facility (IFF) and its pilot the IFF for Immunization (IFFIm).

The UK air passenger duty revenue is published on an annual basis at: http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=airpass. The UK contribution to IFFIm will average £71 million a year over 20 years. The UK contribution to the IFF will be determined when it is launched. With the IFF, the UK could reach the equivalent of the 0.7 per cent. ODA-GNI target, which could be achieved as early as 2008-09.

Batteries (VAT)

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on the circumstances in which VAT is chargeable on (a) wheelchair and mobility vehicle batteries and (b) the fitting of wheelchair and mobility vehicle batteries; and whether there have been any recent changes to VAT rules in this area. [80821]

Dawn Primarolo: Batteries which have been designed solely for use with a wheelchair or mobility vehicle are VAT zero-rated when purchased by: a disabled person for his or her domestic or personal use; or a charity for making available to a disabled person for his or her domestic or personal use; or certain eligible bodies which pay for them with charitable funds; or a charity which will donate them to one of those eligible bodies.

In some circumstances, the supply to a disabled person, charity or eligible body of any batteries as part of the repair and maintenance of a wheelchair or mobility vehicle is also zero-rated.

There have been no recent changes to the VAT rules in this area.

Child Poverty

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what measures his Department has taken to reduce child poverty in Coventry south since 1997. [80586]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government's strategy to reduce child poverty was set out in the 'Child Poverty Review', published in July 2004. It consists of:

financial support for families, with more support for those who need it most, when they need it most;

work for those who can, helping parents participate in the labour market;

tackling material deprivation;

delivering high quality public services that improve children's life chances.

Across the UK, these measures have helped 700,000 children out of poverty, since 1998-99. Tax credits are benefiting more than 420,000 families in the West Midlands region, and in Coventry South claimant unemployment has fallen by over 30 per cent. since 1997.

Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Paymaster General will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 23 May on correspondence forwarded to her from Jobcentre Plus. [81448]

Dawn Primarolo: I have done so.

Customs (Cornwall)

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate has been made of the number of illegal items entering the UK via the Cornish coast in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [81097]

Dawn Primarolo: No estimate is available specifically in relation to the Cornish coast.

Information on operational results is published in the Annual Reports of HM Revenue and Customs. The most recent Annual Report was published on 19 December 2005. The figures for the year ending 31 March 2006 will be published in the next Annual Report.

Death Certificates

Norman Baker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the answer of 2 May 2006, Official Report, column 1387W, on death certificates, who possesses the authority to alter a certified copy of a registration of death. [81213]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 29 June 2006:

As Registrar General for England and Wales, I have been asked to reply to your recent question, pursuant to the Answer of 2nd May 2006, Official Report, column 1387W, on death certificates, who possesses the authority legitimately to alter a certified copy of a registration of death. (81213)

The law provides for the registration officer who has custody of the death register containing the relevant record to make a correction. The register is kept by the registrar of births and deaths until all the entries in the register have been completed (there are usually 300 entries in a register). Once the register is filled it is deposited with the Superintendent Registrar for the district, who then assumes responsibility for correcting any of the records it contains. A certified copy (or certificate) is a copy of the entry in the register and must be a true copy of that entry. If an entry in a death register is corrected a certified copy of the corrected entry may be issued by the person with custody of the register.

Death Statistics

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the most recent rate of (a) cancers and (b) stroke was in (i) Stoke-on-Trent, (ii) the West Midlands and (iii) England. [80605]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 29 June 2006:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the most recent rate of (a) cancers and (b) stroke was in (i) Stoke-on-Trent, (ii) the West Midlands and (iii) England. [80605]

A: Cancers

The latest available rates for newly diagnosed cases of cancer (incidence) are for the year 2003. Registration rates per 100,000 population, by site and sex, for (ii) the West Midlands and (iii) England for the year 2003 are available in Table 5 of the Annual Reference Volume, Cancer statistics: Registrations, Series MB1. These are available on the National Statistics website:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=8843&Pos=14&ColRank=2&Rank=272

The most recent cancer incidence rates for all malignant cancers excluding non-melanoma skin cancer are given in Table 1 below for (i) Stoke on Trent Unitary Authority (ii) the West Midlands and (iii) England.

B. Stroke

There is no complete register of stroke cases. Information is available centrally on emergency admission to hospital from the NHS Hospital Episode System (HES), and on death registrations.

Figures on emergency admissions to hospital for strokes can be found on the Clinical and Health Outcomes Knowledge Base website: http://www.nchod.nhs.uk/. (Table reference numbers: 10C_5281SR7CM_04-V2 (males) 10C_5281SR7CF_04-V2 (females)). Figures are available for England, Government Office Regions, Strategic Health Authorities, Unitary Authorities and County Districts. The latest year for which data are available is for the financial year 2003/04.

The latest year for which death rates for stroke are available is 2004 and these are given in Table 2 below.

Departmental Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list in date order (a) Green and (b) White papers produced by his Department since October 2005. [81249]

John Healey: A list in date order of Command Papers published by the Treasury since November 2001 can by found on the website of the Office of Public Sector Information (www.opsi.gov.uk). Information relating specifically to White Papers and to Green Papers—terms which are not formally defined—is not available.

Deposited Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy to make copies of deposited papers available in the (a) Vote Office and (b) Printed Paper Office at the same time as copies are deposited in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [81242]

John Healey: The Treasury acts in accordance with the guidance issued by the House of Commons Library and makes available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office multiple copies of deposited papers that are likely to be required by a large number of Members.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list deposited papers placed in the Library by his Department since 2000; and when each was published. [81253]

John Healey: The Treasury does not maintain a database of the numerous documents deposited in the Library each session. However, deposited papers are available to Members from the Library of the House.

Household Incomes

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the (a) median and (b) mean household income was in the latest year for which information is available; and if he will make a statement; [80640]

(2) what the lower limit of the top decile for household earnings was in the latest year for which information is available; and if he will make a statement. [80641]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Colin Mowl, dated 29 June 2006:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Questions asking what the (a) median and (b) mean household income was in the latest year available and what is the lower limit of the top decile for household earnings for the latest year for which information is available. I am replying in her absence. (80640, 80641)

This response is based on the article titled 'The effects of taxes and benefits on household income' which takes account of all household income and can be found at http://www.statistics.gov.uk/taxesbenefits, as well as in the May 2006 edition of Economic Trends.

Disposable income is the income available for spending. It includes income from all sources after the deduction of income tax, National Insurance Contributions and council tax/Northern Ireland rates.

Using data based on the above analysis the median household disposable income for 2004/05 was £20,398.

Looking at table 14, appendix 1 (page 20), the mean household disposable income for 2004/05 was £25,360 per year.

The article does also show the means for various other definitions of income, such as gross income. However, the analysis does not show the medians for these other definitions of income. These medians can be obtained on request.

The analysis is based on an "equivalised" household disposable income distribution. "Equivalised" household disposable income distribution is a process that adjusts household income to take into account the different size and composition of households.

Using table 14 in appendix 1 (page 20) from the above analysis, the lower limit of the top decile for household disposable income was £40,385 per year (2004/05). An equivalent figure for household earnings has not been provided as this is only one part of income and would show a large variation of earnings within the top decile (and other deciles).

This detailed analysis is based on the Expenditure and Food Survey, which has a sample covering approximately 7,000 households in the UK.

Income Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many income tax payers had incomes of less than £7,185 per year in the last year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [80638]

(2) how many upper rate income tax payers had a gross income of less than £50,000 in the last period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [80639]

Dawn Primarolo: The estimated additional cost of introducing the proposed changes for 2006-07 is in the table.

Cost of the proposed income tax changes, 2006-07

	Current regime	Proposed option
Personal allowance (£)	5,035	7,185
Starting rate (percentage)	10	20
Basic rate (percentage)[1]	22	20
Basic rate limit (£)	33,300	42,815
Additional cost (£ billion)	—	-17.1

[1] The marginal rate on earnings.

The figure excludes any estimate of behavioural response to the tax changes which could be significant given the scale of the changes.

There are an estimated 2.3 million taxpayers with total income below £7,185 and 1.4 million higher rate taxpayers with total income below £50,000.

The estimates are based on the 2003-04 Survey of Personal Incomes projected forward to 2006-07 in line with Budget 2006 assumptions.

Israel

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make a statement on his recent discussions with Prime Minister Olmert regarding natural gas supplies to Israel. [81345]

John Healey: Decisions on natural gas in the area are for commercial negotiation.

Not-for-profit Organisations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proposals he has put forward to reduce VAT liability of not-for-profit institutions working in the field of social care, for (a) surgical products, (b) new buildings, (c) refurbishments to buildings and (d) other expenditure. [81079]

Dawn Primarolo: Charities, including those that provide social care, benefit from VAT relief on the goods and services that they purchase worth some £200 million per year. These reliefs include a zero rate for medical, sterilising and laboratory equipment purchased by charities for use in the course of medical research, diagnosis or treatment.

VAT is not chargeable on the construction of new buildings used for a relevant charitable purpose, or for the provision of residential care to elderly or disabled people. Similarly, the construction of a hospice for a charity is zero-rated.

No VAT is chargeable on certain adaptations designed to facilitate entry to, or movement within, certain charitable buildings by a disabled person. This includes the installation of lifts, the installation or adaptation of bathrooms and lavatories and the widening of doorways and passageways. Approved alterations to protected buildings that are used for a relevant charitable or communal residential purpose are also zero-rated.

A reduced VAT rate of 5 per cent. is also available for the conversion of a non-residential building into a communal residential building, such as a care home, and for the installation of certain energy-saving materials in certain charitable and residential buildings.

Public Service Employment

Martin Horwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer by how much and what percentage the (a) number of people employed in and (b) productivity of Government Departments has changed since 1997. [80775]

Mr. Timms: Data on public employment sector employment levels since 1997 can be found in the National Statistics quarterly publication "Public Sector Employment First Release", published on the ONS website. The latest release can be found at the following web address: http://www.statistics.gov.uk/pdfdir/pse0406.pdf. Data on departmental work forces are currently published on the Cabinet Office website. The latest release can be found at the following web address:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/statistics/employment/index.asp.

Data are not held on a measure of the productivity of Government Departments. ONS's UK Centre for the Measurement of Government Activity publishes analyses in a regular series of Public Service Productivity articles which present and discuss estimates of the productivity performance of the key public services. These can be found at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/about/data/methodology/specific/PublicSector/output/default.asp.

At the same time, in the 2004 Spending Review Departments were set challenging targets for achieving annual efficiency gains totalling over £20 billion by March 2008. In the 2006 Budget the Chancellor announced that the Government had achieved provisional annual efficiency gains of £6.4 billion by December 2005, before the first year of the efficiency programme had been completed.

Staff Absenteeism

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many working days were lost to his Department and its executive agencies in each year since 1997 due to staff absenteeism, expressed as the average annual number of absent days per employee; and what the estimated total cost to the Department and its agencies of absenteeism was in each year. [78080]

John Healey: Staff absenteeism recorded as sickness absence, in each year since 1997 is given in the table as the average annual number of days absent per employee. The departments/agencies cannot disaggregate other elements of absenteeism.

Figures regarding sickness absence are contained in the annual report, "Analysis of Sickness Absence in the Civil Service", published by the Cabinet Office. Reports for each year since 1999 are available in the Library and on the civil service website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/management/occupational_health/publications/index.asp

Information on the cost of sickness absence could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

2. Royal Mint figures refer to non-industrials only.
3. HM Treasury included the DMO in its sickness absence reporting before 2002.

The information on average working days sickness absence is derived from the annual report "Analysis of Sickness Absence in the Civil Service" published on behalf of the Cabinet Office.

Tax Credits

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many bonus payments were made to staff at the tax credits office in each year from 2003-04; what the value was in each year; and if he will make a statement; [75782]

(2) what bonuses have been paid to managers in the tax credits department since 1 April 2005; and if he will make a statement. [76945]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 12 December 2005, Official Report, columns 1792-93W. Information is not available relating to managers.

Widows (Financial Support)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the Government plan to take to improve the financial position of widows in their late 50s and 60s who rely on half of their deceased husbands' pension as their main income. [78513]

James Purnell: I have been asked to reply.

Our proposals, published in the White Paper, Security in retirement: towards a new pensions system (Cm6841), are a bold blueprint for reform, which include delivering fair outcomes for women and continuing to target resources on those most in need.

We intend to continue to uprate the pension credit standard guarantee in line with earnings over the long-term, securing pensioners, including widows, against poverty.

The White Paper also sets out our commitment to strengthen retirement incomes for all pensioners by linking the uprating of basic state pension to average earnings. A widow, who claims a state pension based on her husband's national insurance record, will benefit from this proposed uprating strategy.

In addition, our intention is that the proposed new crediting arrangements for carers from 2010, including the replacement of home responsibilities protection with a weekly credit and the introduction of a new carer's credit, would also apply to bereavement benefits.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Fire Service

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many malicious false fire alarm calls were attended by the fire and rescue service in (a) Southend, (b) Essex, (c) Hertfordshire and (d) England and Wales in each year since 1995. [80174]

Angela E. Smith: The available information covers items (b), (c) and (d) of the question.

Information for Southend is not available centrally.

Housing

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new houses have been built in each constituency since 1 May 1997. [81039]

Yvette Cooper: Information on new houses built is available by local authority area and not constituency. Figures are as reported by local authority and the national house building council. Published information is available for 2002-03 to 2004-05 on the DCLG website:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/pub/66/Table253Excel860Kb_id 1156066.xls

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to introduce a decent homes programme in the private rented sector; and if she will make a statement. [80519]

Yvette Cooper: As part of the public service agreement with Treasury (PSA7) my Department already has a target to increase the percentage of vulnerable households in the private sector who live in decent homes. The target is to increase this percentage to 70 per cent. by 2010 and we are ahead of trajectory to achieve this. This target includes households in the private rented sector.

In order to meet this target local authorities have a wide range of powers to improve housing conditions in the private rented sector, in particular the Housing Health and Safety Rating system and the licensing system for high risk houses in multiple occupation introduced by the Housing Act 2004.

Neighbourhood Management/Renewal Schemes

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the value for money of neighbourhood management schemes. [80999]

Yvette Cooper: The neighbourhood management pathfinder programme is subject to a comprehensive national evaluation. The most recent report (Neighbourhood Renewal Unit Research Report 23) stated that neighbourhood management is capable of delivering better outcomes for deprived areas, and is a valuable tool that deserves to be developed and adopted more widely. Planned future research will address more directly the costs and benefits of the programme, though it should be noted that quantifying the impact of neighbourhood management is made harder because it works by influencing existing service providers rather than delivering and funding new services and projects directly.

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding has been provided by the Government for Neighbourhood Renewal projects in the constituency of Bristol, East since the scheme's inception. [80587]

Mr. Woolas: Over £34,149,397 of Neighbourhood Renewal funding has been spent in the Bristol, East constituency between 1 April 2000 and 31 March 2006.

This is made up of:

Funding stream	Area	Amount (£)
New Deal for Communities	Barton Hill	30,975,000
Neighbourhood Renewal Fund	Easton and Lawrence Hill	2,866,589
Neighbourhood Renewal Fund	Barton Hill	148,444
Community Chest/Community Learning Chest	Easton and Lawrence Hill	123,214
Community Chest/Community Learning Chest	Barton Hill	36,150
Total NR Funding	Bristol, East	34,149,397

The Neighbourhood Renewal Fund allocation above only includes the funding spent on direct neighbourhood projects. In addition to this the area has benefited substantially from city-wide projects, including the £1.35 million city-wide education allocation in 2004-06 and from the £1,036,955 spent on projects working with equalities groups over 2001-06. Funding from the Neighbourhood Renewal Fund has also provided a neighbourhood-based team for the area since 2001.

Future Neighbourhood Renewal Funding

£17,105,237 has been allocated for the area from 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2008. This is made up of £15,277,000 New Deal for Communities Funding and £1,828,237 Neighbourhood Renewal Fund.

Planning

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Government have allocated to the (a) Ashford and (b) Milton Keynes growth areas for infrastructure development for each of the next 10 years. [78237]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 16 June 2006]: The Ashford growth area has been allocated a total of £5.72 million in 2006-07 and £15.29 million in 2007-08 from the Growth Areas Fund. The Milton Keynes/South Midlands growth area has been allocated a total of £66.07 million in 2006-07 and £62.83 million in 2007-08 from the Growth Areas Fund. In addition, the Milton Keynes/South Midlands growth area has also been allocated a total of £96.8 million across these two years from the Community Infrastructure Fund. The split between 2006-07 and 2007-08 has yet to be decided. This funding is in addition to infrastructure funding from other Government Departments, for example for schools, healthcare facilities and transport.

No allocations have been made beyond 2007-08, as budgets cannot be set beyond the Government's Spending Review horizon.

Second Homes

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the (a) number and (b) proportion of second homes in each region. [80530]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 28 June 2006]: The number of second homes and the number of second homes as a proportion of the housing stock in each region in England are shown in the following table. The data are from a snapshot taken in October 2005, as recorded on CTB1 forms submitted by each local authority for council tax purposes.

	Number of second homes	Second homes as a percentage of total number of dwellings
North East	7,188	0.6
North West	18,295	0.6
Yorkshire and the Humber	16,267	0.7
East Midlands	9,968	0.5
West Midlands	14,774	0.6
East of England	28,181	1.2
London	49,820	1.6
South East	41,588	1.2
South West	50,250	2.2
Total	236,331	1.1

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many properties are (a) designated as second homes and eligible for a council tax discount and (b) claiming such a discount in (i) the Lewes district council and (ii) Wealdon district council area. [81033]

Mr. Woolas: There are 446 properties in the Lewes district council area and 956 properties in the Wealden district council area designated as second homes and claiming a discount in council tax as at 19 September 2005, the latest date for which figures are available.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Academic Selection

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the estimated cost is of abolishing academic selection in Northern Ireland. [79998]

Maria Eagle: The abolition of academic selection is one element of a whole package of reforms of post-primary education. The focus of the new arrangements is on the educational needs of the child. The new arrangements will be implemented locally by schools and school managing authorities working together, taking account of local needs and circumstances. Until local arrangements are developed, the financial implications cannot be assessed. £24.7 million has been made available over the period 2005-06 to 2007-08 to support the preparation for and phased introduction of, key elements of the new post-primary arrangements.

Breast Cancer

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps he is taking to reduce waiting times for women undergoing predictive genetic testing for breast cancer; and if he will make a statement. [80097]

Paul Goggins: Predictive genetic testing for breast cancer is available to women at the regional Genetics Centre at Belfast City hospital. I have been advised that predictive genetic tests for breast cancer are treated as a high priority and are generally reported within four to six weeks. There is no significant waiting list for this service.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many families in Northern Ireland have been tested for the CDH 1gene; and how many patients have opted for pre-emptive surgery in each board area as a result of the test in each of the last three years. [80103]

Paul Goggins: The CDH1 (E-Cadherin) mutation is associated with familial diffuse gastric cancer. Approximately 10 to 15 families in Northern Ireland have been tested for the CDH1 mutation. None has tested positive consequently. There has been no pre-emptive surgery performed in Northern Ireland for this disease.

Call Centres

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many call centre jobs there are in Northern Ireland; how many there were three years ago; and if he will make a statement. [80101]

Paul Goggins: Invest NI figures from a survey of customer contact centres in Northern Ireland conducted in May 2006 show that there are currently over 10,500 employed in the sector. Three years ago the number employed was around 8,000.

The customer contact sector in Northern Ireland has been developed largely by inward investment but also contains a number of locally owned companies trading in international markets. It remains a key target sector for Invest NI.

Cocaine

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in each health and social services board area (HSSB) are known to be cocaine users; and what working estimate of the total number of cocaine users each HSSB has. [79976]

Paul Goggins: The Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety (DHSSPS) records information on problem drug users presenting to treatment services for the first time, or for the first time in six months or more. The number of people presenting to treatment services in 2004-05 (the latest year for which figures are available) where they reported cocaine (including crack cocaine) use, by health and social services board, is recorded as:

Health and social services board	Number
Eastern	138
Northern	56
Southern	53
Western	75
Northern Ireland[1]	369

[1] Includes 47 people from Northern Ireland prisons who have reported using cocaine at some stage.

Source:
NI Drug Misuse Database.

The DHSSPS report entitled '2002-03 Drug Prevalence Survey: Cocaine Results' reported lifetime prevalence figures for cocaine (those who reported that they had ever used cocaine, including crack cocaine) use in Northern Ireland. Lifetime Prevalence figures, for adults aged 15 to 64 years, for each of the four health and social services boards in Northern Ireland were reported as:

Health and social services board	Percentage of lifetime prevalence
Eastern	2.4
Northern	1.0
Southern	0.8
Western	1.6

Consultant Referrals

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average waiting time to be seen by a consultant was for people in Northern Ireland in 2005-06, broken down by clinical conditions. [80057]

Paul Goggins: Official waiting list information is collected by time band. It is therefore not possible to calculate the average (arithmetic mean) and longest waiting time. It is however possible to identify the median or mid point waiting time band.

The latest available waiting list statistics show the position at 31 March 2006. It is not possible to provide waiting lists by clinical conditions as waiting list information is aggregated by specialty. The median waiting time band for patients waiting for their first outpatient consultant appointment at 31 March 2006 for each individual specialty is provided in the following table.

Deafblind Children (Goverment Guidance)

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will implement in Northern Ireland the Government guidance entitled Social Care for Deafblind Children and Adults; and if he will make a statement. [79911]

Paul Goggins: The Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety is currently developing a strategic framework for services for people with a sensory or physical disability. It will consider the application of this guidance as part of the strategy development process.

Depression

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people have been diagnosed with depression in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years; and how many people diagnosed were given access to cognitive behaviour therapy. [80939]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is not available.

Donor Cards

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people in Northern Ireland have signed up to carrying donor cards since 1999; and if he will make a statement. [80107]

Paul Goggins: It is impossible to know how many people in Northern Ireland carry donor cards. However, the following figures show the number of people in Northern Ireland who have registered with the NHS organ donor register.

	Total Northern Ireland registrations
Pre-1999	136,262
1999 to date	198,801
On NHS organ donor register	335,063

Education

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland why special schools in Northern Ireland are not permitted to move to integrated status. [78979]

Maria Eagle: Article 90 (2) of the Education (Northern Ireland) Order 1989 as amended by the Education and Libraries (Northern Ireland) Order 1993 and the Education (Northern Ireland) Order 1998 prohibits special schools from attaining controlled integrated status. While it is accepted that most special schools have both Protestant and Roman Catholic children, integrated status is not appropriate for the special school sector, where developmental needs are necessarily assessed on the basis of specialised criteria, related to the individual special educational needs of the child.

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many schools in Northern Ireland, apart from integrated schools, have 10 per cent. or more of the minority tradition enrolled; and what the figures were in each of the preceding 10 years. [78983]

Maria Eagle: The requested information is as follows.

Home Helps

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what plans he has to review the working practices of home help and domestic care workers for elderly and infirm people in Northern Ireland, with special reference to Health and Safety restrictions. [81226]

Paul Goggins: There are at present no plans to review the working practices of home help and domestic care workers for elderly and infirm people in Northern Ireland. However, the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety is currently developing regulations and minimum care standards for domiciliary care agencies.

These standards will specify minimum supervision and appraisal requirements, mandatory training requirements and safe and healthy working practices. These new regulations and standards are expected to come into effect on 1 April 2007 and will form the basis for inspections carried out by the Regulatory and Quality Improvement Authority.

House Fires

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many house fires the Fire Service in Northern Ireland was called out to deal with where there was (a) no and (b) a faulty smoke alarm fitted during 2005. [81222]

Paul Goggins: In the period January 2005 to December 2005 there were 203 cases of house fires where a smoke alarm was not fitted and 152 cases where the smoke alarm was faulty.

Invest Northern Ireland

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what land holdings are held by Invest Northern Ireland in each district council in Northern Ireland. [80293]

Paul Goggins: The amount of land held by Invest Northern Ireland in each of the 26 district councils in Northern Ireland is set out in the following table. It amounts to 2,803 acres (1,134 hectares).

Lung Cancer

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many cases of lung cancer have been diagnosed in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [80957]

Paul Goggins: Table 1 details information on the incidence of lung cancer (ICD-10 C33 and C34) in Northern Ireland for the last five years for which data was available.

Medical Training

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many medical students who are studying in Northern Ireland will (a) be unable to continue their studies and (b) be unable to take up positions of employment in Northern Ireland as a result of the new visa regulations pertaining to international medical students; and if he will make a statement. [79762]

Paul Goggins: The information is as follows.

(a) All overseas medical students will be able to continue their medical studies, as training up to registration with the General Medical Council (GMC) is not affected by the new immigration rules.

(b) Non-European economic area (EEA) doctors already in training posts will now be considered as being employed rather than in training, and therefore will need to meet the work permit provisions. Transitional arrangements are in place for those who have been offered a post starting on or before 4 August 2006.

The new immigration rules introduced by the Home Office that came into effect on 3 April 2006 will not prevent doctors from training in the United Kingdom, but are designed to bring the employment of doctors into line with other sectors of the UK economy.

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) nurse and (b) doctor training places were available in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years; how many people entered training in each year; and how many people qualified in each year. [78719]

Paul Goggins: The number of (a) nurses and (b) doctors who commenced training and completed training in each of the last 10 years is presented in the following tables. All available training places have been filled in each of the 10 years.

MS Treatment

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average waiting time is for multiple sclerosis patients in the Western Health and Social Services Board (WHSSB) area to be added to the waiting list to receive disease-modifying therapy (DMT) treatment; what the average waiting time is for MS patients in the WHSSB area who are on the waiting list to begin DMT treatment; and what the target time is in each case. [79969]

Paul Goggins: Patients with MS who are assessed as eligible to receive treatment with disease modifying therapies are placed on the waiting list following assessment by, and in consultation with, their neurologist. There is no waiting period to be added to the list.

Waiting list information for disease modifying therapies is collected by time band. While these cannot be used to calculate the average length of time waiting, it is possible to identify the median or mid-point waiting time band. The median waiting time band for MS patients in the Western Board area at 30 April 2006 was six to eight months. An additional £2 million has been allocated to Health and Social Services Boards in 2006-07 and 2007-08 which will, by March 2008, allow all those who are currently waiting for disease modifying therapies to start their treatment and ensure that new patients who are eligible for treatment do not face long waits.

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many new multiple sclerosis patients in the Western Health and Social Services Board (WHSSB) area have begun receiving disease-modifying therapy in the last three months; how many additional MS patients in the WHSSB area have been placed on the waiting list to receive DMT treatment in the last three months; and if he will make a statement. [79970]

Paul Goggins: In the three month period from 1 March 2006 to 31 May 2006, two multiple sclerosis patients from the Western Health and Social Services Board area started treatment with disease modifying therapies. Over the same period, two Western Board patients were added to the waiting list.

Respite Care Charges

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the financial impact on families of respite care charges for adults with learning disabilities; and what plans he has to review the making of such charges. [79968]

Paul Goggins: The need for respite care and any associated charge is a matter for assessment on a case by case basis. There are currently no plans to review the charging arrangements.

School Transport

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many taxis are being used to transport children to school in each education and library board area; and at what cost. [80102]

Maria Eagle: In 2004-05 the education and library boards used 1,393 taxis to transport pupils to and from school, at a total cost of £8,012,000, broken down in the following table.

	Number of taxis	Cost (£)
Belfast board	195	633,000
North-Eastern board	259	2,095,000
South-Eastern board	298	2,216,000
Southern board	335	2,022,000
Western board	306	1,046,000

Education and library boards only transport pupils via taxi where an existing bus service is not available and it is more cost effective to provide a taxi rather than introduce a new route. In addition, pupils with a statement of special needs may have specialised transport requirements that can only be met through the provision of a taxi. Medical experts make this decision and the requirement to provide transport via taxi is detailed on the pupil's statement of special needs.

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many children have (a) been injured and (b) reported attacks by other children in shared taxis in the last two years, broken down by education and library board. [80104]

Maria Eagle: Four of the five education and library boards have confirmed that there have been no children reported injured by other children while travelling to and from school in shared taxis in the last two years. The Southern education and library board has also confirmed that there have been no serious injuries to children during this period but is not able to provide details of minor incidents.

Schools

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many schools in Northern Ireland which are currently open he expects to have closed by the end of 2007. [79456]

Maria Eagle: Proposals to close a school are subject to the publication of a development proposal, which ensures that all interested parties are informed, and have the opportunity to comment, before a decision is made.

The Department has approved the closure of seven primary schools, six of which are due to close in August 2006 and one to close in August 2007. The Department has also approved the closure of one post-primary school to take effect in August 2006.

There are currently four other recently published development proposals each for the closure of a primary school, with three proposed to take effect in August 2006 and one in August 2007, on which decisions have not yet been made. There are also two recently published development proposals for the closure of two post-primary schools in August 2007, on which decisions have not yet been made.

In addition, the Department has previously approved the amalgamations of 12 primary schools into four schools—these are all planned to take effect before the end of 2007, and approved a further proposal to support the amalgamation of two post-primary schools to form one school with effect from September 2006. Two Development proposals each for the amalgamation of two primary schools to form one school have recently been published and currently under consideration.

Security Checks

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what security checks are carried out on workers subcontracted to carry out work on school premises, including cleaners and maintenance workers. [78784]

Maria Eagle: It is the responsibility of those contracted by the education and libraries board or other employing authorities, to provide services on school premises, to ensure that their staff pose no risk to children by carrying out a vetting check.

The employing authority must, at the tender stage, make it clear to private contractors that vetting must be carried out on employees before any work is undertaken on school premises.

The arrangements for the vetting and selection of persons to work with children in an educational setting were the subject of an urgent review early in 2006 and new guidance covering all aspects was issued to employing authorities, among others, in March in circular 2006/06, Child Protection: Recruitment of People to work with Children and Young People in Educational Settings (available at www.deni.gov.uk)

Seroxat

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the safety of Seroxat for pregnant women suffering from depression; and if he will make a statement. [80110]

Paul Goggins: On 7 December 2005 the Chief Medical Officer issued an urgent communication to the Health and Social Services in Northern Ireland attaching a letter from the Commission on Human Medicines (CHM) which highlighted new evidence relating to a possible risk of congenital malformations following maternal use of Paroxetine (Seroxat) in the first trimester. The CHM letter contained advice to prescribers and patients on the use of Paroxetine (Seroxat) in pregnancy. The advice indicated that Paroxetine should only be used in pregnancy when strictly indicated and only if the benefits of treatment for the mother are thought to outweigh the potential risk to the foetus.

There is ongoing discussion at a European level on the safety of all selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors (SSRIs), including Paroxetine (Seroxat) in pregnancy. Any new advice will be issued as necessary.

Vandalism

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost was to the Department of Education of vandalism at educational establishments in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [78303]

Maria Eagle: The cost of repairing vandalism met by each education and library board in controlled and maintained schools in the last three years is as follows:

	£000
2003-04	831
2004-05	639
2005-06	679

The information for voluntary grammar and grant maintained integrated schools is not readily available and is being requested. I will write to the hon. Lady with the information as soon as possible.

Advisory Committee on Resource Allocation

Geraldine Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health who the members are of the Advisory Committee on Resource Allocation. [79477]

Audiology Services

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will make it her policy to review the decision to exclude audiology from the 18-week waiting time target for treatment. [81155]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The 18-week referral to treatment target covers hospital pathways.

As a result of innovation, the majority of audiology and adult hearing services are accessed directly from primary care and are outside the scope of the 18-week pathway. However, hearing and balance conditions that do need to be referred to a medical consultant will be subject to 18 weeks.

There is no intention to reconsider or review this principle. However, reducing the time that patients wait for directly accessed services is important and an action plan is being developed to improve access to audiology services outside the 18-week pathway.

Lorely Burt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting times are from GP referral to final fitting of digital hearing aids for (a) new patients and (b) existing patients with an analogue hearing aid in the Solihull Primary Care Trust area. [80853]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not collect waiting time data for hearing aid/audiology services. However, since January 2006 we have been collecting waiting time and activity data for 15 diagnostic tests/procedures, including pure tone audiometry. These data have been shared with the national health service, for performance management purposes since 2 June 2006. These data will be routinely published from July 2006.

Audit Commission Act

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many reports under (a) section 19 and (b) section 8 of the Audit Commission Act 1998 she has received in each year since the provisions were implemented. [81002]

Andy Burnham: Section 8 of the Act requires auditors in auditing the accounts to consider whether, in the public interest, they should report on any matter coming to their notice in the course of the audit, in order for it to be considered by the body concerned or brought to the attention of the public. The auditor can issue an immediate report if the public interest requires it, or can issue a report at the conclusion of the audit.

Section 19 of the Audit Commission Act 1998 requires an appointed auditor to refer matters to the Secretary of State if he/she has reason to believe that a national health service organisation has made a decision which involves, or may involve, unlawful expenditure, known as referrals to the Secretary of State. These reports are not published.

The number of reports and referrals made under sections 8 and 19 of the Audit Commission Act 1998 are shown in the table.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to her answer of 21 June 2006, Official Report, column 1943W, on the Audit Commission Act, how many and which section 19 reports were the result of (a) the organisation breaking its resource allocation limits, (b) the organisation having little prospect of achieving balance within a three or five year period, (c) suspicious payments, (d) fraud and (e) and other reasons; [81231]

(2) pursuant to her answer of 21 June 2006, Official Report, column 1943W, on the Audit Commission Act, what the dates are of each report. [81230]

Andy Burnham: Section 19 of the Audit Commission Act 1998 requires an appointed auditor to refer matters to the Secretary of State if he/she has reason to believe that a national health service organisation has made a decision which involves, or may involve, unlawful expenditure, known as referrals to the Secretary of State. Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire Strategic Health Authority

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will take steps to ensure that all the organisations within the Avon, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire strategic health authority tackle their deficits within the timescale identified by the local operating framework. [79651]

Caroline Flint: The role of the Department is to ensure that strategic health authorities (SHAs) comply with the operating framework guidance published on 26 January 2006. Individual SHAs are responsible for the performance management of their national health service organisations and for ensuring that they achieve financial balance. The aim is for the NHS as a whole, is to have returned to financial balance by the end of 2006-07. In addition, we are aiming for all overspending organisations to have monthly balance of income and expenditure (run rate balance) by the end of 2006-07.

There will be some exceptional cases where an organisation cannot achieve run rate balance in 2006-07 without an undue impact on patient services.

However, where one organisation overspends, an organisation elsewhere in the system needs to underspend for the NHS as a whole to be in financial balance. It is important, therefore, that organisations return to financial balance as quickly as possible.

Bowel Cancer

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advice the chief medical officer has provided on preventing bowel cancer; and if she will make a statement. [72617]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Bowel cancer is one of several cancers linked to diet and other lifestyle factors, including physical activity. Government advice on how to reduce cancer risk is to eat a healthy, balanced diet that is high in fibre, fruit and vegetables, low in fat, and containing a moderate amount of red and processed meat. Other known risk factors include obesity, smoking and alcohol consumption.

Breast Cancer

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will give greater priority to the (a) treatment of, (b) research into and (c) financing of treatment of inflammatory breast cancer. [78987]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Cancer is a Government priority. However, decisions on the provision and funding of cancer services are a matter for the national health service and individual primary care trusts to consider as part of their local priority setting.

In the 'NHS Cancer Plan', published in 2000, the Department confirmed its commitment to increasing investment in cancer research and breast cancer trials constitute the largest proportion of trials in the national cancer research network's portfolio.

In 2004-05, £3.8 billion was spent on cancer services. However, figures are not routinely collected centrally on the treatment of individual cancers, including inflammatory breast cancer.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 21 June, Official Report, column 1936W, on breast cancer, in what circumstances a breast cancer patient may not benefit from Herceptin. [81082]

Ms Rosie Winterton: It is for individual clinicians, in discussion with a patient, to decide whether or not it is suitable to prescribe a specific drug, taking into account any relevant guidance from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE). Primary care trusts may need to be involved to decide whether to support the clinician's decision and supply the drug at the national health service expense.

On 9 June 2006, NICE published its draft guidance on Herceptin. This recommends the drug for women with early stage HER2-positive breast cancer, except where there are concerns about cardiac function.

However, there may be other individual patients for whom it is not suitable—for example, if the woman is too frail to tolerate chemotherapy. This will be a matter for discussion between a woman and her clinician.

These recommendations are subject to an appeal period which closed on 28 June 2006. Final guidance is expected to be issued at the beginning of July, assuming there are no appeals. There are no national restrictions on the NHS using Herceptin in the interim.

Care Homes

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many pages of (a) guidance and (b) forms (i) her Department and (ii) its arm's length bodies sent to care homes in each year since 1997. [79674]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested is not available centrally.

Child Malnutrition

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of child malnutrition levels in each of the last 10 years. [74154]

Caroline Flint: Malnutrition occurs when a deficiency, excess or imbalance of energy, protein, and other nutrients causes measurable adverse effects on tissue, function and clinical outcome.

Data on child malnutrition levels in each of the last 10 years can be obtained from the hospital episodes statistics (HES) which uses the international classification for diseases (ICD) to record and collate hospital admissions data. Malnutrition is defined by a primary diagnosis between the ICD-10 codes E40 to E46. The data from HES for child malnutrition in each of the last 10 years is shown in the table.

Contracts (Termination Clauses)

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps she plans to take to ensure that NHS organisations contracting with private sector contracts have effective termination clauses in their contracts. [75022]

Ms Rosie Winterton: All national health service organisations should have appropriate clauses for the termination of contracts that they give based on legal advice. Where termination of a contract is necessary this should be done on the basis of the terms within that contract and any further legal advice the commissioner may need. The Department will be issuing guidance to NHS commissioners for framework contracts later this year.

Deafblind People (Care Services)

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she next plans to review the implementation by local authorities of (a) the statutory guidance for deafblind children and adults and (b) section 7 of the Local Authority Social Services Act 1970 on fair access to care services; and if she will make a statement. [81073]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: There are no plans to review the implementation by local authorities of the statutory guidance for deafblind children and adults. It is the responsibility of councils to identify the number of deafblind people in their area.

There are no plans to review the implementation by local authorities of fair access to care services (FACS), which is published as statutory guidance under section 7 of the Local Authority Social Services Act 1970.

As part of the consultation on the adult social care Green Paper "Independence, Well-being and Choice", we asked for views on the impact on FACS of shifting the balance of services from high-level need to earlier, preventative interventions. Following analysis of consultation, we believe that FACS is compatible with a preventative approach to social care.

Dentistry

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the (a) number and (b) proportion of children eligible for orthodontic treatment (i) prior to 1 April and (ii) following the introduction of an assessment based on an index of treatment need, broken down by primary care trust. [78954]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Contractors only provide orthodontic treatment to a person who is assessed as having a treatment need in grade four or five of the dental health component of the index of orthodontic treatment need (IOTN) or grade three of the dental health component of that index with an aesthetic component of six or above. This is unless the contractor is of the opinion that orthodontic treatment should be provided to a person who does not have such a treatment need by virtue of the exceptional circumstances of the dental and oral condition of the person concerned.

Research has shown that IOTN grades four and five constitute about 30 per cent., of the 12 year old child population, the age most suitable for treatment. Although many orthodontic practitioners based their treatment planning on IOTN, all grades could be treated in the general dental services. It should also be noted that children do not necessarily receive orthodontic treatment within the primary care trust which they reside.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether her Department treats referrals to hospital-based orthodontists from dentists as consultant to consultant referrals; and if she will make a statement; [76953]

(2) whether her Department collects statistics on referrals to hospital-based orthodontists by dentists; and if she will make a statement. [76960]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Where the referral is from a general dental practitioner it is recorded in the same way as a referral from a general medical practitioner. If the referral is from a primary care dentist other than a general dental practitioner, it is recorded as a consultant to consultant referral.

The table shows the number of referral requests for first out-patient appointments in orthodontics between 2002-03 and 2005-06. The information collected is split by written referrals by general practitioners (GPs) and other. GP referrals include referrals by general dental practitioners and other referrals include consultant to consultant referrals and referrals to optometrists.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the estimated cost is of resolving new dental service contracts and agreements which have been signed in dispute; and how many man-hours she estimates will be spent on resolving the issues. [77049]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Primary care trusts are responsible for local resolution of contract and pre-contract disputes for all national health service services that they commission. From April 2006, primary care dentistry has become one of these locally commissioned services. Information is not collected centrally on the costs or the time involved in the local resolution of disputes.

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dentists in Wantage constituency have stopped taking new NHS patients since 1 April. [77118]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data on the number of dentists who rejected the new contract on or since 1 April and who have therefore ceased to treat national health service patients is not available centrally.

Management information is held centrally on the number of contracts rejected or accepted by primary care trusts (PCTs). A contract may be for either a practice or an individual dentist so the information is not a guide to the number of dentists who accepted or rejected the contract. As of April, 35 contracts were agreed and three rejected in the South West Oxfordshire PCT area while 23 contracts were signed and 13 rejected in the Swindon PCT area. The signed contracts represent 98.1 per cent. and 93.1 per cent. of dental services respectively. This reflects that fact that many of those who rejected new contracts were dentists who treated relatively few NHS patients. PCTs are using the funding associated with the rejected contracts to commission additional services from other dentists.

Dermatology

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government is taking to improve GP (a) initial and (b) continued training in dermatology; and if she will make a statement. [77985]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department is not responsible for setting curricula for health professional training; that is rightly the responsibility of the statutory and professional bodies. However, we do share a commitment with those bodies that all health professionals are trained so that they have the skills and knowledge to deliver a high quality health service to all groups of the population with whom they deal.

Post-registration training needs for national health service staff are decided against local NHS priorities, through appraisal processes and training needs analyses informed by local delivery plans and the needs of the service.

Access to training is affected by a number of factors such as the availability of funding. Whether staff can be released, the availability of appropriate training interventions, mentors and assessors. It would not be practical for the centre to be prescriptive on this.

European Health Insurance Cards

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many European health insurance cards have been issued by the NHS in each calendar quarter since their inception. [76507]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The first European health insurance cards were issued in mid July 2005. Up to 17 June 2006 19.4 million cards had been issued. The quarterly breakdown is shown in the table.

	Number of cards issued
July to September 2005	7.26
October to December 2005	6.8
January to March 2006	3.08
April to 17 June 2006	2.28

Food Supplements

Dr. Iddon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) whether she plans to raise with the European Commission the reasons why its recent Discussion Paper on the Setting of Maximum and Minimum Amounts for Vitamins and Minerals in Foodstuffs does not include the report of the United Kingdom Government's Expert Advisory Group on Vitamins and Minerals in the Annexes containing examples of approaches to the setting of such levels; [76827]

(2) whom she intends to consult in preparing a response to the Discussion Paper on the Setting for Maximum and Minimum Amounts of Vitamins and Minerals in Foodstuffs recently published by the European Commission; and what her objectives are for that process; [76828]

Caroline Flint: The Food Standards Agency (FSA) has raised with the European Commission why its recent discussion paper on setting maximum levels of vitamins and minerals in foodstuffs did not include the report from the United Kingdom expert group on vitamins and minerals (EVM). The Commission has explained that the EVM work provided recommended levels for individual vitamins and minerals rather than presenting a model for establishing such levels. The annexes in the Commission document provides examples of such models.

The FSA will consult stakeholders and independent scientific experts, and draw on the work carried out by the EVM in responding to the discussion paper on the setting of maximum and minimum amounts of vitamins and minerals in foodstuffs. The FSA will hold a meeting to discuss these points as part of this consultation.

GP Vocational Training Scheme

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will take steps to ensure that funding is found to enable the 29 junior doctors who have had their general practitioner vocational training scheme posts deferred to start their training in August 2006. [81045]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Funding for investment in education and training is allocated to strategic health authorities (SHAs) for them to use according to local priorities. It is for the SHAs and their deaneries, in this case London, to determine their priorities and allocate resources accordingly. I understand there has been no reduction in the number of funded training places by the London Deanery.

Health Care Support Workers

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many healthcare support workers have been employed in the NHS at Agenda for Change level (a) five, (b) four, (c) three, (d) two and (e) one since 1997; what the annual change in staff has been at each level; and what the forecast annual change is over the next 10 year period. [77085]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Assimilation to the agenda for change pay system has recently been completed with just under 99 per cent. of staff on the new system by the end of March. Data are not collected centrally on the number of staff in each band, but the computer aided job evaluation system can provide data on the frequency with which particular types of job have assimilated to the various pay bands.

Health care support worker is not a commonly used job title. In the case of nursing health care assistants, which are the largest group of support worker, the data show that there have been 12,694 nursing health care assistant matches to band two, 9,255 to band three and 365 to band four. There have been no matches to band five.

Planned changes in staff numbers in jobs at different levels are determined locally.

Health Trusts (Gloucestershire)

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1562W on NHS trust deficits, if she will provide the same information for (a) Cotswold and Vale and (b) Cheltenham and Tewkesbury primary care trusts. [79693]

Caroline Flint: Information on the count of patients residing in the Cotswold and Vale primary care trust (PCT) and the Cheltenham and Tewkesbury PCT areas, by site of treatment, has been placed in the Library.

Insulin

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the number of deaths resulting from the incorrect self-administration of insulin by diabetes patients in each of the last three years. [75838]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 2 March 2006, Official Report, column 919W.

Maternity Services

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate she has made of the cost of a birth without complications in a (a) birth centre and (b) consultant-led maternity unit; [73110]

(2) what steps she is taking to encourage NHS trusts (a) to support existing birth centres and (b) to establish new birth centres; [73111]

(3) if she will list the birth centres in England; and which birth centres have been closed (a) permanently and (b) temporarily in the last three years. [73112]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested on the cost of a normal birth in a birth centre and consultant-led maternity unit is not collected centrally. Reference cost data are collected against three specific health care resource groups: normal delivery with or without complications or co-morbidities, assisted delivery with or without complications or co-morbidities and caesarean section with or without complications or co-morbidities. This information is shown in tables one and two.

The maternity standard of the national service framework for children, young people and maternity services requires national health service maternity care providers and primary care trusts to ensure that the range of services available locally constitutes real choice for women, including care in midwife-led units either in the community or on a hospital site. It is for primary care trusts and NHS trusts to determine the appropriate pattern of service provision locally, taking into account the needs of local people, evidence of effectiveness and available resources.

The information requested to list birth centres in England and on which birth centres have been closed either permanently or temporarily in the last three years is not collected centrally

Mental Health Services

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the primary care trusts which are piloting the well-being programme in mental health; and if she will make a statement. [69343]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The following organisations are piloting the well-being programme:

Wave one—2003

Coventry Primary Care Trust (PCT);

Birmingham and Solihull Mental Health Trust;

Dorset Healthcare National Health Service Trust;

South London and The Maudsley NHS Trust;

East London and the City Mental Health Trust;

Leeds Mental Health Trust;

Tees, Esk and Wear Valleys Mental Health Trust; and North Glamorgan NHS Trust.

Wave two

Kent and Medway NHS and Social Care NHS Trust;

Northumberland, Tyne and Wear NHS Trust; and Barnet, Enfield and Haringey PCTs.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been contributed by the NHS to the well-being pilot programmes in improving mental health. [69344]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department has made £7 million available to spearhead primary care trusts in 2006-07 and in 2007-08 to support the implementation of the "Choosing Health" commitments.

Nappies

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures she has put in place to ensure the safety of commercial cloth laundering services supplying NHS maternity wards with communally laundered cloth nappies for newborn babies; at what temperature these nappies are required to be washed; and whether NHS standards for laundry and infection control were met by the laundering services in 2005-06. [78536]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Commercial cloth laundering services supplying national health service maternity wards with communally laundered cloth nappies for newborn babies must comply with HSG(95)18, a copy of which is available in the Library. The guidelines set a thermal disinfection wash cycle in which the water temperature has been raised to 65 degrees Celsius for not less than 10 minutes or to 71 degrees Celsius for not less than three minutes.

A hot wash cycle will destroy most vegetative bacteria and enteric viruses. However, water temperature is only one factor in the laundering process as the cleansing effect of the detergent and the dilution effect of the pre-wash, wash and rinse are also important.

Monitoring of laundry services is a local responsibility.

Obesity

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what action her Department (a) has taken and (b) plans to take to (i) assist people who are obese and (ii) encourage people to take action to reduce obesity; and if she will make a statement. [69141]

Caroline Flint: The "Choosing Health" White paper, published in November 2004, committed the Government to a range of actions aimed at tackling obesity. Key components of our strategy to encourage people to choose a better diet include the introduction of front of pack labelling on processed foods and restricting promotion of foods high in fat, salt and sugar to children. Work is underway to increase levels of physical activity, particularly in schools through the school sports strategy, and the setting up of sports partnerships. The Department is currently working with stakeholders to develop a national obesity awareness campaign for launch in early 2007.

To assist people who are obese, general practitioners were sent an obesity care pathway and weight loss guide at the beginning of May. The care pathway is an interim measure pending publication of National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidance on the prevention and treatment of obesity which is due before the end of the year.

Parliamentary Questions

Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she will reply to question (a) 73450 and (b) 73451 on the Staffordshire ambulance service tabled by the hon. Member for Lichfield on 22 May 2006. [78437]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Answers were given on 14 June.

Patient Advice and Liaison Service

Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patient advice and liaison service workers there are in each NHS trust in England; and what the average number of patients treated per year in each NHS trust in England was over the last five years. [78419]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Because of the local nature of the service, the Department does not keep central data relating to patient advice and liaison service (PALS) operational activities, including the number of PALS workers in each national health service trust in England.

The following table summarises the number of patients treated per year by the NHS in England over the last five years, and is taken from the NHS annual report 2004-05.

	2000-01	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	Total
General and acute admissions	8,944	8,997	9,269	9,719	10,050	46,979

New accident and emergency (first attendances)	12,953	12,901	13,253	15,313	16,712	71,132
Yearly total	35,618,	35,735	36,682	39,790	41,501	—

Note:
Figures relate to thousands

Angela Watkinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in what ways the patient advice and liaison service informs cancer patients of its ability to act as a gateway to information and advice about welfare benefits. [78428]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Because of the local nature of the service, the Department does not keep central data relating to patient advice and liaison service (PALS) operational activities. However, one of the core features of PALS is to be identifiable and accessible to patients, their carers, friends and families and strategic health authorities regularly evaluate PALS against this criterion.

Patient Correspondence (Outsourcing)

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many cases there have been of inaccurate (a) medication and (b) diagnosis following the outsourcing of patients' correspondence to non-EU countries; [80817]

(2) what audit safeguards are in place to monitor the outsourcing of patient correspondence to non-EU countries; [80818]

(3) how many hospitals in (a) England, (b) south-east England and (c) Kent have outsourced the typing of patients' correspondence to agencies outside the EU; [80819]

(4) what target time has been agreed for the return of correspondence between consultants and general practitioners sent abroad for typing; and what procedures are in place in the event that the target is not met; [81106]

(5) what steps have been taken to ensure the maintenance of patient confidentiality in respect of patients' notes outsourced to non-EU countries for typing. [81107]

Caroline Flint [holding answers for UIN 80817, 80818 and 80819 27 June 2006]: Information is not held centrally on the number of national health service organisations which outsource the typing of patient correspondence and records to agencies outside of the European Union, nor on the accuracy of subsequent medication or diagnosis where this has been done.

NHS organisations are legally responsible for managing the health records of their patients and are required by data protection legislation, reinforced by guidance issued by the Department, to ensure the accuracy and confidentiality of information held within records. They are expected to take appropriate technical and organisational measures to ensure this is the case, including the specification of quality standards in contracts for outsourced services and the establishment of appropriate audit safeguards, but compliance remains a local responsibility. Target delivery times and other service performance standards are a matter for negotiation between parties. One of the many benefits of the national programme for information technology is that it will eliminate errors in the transcription of paper notes.

Policy Research Programme

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the priorities are of the Policy Research Programme within the Department. [80707]

Andy Burnham: Priorities for the policy research programme (PRP) are determined primarily by the Department's strategic objectives and public service agreements. The PRP funds approximately 300 policy related research projects at any one time. Currently, these provide evidence to inform policy on:

health protection including antimicrobial resistance, healthcare acquired infections, Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease, infectious diseases; health promotion including obesity, nutrition, tobacco, sexual health, drugs, alcohol, foetal alcohol syndrome;

health inequalities;

specific disease areas such as coronary heart disease, stroke, and diabetes;

screening policy such as for cancer and hepatitis C; policy for vulnerable or at risk groups such as child and maternal health, people with physical and learning disabilities, long-term conditions, mental health problems, and older people;

adult social care;

whole systems reform; and the health and social care work force.

Prescription Charges (Exemption)

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidance is issued to doctors on the verification of physical disabilities that trigger exemption from prescription charges; and if she will make a statement; [79258]

(2) what criteria are used to determine eligibility for prescription charges physical disability exemption in the case of people who cannot go out unaided; [79259]

(3) how many individuals receive exemption from prescription charges due to a continuing physical disability preventing them from going out of the home unaided; what monitoring of such claims is undertaken; and if she will make a statement. [79266]

Andy Burnham: No guidance has been issued to the national health service specifically concerning the eligibility or verification of patients who apply for a prescription charge exemption on the grounds of a continuing physical disability that prevents them from going outside their home without the help of another person. When applying for a prescription charge exemption, patients are required to declare that they suffer from such a condition and this has to be signed by a doctor or a member of their general practitioner practice with access to the patient's records to confirm the patient's declaration.

The prescription pricing division of the NHS Business Services Authority became responsible for the issuing of medical exemption certificates on 1 October 2002. Since then 70,887 medical exemption certificates have been issued to those declaring a continuing physical disability which prevents them from going outside their home without the help of another person. The certificates are valid for five years from the date of issue.

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether primary care trusts will be required to pay acute trusts full tariff for all the activity their patients access. [79678]

Andy Burnham: Primary care trusts (PCTs) pay for activity, within the scope of payment by results, commissioned from national health service trusts and foundation trusts at prices determined by the national tariff. National rules on applying the tariff in 2006-07 are set out in "Payment by Results—Implementation Support Guide (Technical Guidance)" (published January 2006). There are different rules for out-patients/elective admissions; accident and emergency (A and E); and non-elective admissions.

For out-patients/elective admissions, payments are determined by the number and complexity of cases treated using national tariff prices. This may be expressed as a formula (activity x tariff).

For A and E, payments are determined by the planned number and complexity of cases, with additional funding for over performance at tariff, and withdrawal of funding for underperformance at 20 per cent. of tariff.

For non-elective admissions, a full tariff is paid for activity up to a threshold, which is set nationally. Activity above and below this threshold is paid for using a reduced tariff, that is 50 per cent. tariff in 2006-07.

The national tariff for 2006-07 is published on the Department's website at: www.dh.gov.uk/assetRoot/04/13/66/04/04136604.pdf

Prisons

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prisoners at HMP Full Sutton her Department counted as resident in the prison for the purposes of calculating allocations to Yorkshire Wolds and Coast Primary Care Trust for 2006-07. [80716]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: 588 prisoners were estimated as resident at HMP Full Sutton and included in the population of Yorkshire Wolds and Coast Primary Care Trust when revenue allocations were made for 2006-07.

Severe Head Trauma

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many specialist care centres for the rehabilitation of patients with severe head trauma there were in (a) the South West and (b) England in each year since 1997; [80378]

(2) how much her Department has spent on the provision of specialist rehabilitation services for patients with severe head trauma in each year since 1997; [80379]

(3) how many hospitals in the South West region offer specialist services for the rehabilitation of patients with severe head injuries; [80380]

Information on the number of patients receiving treatment for severe head trauma in England and the South West, and the cost of that provision, is not collected centrally. Social Workers

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Safer Place initiative target of reducing violence and abuse against social workers by 25 per cent. by March 2005 was met; and if she will make a statement. [76224]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Data to track this recommendation of the national taskforce on violence against social care staff are not collected centrally.

The responsibility to protect staff from violence and abuse falls to the employers of the staff, and the final report of the taskforce, 'A Safer Place', recommended a number of targets for employers to set themselves, against which to measure progress, and to act where standards were not good enough. One of the recommendations to employers was that they should reduce the incidence of violence to workers by 25 per cent. by March 2005 from a baseline of March 2002.

Spinal Cord Injuries

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS beds within specialist facilities are available for spinal cord injured patients; and how many were available in (a) 1990, (b) 1995, (c) 2000 and (d) 2005. [80346]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department has conducted censuses of available adult intensive care and high dependency provision since 1999. Details of such provision in spinal units (SUs) on census days in 2000 and 2005, and on the date of the most recent census, are shown in the table.

The table shows the number of available (open and staffed) adult intensive care and high dependency beds in national health service hospitals in England. A census provides a snapshot of provision on one particular day and it should be noted that the number of beds may vary from day to day according to clinical demands and staff availability, with flexibility between general and specialist beds and between intensive care and high dependency.

Streptococcus Testing

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for South Derbyshire (Mr. Todd) of 6 June 2005, Official Report, columns 439-41W, on streptococcus testing, what the findings were of the studies undertaken by the health technology assessment programme on prenatal screening for group B streptococcus. [80395]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The United Kingdom national screening committee has asked the health technology assessment (HTA) programme to undertake two studies on prenatal screening for group B streptococcal disease. These studies are still in progress.

The first study is on prenatal screening and treatment strategies to prevent group B streptococcal and other bacterial infections in early infancy: cost effectiveness and expected value of information analyses.

The second study is on prenatal screening for group B streptococcal disease: protocol development for a possible clinical trial.

Details of all ongoing reports and research outputs can be found on the HTA's website at www.hta.nhsweb.nhs.uk.

Trans Fats

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 18 April 2006, Official Report, column 124W, on trans fats, which national diet and nutrition surveys were referred to in that answer; which of these surveys yielded data on dietary fatty acid profiles according to socio-economic status; and what conclusions she has drawn from these data regarding dietary fatty acid profiles according to socio-economic status. [78949]

Caroline Flint: My previous reply referred to results from the national diet and nutrition survey (NDNS) of adults aged 19 to 64[1]. This survey did not collect detailed information on socio-economic status, but did identify participants living in households in which someone was in receipt of benefits (benefit households).

When intakes are expressed as a percentage of food energy, there were no significant differences in the fat and fatty acid composition of the diets of men and women from benefit and non-benefit households.

Earlier surveys in the NDNS series covering young people aged four to 18[2] and older adults aged 65 and over[3] also found no differences in the fat and fatty acid composition of diets according to socio-economic status.

A copy of the letter has been placed in both Libraries.

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his policy is on the detention of minors in adult immigration detention facilities. [80629]

Mr. Byrne: I am advised that unaccompanied minors are not detained other than in one very limited circumstance: where, exceptionally, it is necessary to detain a child while alternative care arrangements are made (normally overnight).

Families with children may be detained in the following circumstances: initially, whilst their identities and basis of claim are established; where there are reasonable grounds for believing that they will fail to comply with the conditions of temporary admission or release; or to effect removal. In addition, families whose asylum claims appear to be capable of being decided quickly may be detained as part of a fast-track process.

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the legal basis is for detaining a British-born child in an immigration detention centre. [80631]

Mr. Byrne: The legal basis for detaining a British-born child in an immigration removal centre is explained in IND's Family Removals Policy. A copy of this document has been placed in the House Libraries.

Biometric Registration

Mr. Clegg: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research his Department has undertaken into biometric registration and verification since December 2004. [79547]

Joan Ryan: A number of pieces of biometric research have been completed or commissioned since December 2004. In spring 2005, a large United Kingdom Passport Service biometric enrolment trial reported its findings. In addition, research regarding the effectiveness of facial recognition systems for use in fraud prevention has been completed in March 2006.

Furthermore, the Home Office is funding research by the National Physical Laboratory on biometric minutiae interoperability. This research will develop methodology and tools to assess and improve the interoperability of minutiae-based fingerprint recognition systems. The work is also contributing to international standards on data formats for fingerprint minutiae, conformance testing, and interoperable performance testing. It is anticipated that this research will be completed by mid 2007.

Biometric experts working in the Home Office also receive input and review findings from research conducted by other institutions internationally and examine its implications for the development of Government initiatives. Such work is facilitated by the work of the Biometric Assurance Group, chaired by the Government Chief Scientist, Sir David King and bodies such as the Biometric Experts Group for the National Identity Scheme.

Child Sexual Abuse

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children under 14 years were recorded as experiencing sexual abuse in each of the last five years; what services for such children are funded by his Department; and what mechanisms are in place to provide liaison between services funded by his Department and those provided by other funding streams. [78214]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not collect statistics for the number of children under the age of 14 recorded as experiencing sexual abuse.

The National Service Framework (NSF) for Children, Young People and Maternity Services Standard five 10.6 sets out that

"Local authorities, NHS Trusts and primary care trusts ensure that integrated services are available to respond in a co-ordinated manner to the assessed needs of children and young people and their families where a child has been or is at risk of being abused or neglected. The types of programmes offered are based on best available evidence of what interventions are effective and are subject to regular audit, the findings of which inform future service provision".

The NSF for Children, Young People and Maternity Services is a 10 year strategy.

The Department of Health is working with the Home Office, the Department of Education and Skills and voluntary sector organisations providing services for sexually abused children through the joint Department of Health and National Institute for Mental Health in England (NIMHE) Victims of Violence and Abuse Prevention Programme (WAPP). This is a two year programme until April 2007. The aim of the programme is to develop national service guidelines based on research conducted by the programme. Guidelines will be published in spring 2007. The programme is intended to equip professionals and services to identify and respond to the mental and physical health effects of child sexual abuse. An expert group on child victims of domestic violence and sexual assault has been established to advise the programme.

The Home Office and the Department of Health supported the development of Sexual Assault Referral Centres (SARCs) for children: Project Amethyst in London, and St. Mary's in Manchester. £100,000 from the Victim's Fund was allocated to this work in 2005-06.

Foreign Travel

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on foreign travel by his Department in each of the last eight years. [76062]

Mr. Byrne: I am advised that the figures for overseas travel for Home Office civil servants since 1998 are as provided in the following table.

The rise in expenditure reflects increased activity in football disorder spending, increased spending due to world cup preparations and banning order operations (CRCSG); increase in overseas travel of Juxtaposed Controls officers and Air Line Liaison officers (IND).

Juxtaposed Controls were set up as part of the strategy to reduce asylum intake and became fully operational from September 2004. The Controls are based at the Channel Tunnel, the French Seaports of Calais, Dunkerque and Boulogne and the Eurostar terminals at Brussels, Paris, Lille and Frethun. The Juxtaposed Controls counter and deter illegal migration, focusing equally on preventing clandestine illegal entrants and fraudulent use of documents.

Juxtaposed Controls in Calais provide a significant layer of security, increasing pressure on facilitators and racketeers who profit from attempting to smuggle people through to the UK. Facilitators are handed to the French Border Control law Enforcement Agency PAF, and appear in court soon after.

Forensic Science Service

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what dividends were paid by the Forensic Science Service to Government in each of the past five years. [80326]

Joan Ryan: The dividends paid by the Forensic Science Service to the Government in each of the past five years are set out in the following table:

Dividends paid	£000
Period to 4 December 2005	3,834
Year end 31 March 2005	1,438
Year end 31 March 2004	1,438
Year end 31 March 2003	1,438
Year end 31 March 2002	1,438

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much each police force in Wales has spent on fees to the Forensic Science Service in each of the past five years. [80418]

Joan Ryan: The Forensic Science Service (FSS) is no longer an Executive agency of the Home Office but is now a limited company, wholly owned by the Home Office. As such, it is a commercial organisation operating in a competitive environment. The information requested concerning the income generated from individual police forces could have adverse commercial consequences for the FSS if released and could serve to benefit private forensic science service providers who compete for business against the FSS, but who are not subject to parliamentary scrutiny in the same way. I am therefore unable to provide a detailed answer. However, it is open to the hon. Member to take up her inquiry direct with the chief executive of the FSS who, I am sure, will be prepared to provide as much information as is consistent with the principles of commercial confidentiality.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of the income received by the Forensic Science Service came from police forces in England and Wales in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [80419]

Joan Ryan: The percentage of the income received by the Forensic Science Service, which came from police forces in England and Wales in each of the last five years, is displayed in the following table:

Forensic Science Service percentage income: police forces

The Metropolitan Police reported that 772 items had been surrendered in the first week of the knife amnesty. The total number of items handed in England and Wales was 17,715.

National Wildlife Crime Intelligence Unit

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the likely impact on the investigation of organised wildlife crime of the decision not to include the National Wildlife Crime Intelligence Unit within the new Serious Organised Crime Agency. [80768]

Mr. Coaker: During the creation of SOCA, discussions took place with stakeholders about the best arrangements for the National Wildlife Crime Unit (NWCU). It was agreed this particular issue would be led by the police with other agencies working with them.

Research Budget

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of the Department's budget was spent on researching new technologies in the last period for which figures are available. [76811]

Joan Ryan: For the latest Government-wide figures on the percentage of Government expenditure researching new technologies, I refer to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Member for Poplar and Canning Town (Jim Fitzpatrick) on 21 June 2006 showing R and D expenditure broken down by department for 2003-04. The Home Office figure in that table did not separately identify or estimate the research expenditure on new technologies from the Government services category. Overall the table shows the Home Office spent 0.64 per cent. of its budget on R and D work in 2003-04.

Further breakdowns on planned expenditure on Science and Technology, in the Home Office and its agencies are set out in our latest Science and Innovation strategy 2005-08 available on the Home Office website at:

This information dates back to 2001-02 for rape crisis and to 2003-04 for sexual assault referral centres. Information preceding this is not readily available. The overall purpose of sexual assault referral centres is to deliver a holistic and high quality service to victims of rape and sexual assault including medical care, counselling and support, and to provide enhanced facilities for gathering evidence. Rape crisis provides a network of co-ordination, support and advocacy for member voluntary and community organisations. Each rape crisis centre and sexual assault referral centre will have its own objectives.

Rape crisis organisations (other sexual violence voluntary sector organisations were also given grants but are not detailed here as this information was not requested).

Violent Deaths

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been killed in England and Wales in each year since 1990 by the use of (a) a knife, (b) a gun and (c) another weapon. [78337]

Mr. Coaker: The available information relates to offences currently recorded as homicide that were caused by (a) a sharp instrument, which includes other sharp instruments as well as knives, (b) shooting, which includes crossbows as well as guns, and (c) all other methods.

Data on apparent method of killing are released annually in a Supplementary Volume to the 'Crime in England and Wales' publication. Information for the period 1990 to 2004-05 are given in the following tables.

[2] Data taken from Home Office publications: 1994 to 2004-05 from HOSB 02/06; 1993 from HOSB 02/05; 1992 from HOSB 01/04; 1991 from HOSB 01/03; 1990 from CM 5312.
[3] Including asphyxiation. Year 2000-01 includes 58 Chinese nationals who collectively suffocated in a lorry en route into the UK.
[4] These figures may not agree with those in the firearms chapter because (a) figures include cases where the firearm was used as a blunt instrument and (b) homicide figures include shooting by crossbows and are compiled at a later date and take into account the results of police and court decisions.
[5] Year 2003-04 includes 20 cockle pickers who drowned in Morecambe Bay.
[6] Year 2002-03 includes 172 victims of Dr. Harold Shipman.

War Criminals

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which convicted war criminals are serving sentences in the UK; how long a sentence each is serving; and where each is held. [80994]

Joan Ryan: There are two prisoners currently serving sentences of imprisonment in the UK for crimes falling within this description. Radislav Krstic is serving a 35 year sentence for crimes committed in the former Yugoslavia. The prisoner was transferred to the UK in 2004 in accordance with the Sentence Enforcement Agreement between the UK and the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia. Farayadi Sawar Zardad, serving a sentence of 20 years, was convicted in the UK of crimes committed in Afghanistan. It would be inappropriate for operational reasons to disclose the prisons in which they are held.

EDUCATION AND SKILLS

Alcoholism

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will commission an inquiry into the effects of alcoholism on children and families and to explore possible solutions. [79327]

Caroline Flint: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are aware that the quality of a parent-child relationship has a significant impact on the child's health and well-being. With this in mind, through the new provisions of the Children Act 2004 and 'Every Child Matters' Change for Children programme, we are building a much stronger statutory and multi-agency framework that will strengthen services for all children in need, and in need of protection, including those affected by alcoholism.

The effects of alcoholism are well understood and the Government are committed to working with local frontline services to support children and families affected.

A-levels

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills whether the planned harder questions at A-level for advanced students will be (a) sat as separate exams and (b) included as additional questions on examination papers sat by all students. [81772]

Jim Knight: We received advice from QCA on A-level stretch and challenge last year and in January. Ministers agreed to trial three options: a separate section at the end of A-level papers; a separate paper; incorporate harder questions into all A2 papers and add to grading scale. QCA will begin to trial/model these options from the autumn through to February 2007.

The changes to A-levels will build upon the strengths of the existing qualifications in order to increase stretch and challenge, to provide greater differentiation in order to help universities choose between candidates with similar results.

BECTA

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the work of the British Educational Communications and Technology Agency. [80863]

Phil Hope [holding answer 28 June 2006]: In line with Government practice that some non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) were reviewed every five years, the Department conducted an overall assessment of the British Educational Communications and Technology Agency (BECTA) which was published in March 2003. Copies of the report are lodged in the House of Commons Library.

Becta's work is assessed through the governance and programme management arrangements that the Department has in place, which include:

representation as an assessor on Becta's Board by the Department's Technology Group Director; regular business reviews of Becta's delivery against the Department's priorities.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what plans he has to replace the British Educational Communications and Technology Agency inclusion team with a new support team for special educational needs; and if he will make a statement. [80861]

Phil Hope: The British Educational Communications and Technology Agency (BECTA) is a non-departmental public body responsible for ensuring the successful delivery of my e-strategy priorities in education and children's services—which includes support for all learners including those with special educational needs. BECTA's internal organisational structures are a matter for the organisation.

Building Schools for the Future

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) what guidelines he has issued to the local authorities asked to participate in the Building Schools for the Future programme on the renovation of sports facilities; [79705]

(2) what recent discussions he has held with the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on the renovation of school sports facilities; and if he will make a statement; [79706]

(3) whether schools which have received grants under the New Opportunities Fund for Physical Education and Sport are eligible for funding from the Building Schools for the Future programme; and if he will make a statement. [79707]

Jim Knight [holding answer 22 June 2006]: The Building Schools for the Future programme adopts an area approach to transforming secondary provision. For each phase of the programme, local authorities are required to develop an educational vision in line with our guidance, which takes into account a range of policy areas, including PE and sport facilities, and community use. Our Building Schools for the Future guidance to local authorities covers the preparation of educational visions, joining up all potential sources of funding and the design of school buildings and facilities. All of our guidance documents make clear that schools and local authorities should consider the extent to which any proposed new or refurbished facilities will enable all pupils to take part in at least two hours each week of high quality PE and sport, and if they want to, up to four hours including out of normal school hours. Authorities' plans are subject to rigorous challenge before projects can proceed to procurement.

Ministers from this Department meet regularly with our Culture, Media and Sport counterparts to discuss our joint schools' PE and sports strategy, including curriculum matters and the community use of facilities.

Schools which have received investment through other sources of funding such as the Big Lottery Fund (formerly the New Opportunities Fund) are still eligible for Building Schools for the Future investment. We encourage local authorities and schools in Building Schools for the Future to seek other sources of funding to join up with their projects. The Department for Culture, Media and Sport and the Big Lottery Fund contribute to our guidance, which also seeks to ensure that investment from various sources remains complementary.

Child Care

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what research into the child care market his Department has commissioned in the past 12 months; what research reports have been published; and if he will make a statement. [80313]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The Department is highly committed to furthering our understanding of the child care market to enable the effective development and implementation of policy in this area.

To help achieve this the Department has commissioned a number of studies in this area in the past 12 months. These are:

2006-08 Survey of Childcare and Early Years Providers;

Evaluation of the London Childcare Affordability Pilot;

The Childcare Market.

The Department has also published the following research reports in this area:

A Longitudinal Study of Local Childcare Markets (June 2005);

Childcare and Early Years Provision: A Study of Parents' Use, Views and Experiences (March 2006);

2005 Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey (May 2006).

These reports are available on the DfES website at http://www.dfes.gov.uk/research/

City Technology Colleges

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many admission appeals there have been in each City Technology College in each year since they opened. [81462]

Jim Knight: City Technology Colleges (CTCs) are independent schools. The Department does not hold this information.

Comprehensive Spending Review

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what discussions he has had with the Treasury regarding the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007; and if he will make a statement. [81771]

Alan Johnson: I have had and will continue to have regular discussions with the Treasury about the key challenges and issues for the Comprehensive Spending Review period and about the work programme that the Treasury and my Department are engaged in as part of the Review.

Construction-related NVQs

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many women began construction-related NVQs at (a) Level 1, (b) Level 2, (c) Level 3 and (d) Technical Level in (i) England and (ii) Merseyside in each year since 2001-02, broken down by age; and how many completed those courses. [80608]

Phil Hope: 40 per cent. of apprentices are female but we recognise there are some major imbalances in different occupations. One of the ways we are addressing this is working with the Equal Opportunities Commission, the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) and sector bodies to improve information, broaden choice and explore more flexible Apprenticeship learning opportunities. These include new entry arrangements into Apprenticeships to help young people develop skills before they find an employer. We are also trialling Apprenticeships for more mature workers.

The LSC maintain a website detailing starts, leavers and completions of individual frameworks http://www.apprenticeships.org.uk/partners/frameworks/apprenticeshipsdata/ However, published figures are not broken down to the level of detail requested. For this reason Mark Haysom, the Council's Chief Executive, has written to the hon. Member with this information and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Libraries.

Letter from Rob Wye, dated 28 June 2006:

I am responding on behalf of Mark Haysom, due to him currently being on annual leave, to your Parliamentary Question that asked the number of completed Heavy Vehicle Fitter Apprenticeships in England and Greater Merseyside, broken down by gender in each of the last 5 years.

The Vehicle Fitting Apprenticeship framework was implemented on 1st September 2005. This is in effect its first year for apprentices to enrol onto and as yet there is no usable framework completion data at any geographical level.

Prior to 1st September 2005 there were more generic Apprenticeship frameworks in operation for the Retail Motor Industry. An analysis of these framework completions where the NVQ within the framework is for "Vehicle Fitting" shows the following results,

	Greater Merseyside		England
	Female	Male	Female	Male
2002/03	0 (0%)	10 (100%)	0 (2%)	60 (98%)
2003/04	0 (0%)	10 (100%)	0 (1%)	120 (99%)
2004/05	0 (0%)	30 (100%)	0 (0%)	240 (99%)

Table 1: Automotive Industry Frameworks completed with a Vehicle Fitting NVQ as the main aim (Figures are rounded to the nearest 10 for reasons of disclosure)

Source:
LSC WBLILR.

Specific information regarding heavy vehicle fitting is not available at framework level or at NVQ qualification level, hence this response can only look at vehicle fitting in general.

The Learning and Skills Council publishes regular statistical information on Apprenticeships including framework completion data on its website (www.apprenticeships.org.uk). The information is provided for each Apprenticeship framework and as such the volume of completers nationally will be provided in future updates.

Consistent and high quality data is only available from the first full academic year following the commencement of the Learning and Skills Council in April 2001. For this reason the table above only shows information for the past three full academic years.

I trust this provides the information you require.

Departmental Guidance

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many separate pieces of guidance to schools have been issued by his Department in each of the last nine years. [80039]

Jim Knight: The number of documents sent automatically to all primary and all secondary schools is detailed in the following table. Where a document has been sent to both primary and secondary schools it will appear in the totals for both.

	Primary	Secondary
1997-98	86	85
1998-99	96	115
1999-2000	146	164
2000-01	47	48
2001-02	55	54
2002-03	39	43
2003-04	31	38

The Department only sends hard copy publications automatieally to schools in England in exceptional cases having stopped regular paper mailings in December 2004. Discussions with Head teachers and detailed research showed that schools wanted to be able to choose the printed publications they needed, when they needed them, and to be able to order multiple copies.

The online ordering system enables schools to choose whether to download electronic copies or order the paper based publications they need at the right time for them and in the multiples they require. This system is linked directly to the fulfilment service and an existing telephone ordering line. A fortnightly email service to schools informs them of new and important publications.

This has resulted in schools being able to order a wider variety of publications from the Department, putting schools in direct control of what they receive, when they receive it.

Departmental Information

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many documents were sent from his Department to head teachers of (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in (i) hard copy and (ii) via e-mail in the past 12 months. [80457]

Jim Knight [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The Department sent 27 e-mails automatically to all primary and secondary schools within the last 12 months. These e-mails provided schools with a regular update on the information and resources available to them online and in hard copy. No hard copy documents were sent to all schools in the last 12 months.

Edexcel

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many pupils will sit at least one (a) GCSE, (b) AS and (c) A-level examination paper written by Edexcel in the summer of 2006; and what proportion that figure represents of all pupils taking each level of examination. [82003]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA), through the National Assessment Agency, regularly collects during the examination series data from the unitary awarding bodies in England on the total number of candidates entered for GCE and GCSE examinations. It does not, however, hold data on how many individual pupils sit at least one GCSE, AS or A-level paper.

Provided as follows is the number of entries for each examination unit and the number of candidates seeking a qualification award in summer 2006. (The figures are provisional.)

	GCSE	GCE
Number of candidates seeking a qualification award in summer 2006	5,375,671	1,845,066
Number of candidates seeking an Edexcel qualification award	1,313,017	492,398

Education Act 1996

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the operation of section (a) 444 and (b) 509 of the Education Act 1996; what recent representations he has received about the operation of this Act; and whether he has plans to amend this Act. [80417]

Jim Knight: These sections of the Education Act 1996 deal with school attendance and school transport. We believe that parents must take responsibility for their children's attendance at school. Where children do not attend school regularly, a prosecution or a penalty notice under section 444 may be needed if parents are not doing their best to ensure that their child attends school.

The Department receives representations from a range of sources, including pupils, parents, local authorities and MPs about the operation of sections 444 and 509. There is widespread agreement that the transport provisions are out of date.

The Education and Inspections Bill includes amendments to sections 444 and 509 of the Education Act 1996. These will confirm that it is for a parent to prove that they have a good reason for failing to ensure their child attends school. The Bill also extends the right to free transport for low-income groups, and clarifies local authority duties relating to school transport.

Education Legislation

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) Green Papers, (b) White Papers and (c) Bills on education have been produced since May 1997. [80455]

Education Maintenance Allowance

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many students aged 16 years or above were receiving education maintenance allowances in each (a) school and (b) college in the City of Newcastle-upon-Tyne (i) at the start of the school year in 2005-06 and (ii) on the most recent date for which figures are available. [75214]

Mr. Dhanda: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council, who operate education maintenance allowances for the DfES and hold the information about take-up of the scheme. Mark Haysom, the council's Chief Executive, has written to my hon. Friend with the information requested and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Question that asked "how many students aged 16 years or above were receiving education maintenance allowances in each (a) school and (b) college in the City of Newcastle-upon-Tyne (i) at the start of the school year in 2005-06 and (ii) on the most recent date for which figures are available".

By the end of April 2006, 3,113 young people received one or more EMA payment with schools or colleges in the Newcastle-upon-Tyne area during the academic year 2005/06.

The attached table displays the data for EMA take-up for all schools and colleges in the Newcastle-upon-Tyne area at the end of October 05 and at the end of March 06. EMA take-up is defined as young people who have received one or more EMA payment in the academic year 2005/06.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many residents of Stroud constituency are (a) eligible for and (b) in receipt of education maintenance allowance. [77821]

Mr. Dhanda: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council, who operate Education Maintenance Allowances for the DfES and hold the information about take-up of the scheme. Mark Haysom, the Council's Chief Executive, has written to the my hon. Friend with the information requested and a copy of his reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Rob Wye, dated 28 June 2006:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Question that asked "how many residents of Stroud constituency are (a) eligible for and (b) in receipt of Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA)."

Information on the number of young people who have applied, enrolled and received EMA is available at Local Authority (LA) level, but not at constituency level. EMA take-up is defined as young people who have received one or more EMA payment in the academic year 2005/06.

Projections of the number of young people eligible for EMA are formed by applying income distributions (derived from the Family Resources Survey) and expected numbers in full-time further education. When applied to individual localities the figures may be subject to some variation but they provide a useful estimate.

The following table displays the data for Gloucestershire.

Eligibility for EMA in 2005/06

	Gloucestershire LA
Projected number eligible	4,654
Actual take-up	3,821

[1] By end of June 2006.

In practice, not all eligible young people will take up EMA. For modelling purposes we therefore take account of what the actual take-up was in the previous year. In 2004/05 the take-up in Gloucestershire was 2,125 and on this basis we expected take-up in 2005/06 to be 3,850.

I trust this information is helpful.

English Language Support

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) how much funding his Department has provided for English as an additional language support in schools in (a) England and (b) the London borough of Newham in (i) 2004-05, (ii) 2005-06 and (iii) 2006-07; [80627]

(2) whether his Department plans to increase funding for English as an additional language support in schools. [80628]

Jim Knight: Schools receive funding to provide English as an additional language (EAL) support to their pupils through two sources: mainstream school funding and the ethnic minority achievement grant (EMAG).

Mainstream school funding is calculated to take account of the additional cost of support required by pupils, EAL needs.

Figures below for 2004-05 and 2005-06 represent the funding allocated through the EAL part of the education formula spending. The changes to school funding following the introduction of the dedicated schools grant in 2006-07 mean that it is no longer possible to identify the exact proportions of the overall funding allocated on the basis of EAL. For illustrative purposes, however, an estimate is provided below for 2006-07:

		£ million
Programme year	England	Newham

Mainstream school funding through the dedicated school grant has increased by 6.8 per cent. per pupil in 2006-07 and 6.7 per cent. in 2007-08. Funding levels beyond 2007-08 are subject to the outcomes of the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review.

Each local authority receives an ethnic minority achievement grant (EMAG), which must be used to support underachieving minority ethnic pupils and pupils with EAL needs. Local authorities are required to pass 85 per cent. of their allocation to schools using a locally agreed formula. Newham's EMAG allocation has increased significantly and well above the rate of inflation over the period 2004-05 to 2006-07 and will increase further in 2007-08. Allocations beyond 2007-08 are subject to the outcomes of the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review.

European Cultural Identity

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what steps his Department is taking to promote (a) European cultural identity and (b) positive attitudes to (i) mathematics, (ii) foreign languages and (iii) the English language. [79930]

Jim Knight: Promoting cultural identity is an integral and important part of the way languages are taught and studied in England. Intercultural understanding is promoted at each key stage. For example, at Key Stage 2 intercultural understanding is one of the five key strands of the Key Stage 2 Framework for Languages. At Key Stage 3 the programme of study, produced by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA), states that pupils should make progress in developing cultural awareness, and in QCA's Key Stage 4 document, "Modern foreign languages in the Key Stage 4 curriculum", it states that studying languages develops students' understanding and appreciation of different countries, cultures and communities, making students aware that they are citizens of the world as well as of the United Kingdom.

Citizenship teaching is compulsory at Key Stages 3 and 4. Pupils are taught about the world as a global community, and the political, economic, environmental and social implications of this, and the role of the European Union, the Commonwealth and the United Nations and about the United Kingdom's relations in Europe, including the European Union, and relations with the Commonwealth and the United Nations. Through the citizenship curriculum, pupils are also taught to think about political and cultural issues which could include a discussion about cultural identity. It is also possible for European cultural identity to be taught through the non-statutory framework for PSHE, which covers teaching about and developing a sense of their own identity.

Following on from the recommendations of the Adrian Smith report on mathematics, published in 2004, and our 14-19 White Paper, we have appointed a chief adviser for mathematics to be the champion of mathematics and lead in developing the mathematics strategy. We are establishing a National Centre for Excellence in the Teaching of Mathematics that will support the professional development of teachers of mathematics at every stage of their career. We are adopting a range of measures at GCSE and A-level to promote a positive attitude amongst pupils, teachers and employers to mathematics. For example, we will be targeting our support to ensure that the teaching of 'functional mathematics' is available to all; from this September, attainment of at least a 'C' grade in both Maths and English will be a key component of our understanding of the 5 good GCSEs benchmark; in the longer term, the curriculum and qualifications in mathematics for 14 to 19-year-olds will be revised as part of the wider reform programme; and finally, improvements planned for A-level as part of our 14-19 reforms will benefit all those embarking on A-level programmes.

Our national languages strategy 'Languages for All; Languages for Life—a strategy for England' outlines our positive approach to language learning and stresses the importance for society and the global economy for learners of all ages to acquire "the ability to understand and communicate in other languages". Our commitment to language learning is backed by considerable investment, and by the end of the financial year 2007-08 we will have invested £137 million in the promotion of, and support given to, language learning programmes at all stages of education.

English is a core subject and statutory from Key Stages 1-4. The national curriculum programmes of study for English set out the importance of English. English is a vital way of communicating in schools, in public life and internationally. In studying English, pupils develop skills in speaking, listening, reading and writing. Literature in English is rich and influential, reflecting the experience of people from many countries and times. It enables pupils to express themselves creatively and imaginatively and to communicate with others effectively. Pupils learn to become enthusiastic and critical readers of stories, poetry and drama as well as non-fiction and media texts. The study of English helps pupils understand how language works by looking at its patterns, structures and origins. Using this knowledge, pupils can choose and adapt what they say and write in different situations.

In addition, both primary and secondary national strategies, through their work with schools and local authorities, provide strong and varied support to teachers. This support enables teachers to provide effective and tailored teaching that engages all pupils across the range of subjects and enables them to fulfil their potential. The national strategies provide a range of materials to support teachers, school librarians and others to ensure that their schools both provide high quality teaching and learning, and promote an environment which encourages children's enthusiasm for reading and writing and helps them achieve their potential. Reading for pleasure is essential as it increases children's chances of success and the Department is taking action on several fronts to encourage children and young people to read more. Both strategies have a specific remit for raising attainment in mathematics and English. The secondary strategy extends this remit to modern foreign languages.

Examination Boards

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what action his Department has taken against examination boards which have delivered (a) GCSE, (b) AS and (c) A-level examination papers containing errors or omissions to schools in each of the last nine years. [82269]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the regulation of awarding bodies in England. QCA expects awarding bodies to make sure that question papers do not contain any errors that might affect candidates. The regulator's code of practice for GCE and GCSE examinations requires awarding bodies to have procedures in place to ensure the suitability and accuracy of the papers. QCA monitors the awarding bodies to ensure they comply with the regulatory requirements.

QCA has set performance expectations for awarding bodies governing the quality and accuracy of the question papers they produce. These performance expectations allow QCA to monitor and report on awarding body performance each year. QCA has collected and reported the number of question papers containing errors or omissions since 2004 but does not hold data for previous years.

If a question paper does contain an error that requires correction, awarding bodies are expected to send an erratum notice to centres (schools and colleges) before the examination is sat to make sure candidates are aware of the errors.

Data on the number of question papers issued without errors in June 2006 will be finalised after the examination series and published by QCA in March 2007.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many (a) errors in and (b) omissions from (i) GCSE, (ii) AS and (iii) A-level examination papers there were in each of the last three years. [82274]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) collects data each year from awarding bodies regarding the number of examination papers issued requiring correction including errors and omissions. These data are collected in the autumn following each examination series and are normally published in March the following year. Consequently, data on the summer 2006 examination series are not yet available.

In 2004 out of the 3,400 question papers produced by the England-based unitary GCE and GCSE awarding bodies (AQA, Edexcel and OCR) 83 question papers contained errors that required correction. This represents 2.4 per cent. of the total number of examination papers issued.

In 2005 out of more than 1,500 GCSE question papers 18 contained errors that required correction. Out of more than 1,700 GCE question papers 22 contained errors that required correction.

Although the figures quoted indicate the number of instances of papers that contained errors requiring correction, in nearly all cases centres were informed of the errors before the date of the examination. In both 2004 and 2005 centres were not informed about errors in nine GCSE, AS and A-level question papers. This represents 0.27 per cent. of the total number of question papers produced in 2005 and 0.26 per cent. of the total number of question papers produced in 2004.

Free Tuition

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many eligible adults have taken up the level 2 entitlement for free tuition, as announced in the White Paper, 21st Century Skills, broken down by (a) race, (b) gender and (c) disability; and what proportion of participants have dropped out. [75966]

Phil Hope [holding answer 12 June 2006]: In October 2005, 122,000 adults aged 19+ were studying on full level 2 programs in LSC-funded FE colleges—this is an increase of 3.4 per cent. on the previous year. Approximately 70 per cent. of these students received free tuition because of the level 2 entitlement or because of other reasons.

The chief executive of the Learning and Skills Council, Mr. Mark Haysom, has written to the hon. Member with a detailed breakdown of level 2 entitlement recipients. A copy of his letter has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Rob Wye, dated 28 June 2006:

I am write on behalf of Mark Haysom, due to him currently being out of the office on annual leave, in response to your Parliamentary Question that asked how many eligible adults have taken up the level 2 entitlement for free tuition, as announced in the White Paper, 21st Century Skills, broken down by race, gender and disability; and what proportions of participants have dropped out.

Early information shows that in 2005/06 approximately 118,000 adult learners enrolled on a full level 2 qualification. Of these approximately 28,000 adults were on a first[1] full level 2 qualification and in receipt of tuition fee remission. Of these approximately 12,000 were claiming tuition fee remission specifically through the level 2 entitlement. It is important to note that the level 2 entitlement was rolled out nationally in 2005/06 within existing college budgets and with no major marketing campaigns. A breakdown of these figures by race, gender and disability is shown in the attached annex. The proportions for ethnicity and gender are in line with the proportions of these groups in further education as a whole.

The proportion of learners recorded as being in receipt of the level 2 entitlement who left their current learning aims in 2004/05 before completion or achievement was 15%. This is the only full year data that we have for the level 2 entitlement and only refers to learners in the two trialling regions of the North East and South East.

In 2006/07 the level 2 entitlement is a key element of the recently launched Train to Gain service and I would be happy to provide you with further data when this becomes available.

I trust this letter provides the information you require.

Further Education Colleges

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average change is in funding for further education colleges in (a) England, (b) each region and (c) each county for (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [80139]

Bill Rammell: I announced last October as part of our post-16 funding strategy—Priorities for Success—that planned expenditure for further education would increase to £4.8 billion in 2006-07 and £4.9 billion in 2007-08, a 3 per cent. increase in funding compared to 2005/06 baselines. These figures cover both 16-18 and adults but do not include work-based learning, Personal Community and Development Learning (PCDL) or additional funds for the roll out of Train to Gain, of which we expect colleges to receive a significant proportion.

Providers should now have received confirmed further education funding allocations from the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) for 2006/07. The LSC will be writing to all further education providers shortly with a more detailed analysis of the 2006/07 allocations and this information will also be available on the LSC website.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what formula was used when setting the funding allocations for further education colleges for (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; and what criteria were used in deciding on the formula. [80140]

Bill Rammell: The process of setting funding allocations began last October when we announced our funding strategy, Priorities for Success. The strategy made clear that higher participation among young people must have the highest priority, alongside helping disadvantaged adults gain basic and Level 2 skills for employability. The allocations for 2006-07 are based on the principles that we outlined in Priorities for Success. The LSC have published a number of documents detailing how these principles would be applied in practice and the funding formula used to determine allocations is set out in the LSC's document "Funding Guidance for Further Education in 2006/07".

The original Priorities for Success strategy laid out a clear path for funding priorities leading into 2007-08. We intend to provide an update to Priorities for Success in October 2006 and funding allocations will continue to be based on the principles outlined.

Head Teachers

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average annual wage was of (a) secondary and (b) primary head teachers in each year since 1997. [79878]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the average salary of full-time head teachers in nursery, primary and secondary schools in England and Wales in each March from 1997 to March 2003, the latest year for which information is available.

For both nursery/primary and secondary heads, the average salary has increased by 19 per cent. in real terms over the period.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what the average length of time served in post by head teachers in England was according to the most recently available figures. [80014]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not available.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to the answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1704W, on head teachers, what percentage of all teachers in the leadership group retired early in (a) 2002-03, (b) 2003-04 and (c) 2004-05. [80534]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the percentage of teachers in the leadership group who retired early (defined as before the normal pension age of 60 on premature, actuarially reduced (ARB) or ill health grounds) in each year from 2002-03 to 2004-05, the latest information available.

Inclusion Agenda

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what support his Department gives to (a) teachers, (b) academics, (c) therapists and (d) psychologists who are supporting the Inclusion agenda in state (i) primary and (ii) secondary schools; and if he will make a statement. [80862]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 28 June 2006]: The Department provides substantial support to schools and those who work with them in delivering an inclusive education that meets the needs of all children, through the funding it provides for schools and local authorities, the funds it provides for the Training and Development Agency for Schools and the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority and the guidance it issues. The extent of the Government's commitment to supporting children in schools is illustrated by the fact that since 1997-98, total funding in England has increased nationally, by £1,170 per pupil from £2,940 in 1997-98 to £4,110 per pupil in 2005-06. This represents a rise of nearly 40 per cent. per pupil.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many UK (a) institutions and (b) academics have been funded by the project lines which are to be combined in the Integrated Action Plan in the field of lifelong learning. [80739]

Bill Rammell: The most recent data available for 2004/05 show that 156 UK higher education institutions benefited from the Erasmus programme. 1,304 teacher visits took place under the programme. This will become a part of the new action programme in the field of lifelong learning from the beginning of 2007.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the teaching on non-EU languages as part of the EU integrated action plan in the field of Lifelong Learning. [80740]

Bill Rammell: The proposed Lifelong Learning programme will support the teaching of non-EU languages. It will provide for community funds to support projects and the production of materials for teaching and learning world languages such as Chinese, as well as the languages of our minority ethnic communities and indigenous regional languages such as Welsh and Gaelic. This is in line with our own national languages strategy, and support offered nationally by our new voluntary languages recognition scheme, the languages ladder.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the development of the (a) Jean Monnet programme and (b) Erasmus Mundus programme as part of the EU integrated action plan in the field of lifelong learning. [80741]

Bill Rammell: We welcome the continuation of the Jean Monnet project under the new action programme in the field of lifelong learning and believe that it can continue to be of direct benefit to UK higher education institutions by providing funding towards academic posts and course modules. The Erasmus Mundus programme is a separate programme running until 2008 and there are currently no plans to integrate it in the new action programme in the field of lifelong learning.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the involvement of non-EU countries as part of the EU integrated action plan in the field of lifelong learning. [80742]

Bill Rammell: The European Union's proposed action programme in the field of lifelong learning seeks to contribute to the development of the Community as an advanced knowledge society by fostering interchange cooperation and mobility between education and training systems. Intercultural dialogue and exchange are key elements of the programme, and so membership is rightly not limited to the EU member states, but also includes the EEA countries (Iceland, Liechtenstein and Norway), Bulgaria, Romania and Turkey. In addition, Switzerland and the countries of the Western Balkans will be able to participate once bilateral agreements are concluded. Finally, the Jean Monnet sub-programme allows participation of higher education institutions in any other third country.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the compatibility of the Integrated Action Plan in the Field of Lifelong Learning with sections 406 and 407 of the Education Act 1996, with particular reference to the teaching of viewpoints on European integration; and if he will make a statement. [80743]

Bill Rammell: The European Union's proposed action programme in the field of lifelong learning seeks to contribute to the development of the Community as an advanced knowledge society by fostering interchange cooperation and mobility between education and training systems.

The programme has no bearing on sections 406 and 407 of the Education Act 1996. The programme does not promote partisan political activities. DFES policy is to teach about the nature and roles of all democratic institutions, including the European Union, as well as the UK Parliament, United Nations, North Atlantic Treaty Organisation, and the Commonwealth.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what legal obligations arise for his Department from Article 1 (3)(C) of the Integrated Action Plan in the Field of Lifelong Learning; and if he will make a statement. [80744]

Bill Rammell: The Decision of the European Parliament and of the Council establishing an action programme in the field of lifelong learning is legally binding on member states, as are all decisions. Article 1(3)(C) of the Decision states that a specific objective of the programme is to help improve the quality, attractiveness and accessibility of the opportunities for lifelong learning available within member states, which is in line with DfES policy. As Article 4 of the Decision makes clear, the Lifelong Learning Programme is aimed at supporting and supplementing action at member state level, and fully respects the responsibility of member states for the content of their education and training systems.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the proposed Recommendation of the European Parliament and of the Council on Key Competences for Lifelong Learning; and whether he plans to incorporate them into the national curriculum. [79931]

Bill Rammell: This Recommendation forms part of EU Education Ministers' response to the Lisbon Agenda and makes a reasonable and well balanced addition to the tools which the 25 member states have at their disposal when looking how best to modernise and reform their education and training systems.

The UK's policies already incorporate many aspects of this Recommendation and we have no plans to change the national curriculum in the light of the Recommendation.

Office of the Independent Adjudicator

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Office of the Independent Adjudicator in solving disagreements between students and universities; and if he will make a statement. [80595]

Bill Rammell: The provisions of the Higher Education Act 2004 require the Office of the Independent Adjudicator for Higher Education (OIA) to produce an annual report which must include information about:

- the complaints referred under the scheme;
- the decisions and recommendations made by reviewers;
- the extent to which recommendations made by the reviewers have been followed; and
- the way in which the operator has used the fees paid in connection with the scheme.

We receive and monitor this information regularly and I will make an assessment on the basis of the OIA's annual report which will be published later this year.

Older People (Skills Training)

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what (a) grants and (b) training schemes are available through his Department (i) for people over 55 years and (ii) for people in retirement to learn new job skills. [80745]

Phil Hope: In England the priorities for public funding of adult learning are to help those adults without the skills for life and employability, regardless of age. Tuition in literacy and numeracy is free and there will be an entitlement to free tuition for a first full level 2 qualification across England from September this year for all adults irrespective of age. All adults can access a wide range of training courses offered by further education college and other FE providers where, currently, on average 72.5 per cent. of the tuition costs of courses are met by public funding through the Learning and Skills Council. In addition all those on income related benefits and their families are eligible for free tuition on further education courses.

There is also financial support to meet the costs of learning, such as books, equipment, child care and transport; it is discretionary, disbursed by colleges and targeted on the most disadvantaged and needy regardless of age. The Adult Learning Grant offers an entitlement of up to £30 per week to individuals on low income undertaking a first full level 2 or level 3 qualification. From September 2006 this will be available to adults aged 19 plus in 24 of the 47 LSC areas, and nationally from September 2007.

PE Teachers

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills how many trained physical education teachers there were in England in each of the last five years. [81219]

Jim Knight: Information on the number of teachers teaching by subject and qualification is collected for England in periodic staffing surveys the last of which was conducted in November 2002.

The following tables provide the available information.

Secondary Schools Curriculum and Staffing Survey 2002.

Pupil Data

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills if he will make a statement on the collection by schools of pupils' personal data, with particular reference to fingerprints. [82201]

Beverley Hughes: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 27 February 2006, Official Report, column 504W, to the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton (Mr. Gibb).

Race Equality

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the implementation of the statutory duty to promote race equality in schools. [78948]

Jim Knight: Ofsted, as the inspectorate for children and learners in England, routinely evaluates and reports to the Department on the work carried out by schools in eliminating unlawful racial discrimination. Ofsted inspection reports have found schools' compliance with the specific duties has improved since the introduction of the statutory duty which came into force for schools in 2002. In 2005 Ofsted published a thematic inspection report Race Equality in Education identifying good practice in schools and Local Authorities. The report found areas of strength in promoting racial harmony and raising ethnic minority achievement in schools but weakness in effectively handling racist incidents.

We are working closely with the Commission for Racial Equality and Ofsted to support schools in taking forward the requirements of the Act.

School Closures

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what criteria have to be met before a rural primary school can be closed; what process has to be followed by (a) the Government and (b) the local education authority; and what right of appeal parents have at each stage of the process. [81003]

Jim Knight: Changes to local school organisation, including school closures, are decided under local decision-making arrangements. Ministers have no role in the process. Individual proposals are determined by the local authority if they published the proposals and there are no objections. In all other cases the proposals are decided by the local School Organisation Committee (SOC) or the schools adjudicator, if the SOC cannot reach a unanimous decision.

SOCs and schools adjudicators must have regard to Decision Makers' Guidance issued by the Secretary of State when deciding proposals. The guidance includes a presumption against the closure of rural schools and sets out a range of factors that must be considered for the different types of proposals. For rural school closures the factors include: whether the case is strong and in the best interests of educational provision in the area; the overall effect of the closure on the local community; the transport implications and whether the possibilities of federated or extended schools to increase viability have been considered.

Where a local authority or governing body plan to close a school they must first consult interested parties, allowing sufficient time for people to consider the proposal and respond. Then, after considering views, and if they wish to proceed, the proposer must publish statutory proposals. Following publication and a six-week representation period the proposal will be decided by the appropriate decision maker. Once statutory proposals have been approved there is a duty for them to be implemented.

Parents are able to register their views on a proposal during the consultation and representation periods. Any comments made during the representation period are taken into account when the final decision is taken on the proposal. More information can be found on the Department's School Organisation website at www.dfes.gov.uk/schoolorg

School Sports

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills (1) if he will take steps to increase the amount of time allocated to sport in schools in the national curriculum; [81220]

(2) what recent research he has commissioned into the types of physical education taught in schools. [81221]

Jim Knight: Head teachers are responsible for curriculum planning and it is for them to decide how much time they devote to physical education and sport in the national curriculum. The Department for Education and Skills shares an ambitious PSA target with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport to increase the percentage of five to 16-year-olds who take part in at least two hours high quality PE and school sport each week, to 75 per cent. by 2006 and on to 85 per cent. by 2008. The long term aim, by 2010, is for all children to be offered at least four hours of sport every week. This will comprise at least two hours high quality PE and sport at school and the opportunity for at least a further two to three hours beyond the school day, delivered by a range of school, community and club providers.

The annual National School Sport Survey is our prime tool for measuring progress towards these targets. The results of the 2004/05 survey showed that schools in school sport partnerships provided, on average, 15 different sports for their pupils. These ranged from football, which was provided by 97 per cent. of schools, to less traditional sports like rowing, bowls and squash. The results of the survey were published in September 2005 and copies were placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Schools Budget

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills pursuant to his Answer of 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1373W, on school finance, when he expects the information to be available. [80625]

Jim Knight: In my reply to the hon. Member's earlier question to which he refers I explained that the Department is awaiting a complete dataset relating to the 2006-07 financial year. The Department now has the full dataset but is in the process of validating it. I will write to the hon. Member once the checks have been completed.

Sustainable Communities

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Education and Skills what progress has been made towards implementing the recommendations of the Egan review of skills for sustainable communities. [79288]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Sir John Egan was commissioned in April 2003 by my right hon. Friend the Deputy Prime Minister to review the skills and training required to deliver sustainable communities. His "Review of Skills for Sustainable Communities" was published in April 2004. His key recommendation was the formation of a national centre to drive forward a new integrated approach to skills development.

The Government responded by establishing the Academy for Sustainable Communities (ASC) to improve the skills, knowledge and behaviours needed to deliver and maintain sustainable communities across the country. The ASC's aim is to challenge the tendency to adopt a silo approach by encouraging greater cross-profession and cross-organisation working. It focuses in particular on broader, generic skills such as project management, visioning, communication, partnership working and community engagement.

It is not a major training provider but rather looks to influence other providers and to lead the market where gaps exist. Through the establishment of a learning framework and resource hub, it will inform and spread best practice across the range of sustainable communities' issues and professions.

The ASC is also working with partners in the EU to identify generic skills gaps across Europe and share good practice between member states. It will host a European Skills Symposium in Leeds in November 2006.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to his answer of 20 June 2006, Official Report, column 1763W, on abortion, if he will require organisations which he funds to sign a statement that they do not support or participate in coercive abortion or involuntary sterilisation as a condition to further funding; and if he will make a statement. [81161]

Mr. Thomas: DFID does not provide funds to organisations that support or participate in coercive abortion or sterilisation. We do not intend to request organisations which are funded by DFID to sign such a statement.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the average cost to his Department was of replying to a letter written (a) by an hon. Member and (b) by a member of the public in the latest period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum is accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80487]

Mr. Thomas: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/

Peers correspondence. The Report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78WS.

The information requested is not recorded and could be obtained only by incurring a disproportionate cost.

Darfur

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what resources his Department will be providing as its commitment to the Darfur-Darfur dialogue. [81313]

Hilary Benn: DFID is already providing support for the implementation of the Darfur Peace Agreement (DPA), of which the Darfur-Darfur Dialogue and Consultation (DDDC) forms a part. The DDDC will play an important role in promulgating the DPA and starting the process of reconciliation in Darfur. We are already engaging on publicity work and capacity building for the African Union and the rebel faction which signed the agreement. We are encouraging the African Union to begin holding meetings of the preparatory committee for the DDDC and we stand ready to support it if asked to do so by the organisers.

Ethiopia

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the impact of the withdrawal of British direct budgetary support to the Ethiopian Government on the human rights situation in Ethiopia; and if he will make a statement. [80617]

Hilary Benn: We withdrew our direct budget support because the Government of Ethiopia breached one of the three commitments underlying our aid partnership—respect for human rights. As set out in our 2005 conditionality policy, a violation of any one commitment could lead to aid being interrupted, withdrawn or delivered in a different way.

We have, therefore, not carried out a formal assessment of the impact of the withdrawal of British budget support on the human rights situation in Ethiopia; however, we are determined to see an improvement. We monitor the human rights situation closely, and many of those detained last November have now been released and an inquiry into the events of June and November 2005 has also been launched by the Government of Ethiopia. We await its conclusions.

All donors have agreed that the development partnership needs a greater focus on governance and human rights. This involves developing programmes to support governance reforms, but it also involves insisting on an open dialogue between government and donors on governance issues. This has begun.

In order to minimise the impact of withdrawing general budget support on the poor, we have developed with the World Bank a new Protection of Basic Services (PBS) grant. The aim is to protect and promote the delivery of basic services by local government in Ethiopia while making the administration of local services much more transparent and accountable to people at the local level.

EU Aid (Water and Sanitation)

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will make a statement on the effectiveness of the EU's aid efforts on water and sanitation. [79560]

Hilary Benn: The EU, that is the 25 member states and the European Commission, is the largest donor on water and sanitation in Africa, spending over £1.4 billion in the sector in 2003-04. The EU Water Initiative was set up to co-ordinate these efforts, identify gaps and ensure that the money we spend is used more effectively to deliver services to the poor. The UK attaches great importance to more and better aid for water and sanitation, particularly in sub-Saharan Africa where the MDG targets for access to these basic services are so off track.

There has, however, been concern that political commitment to the EU Water Initiative has declined and that it is not delivering its objectives. A further problem is that with very limited monitoring and reporting mechanisms it has not been sufficiently accountable to its stakeholders. We have therefore raised these issues in the EU Water Initiative Steering Group and are now working with a number of other member states to reinvigorate the initiative, including developing proper indicators for monitoring and improving the focus of work in partner countries. We hope this will lead to renewed political commitment and better implementation on the ground.

The EU Consensus on Development, agreed during the UK Presidency, referred to the EU Water Initiative and the importance of increased aid more broadly. In addition, the EU-Africa Strategy also included a reference to access to water supply and sanitation. In raising the political profile of water and sanitation through these policy documents, we hope that other member states will be encouraged to increase their support to the sector, particularly as their levels of development funding increase.

Health Worker Migration

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effect on health services in developing countries of health worker migration from those countries to the UK. [81830]

Hilary Benn: International health worker migration is a complex issue and one that the UK takes seriously. Some low-income countries, particularly in sub-Saharan Africa, have less than one health worker per 1,000 population. The proportion of African doctors who leave is very significant. Ghana, South Africa, Zimbabwe, Uganda and Zambia lose between a third and a half of the doctors they train to international migration. This rapid increase in health worker migration has been partly due to staff leaving their country for greener pastures. As a result the UK has been criticised for employing workers from developing countries. However, poor working conditions, poor salaries and a lack of training and opportunity for advancement have meant that many staff in developing countries leave the public health service. In addition to this, loss of staff through AIDS has depleted many health services.

The UK NHS has responded by putting in place policies to prevent active international recruitment of health care professionals. The UK is the only developed country to have a code of practice preventing its national health service from targeting health care professionals from developing countries. While the code on its own cannot address all the root causes of migration, it plays an important role in ensuring that recruitment is undertaken in an ethical, managed way. In addition to this, DFID supports efforts to strengthen health services in many countries, including to increase human resources. For example, DFID is providing £100 million over six years to support the Government of Malawi's health sector programme, which includes doubling the number of nurses and tripling the number of doctors over the next six years.

Iraq

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much the UK has allocated to the Iraqi health care system since 2003. [81011]

Hilary Benn: Improving health care is a priority for Iraq's reconstruction and for the Iraqi people's quality of life. In the health sector, DFID has given funding directly to specialist organisations. Since 2003, we have provided:

£5 million to the World Health Organisation for emergency medical supplies, support to clinics and hospitals in Baghdad and Basra, and support to the Iraqi Government's Ministry of Health.

£30 million to the UN Trust Fund, which was earmarked for spending on health, education, water, sanitation, electricity, refugees, mine action, governance and electoral support.

£40 million to the World Bank Trust Fund, which funds reconstruction work in a number of areas including health.

£85 million to the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and UNICEF, in response to the UN Emergency Appeals launched in March and June 2003, to help avert major humanitarian crisis, and to assist in the restoration of essential services, including primary and child health care.

£32 million to the International Red Cross and Red Crescent (IRRC) movement for their Humanitarian Appeals from 2003 to 2006, for emergency rehabilitation and repair of health, water and sanitation facilities.

£7.2 million to NGOs for their post-conflict humanitarian work in Iraq, in a number of sectors including health and nutrition.

During 2004-05, DFID also supported the secondment of a senior adviser from the UK's Department of Health, who provided technical assistance to the Iraqi Ministry of Health in Baghdad.

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of Iraq's progress towards the UN Millennium Development Goals. [81012]

Hilary Benn: Monitoring progress towards the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) is the responsibility of the UN, and DFID uses their official assessments. The recently published United Nations Millennium Development Goals Report is a comprehensive account of progress to date on each of the goals worldwide, and how great an effort remains necessary to meet them. It can be found at:

http://unstats.un.org/unsd/mi/mi_dev_report.htm

It is difficult to assess progress towards the MDGs in Iraq accurately, due to lack of official data. However, UNICEF is currently conducting a Multiple Indicator Cluster Survey in Iraq, which will collect data on the MDGs. The results of this survey, expected to issue by the end of 2006, will enable the Government of Iraq and the international community to take better stock of Iraq's progress towards the MDGs. DFID's most recent analysis of the available data on the MDGs in Iraq, conducted in February 2006, identifies the following:

Child malnutrition rose from 12 per cent. in 1991 to 16 per cent. in 2000.

Primary school completion rates fell from 62 per cent. in 1988 to 56 per cent. in 1999.

Women's representation in Parliament fell from 11 per cent. in 1990 to 8 per cent. in 2003. But in Iraq's new Parliament, elected in December 2005, just over 25 per cent. of representatives are women.

Under-5 mortality rose from 50 deaths per 1,000 births in 1990 to 125 deaths per 1,000 births in 2003.

Numbers of children immunised against measles rose from 80 per cent. of children in 1990 to 90 per cent. of children in 2003.

The number of births attended by health staff rose from 54 per cent. in 1989 to 72 per cent. in 2000.

Deaths from tuberculosis (TB) rose from 21 deaths per 100,000 in 1990 to 33 deaths per 100,000 in 2003.

The proportion of people with access to drinking water remained stable at around 83 per cent. between 1990 and 2004.

The proportion of people with access to sanitation fell from 81 per cent. in 1990 to 64 per cent. in 2004.

Gender equality remained stable between 1990 and 2002, at around 82 girls for every 100 boys in primary school.

The proportion of slum dwellers in Iraqi cities remained stable between 1990 and 2001 at 43 per cent.

Iraq's forest cover has remained stable between 1990 and 2000, at around 2 per cent.

In all cases, the end year quoted is the last year for which data were available.

Reproductive Health

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the level of British contributions to (a) each multilateral aid and development agency and (b) agencies concerned with abortion and reproductive health issues (i) is in 2006-07, (ii) was in 2005-06 and (iii) is planned for 2007-08. [80206]

Mr. Thomas: The 2005-06 estimated outturn of the level of core DFID contributions to each of the multilateral aid and development agencies is given in the following table. Core commitment figures for 2006-07 and 2007-08 are still under negotiation individually.

Entries highlighted * indicate organisations involved in the provision of reproductive health services or programming. Exact reproductive health expenditure data for each agency cannot be provided without incurring a disproportionate cost.

Total DFID Multilateral Contributions	2005-06 (Estimated outturn) (£000)
DFID Conflict, Humanitarian and Security Department

DEFENCE

Afghanistan

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his assessment is of the current strength and quality of the Afghan National Army; and if he will make a statement. [81139]

Des Browne: Around 28,200 Afghan National Army soldiers have been trained and equipped under a US-led development programme. The five Afghan National Army regional commands are now operational. Afghan troops, supported by the UK's operational mentor and liaison team, have already performed well alongside UK forces in the south of Afghanistan.

The international community is investing significant resources in increasing the Afghan National Army's capability still further. The UK's contribution to this includes non-commissioned officer and junior officer training in Kabul, and an operational mentor and liaison team in Helmand.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his assessment is of the technological capabilities of the weaponry used by (a) the Taliban and (b) al-Qaeda in Afghanistan. [81140]

Des Browne: We continuously monitor the weaponry used by insurgent forces in Afghanistan. To date a wide range of weapons have been used including small arms, rocket-propelled grenades and improvised explosive devices. Mostly these are low technology weapons and components that are widely available.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his assessment is of the possible threat posed by the infiltration of experienced insurgents of the Iraq conflict into Helmand province. [81141]

Des Browne: There is no credible evidence that insurgents or terrorists from Iraq have infiltrated into Afghanistan.

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the order of battle is for the deployment of UK forces in Afghanistan. [81409]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend, the then Secretary of State for Defence (John Reid), on 26 January 2006, Official Report, columns 1529-33, which outlines the UK forces order of battle in Afghanistan.

In addition I also refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statements made by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for the Armed Forces on 25 April 2006, Official Report, column 35WS, announcing the extension to March 2007 of six UK Harriers to provide support to both the International Security Assistance Force and Operation Enduring Freedom and, on 15 June 2006, Official Report, columns 67-68WS, announcing the deployment of a further 130 personnel from the RAF Regiment to provide a specialised force protection capability at Kandahar Airfield.

As with all deployments, any significant changes to this will be announced in the House in due course.

Armed Forces (Overseas Recruitment)

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which countries provide servicemen and women for the British armed forces; and what agreements govern their terms and conditions of service. [82011]

Mr. Watson: With the exception of Gurkhas, to be accepted for employment in the UK Armed Forces an applicant, at all times since birth, must have been British or a Commonwealth citizen, or a Republic of Ireland national. A waiver of these requirements may be granted, in exceptional circumstances, to applicants who are British or Commonwealth citizens, or Republic of Ireland nationals, at the time of their application. With the exception of Gurkhas, all personnel serve under the same terms and conditions of service regardless of nationality.

British Army Gurkhas are recruited in Nepal and remain Nepalese citizens throughout their service, serving under their own Gurkha terms and conditions of service, which have evolved over the years and are based on the provisions of the Tri-Partite Agreement of 1947 between the Governments of UK, India and Nepal. They are currently the subject of a wide-ranging review.

Army

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 18 April 2006, Official Report, column 12W, on the Army, how many of each type of vehicle and aircraft are (a) operational and (b) available for immediate deployment. [65523]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 26 April 2006]: The number of vehicles and aircraft which were operational at the end of March 2006 is shown in the table. "Operational" is defined as equipment that is not in depth maintenance or in storage and it includes equipment deployed in operational theatres. The Army manages its armoured fleet in accordance with the principles of whole fleet management which enables armoured vehicles to be made available in sufficient numbers to meet operational requirements as they arise.

The numbers of aircraft capable of immediate operational deployment are shown in brackets.

Army Recruitment and Retention

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total (a) outflow to civilian life and (b) recruitment was of the regular (i) infantry, (ii) Royal Artillery, (iii) Royal Engineers, (iv) Royal Corps of Signals, (v) Royal Armoured Corps, (vi) Household Cavalry, (vii) Royal Electrical Mechanical Engineers and (viii) Army Medical Services in each year since 1997. UK Regular Army includes nursing services and excludes full-time reserve service personnel, Gurkhas, the Home Service Battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment and Mobilised Reservists.

The data have been rounded to the nearest 10, numbers ending in '5' have been rounded to nearest 20 to prevent systematic bias.

Atomic Weapons Establishment

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff have been recruited to the Atomic Weapons Establishment sites at Aldermaston and Burghfield since July 2005, broken down by employment area; what plans there are for future recruitment in each such area; and if he will make a statement. [79948]

Mr. Ingram: In the period July 2005 to end March 2006, a total of 504 staff (including 180 to replace natural wastage) were recruited to the Atomic Weapons Establishment at Aldermaston and Burghfield in the following areas:

	Number
Science	99
Engineering	250
Technical Support	57
Business Services	98
Total	504

A further 46 staff were recruited up to 31 May 2006. In the two financial years ending 31 March 2008, AWE plc plans to recruit a total of around 700 personnel in broadly the same proportions as the categories described above. The company has not formulated any firm plans for recruitment beyond this period.

Bearskins

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to his answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 996W, on bearskins, which companies have been involved in producing alternatives to real bearskins; for what reasons each alternative was not successful; and if he will establish a timescale for phasing out the use of real bearskins. [80358]

Mr. Ingram: Several faux fur manufacturers have made samples available to the Ministry of Defence. Between 1998 and 2004 the companies involved were:

N&MA Saville Associates

Dawson Fabrics (also known as Fleece Fabrics Ltd.)

Dawson International

Saluki

BY Furs

Tyber.

After this date all samples were provided by People for Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA). PETA has not given the Department the names of the companies they have used. The trial process is on-going. The faux fur has been unsuccessful for a number of reasons: it could not replicate the movement of real fur when tested on parade; there were problems with increasing weight experienced under normal wet weather conditions; it did not retain its shape; and it reacted adversely to atmospheric static.

The Department has no current timescale to phase out the use of bearskins but alternatives will be considered if and when they are found to be suitable.

Carbon Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent estimate he has made of the carbon emissions of his Department; what commitment he has made to reducing such emissions; and if he will make a statement. [81063]

Mr. Watson: 2004-05 carbon emissions from energy use in Ministry of Defence buildings and facilities on the defence estate were 2 per cent. below the 1999-2000 baseline level. Equivalent figures for 2005-06 are not yet available. However, they will be published in the MOD's Sustainable Development in Government Report 2005-06, a copy of which will be placed in the Library of the House.

More widely, this Department supports and was closely involved with the development of the targets in the new Framework for Sustainable Operations on the Government Estate, announced by the Secretary of State for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on 12 June 2006. These targets include achieving carbon neutrality on the Government office estate by 2012 and a reduction in carbon emissions from our office-based estate of 30 per cent. by 2020.

Colombia

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to provide the Government of Colombia with military support, in each of the next three years. [80359]

Des Browne: The Ministry of Defence plans to provide military assistance to Colombia over the next three years at a similar level and in similar areas to the assistance it has provided in the previous three years. The provision of assistance continues to be dependent on our being satisfied that no one receiving UK training is engaged in illegal activities.

Current UK military assistance to Colombia is concerned with British military education, with a strong emphasis on human rights and with training the Colombian armed forces in the disposal of a variety of explosive devices. We are also supporting their process of Military Justice Reform. We have provided some bespoke training to members of the Colombian armed forces engaged in counter-narcotics.

Defence Export Services

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when Alan Garwood's successor as Head of Defence Export Services is expected to be named; when he or she will take up the appointment; and if he will make a statement. [80855]

Mr. Ingram: The Ministry of Defence and Mr. Garwood have agreed that, under the terms of his appointment, he will remain in post until September 2007.

It is anticipated that the process to select his successor will begin late in 2006.

Defence Training Review

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment has been made of the merits of an in-house bid as part of the Defence Training Review. [81845]

Mr. Watson: An in-house bid was assessed as not being a viable option for the Defence Training Review. It would not have provided the significant capital investment required to transform specialist training. In addition this route would not provide the technical innovation, performance discipline and risk transfer delivered through a public-private partnering/PFI solution.

Defensive Aids Suite

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his definition is of a defensive aids suite, with particular reference to the A400M. [64792]

Mr. Ingram: A defensive aids suite can comprise one or a combination of the following:

Directional Infra-Red Counter Measures
Missile Approach Warning Systems
Radar Warning Receiver
Countermeasures Dispensing System
Large Aircraft Infra-Red Counter Measures

Defensive counter-measures are under constant development in response to emerging threats.

I am withholding information on the precise combination on defensive aids that will be employed on the A400M so as not to prejudice the security of our armed forces.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how long it takes to switch a defensive aids suite between A400M airframes; and what the cost is. [64827]

Mr. Ingram: For reasons of operational security I am withholding information regarding how long it would take to transfer DAS from one airframe to another. The costs of such an exercise are not yet known.

Departmental Finance Directors

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) name, (b) professional and academic qualifications and (c) relevant experience are of the finance director of his Department. [80090]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence's finance director is Trevor Woolley. He holds a Masters degree in History from Cambridge University and has substantial financial management experience in MOD at senior level across a range of posts within head office and in managing the finances of one of our largest top-level budgets.

Departmental Staff

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many women of minority ethnic origin are employed by his Department. [81235]

Mr. Watson: The total number of women of minority ethnic origin employed by the Department as at 1 April 2006, is shown as follows.

Female personnel by ethnicity minority declaration as at 1 April 2006

	Number of females
Civilian[1,2]	810
Military[3,4,5]	1,090
Total	1,900

[1] Data in the table exclude locally engaged civilians, and Royal Fleet Auxiliary personnel for whom ethnicity data are not available.
[2] Represents the number of female employees who self-declared that they were a member of an ethnic minority group. Of a total of 32,170 female civilians working for the Department as at 1 April 2006, 5,430 had not declared their ethnicity.
[3] UK regular forces include nursing services and exclude full-time reserve service personnel, the Home Service battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment and mobilised reservists. It includes trained and untrained personnel.
[4] Due to the introduction of a new personnel administration system for RAF, all RAF data for 1 April 2006 are provisional and subject to review.
[5] Ethnicity figures are based on those with a known ethnic origin. Figures shown are full coverage estimates of the number of ethnic minorities that would be expected if ethnicity were known for all personnel.
Note:
All numbers are rounded to the nearest 10.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to ensure that all flights undertaken by Ministers and officials in his Department are carbon neutral; and if he will make a statement. [81393]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Defence is participating in the Government's Carbon Offsetting Fund (GCOF) to meet the Government's commitment to offset carbon dioxide emissions arising from ministerial and official air travel. MOD is collecting flight mileage for head office travel to provide the data for GCOF.

Disciplinary Action

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what instructions have been issued to those responsible for posting of individual service personnel regarding the system for the monitoring and vetting of potential instructors who may have been subject to allegations of disciplinary action involving (a) bullying and (b) harassment. [79842]

Mr. Watson: The posting of individual service personnel is considered by the armed forces on a case-by-case basis. Every effort is made to ensure that all the relevant facts, including career and disciplinary records, are taken into account. Work is under way to review the checks that are carried out on personnel applying for instructor posts to ensure that best practice is applied across the three services.

Equal Opportunities

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) terms of reference and (b) rules of procedure are for equal opportunities investigation teams. [79915]

Mr. Watson: I will write to my hon. Friend enclosing the terms of reference for equal opportunities investigation teams and will place copies in the Library of the House. The teams operate in accordance with MOD Harassment Complaints Procedures (JSP 763).

Far East Civilian Internees

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment process he will use to judge the claims for the ex-gratia payment by those former Far East civilian internees who do not qualify under the 20-year rule; and how many such claims he expects there to be. [81194]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 29 June 2006]: It is not possible to make a reliable estimate of how many unsuccessful claims will remain after they have been reviewed against the changes that were announced by my predecessor on 28 March 2006. However, for those cases that do not meet the aforementioned eligibility criteria for a payment under the scheme, we are working with a relevant charity to see how we might be able to support them in their work to provide assistance in cases of hardship. It is too early to say what form this might take but I expect to have concluded this work shortly.

Field Hospitals

David Maclean: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) which chemicals may be used (a) to impregnate, (b) to restore, (c) to protect and (d) to disinfect tentage used in field hospitals; [78545]

(2) how many field hospital tent units are stored in (a) the United Kingdom and (b) Germany; and what plans he has to change the numbers. [78546]

Mr. Watson: There are a total of seven complete field hospital modular tent systems for use by UK land forces, which would all normally be stored in the UK. The current in-service field hospital tentage is programmed for replacement in 2010 and the future requirement for exact numbers and type is yet to be determined.

For tent material procured before 2000 the type of chemical used to provide rot-proofing is Pentachlorophenol Laurate (PCPL). Tentage purchased after 2000 uses an agent known as Mystox TRP. Mystox TRP is also currently used to provide protection for fire-retardancy and waterproofing. Both treatments are compliant with current EU and UK health and safety legislation. Field hospital tentage is not routinely subject to disinfection.

Global Positioning System Re-Radiators

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his assessment is of the significance of global positioning system re-radiators for (a) the defence industry and (b) British defence capability, with particular reference to the development of (i) the Bowman system and (ii) the Typhoon aircraft. [81195]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 29 June 2006]: Global positioning system (GPS) re-radiators provide GPS signals on exactly the same frequencies as the GPS satellites by receiving and re-transmitting the signals from the GPS satellites. They therefore can have a benefit in extending GPS coverage to areas where the GPS satellites cannot provide coverage due to the attenuation of satellite signal.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with (a) the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport and (b) Ofcom regarding the licensing of global positioning system re-radiators; and if he will make a statement. [81196]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 29 June 2006]: The Ministry of Defence has had no discussions with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on the licensing of global positioning system (GPS) re-radiators.

The MOD has recently discussed the licensing of GPS re-radiators with representatives from Office of Communications (Ofcom), the Civil Aviation Authority and the Department for Transport.

MOD has stated to Ofcom that it considers there may be significant interference problems if GPS re-radiators are licence-exempted.

MOD has further stated to Ofcom that it considers the approach used by the US National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) with regard to GPS re-radiators may be appropriate in the UK. The NTIA allowed GPS re-radiators to be used in the US by federal agencies (Government and Government Agencies) at fixed locations.

Gurkhas

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate his Department has made of the cost of compensating all living Gurkhas who have completed their service for pay received below levels provided to British servicemen and women serving at the same time. [81939]

Mr. Watson: No estimate has been made. Gurkhas serve under their own terms and conditions of service, which we maintain are fair and appropriate to their unique status.

Since 1997, universal addition to Gurkha pay has ensured that they receive the same take-home pay as their British counterparts. This also applied to Gurkhas serving in the UK since 1972; those serving elsewhere received the appropriate cost of living allowance.

Health Questionnaires

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the implementation of his April 2004 policy of seeking completed health questionnaires filled in by the general practitioner of each recruit arriving at phase 1 training establishments; what percentage of recruits were accompanied by such documentation on arrival; what percentage of recruits have completed phase 1 training without having their health needs assessed and recorded; and when and by what method he expects to review the effectiveness of this policy. [79843]

Mr. Watson: Once an individual applies to join the Army, a British Army health questionnaire is sent to the applicant's general practitioner for completion. Almost all Army recruits arrive at their phase 1 training establishment with a completed health questionnaire. A small number of questionnaires may be slightly delayed and arrive shortly after. No trainees complete phase 1 training without having their health needs assessed and recorded.

The Army is currently trialling a policy whereby once an applicant has passed selection, a copy of the applicant's general practitioner records are requested for scrutiny by occupational clinical staff. Evaluation of this process will be carried out and made available to the other two services.

Improvised Explosives

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British casualties have been caused by improvised explosive devices during the operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. [79991]

Des Browne [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The Ministry of Defence holds records only of people killed or injured while in its direct employ, not of all British citizens in operational theatres. As at 28 June 2006, 25 UK service personnel have been killed in Iraq and one in Afghanistan as a result of improvised explosive devices.

Aggregate medical records typically detail the type of injury sustained, not necessarily the cause of injury. Centrally available records show that around 230 UK military and civilian personnel have been treated at UK medical facilities in Iraq for wounds received as a result of hostile action. Details of such casualties are published on the MOD website on a monthly basis. In Afghanistan, records show a total of 10 personnel injured by improvised explosive devices. Further details are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Inquest Proceedings

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on which occasions in the past two years (a) his Department, (b) the Army and (c) members of the armed services were represented at inquest proceedings; and what his estimate is of the cost on each occasion. [79869]

Mr. Watson: Where the Ministry of Defence is legally represented at inquests no distinction is made between the Department and the three armed services. Legal representation for the Department will normally subsume individuals unless there is a conflict of interest between the position of the Department and that of the individual. In the event of such a conflict the individual would be responsible for the cost if they chose to be legally represented.

On one occasion in the past two years, on the basis of legal advice, MOD provided separate legal assistance for two individuals even though there was no conflict of interest.

During the period 22 June 2004 to 21 June 2006 the MOD was legally represented at 17[1] inquests as follows:

Iraq

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK personnel injured in Iraq since 2003 have been treated in each (a) British and (b) Coalition hospital in (i) the Middle East and (ii) Cyprus; and what type of injury was sustained in each case. [74970]

Des Browne: In total, 386 UK personnel serving on Telic were treated at the Role 3 Facility in Cyprus, 19 of whom returned to their units in theatre after treatment. The remaining 367 personnel were sent back to the UK either for additional treatment or to their units. Of the 386 personnel, 33 were treated for wounds received as a result of hostile action and 353 for disease and non-battle injuries. All personnel treated at the medical facility in Cyprus are included in the aeromedical evacuation reporting published on the MOD website.

As far as we know, no UK personnel injured in Iraq were treated in any other British or Coalition hospital in the Middle East outside the Telic area of operations.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what injuries were entered into individual unit logs for those units involved in Operation Telic. [74977]

Des Browne: A unit's operational records should include copies of all routine documentation produced during an operational tour.

Since October 2005 units have been specifically tasked to provide a daily update of all injuries to personnel and vehicles from major causes. Prior to this, units were not specifically tasked to do this and the information recorded for the early phases of Operation Telic is therefore not comprehensive and has not been extracted from the rest of the documentation produced by the unit. Further detail relating to the period prior to October 2005 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British soldiers have served in Iraq over the last three years. [80854]

Mr. Ingram: Since March 2003, there have been 112,000 UK deployments on Operation Telic. This figure includes individuals who have deployed on more than one occasion.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which national contingents are assisting the British Army in Multinational Division (South East) in Iraq; and what their force totals are. [81135]

Des Browne: The approximate troop contributions from current partner nations deployed in Multinational Division (South East) in Iraq are listed as follows:

Nation	Troops
Australia	550
Czech Republic	100
Denmark	530
Italy	[1]1,800
Japan	600
Lithuania	50
Romania	600
United Kingdom	7,200

[1] Roulement is ongoing

In addition, Portugal (two troops) and the Netherlands (one) currently have liaison officers working within MND(SE) Headquarters.

Joint Personnel Administration

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many former RAF personnel (a) pensions payments and (b) redundancy payments have been missed since 20 March 2006 under Joint

Personnel Administration; and how many are still awaiting payment; [79658]

(2) how many complaints have been received from members of the armed forces about Joint Personnel Administration; [79659]

(3) why RAF personnel were not paid correctly under Joint Personnel Administration; and what action his Department has taken to rectify that situation; [79660]

(4) what he has identified as the main obstacles to the full roll-out of Joint Personnel Administration; and what steps his Department is taking to overcome these obstacles; [79824]

(5) how many (a) salary and (b) expense payments to serving RAF personnel have been missed since 20 March under Joint Personnel Administration; and how many are still awaiting payment; [79663]

(6) how many people will be remunerated by the Joint Personnel Administration once it is fully rolled out to all services. [79665]

Mr. Watson: Due to the increased numbers of those leaving the RAF in April as a result of the recent redundancy exercise, coupled with the roll-out of JPA at the same time, it was not possible to process all terminal grant payments, special capital payments and pension payments within the normal five days target. During April and May some 1,830 awards were processed for those leaving the RAF, of which 1,395 were paid outside of the five-day target from being discharged. However, in all but six cases payments were made within 30 days, with the remainder paid shortly thereafter. There are now no outstanding payments.

The first JPA payroll in April successfully delivered pay, including allowances and charges to the vast majority of RAF personnel (42,104 out of 48,743). The 6,639 pay inaccuracies (over and underpayments) were caused by several factors: some were due to existing data errors transferred over from the legacy systems, some were input errors, and some were discrepancies in flying pay. The majority of flying pay was correctly paid by 2 May; a small number of RAF personnel were paid their April entitlement in their May payments. The second (May) payroll has been much more successful with only some 1,175 personnel still affected by pay inaccuracies.

Some salary payments were late as a result of the simultaneous introduction of a new system of overseas bank payments. Overseas payments were achieved within a few days of the due date and alternative local cash payments were arranged. There have also been some difficulties with the automated payment of expenses for official journeys. In April these affected nearly 4,000 personnel and in May approximately 600.

The total number of personnel JPA will pay once it is fully rolled out is approximately 280,000. The Armed Forces Personnel Administration Agency has received some 14 pieces of ministerial correspondence on behalf of constituents. As at 21 June 2006 there have been no formal grievances from individual users about JPA.

Full roll-out of JPA is dependent upon the Defence Information Infrastructure (DII) programme. Alternative business processes are being developed for those who will not have self-service access when JPA goes live to their service.

Military Organisations

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make a statement on the work of the (a) Air Warfare Centre, (b) Army Intelligence Corps and (c) RAF Intelligence Branch; where each is based; how many individuals work for each; and what the rank is of the most senior officer. [81215]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 15 June 2006, Official Report, column 1385W, in respect of the work of the Army Intelligence Corps. The Corps is based at the Defence Intelligence and Security Centre at Chicksands. The Corps' strength is 1,625 and its most senior officer is a Brigadier.

The Air Warfare Centre is headquartered at RAF Waddington and has outlying units both in the United Kingdom and overseas. Its current strength is 1,060 people, both service and civilians. Its role is to provide timely intelligence-led integrated mission support to Defence-wide units for operations and training. The rank of the most senior officer is Air Commodore.

The role of the RAF intelligence specialisation is to provide operationally focussed air intelligence in support of air operations in peace and war. It does not have a single base, but is spread throughout the Ministry of Defence, RAF commands and units. Its policy branch is based within the Air Warfare Centre at RAF Waddington. There are 285 officers in the RAF Intelligence Branch and 885 non-commissioned personnel in the RAF intelligence trade. The rank of the most senior RAF officer in the Intelligence Branch is Group Captain.

Missile Defence

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of (a) the threat to the UK of long-range missiles being developed by (i) North Korea, (ii) Iran, (iii) China and (iv) other countries and (b) by when such missiles might be militarily deployable. [79949]

Des Browne: We continually monitor the capabilities of non-NATO nations to target the United Kingdom with long-range missiles.

North Korea has an active programme to develop long-range missiles which could have the potential to reach the UK. It is unlikely to have a militarily deployable capability against the UK within the next five years.

Iran already has short and medium-range missiles in service, and its potential for developing long-range missiles which could reach UK has been recognised for some time. It is unlikely to have a militarily deployable capability against the UK within the next 10 years.

China has a deployed force of Inter-Continental Ballistic Missiles (ICBMs) which could reach the UK.

In relation to other countries, Russia has numerous deployed Inter-Continental Ballistic Missiles, Submarine-Launched Ballistic Missiles and Cruise missiles, which could reach the UK.

Nuclear Deterrent

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to publish a consultation paper on the future of the UK's nuclear deterrent; and if he will make a statement. [81610]

Des Browne: I have nothing further to add to the statements made by my right hon. Friend the Leader of the House on 22 June 2006, Official Report, column 1468, and my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 28 June 2006, Official Report, column 253.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the unpredictability of future threats to the United Kingdom between 2020 and 2050 as a factor in deciding whether to build a new generation of the nuclear deterrent. [81841]

Des Browne: Work by officials is under way to prepare for decisions, which will be taken later this year, on the future of the United Kingdom's nuclear deterrent. This work includes an analysis of possible future risks and threats over the potential life of any replacement for Trident. It is, however, too early to draw any conclusions.

Nuclear Weapons

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much the Government spent in relation to their nuclear weapons in each of the last five years. [80833]

Des Browne: Trident is our only nuclear weapons system. Since the Trident nuclear deterrent became operational in 1994, annual expenditure for capital and operating costs, including the costs for the Atomic Weapons Establishment, has ranged between 3 and 4.5 per cent. of the annual defence budget.

Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he will answer question (a) 64792 and (b) 64827, tabled by the hon. Member for Portsmouth South on 18 April 2006. [80760]

Mr. Ingram: I have answered questions 64792 and 64827 today.

Public Pensions (Transferability)

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what measures the Department has put in place to assist pension transferability of public pensions for members of the armed forces pension scheme. [79772]

Mr. Watson: All public service schemes pay cash equivalent transfer values to other pension schemes in respect of accrued rights in compliance with pensions law. Under the fair deal for staff pensions, there is a requirement to transfer pension rights when employments are transferred to the private sector under public-private partnerships/public finance initiatives. Public service scheme members can also transfer accrued pension rights by way of the Public Sector Transfer Club. The club is a network of public and private sector occupational pension schemes which makes it easier for employees who move between employers covered by separate participating schemes to transfer their accrued pension rights.

RAF Air Tankers

John Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions RAF air tankers have undergone non-emergency (a) first, (b) second, (c) third and (d) fourth time maintenance outside the UK in the last five years; where the maintenance took place; for what reasons the locations were chosen; and what the cost of the maintenance was in each year. [80053]

Mr. Ingram: The RAF currently operates Tristar and VC10 aircraft to provide both a strategic air refuelling (AR) and air transport (AT) capability. Some airframes can be used in either the AR or AT role.

Scheduled "forward" (formerly first line) maintenance for the VC10 and Tristar aircraft is undertaken within the UK. When deployed on operations some forward maintenance is carried out at RAF bases overseas. However, records for this work are not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Scheduled "depth" (formerly second, third and fourth line) maintenance for the VC10 is undertaken within the UK and for the Tristar has been carried out under contract by Gulf Aircraft Maintenance Company (GAMCO) in Abu Dhabi since 1997. GAMCO won this contract in open competition.

The cost of providing scheduled depth maintenance to Tristar aircraft that can operate in either the AR or AT role is set out in the following table. Information for 2001 is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, the table does include the projected cost for 2006.

	Number of aircraft	Total cost (£ million)
2002	2	1
2003	4	1
2004	6	1
2005	6	3
2006	5	2

Records Management

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what rules are in the Joint Service Defence Records Management Manual concerning retention of (a) records concerning changes of policy and instructions and (b) documentation on the reasons for changes made. [79838]

Mr. Watson: Joint Service Publication 441—the Defence Records Management Manual—identifies effective methods of storing information in a coherent manner and of reviewing and disposing information in an efficient and cost-effective way in order to comply with the Public Records Acts 1958 and 1965. The principle is that material of historic value should be identified for permanent preservation, and that other material should be destroyed as soon as there is no business need for it. The wide variety of activities within the Department means that many decisions must be taken locally. However, the manual includes in an illustrative list of records likely to warrant permanent preservation, those that:

Illustrate the formation/evolution of Defence policy

Contain important decisions relating to the organisation, disposition or use of the armed forces

Show the reasons for important decisions or actions or provide precedents.

Royal Navy (Catering)

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the budget is per person per day for meals for Royal Navy personnel serving at sea. [79751]

Mr. Watson: The Daily Messing Rate is based on a "basket" of food items, and is constructed by applying prices obtained from the main MOD Food Supply Contractor to the HM Ships ration scale. The June 2006 Budget is £2.14, and this is supplemented by further allowances dependent on a number of factors, for example the size of the ship's company, and the length of time for which the ship is at sea, to a maximum of £3.36. On average, for a ship at sea, the budget per person, per day is approximately £2.27.

School Cadet Forces

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the announcement on 27 June on the creation of six new state school cadet units, what discussions he had with the Department for Education and Skills on this matter. [81777]

Mr. Watson: The list of candidate schools for the pilot Combined Cadet Force expansion scheme has been developed with the full assistance of officials at the Department for Education and Skills as outlined to the house on 27 April 2006, Official Report, column 1267.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the announcement on 27 June on the creation of six new state school cadet units, how much of the funding will come from the private sector. [81778]

Mr. Watson: The pilot scheme will receive initial funding of £800,000 in 2007-08 to establish the six new units. None of this funding will come from the private sector.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent estimate he has made of the number of people who are willing to support and take part in state school cadet schemes. [81779]

Mr. Watson: As a Ministry of Defence sponsored voluntary youth organisation that does not advertise it is extremely difficult to assess the number of individuals willing to support the combined cadet force scheme. Identification of suitable volunteers to operate a combined cadet force contingent is the responsibility of the school's head teacher. To date the Department is aware of nine state schools that have expressed an interest in forming combined cadet force contingents and have sufficient volunteers to support the contingents. This is in addition to the volunteers supporting the 52 state schools CCF already established.

Second World War Disability Pensions

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will review the case of Mr. Banta Singh, former member of the Hong Kong and Singapore Royal Artillery, whose appeal for the reinstatement of his service disability pension was rejected in April 2006. [74109]

Mr. Watson: I have arranged for Mr. Singh's case to be reviewed by the Army Discretionary Awards Panel.

Suicide Vulnerability

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many trainees have been discharged in the past 12 months as a result of an adverse assessment under the Suicide Vulnerability Risk Management Policy. [79841]

Mr. Watson: None.

Training (Supervisory Care)

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the guidance note relating to working with under-18-year-olds was distributed to commanding officers in each of the services; by what means this note was promulgated; to how many recipients it was sent; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [79845]

Mr. Ingram: The Guidance Note on Care for the Under 18s was issued to the Principal Personnel Officers (PPOs) of the three armed services on 12 July 2005. The PPOs then promulgated this guidance to commanding officers.

A copy of the Guidance Note was placed in the Library of the House on 21 July 2005.

Work and Pensions Select Committee

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what actions have been taken by his Department to implement Work and Pensions Select Committee recommendations since the 2001-02 Session; and if he will make a statement. [78855]

Des Browne: The information requested by the hon. Member is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, the recommendations set out in the Defence Select Committee and other Select Committee reports are given very careful consideration by Defence Ministers and Ministry of Defence officials and we seek to implement them when we can. The Government Response to Select Committee reports makes clear whether the Committee's recommendations are accepted.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Digital Audio Broadcasting

12. Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the future of digital audio broadcasts in the UK. [81374]

Mr. Woodward: Digital audio broadcasting (DAB) listening in the UK continues to grow. Over 3 million DAB sets have been sold and a wide variety of stations exist catering for many tastes. Ofcom has proposed further sound multiplexes to allow for additional DAB stations, both nationally and locally. They will publish a statement on the timetable for licensing these in the near future. Many people also listen to digital radio via the internet and digital TV platforms.

Junk Food Advertisements

14. Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether she has made an assessment of Ofcom's proposals to restrict junk food advertising on television aimed at children. [81376]

Mr. Woodward: The Government welcome Ofcom's consultation on options to strengthen the rules on broadcast food promotion to children. We will consider Ofcom's proposals in the light of the responses to their consultation and discuss these with them.

Tourism

15. Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent assessment she has made of the impact of tourism on economic growth in the UK; and if she will make a statement. [81377]

Mr. Woodward: Tourism is estimated to have contributed 3.4 per cent. to the UK economy, in terms of gross value added (GVA), in 2003. Industry turnover in this year was £74 billion.

Average growth of the tourism sector between 1999 and 2003 (the last year for which complete data are available) was 2.2 per cent. per annum. This is in line with the growth of the wider economy.

17. Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent estimate she has made of the contribution of tourism to the UK economy; and if she will make a statement. [81379]

Tessa Jowell: Tourism is estimated to have contributed 3.4 per cent. to the UK economy, in terms of gross value added (GVA), in 2003. Industry turnover in this year was £74 billion. Average growth of the tourism sector between 1999 and 2003 (the last year for which complete data are available) was 2.2 per cent. per annum. This is in line with the growth of the wider economy.

Freesat

16. Chris Bryant: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people receive Freesat. [81378]

Mr. Woodward: According to the most recent estimates published by Ofcom on 7 June, there are around 645,000 free-to-view digital satellite homes in the UK.

London Olympics

18. Mr. Piara S. Khabra: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, what steps the Government are taking to extend the benefits of the 2012 London Olympics to all of London. [81380]

Tessa Jowell: We are working with the Greater London Authority (GLA) to ensure that the benefits of the Olympics leave a lasting legacy in the five Olympic boroughs, in London as a whole, and in the rest of the UK.

Just to give two examples, one specific and one longer-term, 75 per cent. of the staff currently employed on the Olympic site are from London, and, in the run up to the Games, £18 billion will be spent on London's transport system.

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) whether the plan for the London 2012 Olympics spectrum allocation has changed since the announcement of the success of the UK's bid; [82014]

(2) which body is responsible for overseeing the spectrum allocation for the 2012 Olympics; when it is expected to produce a plan for spectrum allocation; and what the cut-off date is for testing the new technologies; [82015]

(3) how much spectrum has been reserved for new technologies likely to be in place by the 2012 Olympics; and on what basis that calculation was made. [82025]

Mr. Woodward: The matter raised is the responsibility of the Office of Communications (Ofcom), as independent regulator for the communications sector. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which officials in her Department (a) are responsible for Olympics-related activity and (b) sit on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group for the Olympics. [81559]

Mr. Caborn: Jeff Jacobs, Chief Executive of the Government Olympic Executive, is responsible for Olympics-related activity within the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, and is Chair of the Inter-Departmental Steering Group.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps she is taking towards ensuring that the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games benefit the whole of the United Kingdom. [81576]

Mr. Caborn: The Government are determined to ensure that the whole of the UK can contribute to and benefit from the Olympic games and Paralympic games in 2012.

A Nations and Regions Group (NRG) has been established to provide leadership and strategic direction in ensuring that the whole of the UK is engaged with and benefits from the games in 2012. Each nation and region is represented on the NRG and has been tasked with developing a delivery plan to ensure that these opportunities are realised.

Furthermore, a 2012 road show is being staged, in conjunction with the London Organising Committee for the Olympic games, which will visit every nation and region in the UK this summer. The road show was organised together with London 2012's Nations and Regions Group to ensure that there is a wide and diverse coverage of events and locations from within each region and Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

Following the Secretary of State's letter to all MPs in May, details of where the road show is going have now been posted on the DCMS website: http://www.culture.gov.uk/global/press_notices/archive_2006/2012_roadshow_itinerary.htm.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what arrangements have been made to improve the facilities at Bisley for the Olympics in 2012; and how much funding has been allocated; [80931]

(2) what facilities are being erected at Woolwich which are connected to the 2012 Olympic shooting events due to take place at Bisley. [80932]

Mr. Caborn: As the shooting events for the London 2012 Olympic Games and Paralympic Games will be held at Woolwich Arsenal, currently there are no arrangements to further improve facilities at Bisley for the Games.

However, Sport England provided £6 million in lottery funding to improve the shooting facilities at Bisley for the Manchester Commonwealth Games in 2002.

Advertising Expenditure

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1407W, on advertising, what the reason was for the increase in expenditure on advertising between 2004-05 and 2005-06. [77194]

Mr. Lammy: The increase in expenditure on advertising between 2004-05 and 2005-06 was due a one-off information campaign directly targeted at small independent businesses, to help them understand the provisions of the new Licensing Act. This included advertising in the regional and specialist press throughout England and Wales.

Betting Companies

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans she has to meet sports governing bodies to discuss the use of their fixtures and data by betting companies. [81093]

Mr. Caborn: I have met with representatives of the Football Leagues on a number of occasions to discuss this issue, most recently earlier this month. I have also discussed this matter in detail with the British Horseracing Board.

Channel 4

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will make a statement on the Government's strategy for Channel 4. [81234]

Mr. Woodward: As indicated in the BBC Charter Review White Paper published in March this year, the Government are clear that Channel 4 has a vital role to play, alongside the BBC, in the provision of public service broadcasting for the future. We are keen that it should continue to fulfil that role and are considering forms of assistance such as asking the BBC to provide Channel 4 with financial help towards meeting its capital switchover costs and Channel 4's desire to secure a limited amount of additional digital terrestrial capacity from the BBC. The Government will also take a close interest in the conclusions of Ofcom's proposed review of Channel 4's financial prospects.

Delisted Buildings

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which buildings have been delisted in the last 10 years. [81023]

Mr. Lammy: I am arranging for a list, showing the buildings that have been delisted between 1 January 1996 and 31 December 2005, to be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which Bills introduced in the last 30 years have contained provisions to delist listed buildings. [81024]

Mr. Lammy: There have been no previous Bills containing provisions to de-list listed buildings.

Digital Coverage

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps she is taking to increase digital coverage in rural areas. [81838]

Mr. Woodward: The vast majority of households in rural areas can receive digital TV services via digital satellite, terrestrial or cable. Take-up of digital TV is 61 per cent. in rural areas. Digital switchover will happen across the whole country between 2008 and 2012 in the following order.

	Rural Area
2008	Border
2009	West Country, HTV Wales, Granada
2010	HTV West, Grampian, Scottish Television
2011	Yorkshire, Anglia, Central
2012	Meridian, Carlton/LWT (London), Tyne Tees, Ulster.

After switchover UK digital terrestrial television coverage will match the current analogue coverage of 98.5 per cent.

Mr. Martlew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the proposed date is for digital television switchover in each parliamentary constituency in the UK. [81104]

Mr. Woodward: Digital switchover is being rolled out in relation to ITV regions and will happen between 2008 and 2012 in the following order:

	ITV region
2008	Border
2009	West Country, HTV Wales, Granada
2010	HTV West, Grampian, Scottish Television
2011	Yorkshire, Anglia, Central
2012	Meridian, Carlton/LWT (London), Tyne Tees, Ulster

I will soon be writing to hon. Members to give them more details on switchover implementation.

Draft Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what draft Bills have been produced by her Department since October 2005; how many were (a) examined and (b) are planned to be examined by (i) a departmental Select Committee and (ii) a Joint Committee; what draft Bills are still to be produced by her Department; when each is expected to be published; how many clauses each has; and if she will make a statement. [81273]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has not produced any draft bills since October 2005. Announcements on future legislation and future draft legislation which will be subject to pre-legislative scrutiny will be indicated in the Queen's Speech.

Engagements

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the time and date was of the appointments from his ministerial diary cancelled by the hon. Member for St. Helens, South since his appointment to her Department. [81846]

Mr. Woodward: My office does not maintain records of cancelled appointments.

Cancellation of appointments from time to time is regrettable though often unavoidable due to my ministerial obligations and commitments to Parliament. When appointments are cancelled they are, where possible, rearranged at an appropriate time and as much notice as possible is given to minimise disruption to others.

Fixture Lists

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if her Department will bring forward measures to ensure sports can gain copyright to their fixture lists as recommended by the Independent Sports Review. [81103]

Mr. Caborn: The first step following publication of the review is for all interested parties to consider its recommendations very carefully before deciding whether these should be implemented and, if so, how.

My officials and legal advisors are consulting with other Government Departments, the football authorities and other interested sporting bodies. I intend to respond formally to the review in September.

Football

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether her Department has made an assessment of the possible implications for English football of the European Court of Justice judgment in September 2004 on the use of databases. [81094]

Mr. Caborn: The professional football leagues report that the European Court of Justice ruling will cost them in excess of £6 million from lost income. The Government are working with the leagues to help them identify sources of replacement funding.

Gambling

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will strengthen regulations governing internet poker. [81457]

Mr. Caborn: Yes. The Gambling Act 2005 will regulate British-based internet gaming operators for the first time.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will discuss with Ofcom increased regulation of the sponsorship of television programmes by gambling companies. [81458]

Mr. Woolward: In relation to broadcasting, Parliament has given Ofcom the duty of setting standards for the sponsorship of radio and television programmes.

Under the Gambling Act 2005 Ofcom will continue to set, review and revise standards for the sponsoring of television programmes by gambling operators. I understand that Ofcom, the Broadcast Committee of Advertising Practice and the Gambling Commission are in discussion about the future regulation of this area to ensure consistent and appropriate standards across media.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will discuss with the banking industry possible measures to tackle misuse of credit and debit cards by underage people on internet gambling websites. [81459]

Mr. Caborn: While the final responsibility for age verification rests with the online gambling industry, Ministers and officials have met several times with international financial institutions to discuss these issues. We will build on, and develop, these relationships to inform our international summit on remote gambling to explore the development of international standards on social responsibility.

We are also supportive of the efforts that the industry is making to engage the banking sector.

Global Positioning System

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions she has had with Ofcom regarding the licensing of global positioning system re-radiators. [81197]

Mr. Woodward [holding answer 29 June 2006]: No discussions have taken place with Ofcom regarding this issue. To date Ofcom has not licensed the use of GPS repeaters. However it is currently engaged on a project to examine the possibility of the legitimate use of this type of apparatus.

Golf

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether she plans to visit this year's Open Golf Championship at Royal Liverpool Golf Club. [81703]

Mr. Caborn: Neither my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State nor I have plans to visit this year's Open Golf Championship at the Royal Liverpool Golf Club in July.

I understand that this year's tournament will be the 135th Open and the 11th time the Club has hosted what is one of the greatest golf tournaments in the world. I wish all the competitors, in particular our British golfers, every success.

Green and White Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if she will list in date order (a) Green and (b) White Papers produced by her Department since October 2005. [81272]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport produced a White Paper entitled "A Public Service for All: the BBC in the Digital Age" [Cm. 6763] on 14 March 2006.

Kingsbridge Amateur Theatrical Society

Mr. Anthony Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, if she will attend a performance by the Kingsbridge Amateur Theatrical Society. [81373]

Mr. Lammy: Amateur theatre plays a unique role in the UK's cultural life and I recognise the importance of amateur groups such as the Kingsbridge Amateur Theatrical Society.

Arts Council England funds a number of organisations who support voluntary and community groups including the Voluntary Arts Network, which supports over 300 organisations across the country.

Neither the Secretary of State nor I have any plans to attend a performance by the group.

Libraries

Ann Keen: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what support her Department is making available for library facilities for older people. [82434]

Mr. Lammy: Responsibility for the provision of day to day library services lies with the 149 library authorities in England. Emphasis may differ slightly from authority to authority but older people benefit from library services which are available to all library users. Services include silver surfer sessions, help with charges such as reservations and fines, services to the housebound and homes for the elderly and provision of materials in accessible formats.

People's Network services funded through Framework for the Future strategy programme are of particular benefit including (i) 'Enquire' service, giving round the clock real-time access to advice from librarians and (ii) 'Read' service, an on-line tool for finding interesting books for individual readers. Both these services particularly benefit people who find difficulty in visiting their library.

Live Music

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps the Government are taking to support live music and encourage the participation of young people. [81375]

Mr. Woodward: In 2004 we established the Live Music Forum to promote live performance. It has brokered the creation of music-making spaces for young people in Wrexham and in Camberwell, and is looking at ways of adapting and rolling out those models.

We also support young people's music making through the Music Manifesto and through the national charity Youth Music, with £10 million per year of National Lottery funding, which has reached over 1 million young people to date.

National Lottery

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what data are used to assess deprivation for the purposes of the policy directions given by the Government to the Big Lottery Fund on the proportion of the funds that are to be disbursed to Wales. [81659]

Mr. Caborn: Decisions about the allocation of the funding between the nations of the UK are made by the Big Lottery Fund, not the Government. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Carmarthen, East and Dinefwr (Adam Price) on 16 January 2006, Official Report, column 952W, and to the subsequent letter from the chief executive of the fund, copies of which have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

School Sport

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress is being made in meeting the two hour sport participation target for school children. [81606]

Mr. Caborn: The National School Sport Strategy Public Service Agreement overall objective is to increase the percentage of 5 to 16-year-olds who spend a minimum of two hours each week on high quality PE and school sport, within and beyond the curriculum, to 75 per cent. by 2006 and 85 per cent. by 2008.

The 2004-05 school sport survey confirmed the National School Sport Strategy is making good progress—overall, 69 per cent. of pupils in partnership schools participate in two or more hours of high quality PE and school sport each week, an increase of 11 per cent. since the 2003-04 survey. The 2005-06 survey is in progress and the results will be published in the autumn.

Sports Facilities

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what public funding is available to (a) local authorities and (b) other providers for the improvement of sports facilities. [81767]

Mr. Caborn: By the end of 2006, Government and the national lottery distributing bodies will have committed £1 billion to develop new or refurbished public sports facilities through programmes such as the Community Club Development Programme (CCDP), Active England and New Opportunities for PE and Sport. A further £40 million is available for CCDP in the period 2006-08.

Over the next three years, we expect around £1 billion to be available for investment by local authorities on sports services, including sports facilities, and the Building Schools for the Future initiative will provide local education authorities with £6.5 billion for capital investment in secondary schools, part of which will go towards sports facilities.

Terrorism Relief Fund

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether she has consulted (a) representatives of the travel insurance industry and (b) other insurers on the Terrorism Relief Fund. [82258]

Tessa Jowell: I am due to meet shortly with representatives of the travel insurance industry and hope to do this before the summer recess.

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) on what basis payments from the Terrorism Relief Fund will be made; and whether they will be made retrospectively; [82287]

(2) if she will make a further statement on the Terrorism Relief Fund before the House rises for the summer adjournment. [82288]

Tessa Jowell: I continue to work in consultation with the British Red Cross and victims' groups on the details of exactly how the fund will operate.

I hope to be able to make a further announcement in the coming months.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act

26. Mr. Hands: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what recent representations the Electoral Commission has received regarding section 5 of the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000. [81389]

Peter Viggers: Section 5 of the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000 requires the Electoral Commission to report on the administration of certain elections and referendums. The Commission informs me that it is currently reviewing the way in which it carries out its responsibilities under this section. Following consultation with a wide range of stakeholders, responses have been received from 46 individuals and organisations.

Voter Participation

28. Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what steps the Commission is taking to increase participation by young people in elections. [81391]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it undertakes advertising and other work to increase participation in elections amongst young people. This includes developing educational resources, training youth workers and teachers and making grants to organisations working with young people.

Transparency

Simon Hughes: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what plans the Committee has to meet in public and publish records of all its meetings in full. [81390]

Peter Viggers: The Speaker's Committee has no present plans to meet in public, or to change its practice of publishing summary records of its meetings.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Deputy Prime Minister

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Leader of the House if he will take steps to establish a Select Committee with responsibility for overseeing the role of the Deputy Prime Minister. [81934]

Mr. Straw: No.

Parliamentary Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Leader of the House if he will make it his policy to make copies of deposited papers available in the (a) Vote Office and (b) Printed Paper Office at the same time as copies are deposited in the Library; and if he will make a statement. [81238]

Mr. Straw: Departments regularly deposit papers in the Libraries of the House for the reference of Members and Peers. It is for Departments to assess the level of interest in a deposited paper and in cases where there is likely to be wider interest to provide sufficient copies of the document to the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office accordingly.

Departments are always happy to provide copies of deposited papers to Member and Peers on request.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Church Repairs

Miss McIntosh: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what the take-up was of grants to pay for church repairs in 2005-06. [81837]

Sir Stuart Bell: In 2005-6, the English Heritage/Heritage Lottery Fund joint scheme offered new grants and enhancements to existing grants which together totalled £24,465,309. As far as I am aware, all the offers were accepted.

In addition, grants totalling £999,000 were offered to 26 cathedrals and 24 of these offers (worth £971,000) were accepted.

£12,498,019 was also paid out in England in reimbursement of VAT under the Listed Places of Worship Grant Scheme.

Tithe Redemption Annuities

Robert Key: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what factors were taken into account when deciding that tithe redemption annuities should cease to be payable. [80964]

Sir Stuart Bell: In 1976 the Government announced that as there were sufficient funds in the tithe account to service the existing redemption stock and, as the costs of administering the scheme were high, tithe redemption annuities should be extinguished. Final payments were to be made in 1976 and 1977. Legislative effect was given to this in the Finance Act 1976. The Board of Inland Revenue handled the matter on the Government's behalf.

WALES

Customs Services

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales when he last met Treasury Ministers to discuss (a) the customs coverage at ports and along the coast of Wales and (b) the impact of the disbandment of the Maritime and Aviation Intelligence Team on Wales; and if he will make a statement. [80360]

Mr. Hain: I have regular discussions with ministerial colleagues on a wide range of issues.

HM Revenue and Customs keeps the deployment of officers under constant review. Officers are deployed according to risk and, depending on the risk, are stationed at ports either on a permanent or visiting basis.

The work of the Maritime and Aviation Intelligence Team has been subsumed by other intelligence units. These changes have been found to be more efficient and productive. As a consequence Wales will benefit from improved intelligence relating to imported smuggled goods, whatever method of transport and point of entry is used.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales (1) if he will list the draft Bills produced by his Department since October 2005; how many were examined or are planned to be examined by (a) a Departmental Select Committee or a combination of Select Committees and (b) a Joint Committee of both Houses of Parliament; and if he will make a statement; [81652]

(2) if he will list in date order the (a) Green and (b) White Papers produced by his Department since October 2005. [81651]

Mr. Hain: None.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will list the unnumbered command papers produced by his Department in each session since 1976; how (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the public can (i) inspect and (ii) obtain copies; and if he will make a statement. [81654]

Mr. Hain: The Wales Office was established on 1 July 1999 and has not presented any unnumbered command papers to Parliament since that time.

Welsh Police Forces

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what estimate he has made of the effect on overall police (a) numbers and (b) funding in Wales of the proposed amalgamation of the four Welsh police forces. [79606]

Mr. McNulty: I have been asked to reply.

The case for the amalgamation of the four police forces in Wales which was published in March suggested that such a force would have 7,613 officers and would lead to total annual savings of around £16 million.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent estimate he has made of the cost of unifying the four police forces in Wales. [79628]

Mr. McNulty: I have been asked to reply.

The estimated set-up cost of a strategic police force for Wales is £35 million. We are committed to paying 100 per cent. of reasonable set-up revenue and capital costs, net of reasonable savings. The precise projected level of these costs and savings is a matter for negotiations currently taking place.

Long-term savings made possible by the merger are currently estimated at around £16 million a year.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much has been spent so far on amalgamating the four police authorities in Wales. [79630]

Mr. McNulty: I have been asked to reply.

The costs to the Home Office relating specifically to amalgamation of police forces in Wales cannot be identified separately.

The costs, if any, that police forces and police authorities in Wales have incurred is a matter for the bodies concerned.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMISSION

National Audit Office

24. John Mann: To ask the Chairman of the Public Accounts Commission what assessment the Commission has made of whether the National Audit Office has sufficient resources available to enable it to examine the value for money of claims handling agreements for miners' compensation. [81387]

Mr. Alan Williams: The Comptroller and Auditor General has decided to include an examination of the Coal Health Compensation Schemes in his 2007-08 value for money programme, which will be considered by the Public Accounts Committee on 12 July. Work is planned to begin later this year. The forward National Audit Office programme is a matter for the Comptroller and Auditor General and the Public Accounts Committee.

PRIME MINISTER

Bus Loans

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Prime Minister whether his Government has lent a double decker bus to (a) organisations, (b) political parties, (c) campaigns and (d) other governments; and if he will make a statement. [81903]

The Prime Minister: The information requested is not held centrally.

Engagements

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Prime Minister whether any Cabinet Ministers plan to be in Germany on official business on (a) 8 and (b) 9 July. [81866]

The Prime Minister: For security reasons, the future engagements of Cabinet Ministers are announced as and when appropriate.

EU Finance

Mr. Brady: To ask the Prime Minister whether he was consulted by the Chancellor of the Exchequer before representations were made to the European Commission in the week commencing 19 June to re-open discussions about the UK abatement. [81821]

The Prime Minister: I have regular meetings and discussions with ministerial colleagues and others on a wide range of subjects. Information relating to internal meetings, discussion and advice is not disclosed as to do so could harm the frankness and candour of internal discussion.

GovNet Expo 2006

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Prime Minister what the cost is to the Government as a whole of supporting GovNet Expo 2006. [79218]

The Prime Minister: The information requested is not held centrally.

Guantanamo Bay

Keith Vaz: To ask the Prime Minister what discussions he has had with other heads of government at the recent European Council on the Guantanamo Bay detention facility. [80356]

The Prime Minister: There was no discussion of the Guantanamo Bay detention facility at the June European Council.

Israel

Richard Burden: To ask the Prime Minister whether he raised the cases of Tom Hurndall and James Miller with Prime Minister Olmert during his recent visit to the UK; and if he will make a statement. [82162]

The Prime Minister: I raised the cases of James Miller and Tom Hurndall with Israeli Prime Minister Olmert during his recent visit to London. The British embassy in Tel Aviv and consular officials in London continue to follow both cases closely and to offer the families of both men consular assistance.

New Aircraft

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Prime Minister what the projected total cost is of purchasing new aircraft for his use and that of members of the Royal Family; what the annual (a) running costs and (b) costs of cabin staff and pilots' salaries are expected to be; and if he will make a statement. [80113]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, on 29 June 2006, Official Report, columns 19-21WS.

Special Envoy

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister for what reason he deemed it necessary to appoint a special envoy to be his representative solely to the Sultan of Brunei. [81020]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave the hon. Member on 19 June 2006, Official Report, columns 1614-15W.

United Arab Emirates

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Prime Minister whether he has visited the United Arab Emirates on official business since May 1997. [81897]

The Prime Minister: Since 1999, the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year. Copies of these lists are available in the Library of the House. Information on the number of officials accompanying Ministers on overseas visits is included in the list. All Ministers' travel arrangements are in accordance with the arrangements for official travel set out in chapter 10 of the ministerial code, and the accompanying guidance document, "Travel by Ministers". Information for the year 2005-06 will be published as soon as it is ready.

CONSTITUTIONAL AFFAIRS

Child Access

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how many parents with care have been imprisoned in the last five years for ignoring court orders and obstructing access to children by their non-resident parent. [80343]

Ms Harman: Information on how many parents with care have been imprisoned in the last five years for ignoring court orders and obstructing access to children by their non-resident parent is not recorded. However, the figures in the following table show the number of people remanded in custody. These cases include those sentenced to prison and those kept in police cells. The table also shows the number of people remanded on bail or for medical reports.

Financial Year	Bail	Custody	Medical Reports	Total
2001-02	158	352	9	519
2002-03	203	504	16	723
2003-04	217	616	8	841
2004-05	225	565	10	800
2005-06	253	576	2	831

The figures in the table are from the county and High Courts only and relate to the breach of Family Law Act 1996 orders.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what the average cost to her Department was of replying to a letter written (a) by an hon. Member and (b) by a member of the public in the latest period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum is accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80475]

Vera Baird: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members, peers' correspondence. The report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78WS. The information requested is not recorded and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Foreign Travel

Philip Davies: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs how much was spent on foreign travel by her Department in each of the last eight years. [76054]

Vera Baird: The costs for foreign travel (in each year since 1997) are not separately identifiable within the Department's accounts without incurring disproportionate costs.

The Department has published rules for official travel in its staff handbook, and all travel is undertaken in accordance with the guidelines set out in the "Civil Service Management Code". In respect of overseas travel by Ministers, since 1999 the Government published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year. The Government also published annually the cost of all Ministers visits overseas. Copies of the lists are available in the Libraries of the House and they report information for the financial years 1995-96 to 2005-06. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the rules set out in the "Ministerial Code" and "Travel by Ministers", copies of which are available in the Library of the House.

Operation Payback

Harry Cohen: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Constitutional Affairs what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of Operation Payback; whether it has operated in (a) Redbridge and (b) Waltham Forest; and if she will make a statement. [78556]

Ms Harman: The last Operation Payback initiative (Operation Payback 3) took place between 15 and23 October 2005. Operation Payback 3 was undertaken by all 42 HMCS areas including north-east London, which covers Redbridge and Waltham Forest.

A reduction in financial penalties outstanding of £2.09 million can be specifically attributed to Operation Payback 3. In total, the three Operation Paybacks undertaken to date have reduced court debt by over £4.5 million.

TRANSPORT

A120(T)

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the conclusions were of the stage 1 study into the improvements of the A120(T) in relation to the proposed Bathside Bay development in Harwich; when a decision will be made on formal planning permission; and if he will make a statement. [81100]

Dr. Ladyman: Planning permission for the Bathside Bay development was granted on 29 March this year—subject to final approval of an appropriate road scheme by Ministers.

The developer-funded study into options to improve the A120(T) in relation to the proposed development is still under way. It is expected to be completed in September. In the light of this, the Secretary of State will decide which, if any of the road options, should be put to public consultation, which could then take place early next year.

Aviation (Climate Change)

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the relative impact on climate change of night flights and day flights when other factors are the same. [80662]

Gillian Merron: No assessments have been made of the relative impacts of night and day flights on climate change. The Department keeps up to date with and seeks to extend its knowledge on climate change issues, including the recent study published by the University of Reading. Further work and scientific understanding of the effects of aviation contrails and particularly cirrus cloud is required to enable aviation to minimise its climate impact through technical advances and policy measures.

Bus Fares

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the practice of some bus companies which require local authorities to reimburse them under the national travel scheme on the basis of two single fares rather than a return fare where this would be applicable; what estimate he has made of the resulting cost to local authorities; and if he will make a statement. [80761]

Gillian Merron: None. The main principle which applies to reimbursement is that bus operators are 'no better/no worse off' as a result of taking part in concessionary fares schemes. Reimbursement for lost revenue should be based on the average amount each concessionary traveller would have paid in the absence of the scheme (the average equivalent full fare).

It is for each Concessionary Travel Authority and its bus operators to reach local agreement on the appropriate "average fare". Reimbursement payments are subject to audits of ticket sales data and, if the authority requires further information, on-bus surveys of patronage.

Commuter Delays

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what average delay was experienced by commuters in each of the last 12 months on overland trains into London. [78627]

Derek Twigg: This information is not held by the Department in the format requested.

Motorways

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many kilometres of motorway have been resurfaced with quiet noise surface in each year since 1997; and how many kilometres were so resurfaced before they reached the normal life requirement for renewal in each year. [81065]

Dr. Ladyman: The number of lane kilometres of motorway laid with quieter surfacing in each calendar year since 1997 is set out in the following table:

Calendar year	Lane kilometres of motorway resurfaced
1997	36.4
1998	160.8
1999	280.7
2000	557.5
2001	330.1
2002	430.3
2003	818.5
2004	402.7
2005	362.9
2006 to date	112.8

Source:
Information taken from the Highways Agency Pavement Management System (HA-PMS) as at 27 June 2006.

As our priority has been to maintain a safe and serviceable network, no resurfacing works have been undertaken ahead of maintenance requirements.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will assess the relevance to the United Kingdom of the Austrian vignette scheme for charging for motorway use. [81067]

Dr. Ladyman: The Department monitors closely the development and operation of road tolling and pricing schemes throughout the world, including the Austrian lorry charge. We recognise that the experience of running road charging schemes in other countries may provide valuable lessons for the United Kingdom as we continue to consider how a system of national road pricing might be developed. At the same time, our analysis takes into account the fact that schemes in other countries are inevitably tailored to meet local circumstances.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many passenger kilometres were travelled on each motorway of the United Kingdom in each of the last five years. [81086]

Dr. Ladyman: The information is not available.

Olympics

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what undertakings were entered into with the organisers of the Olympic Games concerning the journey time between Heathrow and Weymouth; what the journey time is; and what plans there are to meet those undertakings. [81088]

Gillian Merron: In the Candidature File, submitted to the International Olympic Committee in November 2004, London 2012 estimated a journey time of 2 hours 20 minutes for the 206 km journey. It is now for the Olympic Delivery Authority, in preparing its Olympic Transport Plan, to set out the detailed transportation arrangements for each Olympic venue.

Peterborough Station

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment he has made of the recent increase in car parking charges at Peterborough railway station; [81824]

(2) what assessment he has made of the likely impact of the increase in car parking charges at Peterborough railway station on the Government's (a) transport plan and (b) policy to encourage more people to use public transport; [81825]

(3) what research he has commissioned on the impact of the level of car parking charges at railway stations on rail usage; and if he will make a statement. [81826]

Derek Twigg: Car parking charges are not regulated and are a commercial matter for the train operating company concerned. The Department for Transport has not commissioned research into the level of car parking charges at railway stations.

Road Traffic Act

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make a statement on the operation of the Road Traffic Act 1988; and what statutory instruments have been made under this Act. [81247]

Dr. Ladyman: The main purpose of the Road Traffic Act 1988 was to consolidate and replace earlier road traffic legislation in the overall interest of improving road safety. As amended, it remains the principal statute on this area of the law, regulating a wide range of road traffic issues, including driving standards, the construction and use of vehicles and driver licensing and instruction.

A considerable number of statutory instruments have been made under the Act since it came into force and a complete list could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, as I explained in my answer to the hon. Member on 12 May 2006 Official Report, columns 652-53W, a consolidated version of the Act, published by Butterworths, is available online to Members of this House. This includes details of all the secondary legislation made under each provision of the Act.

Seat Belts

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of (a) lives which will be saved and (b) injuries which will be reduced by the enactment of the Draft Motor Vehicles (Wearing of Seat Belts) (Amendment) Regulations 2006; when these regulations will be brought into force; what recent discussions he has had with (i) motoring organisations and (ii) the Parliamentary Advisory Committee on Transportation Safety on the wearing of seat belts; and if he will make a statement. [81248]

Dr. Ladyman: An estimate of the reduction of casualties which may be achieved by these regulations is given in the regulatory impact assessment available on-line at http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_rdsafety/documents/page/dft_rdsafety_611256.hcsp .

The draft regulations were laid before Parliament on 14 June with a date for coming into effect of 18 September 2006. Motoring organisations and the Parliamentary Advisory Committee on Transportation Safety responded to the public consultation on the proposed changes carried out in 2005. A summary of the responses is available on line at: http://www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_rdsafety/documents/page/dft_rdsafety_611255-03.hcsp#P71_12154.

Sleepy Drivers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many road accidents were caused (a) directly and (b) indirectly as a result of the driver of a motor vehicle driving (i) while feeling drowsy and (ii) falling asleep while driving in each year since 1996, broken down by (A) age group, (B) sex and (C) region; [81259]

(2) what research his Department (a) has undertaken, (b) plans to undertake and (c) has evaluated into (i) the (A) age and (B) number of (1) males and (2) females who drive while feeling drowsy, (ii) the frequency of driving while drowsy and (iii) the number of road accidents caused because the driver was drowsy; and if he will make a statement; [81260]

(3) what steps he (a) has taken and (b) plans to take to encourage persons aged 17 to 24 years of the dangers of driving while feeling drowsy; and if he will make a statement. [81261]

Dr. Ladyman: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 28 November 2005, Official Report, column 153W, to the hon. Member for South Swindon (Anne Snelgrove). The Department's research reports are published at www.dft.gov.uk/stellent/groups/dft_rdsafety/documents/divisionhomepage/032513.hcsp. Research Reports 21, 22 and 52 are relevant to driver sleepiness and report 43 is relevant to accident contributory factors. Research into motorcycle rider fatigue and accident risk is ongoing. The Department's publicity programme on driver tiredness is aimed at drivers of all ages.

Special Advisers

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what role is played by special advisers in answering parliamentary questions asked of his Department. [80650]

Gillian Merron: Special advisers conduct themselves in accordance with the requirements of the Code of Conduct for Special Advisers.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Birds

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 21 November 2005, Official Report, column 1526W, on birds, whether Essex county council has concluded its investigation into Pegasus Birds; and if he will make a statement. [79488]

Mr. Bradshaw: The investigation was completed in April 2006. The investigating officer's report concluded that, despite procedural irregularities at the facility, the quarantine procedures for imported birds worked, and avian influenza was successfully detected. Following recommendations from the investigation, both the director and manager of Pegasus Birds received written cautions.

Both DEFRA and Essex Trading Standards learnt from the experience. DEFRA commissioned an independent review of avian quarantine for captive birds, which was published on 15 December 2005. The Government response to the review is available on the DEFRA website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/diseases/control/avianquarantine/gov-strategy/index.htm.

Climate Change

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many young ambassadors for climate change have been identified under the Climate Change Communication Initiative; [80709]

(2) how much has been spent under the Climate Change Communication Initiative, broken down by project. [80710]

Ian Pearson: Nine champions have been chosen in the Climate Change Champions Competition 2006, one from each region in England.

In February 2005, funding of £12 million for the period 2005-06 to 2007-08 was announced for the Climate Change Communication Initiative, with £6 million of that being made available for Climate Challenge Fund projects. This month, the Government announced that awards would be made to 53 projects under the fund (totalling £2.6 million in 2006-07 and £2.2 million in 2007-08). A breakdown is provided in the following table. A number of further projects are currently under discussion. More information is available at: www.climatechange.gov.uk.

Energy Efficiency

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the likely impact of (a) home information packs and (b) the home condition report on improving energy efficiency. [77963]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The home condition report within the pack will provide buyers and sellers with an assessment of the energy efficiency and carbon emissions of the home, as well as advice on measures that can be taken to improve these. This will enable buyers to consider energy efficiency in choosing their new home, and will give sellers and new owners reliable advice on how to make improvements. This and other information in the home condition report will raise awareness of energy efficiency and property condition and are expected to contribute to an overall improvement in housing stock and reduced carbon emissions.

Environmental Prosecution

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many notices of environmental prosecution have been issued to the Government since 1997. [80767]

Ian Pearson: The Environment Agency issue formal enforcement notices and carry out prosecutions; these are two different forms of enforcement activity.

Neither form has been issued to the Government since 1997.

Environmental Special Grants

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) purpose and (b) value was of each special grant awarded to City of York council for environmental purposes since 1997. [78947]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 20 June 2006]: As well as the annual funding allocation under Environmental, Protective and Cultural Services (EPCS) block of the revenue support grant, City of York council has received a number of additional grants from DEFRA to support improvements in local waste management, provide household incentives for recycling and develop kerbside recycling and composting. The following table shows the breakdown of the funds provided and projects supported.

It will take some time for the Department to gather information on any further special grants which have been awarded to City of York council for environmental purposes since 1997. I will write to the hon. Member with any additional information.

Marine Bill

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the timetable is for the introduction of the draft Marine Bill; and whether he plans to submit it for pre-legislative scrutiny; [77816]

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, when he expects to publish a draft Marine Bill; and whether he plans to submit it for pre-legislative scrutiny; [77579]

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, what the timescale is for the introduction of the draft Marine Bill; and if he will make a statement; [80146]

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, whether a draft Marine Bill will be published in the current parliamentary session. [80562]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA published a consultation document on 29 March 2006 that outlined the Government's thinking in a number of key areas that will be addressed by a Marine Bill. The consultation period was three months. We will need to take the consultation responses into account before taking a decision on the timing of and arrangements for further consultation on detailed proposals or a draft Bill. Introduction of a Marine Bill will follow later in this Parliament, subject to the availability of Parliamentary time.

Renewable Energy (Residential Properties)

Mr. Iain Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what grants his Department makes available to enable people to have access to (a) solar heating and (b) other forms of renewable microgeneration in residential properties. [80561]

Ian Pearson: The Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) has the lead responsibility for renewable energy and microgeneration. The DTI-funded Clear Skies Programme was replaced by its Low Carbon Buildings Programme on 1 April 2006, which will operate for three years. The programme is managed by the Energy Saving Trust and provides grants for solar heating and other microgeneration technologies alongside energy efficiency measures to householders, community organisations, the public sector and business.

Single Payment Scheme

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many and what percentage of claimants are waiting to receive (a) their Single Farm Payment in full and (b) any Single Farm Payments; and what the total value of payments is which remain to be paid. [79896]

Barry Gardiner: The following figures are calculated against a claimant population for the 2005 Single Payment Scheme (SPS) of 120,000 claims and are, consequently, likely to overstate the true position as the total number of claimants who will receive a payment will be somewhat lower. This is because account has to be taken of duplicate claims, consolidation of multiple claims into single business claims, voluntary withdrawals, claimants not activating entitlements and claims subject to 100 per cent. penalties.

At close of business on 27 June 2006, approximately 31,500 claimants have yet to receive their full payment. This represents 26 per cent. of an estimated 120,000 claims, approximately half of which have received a partial payment.

Approximately 14,500 claimants (12 per cent. of an estimated 120,000 claims) have yet to receive any payment. Most of these claims are worth less than €1,000.

Out of a total available fund of an estimated £1.5 billion, £1,415,817,581.80 has already been paid to farmers.

Work is continuing by the Rural Payments Agency to pay as many claims as possible using a variety of methods by the end of the payment window on 30 June.

Sustainable Food Strategy

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what definition of "significant" was used when setting the aim of significantly reducing the environmental costs of domestic food transportation by 2012 in the sustainable food strategy. [79439]

Mr. Bradshaw: The word "significant" was used in its common meaning, i.e. important or meaningful. The food industry sustainability strategy provides for a process to be set up with industry

"to consider the practical implications associated with it securing significant reductions (say 20 per cent. by 2012) in the level of external costs associated with the domestic transportation of food."

An industry-led champions' group will consider the feasibility of this proposed target and determine what additional measures might be necessary to achieve it.

Waste Management

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether the Waste and Resources Action Programme Real Nappy Initiative aimed to divert 35,000 tonnes of waste (a) in each year from 2003 to 2006 and (b) in total; [78531]

(2) how much disposable nappy waste has been diverted by the Waste and Resources Action Programme's Real Nappy Initiative; and what its targets are for such diversion. [80253]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) Real Nappy initiative target was to convert an additional 155,000 households to real nappy use by April 2006, and in the process divert 35,000 tonnes per annum of disposable nappy waste from landfill.

WRAP reports annually on its overall progress in meeting targets, including work under the Real Nappy initiative. It is scheduled to report on its achievements for the business plan period up to 2006 soon. At the outset of the programme, 91 per cent. of expectant parents said they intended to use disposable nappies. Work done for the Environment Agency suggested the figure may be higher at 94 per cent. WRAP intends to survey parents again at the end of the programme and to establish the change in intended behaviour. An estimate of the diversion will be made and published by WRAP at that time taking account of the survey and other quantitative evidence.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what controls are in place to monitor waste intended for recycling to ensure that it is not re-routed to a landfill site. [79913]

Mr. Bradshaw: There is no evidence of large-scale or repeated landfilling of recyclables, but material collected for recycling is occasionally sent to landfill if it is badly contaminated.

It is not in the interest of local authorities to send recyclable material to landfill because of the requirement to meet statutory recycling targets for household waste, tough landfill diversion targets for municipal waste, and the need to avoid the increasing cost of landfill.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he will report on local authority pilot projects funded by his Department on waste minimisation incentives. [78534]

Mr. Bradshaw: The results of the household incentive pilot schemes will be available in the next few weeks.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to announce whether he will introduce variable charges for waste production. [79892]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have no current plans to introduce charging for household waste. The Government are considering what further steps are needed to tackle household waste as part of the review of the Waste Strategy, which will be published later this year. We are also looking at the spending pressures local authorities face, with regard to waste management, ahead of the Comprehensive Spending Review.

Variable charging is one of a number of tools that could be used to encourage waste minimisation and recycling of household waste. Local authorities already have powers to run incentive schemes or require householders to separate their waste for recycling. Recent research shows that at least half of English local authorities have run, or are running, some form of incentive scheme and some, such as Barnet, require householders to separate their recycling.

Many countries, including some in the European Union, have introduced successful household waste charging schemes, achieving reductions in waste arisings and increases in the separation of waste for recycling.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will introduce national compulsory recycling schemes. [79779]

Mr. Bradshaw: DEFRA has no plans to introduce a national compulsory recycling scheme. It is up to each local authority to decide how to go about meeting the challenging recycling targets in their local area.

Compulsory recycling will not be suitable for all local authorities, but DEFRA will watch those that try such schemes with interest. As part of the review of the Waste Strategy, we are continuing to investigate options for influencing householder behaviour, with particular emphasis on positive incentives to help authorities encourage householders to reduce, re-use and recycle their waste.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support Agency

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Child Support Agency cases have been migrated from the old rules system onto the new rules system and then back onto the old rules system. [77977]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently unavailable, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many Child Support Agency cases have been migrated from the old rules system onto the new rules system and then back onto the old rules system.

The original system (CSCS) runs cases on the old scheme rules only. The new system (CS2) run cases on the new scheme rules; and also old scheme cases linked to a new scheme pulled through to the new system, although still operating on old scheme rules.

Currently, the only way for cases to be transferred from the old system to the new system is through reactive migration, which happens where an old scheme case has a link to a new scheme application and is therefore transferred from one system to the other. There were 322,000 old scheme cases operating on the new computer system in March 2006.

An old scheme case that has been transferred from the old system to the new system is only converted to the new scheme where there is a relevant link with a new scheme application. Relevant links are ones where the new application will have a financial impact on the linked case. At the end of March 2006, around 41,000 previously old scheme cases had been converted into the new scheme, and were thus also operating on the new computer system.

There is currently no policy for converting cases from the new rules and system back to the old scheme.

I hope you find this helpful.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many children have non-resident parents with a Child Support Agency liability. [79704]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 22 June 2006]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the right, hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds dated 3 July 2006:

In reply to your parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently on leave, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many children have non-resident parents with a Child Support Agency liability.

At the end of March 2006 there were 1,507,000 children that had a non-resident parent with a Child Support Agency liability. This includes nil liabilities.

I hope you find this useful

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the software to handle the migration of old system cases onto the new system was delivered to the Child Support Agency. [80402]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Hilary Reynolds:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As he is currently unavailable, I am responding on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, when the software to handle the migration of old system cases onto the new system was delivered to the Child Support Agency.

There are two parts to the process of moving from the old computer system (CSCS) to the new system (CS2); firstly migration of the cases across the computer systems and secondly the conversion of those cases from the old scheme to the new scheme.

The software to enable bulk migration of cases from the old computer system to the new computer system was delivered in May 2005. The Initial Conversion software to enable the conversion of cases from the old scheme to the new scheme was delivered in March 2006. These are both necessary to support migration and conversion. However, before bulk migration and conversion could take place defects in the new computer system would need to be resolved. A number of software releases have been scheduled for between now and the end of 2007, designed to remove the large majority of existing defects. A large data cleansing exercise would need to be completed to support successful conversion.

I hope you find this useful.

Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he will answer the letter of 20 April from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mr. and Mrs. V. Brown, transferred to him by the Chancellor of the Exchequer. [77588]

Mr. Hutton: I replied to the right hon. Member's letter on 26 June 2006.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average cost to his Department was of replying to a letter written (a) by an hon. Member and (b) by a member of the public in the latest period for which figures are available; and how much of that sum is accounted for by (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80493]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members' peers' correspondence. The report for 2005 was published on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78WS.

The information requested is not recorded and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Crisis Loans

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many crisis loans have been (a) applied for and (b) granted in each local authority area in Scotland in each of the last five years. [80851]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available in the format requested. The table gives information for Scotland as a whole.

1. Data is not available by local authority, but only by Jobcentre Plus district (or, before Jobcentre Plus districts were used for the administration of the social fund, by social fund district).
2. Very substantial district boundary changes took place in Scotland over the period November 2002 to April 2003 and again from November 2004 to January 2005, with one further change in January 2006. It is therefore not possible to compare data over five years for any area smaller than Scotland, except for the area now covered by the Jobcentre Plus district of Edinburgh, Lothian and Borders.

Departmental Bills

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list those Government Bills sponsored by his Department that are still to be introduced during the 2005-06 Session. [78857]

Mrs. McGuire: The Government will bring forward in this Session the welfare reform legislation set out in the Queen's Speech on 17 May 2005 to reform support for housing costs and establish benefits, which will facilitate a return to employment while offering long-term support for those unable to work.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will list those Government Bills sponsored by his Department that he has bid for in the next session of Parliament; and if he will make a statement. [78858]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer given by the Leader of the House on 16 June 2006, Official Report, Column 1431W.

Disabled Staff

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department has spent on adaptations and equipment for disabled members of staff in each year since 2003. [79933]

Mrs. McGuire: Any DWP employee requiring equipment and adaptations receives the support they need to undertake their duties. Information on the amount spent by the Department on equipment and adaptations for disabled staff is not collected. Currently, costs are attributed to individual local budgets relevant to the individual employee and are included in the overall costs of furniture/equipment within that business unit.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on how many days since May 1997 the St. George's flag has been flown from his Department's buildings. [77733]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 15 June 2006]: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport issue the guidance for flying flags on Government buildings, which includes the list of dates, to Government Departments every year, usually at the end of December. This includes flying the St. George's flag on St. George's day, 23 April, and the European flag on Europe day, 9 May. It also informs Government Departments as and when there are any additional flag flying days. The Department for Work and Pensions will adhere to this guidance.

The guidance can be found on the Department for Culture, Media and Sport website at www.culture.gov.uk/flagflying.

The Department for Work and Pensions was formed in June 2001. Therefore the St. George's flag has been flown five times from Department's buildings.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's policy is on flying the (a) St. George's flag and (b) EU flag from departmental buildings. [77734]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 15 June 2006]: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport issue the guidance for flying flags on Government buildings, which includes the list of dates, to Government Departments every year, usually at the end of December. Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will ensure the Union flag is flown from his Department's buildings on every day the offices are open. [77735]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 15 June 2006]: The Department for Work and Pensions follows the rules and guidance on flag flying issued by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport. These rules are approved by the Queen on advice from the Department. There are no plans at present to change the number of days flags can be flown from Government buildings.

Guidance can be found on the Department for Culture, Media and Sport website at www.culture.gov.uk/flagflying.

Pensions

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on (a) improving protection for employees' pension schemes and (b) increasing the amount held in the Pension Protection Fund. [76019]

James Purnell: Both the Secretary of State and I have regular meetings with ministerial colleagues in the Treasury to discuss a range of pension issues. Recent discussions led to our being able to announce a significant extension to the financial assistance scheme, increasing the total funding to £2.3 billion.

The Pension Protection Fund is not funded by Government, but by industry levy.

Winter Fuel Payments

Hywel Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people had their 60th birthday after the qualifying week for winter fuel payments and therefore did not receive a winter fuel payment for that year in (a) England and (b) Wales in each year since 1997. [81660]

James Purnell: Figures are not provided for the first three years of the winter fuel payment scheme as payment was linked to receipt of a qualifying benefit rather than to a qualifying age. The following table shows the number of people turning 60 after the end of the qualifying week but before the end of the calendar year for each winter from 2000-01.

	England	Wales
2000-01	120,000	10,000
2001-02	130,000	10,000
2002-03	150,000	10,000
2003-04	160,000	10,000
2004-05	150,000	10,000
2005-06	160,000	10,000

Figures are rounded to the nearest 10,000.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Allotments/Open Space

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes have been made to planning (a) guidance, (b) circulars and (c) regulations relating to (i) allotments and (ii) building on land classified as open space since 1997. [78331]

Yvette Cooper: Current planning policy guidance on allotments and open space is set out in PPG17: Open Space, Sport and Recreation, published in 2002. This provides enhanced protection from development for all types of open space. In particular, PPG17 indicates that open space should not be built on unless an assessment has been undertaken that has clearly shown that the open space is surplus to requirements. It also includes specific policies to protect playing fields from development. These policies are supported by the Town and Country Planning (Playing Fields) (England) Direction 1998 which gives the Secretary of State for Communities and local government the power to call in planning applications affecting playing fields where local authorities have not resolved Sport England's objections.

Allotments are included in the typology of open spaces to which the policies in PPG17 to protect open space apply. In addition, statutory allotments are protected via section 8 of the Allotments Act 1925 which requires that local authorities seek the Secretary of State's consent for disposal or appropriation to another use. Consent cannot be given unless the Secretary of State is satisfied that certain criteria are met. Clarified criteria were issued to local authorities in February 2001.

The options for consolidating existing allotments legislation were considered following the DETR Select Committee Report, "The Future of Allotments", in 1998, and it was decided that the best way to clarify the legislation was by promoting best practice. A good practice guide on the management of allotments and a guide for plot holders were published in 2001.

Arm's Length Management Organisations

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of arm's length management organisations which will not achieve the decent homes standard by 2010. [71025]

Yvette Cooper: The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government announced on 7 June that we will negotiate extensions to the 2010 deadline with individual arm's length management organisations where it would be beneficial to have longer to deliver their decent homes programmes. For those starting late on the programme and for local authorities where the scale of the work is significant to deliver mixed communities or more new build, or where there are performance issues, or to ensure value for money in procurement, we will negotiate individual delivery timescales. However, the vast majority of social landlords will still be expected to ensure all homes are decent by 2010.

Competent Persons Scheme

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made in implementing the competent persons scheme; and if she will make a statement. [81031]

Angela E. Smith: The first competent persons schemes were introduced in 2002 to reduce the administrative burden of the Building Regulations by allowing self-certification of compliance with the relevant Building Regulations by enterprises and individuals judged as competent, as an alternative to submitting a building notice or using an approved inspector. The aim was to enhance compliance, reduce costs for firms, promote training and competence within the industry, tackle the problem of non-compliant builders and assist local authorities with enforcement of the Building Regulations.

The schemes were extended to cover electrical safety in 2005. In April 2006, in support of the new higher standards of energy efficiency required by Part L, further schemes were introduced to cover the installation of bathrooms and bathroom fittings, plumbing, heating systems and hot water service systems, ventilation and air conditioning, lighting systems, electric heating systems and associated controls, air pressure testing of buildings, carbon dioxide emission rate calculations and the installation of replacement windows and doors.

Council Housing

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister if he will make a statement on the recent Court of Appeal decision in the cases of Hassan Ismael and Nimco Abdi against the London borough of Barnet. [66828]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

In the case of London borough of Barnet v. Abdi and Ismael, the applicants were both EEA nationals who were economically inactive and were not "qualified persons" for the purpose of regulation 5 of the Immigration (European Economic Area) Regulations 2000. The status of "qualified person" under those regulations relates to whether or not a person has a right to reside in the United Kingdom under European Union law, for example as a worker. The Court of Appeal found that the applicants were subject to immigration control as they did not have a right to reside. This would have meant the applicants were eligible for homelessness assistance under the housing rules which then applied to persons subject to immigration control, in a way that was not intended.

To close this loophole, the Government have made regulations to narrow the classes of eligibility for social housing and homelessness assistance for persons subject to immigration control. The effect of this is to ensure that nationals from the European Economic Area (EEA) who are economically inactive and do not have a right to reside in the UK are not eligible for social housing and homelessness assistance in England (unless, exceptionally, they fall into one of the other classes of eligibility that relate to persons subject to immigration control). The Allocation of Housing and Homelessness (Amendment) Regulations 2006 came into force on 20 April.

The new regulations reinforce the measures introduced in May 2004, and will help ensure that people cannot come to the United Kingdom simply to get access to the social welfare system.

Engagements

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will visit Wellingborough to discuss future housing and infrastructure developments. [75057]

Yvette Cooper: As I explained in my answer of 18 April 2006, we consider that Wellingborough plays an important part in the growth proposals for North Northamptonshire. We are kept regularly updated on development of the plans to take these forward and I chair the regular Milton Keynes and South Midlands Inter Regional Board. In addition, officials are closely involved with the borough council and other partners in bringing forward housing, growth and other agendas. There have already been a number of ministerial visits to North Northamptonshire and more are planned. DCLG Ministers are more than happy to discuss housing development and infrastructure provision in Wellingborough during future visits to Northamptonshire.

Green Spaces

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government are taking to protect green spaces in urban areas. [72553]

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps the Government are taking to improve inner-city green spaces. [75572]

Yvette Cooper: This Government's programmes for improving urban parks and green spaces are set out in our reports "Living Places—Cleaner, Safer, Greener" (ODPM 2002), and "Sustainable communities: building for the future" (ODPM 2003).

Available evidence shows that the programmes are working. For example, public satisfaction in parks and green spaces rose by 8 per cent. to71 per cent. between 2001 and 2004 (ODPM, 2004). The National Audit Office's recent report on the performance of our programmes also found that:

"84% of urban local authorities believe the quality of their park is stable or improving. This compares to less than 44% in 2000. In 2000 more than 55% of urban local authorities considered their historic green spaces were declining in quality. This had fallen to 16% in 2005".

It also concluded that:

"Initiatives led by the Office of Deputy Prime Minister have helped to reverse the decline in the quality of urban green space in many of England's urban neighbourhoods".

(NAO March 2006).

Home Improvements

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many houses in Morley and Rothwell have had improvements under the decent homes standard scheme; and what the cost of such improvements has been. [80584]

Yvette Cooper: Information is collected at local authority level only. Leeds metropolitan borough (including Morley and Rothwell) reports that in 2004-05 (the latest year for which information is available), 34,388 local authority-owned homes were included in their capital programme for that year at a cost of £77 million. The work carried out includes: incremental improvement of non-decent stock (only a proportion of which will become decent as a result of elemental works); prevention of homes becoming non-decent; and wider housing and environmental improvements to estates. The total expenditure on this type of works in Leeds over the period 2001-02 to 2004-05 was £199 million[1]. However it is not possible to state how many homes have been improved as a result of this total expenditure since 2001-02 as the majority of dwellings will have had work undertaken on them under more than one programme.

Business Plan Annual Monitoring returns.

Home Information Packs

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department (a) has spent to date and (b) plans to spend to promote awareness of home information packs. [74479]

Yvette Cooper: The Government have a duty to inform property professions, stakeholders and home buyers and sellers about the forthcoming change in the law. Expenditure for the 2005-06 financial year was £706,000. This includes the cost of an extensive trade advertising campaign to raise awareness of the June 2007 implementation date within the home buying and selling professions.

Planned expenditure of £2,500,000 for 2006-07 includes continued awareness raising within the professions and a national and regional advertising campaign to raise awareness of home information packs among consumers, during the dry run.

In 2007-08 we expect to run a major information campaign for consumers which would include marketing, advertising and publicity. The extent of the campaign and the level of investment will be decided later in the year on the basis of the experience of the dry run.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the principle of caveat emptor will continue to apply to house purchasers in relation to home information packs; whether standard conditions of sale in house purchase contracts will be able to exclude the vendor from any future liability as a result of information contained in home information packs after contracts have been exchanged; and whether members of the public will have electronic access to full individual reports stored in the Home Condition Report Register. [75412]

Yvette Cooper: The principle of caveat emptor will continue to apply.

Sellers are unlikely to be the source of most of the documents required for home information packs—it is the author who remains liable for the contents of individual documents. Where the seller has made statements or representations in the pack, the lawfulness of any attempt to exclude liability for such statements would be for a court to decide. However, it is expected that the position will be no different to that in relation to statements currently made by a seller before contracts are exchanged—in particular, the Misrepresentation Act 1967 requires that any such contractual terms must be fair and reasonable, and the buyer would be entitled to damages if they entered into the contract following a misrepresentation and they suffered loss as a result.

The only people who will have access to the Home Condition Report Register will be buyers and sellers, their advisers and mortgage lenders, and those monitoring the performance and quality of the reports.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which organisations are entitled to produce home information packs; what guidelines are in place on what should be included; and what avenues exist for a leaseholder to refuse to pay for a pack that is inferior or defective in information required. [75980]

Yvette Cooper: There are no restrictions on those who are able to put together home information packs. The packs will normally be commissioned by sellers or their agents from providers willing and able to undertake this role for a consideration. The contents of the Packs are prescribed in regulations made under the Housing Act 2004.

Leaseholders will be able to seek redress in the same way as freeholders, either from the pack provider or from their agent, depending on the source of their complaint.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people are (a) qualified, (b) in training and (c) registered to take courses for the delivery of home condition reports; and what the average cost is of this training. [75981]

Yvette Cooper: As of 31 May 2006, over 4,400 home inspectors are in the process of being trained, and 232 have completed their training. The amount of training required, and therefore the cost, depends on previous experience. For an experienced surveyor with relevant experience, the cost is estimated to be around £1,600 to £1,800. For a candidate with no relevant experience, training would take longer and is estimated to cost around £6,700 to £8,000.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in which areas home information packs will be piloted; and what opportunities there will be to bring forward their introduction if buyer and vendor agree to this. [75982]

Yvette Cooper: Home information packs (HIPs) will be tested on a voluntary basis throughout England and Wales during the period leading up to 1 June 2007. Packs that contain home condition reports prepared by certified home inspectors should be available from October 2006. HIP providers are expected to trial the packs in a number of areas after this date; the areas have yet to be confirmed.

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how the (a) quality and (b) accuracy of facts provided in home information packs will be monitored; and if she will make a statement. [77482]

Yvette Cooper: The quality and accuracy of documents included in the HIP will be the responsibility of the provider of the document (as is the case under the current system). For example, the home inspector will be responsible for the home condition report, search providers for their reports and the seller for the forms they complete. The principle of caveat emptor will still apply, and the buyer's conveyancer should ensure they are satisfied with the information provided. Consumers will be able to get redress if they incur a loss due to inaccurate information.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether (a) mortgage lenders and (b) estate agents will be charged to have access to the Home Condition Report Register electronic database. [66776]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

Access to view reports will be via the local registers and will be restricted to persons prescribed by regulations. This will include buyers' and sellers' mortgage lenders and estate agents. We are currently considering the basis for charging in relation to the register, but we envisage such access will be free of charge.

Reports must also be lodged onto the central register, by the home inspector or certification scheme. We anticipate that a fee will be charged for this registration process.

Homelessness

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people have been identified as homeless in each of the last five years for which records are available. [76762]

Yvette Cooper: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation, which is collected in respect of households rather than persons, is summarised in a quarterly Statistical Release, the latest of which was published by the Department for Communities and Local Government on 12 June.

Table 3 provides the number of households accepted by local authorities as unintentionally homeless and in a priority need category, and consequently owed a main homelessness duty, in each year since 1997. Table 6 presents those in temporary accommodation arranged by local authorities at the end of each quarter since March 1997.

Copies are available in the Library, and from the DCLG website at http://www.communities.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1002882&PressNoticeID=2169.

The duty owed to a person accepted as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need is to secure suitable accommodation. If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority may secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available. As an alternative to the provision of temporary accommodation, some authorities arrange for households to remain in their current accommodation (homeless at home) until a settled solution becomes available.

Information is also collected by the Department on the number of people who sleep rough; that is, those who are literally roofless on a single night. These are shown as follows:

	Rough sleepers (number of people)
2001	703
2002	596
2003	504
2004	508
2005	459

Households

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the likely change in the number of households in each region in the next (a) five, (b) 10, (c) 15 and (d) 20 years; and if she will make a statement. [81710]

Yvette Cooper: Projections of households for 2003 to 2026 and intervening years were published on 4 March 2006 via the DCLG website:

http://www.odpm.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1002882&PressNoticeID=2097

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the accuracy of house building targets in relation to growth in the number of households over the past 10 years; and if she will make a statement. [81711]

Yvette Cooper: In response to the Barker Review of Housing Supply, the Government announced, in December 2005, an ambition to increase new housing supply in England to 200,000 net additions per year over the next decade. This took account of factors including household growth, affordability, numbers of houses in plans and recent trends in housing supply.

The level of household growth over the past 10 years reflects in part the level of home building as where the number of new homes are restricted it can restrict household formation. So, for example, young people live with their parents for longer than they would otherwise choose to do.

Housing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when figures will be published on the average sale price of the homes built under her Department's £60,000 homes scheme. [70708]

Yvette Cooper: The Design for Manufacture competition is being run by English Partnerships on behalf of the Department for Communities and Local Government. It includes 10 sites across England which are currently in public sector ownership. Each of the 10 sites chosen for the competition is being sold to the successful developers in the usual way. It is anticipated that there will be mixed tenure on each site in order to ensure mixed communities, with some homes being available for affordable rent, some under shared equity and some for private sale. Around 50 per cent. of the homes will be affordable social renting or shared equity homes. For example, shared equity in two-bedroom homes on the first sites will be sold for between £55,000 and £70,000. The homes for full sales will need to take account of the land value as well as the construction costs, and their price will be set by the developers in accordance with the market conditions at the time. Therefore, the actual sales costs will be known once the homes are built on site and details finalised in accordance with market conditions at the time.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new affordable housing units were completed in (a) England and (b) local authorities defined as rural in each year since 2000, broken down by region. [71588]

Yvette Cooper: I have deposited the information in the Library of the House. The table shows social rented units, either built or acquired, provided through Housing Corporation Approved Development Programme and Local Authority Social Housing Grant (table A) and those provided by local authorities (table B).

Each local authority listed has been assigned an urban/rural classification based on the "Defra Classification of Local Authority Districts and Unitary Authorities in England" published in July 2005.

Using these classifications, the table also shows (from 1998-99 when the classifications can first be applied) percentages of social rented housing units delivered in predominantly rural districts. The percentage of the population in those predominantly rural districts is 23 per cent.

The classification criteria are as follows:

Major Urban:

Districts with either 100,000 people or 50 per cent. of their population in an urban area with a population of more than 750,000; there are 76 districts in this group,

Large Urban:

Districts with either 50,000 people or 50 per cent. of their population in one of 17 urban areas with a population between 250,000 and 750,000; there are 45 districts in this group.

Other Urban:

Districts with fewer than 37,000 people or less than 26 per cent. of their population in rural settlements and larger market towns; there are 55 districts in this group.

Significant Rural:

Districts with more than 37,000 people or more than 26 per cent. of their population in rural settlements and larger market towns; there are 53 districts in this group.

Rural-50:

Districts with at least 50 per cent. but less than 80 per cent. of their population in rural settlements and larger market towns; there are 52 districts in this group, and

Rural-80:

Districts with at least 80 per cent. of their population in rural settlements and larger market towns; there are 73 districts in this group.

The urban/rural classifications are only applicable to all local authorities as defined after the local government reorganisation in April 1988.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were classified as (a) homeless and (b) unsuitably housed in each year since 1990-91; and if she will make a statement. [75828]

Yvette Cooper: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected in respect of households rather than persons. The number of households accepted by local authorities in England as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and consequently owed the main homelessness duty, in each year since 1990-91; and the number of households in temporary accommodation arranged by the authority under homelessness legislation as at 31 March of each year, are tabled as follows. From 1998, information has also been collected on the number of people who sleep rough—that is, those who are literally roofless on a single night—and these are presented as follows.

	Households accepted as owed a main duty during the year	Households in temporary accommodation at end of year (31 March)
1990-91	139,290	50,000
1991-92	139,630	62,090

Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (annual) (for rough sleepers data)

There is no general definition of 'unsuitable' housing. The available estimates for the number of unfit homes (as defined by section 604 of the 1989 Local Government and Housing Act) are provided in the following table. This shows a decline from around 1.5 million in 1991 to around 1 million currently. The small differences relating to 2001 to 2004 are not statistically significant.

Number of unfit homes in England, 1991-2004

	Number (Thousand)	Percentage of all homes
1991	1,498	7.6
1996	1,522	7.5
2001	902	4.3
2003	1,005	4.7
2004	985	4.6

Unfit homes are those which fail the statutory minimum standard as defined by the Fitness Standard and, since April 1996, the Housing Health and Safety Rating System.

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will amend the planning regulations to make it mandatory for all (a) new build housing and (b) conversions to incorporate photo-voltaics and wind turbine technology wherever practicable. [75855]

Yvette Cooper: Planning Policy Statement 22 on renewable energy allows local authorities to set targets for the percentage of energy in new developments that should come from renewable sources. In a ministerial statement on 8 June I announced the results of a survey by my Department that showed a large percentage of authorities preparing new-style local development frameworks were including such policies in their plans. It is essential that all planning authorities adopt the positive approach to renewables set out in PPS22 at the earliest opportunity in their plan making. In particular the Government expect all planning authorities to include policies in their development plans that require a percentage of the energy in new developments to come from on-site renewables where viable.

The Government's forthcoming draft planning policy statement on climate change will be an opportunity to consider further how the planning process more generally can help combat climate change by extending the contribution of renewables from both on-site and off-site sources.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new (a) private houses and (b) units of social housing were built in (i) Greater London and (ii) Bexley borough in (A) 2001 and (B) 2005. [76653]

Yvette Cooper: The numbers of new private houses and units of social houses built in Greater London and the borough of Bexley are given in the following table. New units of social housing includes all those built by local authorities and registered social landlords for sub-market rent, but does not include those sold below market value to groups such as key workers. Information on social housing is for financial years and figures for 2005-06 are not yet available. Local authorities can use section 106 negotiations on new residential developments to support new social housing.

P2 returns from local authorities to DCLG, Housing Corporation.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many social housing tenancies have been demoted as a result of antisocial behaviour since their introduction. [76713]

Angela E. Smith: The DCLG has requested that local authorities supply data on the number of secure tenancies they have demoted. The first returns for 2005-06 will be published later in the summer.

The Housing Corporation commenced the collection of this data a year earlier. Its regulatory and statistical returns for 2004-05, indicate that registered social landlords demoted 76 tenancies from June 2004 (when this tool first became available) to April 2005.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to increase the regional housing target for the South East from the 28,900 per annum target from 2006 to 2026 adopted by the South East Regional Assembly. [81512]

Yvette Cooper: Current housing targets for the South East are set out in the Regional Planning Guidance for the South East (RPG9) and subsequent revisions for the Growth Areas. In reviewing this guidance, the South East Regional Assembly has submitted a draft Regional Spatial Strategy in which they propose housing targets for the South East. It would be inappropriate for the Secretary of State to pre-empt the outcome of the forthcoming Examination in Public of the draft South East Plan by commenting on the housing targets proposed by the South East Regional Assembly.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make a statement on housing targets in the South East, with particular reference to the report commissioned by the Government Office for the South East from Roger Tym and partners. [81513]

Yvette Cooper: Current housing targets for the South East are set out in the Regional Planning Guidance for the South East (RPG9) and subsequent revisions for the Growth Areas. In reviewing this guidance, the South East Regional Assembly has submitted a draft Regional Spatial Strategy in which they propose housing targets for the South East. The Government commissioned Roger Tym and partners to look at alternative levels of growth to provide independent evidence for an informed debate of the draft Spatial Strategy at the forthcoming Examination in Public. This report is not a statement of the Government's preference on housing numbers. Any statement on housing targets at this stage would be inappropriate and pre-empt the outcome of the forthcoming Examination in Public.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with the Council for the Protection of Rural England on the building of new houses in each region; with whom in the organisation; and if she will make a statement. [81708]

Yvette Cooper: On 21 March this year Ispoke at the Campaign for the Protection of Rural England (CPRE) led seminar on The Evidence Base on Housing, and discussed the overall need for new homes. Neither I nor the Secretary of State have had separate discussions with the CPRE about individual regions. However, the CPRE contributed to the Affordable Rural Housing Commission's report and are contributing to the regional planning process.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of new homes in each region have been designated as affordable housing in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [81709]

Yvette Cooper: The following table shows the proportion of newly built homes defined as affordable in each region ("affordable homes" are those provided at submarket rent or for shared ownership). These affordable homes have been provided through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme, Local Authority Social Housing Grant and section 106 planning agreements negotiated by local authorities.

[1] Provisional.

Section 106 data have been collected only from 2000-01 but are not yet available for 2005-06.

This information does not include new affordable homes provided through acquisition and refurbishment for both social rent and low cost home ownership.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households on average were in temporary housing in each region in each year since 1997; and if she will make a statement. [81712]

Yvette Cooper: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation, which includes the number of households living in temporary accommodation, is summarised in the Department's quarterly Statistical Release on statutory homelessness. The latest Release, covering statistics to the end of March 2006, was published on 12 June. Copies are available in the Library, and from the ODPM website at:

http://www.odpm.gov.uk/index.asp?id=1002882&PressNoticeID=2095

Table 7 presents a regional summary of all households in temporary accommodation arranged by local authorities, as at the end of each quarter since March 1997.

The duty owed to a person accepted as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need is to secure suitable accommodation. If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority may secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available. As an alternative to the provision of temporary accommodation some authorities arrange for households to remain in their current accommodation (homeless at home), until a settled solution becomes available.

Our strategy, "Sustainable Communities: Settled Homes, Changing Lives", sets out the challenging aim to halve the number of households in insecure temporary accommodation by 2010.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of vulnerable people living in homes that fall below the decent homes standard. [79386]

Yvette Cooper: The English House Condition Survey annually publishes estimates of the number and proportion of "vulnerable" households living in homes that fall below the decent homes standard. The latest figures available are for April 2003 when there were 2,034,000 such households in the private and social sectors (36 per cent. of all vulnerable households). Vulnerable households are defined for the purposes of the Decent Homes programme in "A Decent Home: Definition and Guidance for Implementation—June 2006 Update", available on the website at www.communities.gov.uk/ under "housing"/"making homes decent".

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much money has been allocated by the Government for local authority schemes to help improve the homes of vulnerable people living in private accommodation. [79387]

Yvette Cooper: The Government have made £388 million available in capital grant to local authorities in 2006-07 to support their private sector housing capital investment programmes, including meeting the Decent Homes standard for vulnerable people in the private sector.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1394W, on housing, which local authorities are able to meet the decent homes standard on the basis of Government investment; and which local authorities she expects to be unable to meet the standard without taking advantage of the additional investment options mentioned. [79411]

Yvette Cooper: Some 98 local authorities have put plans in place to deliver decent homes through the resources directly from Government and their own resources without using the arm's length management organisation (ALMO), stock transfer or PFI programmes. A list of these authorities has been placed in the Library of the House.

Some 246 local authorities have used, or are expected to use, one or more of the three options for additional investment (ALMO, LSVT or PFI). A list of these authorities has been placed in the Library of the House.

There are a number of authorities which are reconsidering their investment options, following the need to change their original plans. These authorities have yet to confirm whether they will deliver decent homes without using additional investment.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1394W, on housing, what the timetable is for further bidding rounds for the investment options mentioned; and how much additional funding will be made available from central Government for each option. [79412]

Yvette Cooper: Applications for the round 6 arm's length management organisation (ALMO) programme, and the 2006 large-scale voluntary transfer programme (LSVT) are due by the end of July. We aim to announce the outcome at the end of September. The funding available to deliver these options will be determined through the comprehensive spending review.

The application period for the round 5 housing PFI programme closed on 31 March and 14 bids were received. We aim to announce the outcome of the PFI bidding round by the end of July. The funding for these schemes will come from the £1.2 billion allocated in the 2004 spending review. Funding for future bidding rounds will depend on the outcome of the CSR.

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) if she will ask the Housing Corporation to increase its allocation under the National Affordable Housing Programme 2006-08 to the bid submitted by Housing 21 in partnership with Sunderland city council to fund developments across the city of Sunderland; [79507]

(2) what criteria the Housing Corporation took into account when deciding the size of the allocation under the National Affordable Housing Programme 2006-08 scheme to the bid submitted by Housing 21 in partnership with Sunderland city council to fund developments across the city of Sunderland; [79508]

(3) if she will ask the Housing Corporation to publish in advance the guidance it will follow in future decisions under the National Affordable Housing Programme on allocation of finances to local projects, with particular reference to extra care developments; [79509]

(4) what factors the Housing Corporation took into account when deciding not to allocate finance for plans by the Sunderland housing group for an extra care scheme at Houghton under the National Affordable Housing Programme 2006-08; [79510]

(5) what assessment she has made of the adequacy of the allocation of resources to the bid by Housing 21 in partnership with Sunderland city council from the National Affordable Housing Programme 2006-08. [79511]

Yvette Cooper: The Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme (AHP) is a competitive bidding round.

In assessing bids the Corporation used a two stage process for the 2006-08 AHP round. Bids were assessed for compliance with the competition requirements as follows:

(i) Additionality—grant must be necessary for the affordable housing to be delivered;

(ii) Rent levels in accordance with Corporation or statutory rent regimes to ensure affordability;

(iii) Schemes must be financially independent;

(iv) Schemes must meet or exceed the minimum standards covering design and quality (expressed through the Corporation's Scheme Development Standards, Housing Quality Indicator system, and a Very Good EcoHomes rating);

(v) Schemes must start on site by 31 March 2008;

(vi) Schemes must complete before 31 March 2011;

(vii) Schemes must conform to the relevant regional housing board priorities;

(viii) Schemes must meet management and maintenance standards (for housing associations schemes must comply with all of the Corporation's regulatory requirements in relation to the management and maintenance of affordable homes);

(ix) Bidders must have the capacity to enter into a programme agreement.

Bids which met these competition requirements were then subject to competitive assessment using four criteria:

Value-for-money;

Quality;

Fit with regional and local housing strategies;

Deliverability within the programme time scale.

The Housing Corporation assessed that the bids from Housing 21 and the extra care scheme at Houghton submitted by the Sunderland housing group did not represent value for money compared with other bids received.

The Housing Corporation is continuing to work with registered social landlords and Sunderland city council over future housing needs in the city.

The Housing Corporation intends to publish its prospectus for the next bidding round in summer 2007. This will set out the general criteria including that for extra care schemes.

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many cases have been decided by local authorities under section 185(4) of the Housing Act 1996 where the outcome has proved incompatible with article 14 of the European convention on human rights, where all proceedings are complete; and if she will make a statement; [79526]

(2) how many representations she has received in respect of the decision of the Court of Appeal that section 185(4) of the Housing Act 1996 is incompatible with article 14 of the European convention on human rights; what plans she has to rectify the situation; and if she will make a statement. [79527]

Yvette Cooper: Two declarations of incompatibility have been made regarding section 185(4) of the Housing Act 1996; one by the Court of Appeal in the case of Sylviane Pierrette Morris v. Westminster city council [2005] EWHC 1184 (CA), and another by the High Court in the case of the Queen (on the application of) Gabaj and the First Secretary of State, CO 7458/2005. In both cases, the court proceedings are complete. The Government are currently considering how to remedy the incompatibility. The Department has received one representation about the decision of the Court of Appeal (from the Housing Law Practitioners Association).

Housing (Wirral)

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made towards the decent home standards for social housing in Wirral West; and if she will make a statement. [78384]

Yvette Cooper: According to Annual Regulatory Statistical Return (RSR) 2005, the total social housing stock in Wirral was 23,235. Of these, 8,815 or 38 per cent. failed the Decent Homes Standard. Of the former council stock now owned by Wirral Partnership Homes, 59 per cent. of homes failed the standard.

Wirral Partnership Homes has started its stock investment programme and is confident that it will meet the Decent Homes Standard by 2010. Many associated benefits will flow from this work including regeneration, improved housing management performance and tenant empowerment.

We do not hold any specific data for Wirral West, data is recorded at local authority level.

Housing (Luton)

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many single vulnerable households were accepted as homeless in Luton in each of the last five years. [80365]

Yvette Cooper: Statistical returns on homelessness reported by local authorities to this Department distinguish the number of households accepted as eligible for assistance, and unintentionally homeless according to the main category of priority need the applicant falls within. The returns do not identify the number of people in the household. Information reported by Luton borough council in each year since 2001-02 is summarised as follows:

Households accepted by Luton borough council as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in a priority need category

		Of which:
	Total households	containing dependent children	containing an expectant mother	All other accepted households[1]
2001-02	314	264	22	28
2002-03	575	372	63	140
2003-04	482	328	48	106
2004-05	392	265	53	74
2005-06	570	397	64	109

[1] As well as applicants, or members of their household, accepted as vulnerable for some reason, figures also include applicants accepted as having a priority need because they were homeless as the result of an emergency, they were aged 16 or 17-years-old, or they were under 21 and had previously been looked after, accommodated or fostered when aged 16 or 17.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of (a) black and ethnic minority and (b) all households are classified as overcrowded in (a) Luton, (b) Bedfordshire and (c) England. [80370]

Yvette Cooper: Using the bedroom standard, the estimated proportion of black and minority ethnic households in England that were overcrowded during the three years 2002-03 to 2004/05 was 10.7 per cent. The equivalent figure for all households was 2.5 per cent.

These figures were derived from the Survey of English Housing. Reliable figures for areas as small as Luton and Bedfordshire are not available on a regular basis because the survey sample sizes are too small.

An ad hoc report based on combined data from both the Survey of English Housing and the Department for Work and Pensions' Family Resources Survey for the three years 2000-01, 2001-02 and 2002-03 provides estimates of overcrowding (across all households) of 4 per cent. in Luton and 1 per cent. in Bedfordshire. Separate estimates for black and minority ethnic households are not available.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) failed and (b) successful bids have been made by Luton council for Housing Corporation funding; and what assessment she has made of the reasons for the decision in each case. [80517]

Yvette Cooper: No bids were made by Luton borough council for the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme (AHP) 2006-08. All bids for the Luton borough council area were made by registered social landlords and other developers. Successful schemes in Luton were allocated a total of £7.5 million for the 2006-08 AHP.

The Secretary of State does not make decisions on individual schemes. An overall package of funding and outputs is submitted to Ministers by the Corporation. The schemes making up this programme have been assessed by the Housing Corporation as part of a competitive bidding round.

In assessing bids the Corporation used a two stage process for the 2006-08 AHP round. Bids were assessed for compliance with the competition requirements as follows:

(i) Additionality—Grant must be necessary for the affordable housing to be delivered;

(ii) Rent levels in accordance with Corporation or statutory rent regimes to ensure affordability;

(iii) Schemes must be financially independent;

(iv) Schemes must meet or exceed the minimum standards covering design and quality (expressed through the Corporation's Scheme Development Standards, Housing Quality Indicator system, and a Very Good EcoHomes rating);

(v) Scheme must start on site by 31 March 2008;

(vi) Schemes must complete before 31 March 2011;

(vii) Scheme must conform to the relevant regional housing board priorities;

(viii) Schemes must meet management and maintenance Standards (for Housing Associations schemes must comply with all of the Corporation's regulatory requirements in relation to the management and maintenance of affordable homes);

(ix) Bidders must have the capacity to enter into a programme agreement.

Bids which met these competition requirements were then subject to competitive assessment using four criteria:

Value-for-money;

Quality;

Fit with Regional and Local housing strategies;

Deliverability within the programme time scale.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the bids for Housing Corporation funding submitted by Luton council in each of the last five years for (a) general family housing and (b) elderly housing. [80518]

Yvette Cooper: No bids were made by Luton borough council for the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme (AHP) 2005-06 or 2006-08, these being the first opportunities for local authorities to bid for Housing Corporation funding after the change in legislation following the Housing Act 2004, which allowed bodies not registered with the Housing Corporation to bid for funding.

All bids for the Luton borough council area were made by registered social landlords and other developers. The following tables show accepted new build bids for Housing Corporation Affordable Housing Programme funds over the last five years and for the last bidding round of 2006-08. The following tables identify which client group these schemes have been primarily identified for. To be successful, bids needed to meet the criteria set out in the answer given on 3 July 2006 to my hon. Friend's question 80517, in particular meeting Regional Housing Board priorities.

Housing (Tamworth)

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding is available for temporary to permanent housing initiatives in the 2006 to 2008 National Affordable Housing Programme in Tamworth; and if she will make a statement. [80124]

Yvette Cooper: At present no funds have been made available in Tamworth for temporary to permanent housing initiatives through the Affordable Housing Programme 2006-08.

The Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) supports innovative schemes which provide settled housing solutions for households in temporary accommodation. Where these schemes offer value for money but require capital investment DCLG would encourage Regional Housing Boards to support bids for Affordable Housing Programme funding.

Affordable housing schemes in Tamworth have been allocated £1.050 million through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme for 2006-08.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many (a) households and (b) children in (i) Staffordshire and (ii) Tamworth constituency are living in overcrowded accommodation. [68368]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

There are two measures of overcrowding—the statutory definition and the bedroom standard.

Using the bedroom standard, the only recent estimate of the number of overcrowded households in Staffordshire is 3,000. This is from an ad hoc report based on combined data from both the Survey of English Housing and the Department for Work and Pension's Family Resources Survey for the three years 2000-01, 2001-02 and 2002-03.

Reliable estimates for the number of children living in overcrowded accommodation in Staffordshire are not available. Separate data for Tamworth are also not available.

Estimates based on the statutory standard are not available because the underlying data are not collected systematically. A one-off estimate was made in the autumn of 2001 that there were approximately 25,000 households across the whole of England that were in conditions of overcrowding that breached the statutory standard. This estimate was based on data from the Survey of English Housing for the period 1997-98 to 1999-2000 and from the 1996 English House Condition Survey. Equivalent estimates for Staffordshire are not available.

Housing Safety Checklist

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities have used the housing safety checklist to tackle overcrowding; and if she will make a statement. [80516]

Yvette Cooper: The Housing Health and Safety Rating System, introduced on 6 April, enables local authorities to assess the severity of up to 29 health and safety hazards in homes, including hazards arising from overcrowding. Authorities are not required to report the use they make of the system or the actions they take in response to hazard assessments, but the Department plans to evaluate the operation of the system in due course.

Illegal Immigrants

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many illegal immigrants have been discovered to be employed by her Department in each year since 2001; in what capacities they were employed; how many were discovered as part of a criminal investigation; and what the nature was of the charges brought against them. [73954]

Angela E. Smith: No illegal immigrants have been discovered among my Department's directly employed staff. Directly employed staff do not include agency workers, contractors and consultants.

Light Pollution

Mr. Newmark: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department plans to publish guidance on light pollution as part of Planning Policy Statement 23. [80150]

Yvette Cooper: The Department for Communities and Local Government is working with the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to develop a draft annex to Planning Policy Statement 23 on light pollution for consultation later this year.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will ring-fence for a period of two years the money received from the discretionary ending by local authorities of the council tax discount on empty properties for projects to bring empty properties back into use. [77983]

Yvette Cooper: Local authorities raised an additional £72 million by using their powers to reduce or remove the council tax discount on empty homes in 2005-06. The Government believe that local authorities should have the freedom to apply any additional resources raised in line with local priorities rather than prescribing what these should be.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Treasury has received in rent surpluses from each local authority in every year since 2002. [79380]

Yvette Cooper: The Government make a net contribution to the Housing Revenue Account, which is redistributed between local authority areas. A table showing the housing revenue account surpluses paid to Government (and the subsidies paid by Government to authorities) has been placed in the House Library. This shows that in 2005-06 166 local authorities paid surpluses totalling £546,936,692 and 66 local authorities received subsidies totalling £754,559,247.

The system was different prior to April 2004. The figures given for 2002-03 and 2003-04 are for the nearest equivalent—the "housing element surplus or subsidy" i.e. the net position excluding rent rebate subsidies.

Olympics

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which officials in her Department (a) are responsible for Olympics-related activity and (b) sit on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group for the Olympics. [81560]

Angela E. Smith: The Director General, Places, Planning and Communities Group, is responsible for Olympics-related activity in this Department. The Director of Thames Gateway Delivery and Olympics sits on the Inter-Departmental Steering Group for the Olympics. In addition, a broad network of officials from the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) has been established to support DCLG Olympic policy objectives.

Planning Applications

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list the major planning applications in London that have been called in due to the level of social housing in each of the past three years. [72982]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 22 May 2006]: The Secretary of State sets out the matters to be considered at the public inquiry in her direction to call in, under rule 6(12) of the 2000 Inquiry Procedure rules. The following planning applications called in between 1 April 2003 and 31 March 2006 contained matters relating to affordable housing that the Secretary of State wished to be considered at the public inquiry.

Regional Spatial Strategy

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what steps her Department has taken to publicise the consultation on the Regional Spatial Development Framework in (a) England and (b) the North West of England; and if she will make a statement; [76977]

(2) if she will make a statement on the operation of the Regional Spatial Development Framework consultations; for what reasons those consultations have been instituted; what connection the consultations have with European Union policy; and what the role is of (a) the Government Office for the North West and (b) the North West Regional Assembly in the consultations; [76978]

(3) if she will publish her Department's submission to the Regional Spatial Development Framework consultations; [76979]

(4) what account will be taken of the conclusions of the Regional Spatial Development Framework Strategy consultations in her Department's plans for local government reorganisation. [76980]

Yvette Cooper: Under the terms of the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 every region is required to have a Regional Spatial Strategy (RSS) which sets out the Government's policies in relation to the development and use of land within the region.

In all regions (including the North West), the RSS is drafted by the relevant regional planning body (in this case the North West Regional Assembly), who then make the draft RSS available for public consultation over a period of 12 weeks usually by posting it on the web, making copies available in public libraries and sending electronic and/or paper copies to a range of stakeholders.

In all cases, these public consultations on the draft RSS are a part of the statutory process for preparing the RSS as set out in the Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004, associated regulations and guidance. The strategy set out in the RSS would need to take account of any relevant European Union and UK policies. In terms of roles, in all cases (a) the Government Offices are responsible for coordinating the Government's role in the RSS process at all key stages, while (b) the Regional Planning Bodies (such as the North West Regional Assembly) are responsible for preparing the draft RSS and for implementing and monitoring the final RSS issued by Government.

Whenever the Government Office makes a response to the Draft RSS, that response is made publicly available. In the case of the North West RSS, the Government Office North West will shortly post its response to the Draft RSS on its website at www.gonw.gov.uk

The RSS covers spatial planning matters relating to the development and use of land within the region. It does not determine local government boundaries.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what role is envisaged for county councils in establishing the Regional Spatial Strategy for the East Midlands. [79239]

Yvette Cooper: County councils must be consulted when Regional Spatial Strategies are being prepared and must be given the first opportunity to make detailed proposals for sub-regional strategies. In the East Midlands, counties are fully engaged in preparing the Regional Spatial Strategy for submission to the Secretary of State in the autumn and are chairing three sub-area working groups which will set out proposals. In addition, county council staff chair the various topic-based advisory groups that inform the development of RSS policy. Northamptonshire county council was closely involved in preparing the sub regional strategy for Milton Keynes and South Midlands that is already part of the regional spatial strategy. Once the strategy is published, county councils will be expected to help monitor its implementation.

Right to Buy

Mr. Love: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) initial applications and (b) completed sales were made under the right to buy in each local authority in London in each quarter of 2005-06. [75305]

Yvette Cooper: The numbers of right-to-buy applications submitted and sales completed in London in the first three quarters of 2005-06 can be found in the following table. Data shown are as reported by local authorities. Where a local authority has failed to respond the table has been left blank. Information concerning the last quarter of 2005-06 is not yet available.

Safety Cameras

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether planning permission is required for (a) traffic cameras and (b) speed cameras; and whether each category of camera has permitted development rights. [78333]

Yvette Cooper: The installation of traffic and speed cameras is not development as defined in the Town and Country Planning Act 1990, so neither planning permission nor permitted development rights are required.

Shared Equity Scheme

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people have participated in the Government's Shared Equity scheme since May 2005. [79899]

Yvette Cooper: Information on the number of people participating in Shared Equity schemes is not held centrally. However, 16,405 shared ownership and HomeBuy equity loan sales, funded through the Housing Corporation's Affordable Housing Programme, were completed between April 2005 and May 2006.

Shared Ownership (West Midlands)

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans there are to expand the number of homes available for shared ownership in the West Midlands. [74194]

Yvette Cooper: The Government award Regional Housing Pot funding to each region in England and ask Regional Housing Boards to recommend how the funding should be allocated in accordance with the Regional Housing Strategy. In the West Midlands, 2006-08 Regional Housing Pot funding has been allocated to fund provision of an additional 1,690 homes for shared ownership.

In addition, by 2010 an estimated 1,050 new homes for shared ownership will be under construction in the West Midlands under our First Time Buyers Initiative.

Existing social homes are also available for shared ownership through the Social HomeBuy scheme. The shared equity task force is looking at further ways to expand home ownership. People living in the Dudley area interested in shared ownership can contact the new one-stop-shop provided by Mercian Housing Association on 0845 607 6726 or find details at: www.homebuyagents.org.uk.

Social Housing, (Islington)

Emily Thornberry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent on social housing in Islington in each year between 1979 and 2006, broken down by source. [80876]

Yvette Cooper: The following table shows the total expenditure on the provision of social housing in Islington since 1997-98 through the Housing Corporation Approved Development Programme and Local Authority Social Housing Grant.

These figures include expenditure on new build schemes as well as for acquisition and refurbishment. Information on expenditure before 1997-98 is not readily accessible.

Statutory Overcrowding

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to revise the definition of statutory overcrowding. [72419]

Yvette Cooper: The current statutory standard is set out in Part 10 of the Housing Act 1985. It has not changed since 1985. The Government believe that this is out of date and will publish a consultation paper on options for reform this summer.

Sustainable Buildings

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what incentives for sustainable construction techniques in housebuilding have been introduced since 1997. [79377]

Margaret Hodge: I have been asked to reply.

The Low Carbon Buildings programme, with an £80 million budget over 3 years, provides grant support for the installation of microgeneration technologies to householders, communities and business including housebuilders.

Furthermore, the Department has introduced a number of fiscal research initiatives since publication of Sir John Egan's reports "Rethinking Construction", in 1998. These have been aimed at improving the supply chain, enhancing knowledge transfer and encouraging focus upon the wider aspects of sustainability throughout the Construction Industry.

Sustainable Communities

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Meriden, of 25 May 2006, Official Report, column 2067W, on the sustainable communities plan, if she will place in the Library copies of the written submissions and responses by the water companies on planning for the growth areas and regional planning. [78240]

Yvette Cooper: The water companies have and will continue to make a number of representations as part of the development and review of Regional Spatial Strategies, including modifications to consider additional housing in growth areas. For example, in the recent East of England Examination In Public, Anglian Water and Thames Water both made representations to the independent panel outlining their views on the impact on water supply as a result of house building. However, such representations by water companies can be made at different stages of the planning process, both formally and informally. These are not held centrally by Government and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Sustainable Regeneration

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the Sustainable Development Commission's "Mainstreaming Sustainable Regeneration" report; and what action has been taken to implement its recommendations. [80858]

Yvette Cooper: I welcome the Sustainable Development Commission "Mainstreaming Sustainable Regeneration" report as a useful contribution to bringing sustainable development principles into regeneration. Since the report was published in 2003, the Department has continued to embed sustainable development principles into its regeneration work. Examples of this work include:

Government's "Together We Can" initiative, to enable people to engage with public bodies and influence the decisions that affect their communities;

Establishing the Academy for Sustainable Communities to improve the skills, knowledge and behaviours needed to deliver sustainable communities;

Community renewal programmes like neighbourhood management and the Liveability Fund, which have helped co-ordinate and reshape environmental services, particularly in deprived areas;

Establishing CABE Space, which has helped local authorities take a strategic approach and champion a renaissance in urban green spaces;

The introduction of local area agreements as a vehicle through which many initiatives relating to sustainable communities, including regeneration, can be addressed in a joined up way by Government and local partners.

Driving forward the sustainability of housing through such measures as the new Part L of the Building Regulations and the forthcoming introduction of the Code for Sustainable Homes;

Reforms to the planning system, which put sustainable development at the heart of planning, both via legislation and planning guidance.

Thames Gateway

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made towards meeting job creation targets in the Thames Gateway area; and if she will make a statement. [75820]

Yvette Cooper: Later this year, the Department will publish a Strategic Framework for the Thames Gateway. It will have at its core an economic rationale for the Gateway, developed in partnership with the three Thames Gateway regional development agencies and the Thames Gateway sub-regional partnerships. The Department plans to publish a baseline report alongside the framework, which will describe the position at the start of the programme in 2003. We intend to use this to produce progress updates at appropriate intervals thereafter.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps are being taken to ensure that the views of local people within the Thames Gateway redevelopment area are taken into account with regard to infrastructure and planning. [79285]

Yvette Cooper: The Planning and Compulsory Purchase Act 2004 requires local planning authorities, including those in the Thames Gateway, to prepare a statement of community involvement for their area. The statement of community involvement sets out how the local planning authority will engage with the local community and stakeholders in the preparation of local development documents and on consultations for planning applications. Where local authorities have not adopted a statement of community involvement, they are required to comply with the minimum requirements set out in the Town and Country Planning (Local Development)(England) Regulations 2004 in terms of engaging the local community and stakeholders in the preparation of local development documents.

At the regional level, regional planning bodies are responsible for preparing draft Regional Spatial Strategies (RSS) and are required to prepare a statement of community involvement on how they intend to engage the public and on how the public were involved in the preparation of the draft RSS. The adequacy of community involvement and how the views of the community have been taken on board is one of the tests of soundness which is considered at the public examination of the draft RSS.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what environmental initiatives are being planned as part of the redevelopment of the Thames Gateway. [79286]

Yvette Cooper: The Government believe that communities are more successful and enjoy a better and healthier quality of life if they have easy access to an attractive well designed and managed green environment which is rich in biodiversity.

In 2004 the Government published "Greening the Gateway", a strategy for Thames Gateway which established the principle that new and existing residential and commercial areas should be set in a network of varied and well-managed green space, known as green grids. Green grids create green pathways and wildlife corridors through commercial and residential areas to link rural and green spaces together, making them more welcoming and accessible.

To date, £26 million has been allocated to green space projects from the Thames Gateway programme fund including:

Marshes Plan Implementation

£1 million to enable Groundwork to develop and deliver a Marshes Plan for Dartford, Crayford and Erith, including a strategic cycle route, heritage trail and other access improvements, habitat creation and education areas.

Flood Storage along River Cray

£500,000 as part of a plan to improve access down to and along the River Cray. Funding for works to improve habitat creation and optimise flood storage capacity

Lower Roding Valley

£1 million for Lower River Roding valley environmental, flood alleviation and path works.

Rainham Marshes

£5.25 million for this green grid flagship project, involving the construction of a continuous 3.65 km long, 3 m wide footpath and cycleway across the Rainham, Wennington and Aveley Marshes (the 640 hectares of which is known as the London Riverside Conservation Park).

Ranscombe Farm Country Park:

£665,000 towards the £1,348,000 project to create flagship country park and nature reserve, within the Kent Downs area of outstanding natural beauty and within reach of urban developments in Medway and Kent Thameside. Ranscombe Farm is one of the richest botanical sites in the British Isles and home to the single most important arable flower field in the UK. The 600 acre site also includes ancient woodland and relict fragments of chalk grassland.

Mr. Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what regulations are in place in relation to the building of new housing in the Thames Gateway to reduce (a) carbon levels, (b) waste production, (c) electricity use and (d) overall environmental impact; and how the regulations will be enforced. [79287]

Yvette Cooper: Part L of the Building Regulations covers conservation of fuel and power as it relates to a building. Building Regulation standards for new housing in England and Wales have been improved by 40 per cent. since early 2002. It covers all energy used for space heating and hot water.

Part H of the Building Regulations covers drainage and waste disposal. It states that adequate provision shall be made for storage of solid waste. It does not cover reduction of waste.

The Building Regulations do not cover carbon levels or general environmental impact.

The Government are also introducing a new code for sustainable homes to go further than building regulations.

The Government have announced a feasibility study into the extent to which we can facilitate the Thames Gateway becoming a low carbon development area within the next decade, with the ultimate goal of achieving zero carbon development area status. We envisage that the results of this work will inform future decisions about the Government's wider approach to environmental standards within the Thames Gateway.

Visual Arts Facility

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what involvement her Department had in the decision to grant planning consent for the Visual Arts Facility at Colchester. [76466]

Yvette Cooper: The Department carefully considered all the planning issues raised about the application for a Visual Arts Facility in Colchester. In reaching the decision not to call it in for the Secretary of State's determination, the main matters relevant to this decision were her policies:

(i) which promote high quality, inclusive design in terms of function and impact, which takes the opportunities available for improving the character and quality of an area (PPS1: Delivering Sustainable Development);

(ii) to promote the vitality and viability of town centres by focusing development in such centres and encouraging a wide range of services in a good environment, accessible to all (PPS6: Planning for Town Centres);

(iii) that planning permission is not refused if development can be subject to conditions that will prevent damaging impacts on wildlife habitats or other important physical features, or if other material factors are sufficient to override nature conservation considerations (PPS9: Biodiversity and Geological Conservation);

(iv) to actively manage the pattern of urban growth to make the fullest use of public transport; focus major generators of travel demand in city, town and district centres and near to major public transport interchanges; and locate day-to-day facilities in local centres, to be accessible by walking or cycling (PPG13: Transport);

(v) for the protection of the wider historic environment, including scheduled ancient monuments, World Heritage Sites, historic parks and gardens, historic battlefields, buildings of local importance and trees in conservation areas (PPG15: Planning and the Historic Environment);

(vi) for the protection, enhancement and preservation of sites of archaeological interest and of their settings (PPG16: Archaeology and Planning).

Having considered carefully these and other relevant planning issues raised by the proposal together with all representations received, and having regard to her policy on call in, the Secretary of State concluded on balance that intervention would not be justified as there was insufficient conflict with national planning policies on the above matters to warrant calling in the application for her own determination.

Water Provision

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she last met Water Voice to discuss the long-term provision of water to meet the future development needs of London and the south-east; what conclusions were reached; and if she will make a statement. [80387]

Yvette Cooper: The Secretary of State has not met with Water Voice. The Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) and Consumer Council for Water (formerly Water Voice) do meet to discuss matters concerning the sustainable use of water resources as members of the Water Saving Group, chaired by the Minister for Environment and Climate Change at Defra. This important forum is exploring how water industry stakeholders can work together in practical ways to promote the efficient use of water in households, to help protect the long-term sustainability of supply. DCLG is also working with a number of key stakeholders, including Ofwat, water companies and the Environment Agency, to ensure that the long-term provision of water meets the needs of an ageing and growing population.

DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER

Departmental Budget

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the planned budget is of his office in each of the next three years. [81936]

The Deputy Prime Minister: Expenditure will be accounted for in the Department's annual report and accounts in the usual way.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister (1) how many of his staff are (a) under and (b) over 55 years of age; [77320]

(2) how many people over the age of 55 years have been recruited by his office in each of the last three years. [77321]

The Deputy Prime Minister: The latest available figures are taken at 31 December 2005, for which I refer the hon. Member to the answers given on 26 June 2006, Official Report, column 127W-by the Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government My hon. Friend the Member for Basildon (Angela E. Smith).

Training

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what training courses he has attended in the last 12 months to assist him in his ministerial role. [78224]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I have not attended any training courses in the past 12 months, but rely on my 10 years' seafaring experience, five years' experience as a union official, 36 years' experience as a Member of Parliament and nine years as a Minister in the Cabinet to help me fulfil my role to the best of my ability.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister whether he has received diversity training since becoming a Government Minister. [70122]

The Deputy Prime Minister: New Ministers are offered an induction course following general elections or substantial reshuffles. These are run by the National School of Government in conjunction with the Cabinet Office and Her Majesty's Treasury. I also rely on my 10 years' seafaring experience, five years' experience as a union official, 36 years' experience as a Member of Parliament and nine years as a Minister in the Cabinet to help me fulfil my role to the best of my ability.

I am fully committed to the principles of diversity. Since coming into Government in 1997, we have brought in the Civil Partnership Act 2004, Disability Discrimination Act 2005 and the Equality Act 2006, as well as the Work and Families Bill which is currently before the House. All of these measures are actively helping to promote diversity throughout our society.

Engagements

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many (a) domestic and (b) foreign trips on official business he has undertaken since May; how much each trip has cost; and how many officials accompanied him on each trip. [81933]

The Deputy Prime Minister: All travel is undertaken in accordance with the "Ministerial Code", "Travel by Ministers" and the "Civil Service Code", copies of which are available in the Library.

Since 1999, the Government have published an annual list of all visits overseas undertaken by Cabinet Ministers costing £500 or more during each financial year and total costs of all ministerial overseas travel. The list for the current year will be published at the appropriate time. In addition, I have made three official visits within the United Kingdom since May 2006. Expenditure including all trips will be accounted for in the Department's annual report and accounts in the usual way.

I am usually accompanied by a private secretary, plus special adviser and Press Office support, as appropriate.

Ministerial Office and Staff

Mr. Amess: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 1385W, on his ministerial office and staff, when he expects the administrative support arrangements to be finalised; if he will place in the Library the details of these arrangements when finalised, together with cost of the changes; and if he will make a statement. [78935]

Norman Baker: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how many staff are employed in his private office; and whether he plans to increase the number. [81028]

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister what the planned annual staffing (a) budget and (b) level is of his office over the next three years; and how many posts are vacant. [81935]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I am being supported in my duties by a private office and a small secretariat, as well as officials from the Cabinet Office and other Government Departments as relevant to my role. Staffing and expenditure will be accounted for in the usual way.

Ministerial Residences

Mr. Robathan: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister on how many occasions he used Dorneywood for entertainment at public expense in each year since 1997. [75032]

The Deputy Prime Minister: The position remains as in the answer given to the hon. Member by the then hon. Member for Shipley (Christopher Leslie) on 28 March 2003, Official Report, column 484W. The total cost came to £40.

Mrs. May: To ask the Deputy Prime Minister how much was spent on maintenance of his official residences in 2005-06; and what the market value is of each. [71066]

The Deputy Prime Minister: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given on 21 June 2006, Official Report, column 1866W to the hon. Member for Wimbledon (Stephen Hammond).

The maintenance of Dorneywood is a matter for the Dorneywood Trust, whose accounts are filed with the Charity Commission as is required. There is no cost to the public purse for the maintenance of Dorneywood.

NORTHERN IRELAND

"A Shared Future"

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how the principles set out in "A Shared Future" were applied in (a) the Children and Young People Funding Package and (b) the rationalisation plans recently agreed by the South Eastern Education and Library Board. [77904]

Maria Eagle: The information is as follows:

(a) The principles of "A Shared Future" were applied in C&YPFP projects by: encouraging cross-sectoral clustering through extended schools; extending pre-school education; youth outreach to marginalized groups; and through cross-sectoral and cross-community arrangements in child protection.

(b) The rationalisation plans recently published by the SEELB, identify how the SEELB intends to manage its estate taking account of falling pupil numbers. The SEELB needs to develop these plans and any change in the provision of the schools involved will require the publication of a development proposal. As part of this process, the SEELB will be expected to take into account the principles set out in a shared future.

Academic Selection

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Department of Education in Northern Ireland has commissioned opinion research to ascertain the views of the people of Northern Ireland on academic selection; and if he will make a statement. [62608]

Maria Eagle: In May and June of 2002, a number of questions were included in the Northern Ireland Omnibus Survey to ascertain public opinion on the key recommendations of the Post Primary Review Body (the Burns Report), as part of the multi-stranded consultation exercise. These recommendations included ending the Transfer Test; ending academic selection, the development of a Pupil Profile for all pupils, common admissions criteria for all schools and the development of collegiates. The findings of the research were published in October 2002 and are available on the Department of Education's website at www.deni.gov.uk. Responses to the main questions asked were as follows:

Question	Yes	No	Undecided
1. Should the current Transfer Test be abolished?	54	27	19
2. Should academic selection be abolished?	32	54	14
3. Should Pupil Profiles be developed to help parents express a preference for an appropriate post-primary school for their child?	76	10	14
4. Should all schools be required to use the same admissions criteria?	69	21	10
5. Should the following admissions criteria be used to decide admissions to post-primary schools?
Parental Preference	73	19	8
Brother or Sister attending or eldest child	66	28	6
Parent working at the school	24	70	7
Compelling individual circumstances	69	18	14
Distance of the school from the child's home	67	28	6
6. Should Collegiates be established as recommended by Burns?	62	18	20

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether the Department of Education in Northern Ireland has carried out an assessment of the findings of opinion research studies carried out by external organisations into the views of the people of Northern Ireland on academic selection as a criteria for admission to post-primary schools. [62610]

Maria Eagle: The Department of Education has not carried out an assessment of the findings of opinion research studies on academic selection carried out by external organisations. A number of consultation exercises have been carried out during the review of post-primary education to give the public and interested organisations the opportunity to make their views known and the range of views expressed is taken into account by the Government when making decisions.

Arioso Project

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) schools and (b) children have been involved in the Arioso project in Northern Ireland. [62497]

Maria Eagle: The Department is not aware of any schools or pupils in Northern Ireland taking part in this project.

Charities (Funding)

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many charities' bank accounts are under investigation in Northern Ireland for possible money laundering linked to paramilitary organisations. [78732]

Paul Goggins: It is Government policy not to disclose any information regarding live police investigations for fear of prejudicing the judicial process.

Children (Strangford)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 7 February 2006, Official Report, column 1146W, on children (Strangford), if he will break down the number by electoral ward. [80209]

Maria Eagle: The ward of residence of the children is as follows:

Class Sizes

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average class size in each level of education was in each of the last three years, broken down by education and library board area; and if he will make a statement. [80100]

Maria Eagle: Class size data in respect of post-primary schools were not collected at the time, and any attempt to do so retrospectively would be problematic and could be done only at disproportionate cost. The other requested information is as follows:

2003-04

	Nursery schools and classes	Reception classes[1]	Primary[2] (year 1 to 7)

Coleraine College

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to his Answer of 21 March 2006, Official Report, column 211W, on secondary schools, what is the age of the main buildings of Coleraine College. [62621]

Maria Eagle: The North Eastern Education and Library Board has advised that the main buildings of Coleraine College were built 49 years ago.

Crime Statistics

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many arrests have been made of (a) drug pushers, (b) drug users, (c) prostitutes and (d) child abusers in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [78496]

Paul Goggins: The number of persons arrested for the trafficking of controlled drugs (all classes) is contained in the following table:

Number of persons arrested for the trafficking[1] of controlled drugs (all classes)

	Number
2003-04	392
2004-05	333
2005-06	336

[1] Includes importing, supplying, cultivating, producing and possession of controlled drugs with intent to supply.

The number of persons arrested for possession of a class A or class B drug is detailed in the following table:

	Number
2003-04[1]	1,288
2004-05	328
2005-06	306

[1] As cannabis was reclassified from class B to class C on 29 January 2004, 2003-04 totals are not directly comparable with 2004-05 and 2005-06.

There is no specific offence of prostitution. Various local council powers exist in relation to soliciting but no records of enforcement are retained centrally by the Police Service of Northern Ireland.

Child abuse can cover a wide range of offences. To attempt to provide the information based on the umbrella of child abuse would incur disproportionate cost.

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people were questioned in connection with possession of indecent photographs of children in each year since 1998; how many received a police caution; and how many were convicted. [78755]

Paul Goggins: The Police Service of Northern Ireland is not in a position to provide details of the number of persons questioned in connection with possession of indecent photographs of children as this information is not recorded. However they have confirmed that since 1998, two persons received a caution (one in 2000 and the other in 2005) for offences relating to the possession of indecent photographs of children.

The number of convictions for possession of indecent photographs of child/children is detailed in the following table:

	Number of convictions
1998	1
1999	1
2000	1
2001	1
2002	0
2003	3

Note:
Figures cover the calendar years 1998 to 2003, the latter being the most up-to-date available at present. Data are collated on the principal offence rule, thus only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

Criminals (Licensed Release)

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many criminals have been returned to prison in Northern Ireland for breach of their licence in each of the last five years. [80443]

Paul Goggins: The number of persons who have been returned to prison in Northern Ireland following discharge, for breach of their licence is as follows:

	Number
2001	7
2002	4
2003	3
2004	4
2005	7
2006[1]	3
Total	28

[1] As at 23 June 2006.

These figures relate to those released on licence under the Life Sentences (Northern Ireland) Order 2001; the Northern Ireland (Sentences) Act 1998; the Northern Ireland (Remission of Sentences) Act 1995; and the Criminal Justice (NI) Order 1996.

Deportations

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many foreign convicted prisoners in respect of whom the trial judge recommended that deportation be considered on release have been released from each prison establishment in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years; in how many such cases the released prisoner was deported; and if he will make a statement. [67673]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 3 May 2006]: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the most recent written ministerial statement of 23 May 2006, Official Report, column 77WS. My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary set out in this statement the eight priority areas for management action to deliver our long- term agenda for change on radically improving the system for deporting foreign national prisoners. The sixth point deals specifically with the position in Scotland and Northern Ireland concerning foreign national prisoners. We shall update the House with our progress on this point shortly.

Early Retirement (Teachers)

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many teachers in Northern Ireland are seeking early retirement due to work stress, broken down by education and library board area; and how many sought early retirement for this reason in (a) 2003-04 and (b) 2004-05. [78516]

Maria Eagle: The Department does not hold the information in the format requested.

The following is a breakdown of teachers who have retired for psychiatric or psychological reasons. Stress falls into this category.

Maria Eagle: The number of teachers awaiting a decision on early retirement is as follows:

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many teachers in (a) state controlled, (b) maintained and (c) other schools are due for retirement in the (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07 academic years in each education and library board area. [78540]

Maria Eagle: The number of teachers between 60 and 65 who are in permanent employment and who are eligible to retire during the school years 2005-06 and 2006-07 is set out in the following tables. Only a proportion of these teachers will actually make an application for retirement in the years 2005-06 or 2006-07. The actual number of applications is not known in advance.

Historical Enquiry Team

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to his answer of 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1778W, on the Historical Enquiry Team (HET), what progress has been made on the HET's investigation into the murders of Robert and Thomas Dobson; and if he will make a statement. [80581]

Paul Goggins: The police have advised that the re-examination of the case into the deaths of Robert and Thomas Dobson has comprised a desktop review from which a number of specific recommendations are being taken forward for a focused investigation. It is anticipated that this will commence shortly.

Murder Convictions (Northern Ireland)

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the average time was in cases of murder in Northern Ireland between conviction and sentencing where the sentence was deferred pending (a) medical and (b) psychiatric reports on the person convicted in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [81223]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

In 2005, sentencing in one murder case was deferred pending preparation of a psychiatric report. In that case the time between conviction and sentence was 12 weeks.

The average time from conviction to disposal for all defendants in Northern Ireland including cases of murder in 2005 was eight weeks. Statistics are not available for the average time from conviction to disposal for 2003 and 2004 and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Police Recruitment

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many applications have been received to join the Police Service of Northern Ireland in each year since its inception. [78736]

Paul Goggins: I am advised by PSNI that the number of applications to join the Police Service in each year since its inception is set out in the following table:

Competition	Launch date	Applications
1	March 2001	7,518
2	September 2001	4,910
3	March 2002	4,674
4	September 2002	4,410
5	March 2003	6,044
6	September 2003	5,419
7	March 2004	4,977
8	September 2004	5,695
9	March 2005	6,106
10	September 2005	7,690
11	March 2006	7,861

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many recruits (a) passed and (b) failed initial Police Service of Northern Ireland training in each year since its inception, broken down by (i) sex and (ii) religion; and what element of training was failed in each case of failure. [78781]

Paul Goggins: I am advised by PSNI that although it collates information in respect of the religious breakdown of the service as a whole, it is not possible to provide it for specific areas of the organisation, such as the police trainee group in the Police College. Student officers are recruited on a 50:50 basis but once in the college, details of the religious make-up of the recruits are not held.

The number of recruits who (a) passed and (b) failed initial Police Service of Northern Ireland training in each year since its inception, broken down by (i) sex, is set out in the following table.

	Passed		Failed
Financial year	M	F	M	F
2001-02	164	88	—	—
2002-03	285	115	—	—

2004-05	305	203	1	2
2005-06	223	177	—	2

Notes:
1. Some of 2005-06 intakes have still to complete training.
2. The figures do not include those who have resigned or have been dismissed prior to assessment.

In relation to the eight persons who failed: all six females failed the physical competency assessment (fitness assessment); one male failed on the student assessment exercises (role-playing exercises) and the other male failed on the Certificate of Policing (i.e. failed one examination required to obtain the certificate).

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many applicants to the Police Service of Northern Ireland have failed on more than one occasion, broken down by (a) number of attempts, (b) sex and (c) religion. [78783]

Paul Goggins: I am advised by PSNI that it does not collate this information in terms of (b) sex and (c) religion, and therefore cannot provide this information without incurring disproportionate cost. The following table shows how many applicants have failed on more than one occasion broken down by (a) the number of attempts.

Rate Revenue

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total amount of regional rate revenue was in each of the last five years; and how much was allocated from regional rate revenue to water services in each of the last five years. [81675]

Mr. Hanson: The total amount of regional rate revenue collected in each of the last five years for which figures are available is as follows:

	Regional rate revenue (£ million)
2000-01	313.3
2001-02	334.5
2002-03	350.7
2003-04	377.9
2004-05	421.0

The regional rate is an unhypothecated tax and is not allocated to specific areas of expenditure, but instead contributes to the overall resources available to the Secretary of State to allocate to regional public services in Northern Ireland.

Road Safety

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many road traffic accidents were reported in Northern Ireland in the last six months; and what assessment he has made of the contribution the attendance of a road safety officer at district council road safety committees can make to the reduction of road traffic accidents. [81676]

David Cairns: The total number of reported injury collisions is as follows:

Period	Reported injury collisions
1 November 2005 to 31 December 2005	922
1 January 2006 to 30 April 2006	[1]1,632
Total	[1]2,554

[1] Figures for the 2006-07 calendar year are provisional.

The principal aim of Road Safety Education Officers is the education and training of children and young people in road safety, for example by training and supporting teachers and providing road safety awareness sessions for children. The Department of the Environment's assessment is that it is in fulfilling this aim that they most effectively contribute to the reduction of road traffic collisions.

School Discipline

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many incidents of racist bullying were recorded in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [80978]

Maria Eagle: The Department of Education does not collect the information requested.

The Department makes clear that all forms of bullying are unacceptable and actively promotes the development of anti-bullying initiatives through its Anti-Bullying Programme.

Information about the scale and nature of bullying in Northern Ireland schools is contained in a research report published in October 2002. A research briefing summary is available on the Department's website at www.deni.gov.uk/rb8_2002.pdf.

The Department has recently commissioned updated research into bullying, in all its forms, including racist bullying, and the results are expected to be ready for publication by mid 2007.

School Places

Mr. Peter Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many intake places were available in each school in the South Eastern Education and Library Board area in each of the last five years. [78744]

Maria Eagle: Tables showing the approved admissions number for each school in the South Eastern Education and Library Board area for each of the last five school years will be placed in the Library.

School Trips

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many primary school children in the (a) Catholic and (b) Protestant communities have taken part in trips to the United States of America with (i) Government and (ii) European funds in the last five years, broken down by education and library board area; and if he will make a statement. [80117]

Maria Eagle: Neither the Department nor the EU have funded any trips for primary school children to America during the past five years.

Sick Days

Dr. McCrea: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many days were lost through sickness for (a) teaching, (b) non-teaching and (c) board staff in each education and library board area in Northern Ireland in each of the past three years. [79408]

Maria Eagle: The information is as follows:

Staff Absenteeism

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many working days have been lost to the Department and its executive agencies in each year since 1997 due to staff absenteeism, expressed as the average annual number of absent days per employee; and what the estimated cost to the Department and its agencies of absenteeism was in each year. [77757]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Statistics and Research Agency gathers this information on behalf of the Northern Ireland Departments and the Northern Ireland Office. Figures in relation to this question are only available from 2000-01 onwards.

The figures for 2004-05 are inclusive of Northern Ireland Office, Home Civil Service staff.

The Northern Ireland Prison Service provides independent information. They are unable to provide figures for costs prior to 2002-03.

Street Lighting

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what criteria are used by the Roads Service when deciding on requests from those living in rural areas to have street lighting installed on main roads where there are several homes in the vicinity. [81671]

David Cairns: The Acting Chief Executive of Roads Service (Mr. Geoff Allister) has been asked to write to the hon. Gentleman in response to his question.

Letter from Mr. Geoff Allister, dated 3 July 2006:

You recently asked the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland a Parliamentary Question regarding what criteria are used by the Road Service when deciding on requests from those living in rural areas to have street lighting installed on main roads where there are several homes in the vicinity.

As this issue falls within my responsibility as Acting Chief Executive of Roads Service, I have been asked to reply.

The following criteria is used by Roads Service in considering requests for street lighting in rural areas:

where there is development density of at least 10 properties within a contiguous 200 metre road length; where investigation of night-time injury accident statistics indicates that the provision of road lighting would contribute to a reduction in the number of accidents; and where a "community" can be identified: A community would be regarded as a location which as well as having a number of residential properties within a defined length of road, also has 2 or more public buildings or amenities and which can be established as a centre where the local community gathers (each public building or amenity established as having a significant level of community gathers (each public building or amenity established as having a significant level of regular use in the evening period will be counted as the equivalent of 2 properties in assessing the justification for road lighting).

The current criteria is aimed at balancing the demand for more rural lighting against the effects of increased urbanisation of the countryside, the environmental impact on plants, insects and wildlife and the financial costs of providing and maintaining additional public lighting installations.

Terrorist Prisoners

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answer of 16 June 2006, Official Report, column 1514W, on terrorist prisoners, how many prisoners are located in the separated accommodation in Roe House at Maghaberry Prison; and how many of them are perceived to be members of paramilitary organisations. [80235]

Paul Goggins: As at 26 June there were 33 prisoners with perceived paramilitary affiliations in separated accommodation in Roe House.

Tourism

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what local government financial support there was for tourism in (a) rural and (b) urban areas in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years. [80975]

David Cairns: No records are held centrally to distinguish between expenditure on tourism in rural and urban areas. However, figures have been extracted from the annual accounts of each of the 26 district councils, covering the period 2000-01 to 2004-05, from which some assessment of the rural/urban split may be made.

Ulster Scots Culture

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what steps the Department of Education is taking to increase Ulster-Scots cultural awareness in schools in Northern Ireland. [59945]

Maria Eagle: The Department of Education has provided specific funding for the distribution of Ulster-Scots materials for primary schools, at the request of the Ulster-Scots Agency. The Department has also offered to provide similar support for post-primary materials when these are ready. Each school's curriculum has to promote the cultural development of its pupils. The proposed revised curriculum includes the theme of Citizenship in which pupils can learn about their own cultural traditions and heritage, as well as that of others. The Council for Curriculum, Examinations and Assessment has been asked to ensure that, in the implementation of the revised curriculum, Ulster-Scots cultural heritage is appropriately reflected in exemplars or guidance materials for schools.

Under-age Drinking

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many under-age drinkers have been charged with drunkenness in a public place in each divisional command unit in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [80098]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is not available as the Police Service of Northern Ireland do not record statistics on the specific offence referred to.

Vandalism

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the total cost was of vandalism on educational establishments in each of the last three years, broken down by education and library board area. [80111]

Maria Eagle: The cost of repairing vandalism met by each education and library board for controlled and maintained schools in the last three years is as follows:

Board Area	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Belfast	157	115	131
Western	77	55	63
North Eastern	303	180	134
South Eastern	159	132	129
Southern	135	157	222
Total	831	639	679

The information for voluntary grammar and grant maintained integrated schools is not readily available and is being requested. I will write to the hon. Lady with the information as soon as possible.

Institutions of further and higher education and universities would claim for damages from their insurers, and the Department for Employment and Learning does not hold details of insurance cover or claims.

Young Carers

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many children in Northern Ireland are identified as young carers. [80949]

Mr. Hanson: In the 2001 census, there were 398,056 children aged under 16 in Northern Ireland, of whom 5,377 were providing care to family members, friends, neighbours or others because of long-term physical or mental ill-health, disability or problems related to, old age.

HEALTH

Administration Spending

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on (a) administration and (b) management costs by each primary care trust in England in the last year for which figures are available, expressed (i) as a percentage of their total budget and (ii) as the cost per head of population in areas they cover. [34206]

Andy Burnham [pursuant to the reply, 27 April 2006, Official Report, c. 1295W]: I regret that owing to a clerical error the table placed in the Library in the previous reply is incorrect.

The administration costs (both "as a percentage of net operating costs" and "expenditure per head") for two primary care trusts (St. Helens and Teignbridge) were shown incorrectly, and this also affected the England administration costs "expenditure per head" total figure.

The correct table will be placed in the Library.

Alzheimer's Disease

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what answers her Department has received from the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) to each of the six questions asked by her Department on 13 February 2006, Gateway reference 6185, in relation to the NICE appraisal of Donepezil, Rivastigmine, Galantamine and Memantine for the treatment of Alzheimer's disease. [81674]

Andy Burnham: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's responses to comments received on its appraisal of these drugs have been published on NICE'S website at www.nice.org.uk.

Anaemia

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidance will affect the treatment of anaemia, with particular reference to patients suffering from cancer-related exhaustion; and if she will make a statement. [79793]

Andy Burnham: We expect national health service organisations and clinicians to take full account of appraisals issued by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE). NICE has not yet issued its final guidance on Erythropoeitins for cancer-induced anaemia.

Breastfeeding

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much her Department has spent per baby born on the promotion of breastfeeding in each of the last three financial years. [82290]

Caroline Flint: National health service primary care trusts are responsible for the provision of breastfeeding support services at a local level, for example, through the development of local area action plans. As a result, the majority of expenditure on breastfeeding is at a local level. Figures relating to local spend on breastfeeding are not available.

The following table shows the cost of breastfeeding promotion at a national level in relation to the number of live births in England.

Financial year	Departmental spend on promotion of breastfeeding and infant nutrition[1] (£)	Number of live births in England[2]
2003-04	462,000	597,256
2004-05	747,000	606,218
2005-06	743,000	Not available

[1] These figures do not include the cost of local services and local promotional activity.
[2] These figures are for women who are normally resident in England.

Care Homes

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the extent to which the work of the Criminal Records Bureau and the protection of vulnerable adults scheme, Skills for Care, Commission for Social Care Inspection and the General Social Care Council overlaps in relation to the regulation of care homes; whether she expects there to be overlapping responsibilities following implementation of her Department's proposals for registration of care workers; and what plans she has to establish (a) a single body and (b) a single access point for the inspection and regulation of care homes and their staff. [80687]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI), as the statutory regulator of care homes, has overall responsibility for registering, inspecting and regulating homes, including inspecting against national minimum standards and the Care Homes Regulations. It is the only organisation of those referred to which has statutory responsibility for the inspection and regulation of care homes.

As part of its inspection work, CSCI will ensure that the necessary Criminal Records Bureau and protection of vulnerable adults scheme checks on care home staff have been carried out and that staff and the registered provider are appropriately trained, which will include meeting requirements, such as the registration of care workers, laid down by bodies such as the General Social Care Council.

My right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced in his Budget statement made on 16 March 2005 that CSCI and the Healthcare Commission will merge to form a single inspectorate for health and social care. The planned merger reflects increasingly close collaboration on the ground between people working in these two fields. It also reflects shared objectives for the highest possible standards for everyone using these services. The merger is part of a wider policy to improve regulation and help reduce the burden that it can place on the front line across health and social care. The intention is that the merger will take place in 2008.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the compact with the voluntary sector applies to care homes. [79648]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Compact on relations between Government and the voluntary and community sector in England (the compact), first introduced in 1998, is the framework agreement for how the Government and the sector should work together. The compact is the agreement between Government and the voluntary and community sector in England to improve their relationship for mutual advantage. It applies to care homes in the voluntary sector only.

By building better relationships, the compact can help Government and the voluntary and community sector work better together for the communities they serve. It operates on a voluntary basis but commitment is strong:

at the national level, it applies to Departments, their executive agencies, Government offices for the regions, non-departmental public bodies and voluntary and community sector (VCS) organisations; and at the local level, local compacts adapt the national framework to suit local circumstances and are an important means to increase understanding between the public sector and the VCS. To date, 98 per cent. of local authority areas have local compacts agreed or being developed.

The Government are strongly committed to creating a framework in which the sector can continue to flourish, be strong and independent.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate she has made of the average cost to care homes of mandatory regulation and inspection in the last period for which figures are available. [79675]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The cost to care homes of statutory regulation and inspection are contained in The Commission for Social Care Inspection (Fees and Frequency of Inspections) Regulations 2004, copies of which are available in the Library.

Chiropody

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has (a) to extend regulation of chiropodists and podiatrists to cover all foot health practitioners who use the techniques of chiropody and (b) to prevent foot health practitioners advertising their services as chiropody services. [81081]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 29 June 2006]: Extension of statutory regulation to groups not currently regulated is being considered as part of a review of regulation. We will publish our decisions on the outcome of the review when ready. Under the Health Professions Order 2001, it is an offence for anyone falsely to represent himself as registered by the Health Professions Council in one of the professions regulated by it, to use a title to which he is not entitled or falsely to represent himself to possess qualifications in a relevant profession. The relevant professions include chiropody and podiatry.

Cochlear Implant Treatment

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) children and (b) adults were provided with cochlear implant treatment in (i) England and (ii) Scotland over the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [82295]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The number of children and adults who were provided with cochlear implants in England, per capita, between 2000-01 and 2004-05 is shown in the table. The figures for 2004-05 are the most recent available.

The Department does not collect data on health services in Scotland.

Notes:
1. All operations count of episodes These figures represent a count of all finished consultant episodes (FCEs) where the procedure was mentioned in any of the 12 (four prior to 2002-03) operation fields in a HES record. A record is only included once in each count, even if an operation is mentioned in more than one operation field of the record.
2. Finished consultant episode (FCE) An FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Please note that the figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year.
3. Main operation The main operation is the first recorded operation in the hospital episode statistics (HES) data set and is usually the most resource intensive procedure performed during the episode. It is appropriate to use main operation when looking at admission details, for example time waited, but the figures for "all operations count of episodes" give a more complete count of episodes with an operation.
4. Secondary procedure As well as the main operative procedure there are up to 11 (three prior to 2002-03) secondary operation fields in HES that show secondary or additional procedures performed on the patient during the episode of care.
5. Ungrossed data Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (ie the data are ungrossed).

Consultants

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will list the companies which were paid consultancy fees by her Department in 2005-06; how much each was paid; and what each of the companies was used to accomplish. [69693]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not collect centrally information that would allow the analysis requested and to obtain this information would incur disproportionate costs.

Correspondence

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average cost to her Department was of replying to a letter written (a) by an hon. Member and (b) by a member of the public in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down into (i) officials' time, (ii) cost of stationery and (iii) postage costs. [80485]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members/ Peers correspondence. The report for 2005 was given in a written ministerial statement on 30 March 2006, Official Report, columns 76-78W.

The information requested is not recorded and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

DHL/Novation

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she made of DHL/Novation's operations in the US, before awarding the company contracts to supply the NHS, with particular reference to US Justice Department investigations. [73192]

Andy Burnham: In relation to the outsourcing of NHS Logistics and related procurement activities the Department has looked into these allegations and, having taken legal advice, is satisfied that there is no reason to reconsider Novation's position.

Subject to the final negotiations, a contract will be awarded to DHL by the end of the summer. Novation will be a subcontractor to DHL and provide the procurement expertise and support for the enterprise.

Egg Imports (Salmonella)

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment she has made of the possible risk to (a) domestic consumers and (b) customers of the catering industry arising from the consumption of hens' eggs imported from countries with high levels of Salmonella infection in flocks; and if she will make a statement. [79206]

Caroline Flint: All Grade A table eggs from any source, if they are handled, stored and cooked properly, pose very little risk to the consumer. Eggs from overseas contribute only to a small percentage of the United Kingdom egg market.

To assess the risk associated with such eggs, the Food Standards Agency (FSA) is carrying out a survey of eggs sourced from outside the UK and on retail sale in Britain. We have also been monitoring the levels of Salmonella in eggs being used in the catering trade. When these surveys are completed the FSA will have a better understanding of the risk associated with the presence of Salmonella in layer flocks. A recent European Union survey of layer flocks has highlighted countries with high levels of Salmonella infection in flocks and of th0se only Spain is a significant exporter of eggs to the UK. Therefore, we are talking to the European Commission and with member states to see what further action can be taken, in the light of the results from the layer flock survey, that will further protect consumers.

Freedom of Information

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consideration is being given to designating private companies providing personal medical services through the alternative provider medical service arrangements as public authorities within the meaning of section 5 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [79260]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: No consideration has been given to designating private companies providing personal medical services through the alternative provider medical service arrangements as public authorities within the meaning of section 5 of the Freedom of Information Act.

No bodies have been designated as public authorities by order under section 5.

Health and Social Care Awards

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the Health and Social Care awards are funded by her Department. [79625]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The awards are jointly funded by the Department and the NHS Institute for Innovation and Improvement.

These awards encourage and recognise good practice across the national health service and social care service. Awards winners are supported by the NHS Institute for Innovation and Improvement to encourage the spread of good practice.

Infant Formula Regulations

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when she plans to review the Infant Formula and Follow-on Formula Regulations 1995; and if she will make a statement. [82289]

Caroline Flint: The Department intends to review later this year, in conjunction with the Food Standards Agency, the United Kingdom regulations on infant formula and follow-on formula advertising. This is in line with the commitment set out in the "Choosing Health: Making healthy choices easier" White Paper.

Legislation

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which private Members' Bills were drafted by her Department in each session since 1997; and which of those received Royal Assent. [77513]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Members will consider a range of possible subjects before introducing their private Members' Bills.

Government draftsmen do draft some Bills in advance which are available as one of the options for Members to consider before they make their selection.

However, Members may make subsequent amendments or revisions to a Government-drafted Bill, or use it as the basis for a private Members's Bill in the future.

Maternity Services

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance her Department gives to (a) primary care and (b) hospital trusts on the level of provision of maternity wards; and if she will make a statement. [81776]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for local primary care and hospital trusts to determine the appropriate level of provision of maternity services in their area.

The maternity standard of the national service framework for children, young people and maternity services sets out the Government's vision for women to have easy access to supportive, high-quality maternity services, designed around their individual needs and those of their babies. It asks all national health service maternity care providers and primary care trusts to plan the provision of maternity services based on an up-to-date assessment of the needs of the local population and involving service users.

New Technologies

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of the Department's budget was spent on researching new technologies in the last period for which figures are available. [76801]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Under- Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, responsible for employment relations, on Wednesday 21 June, Official Report, column 1882W.

NHS

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will take steps to ensure that no organisation which has been indicted or forced to repay the US taxpayer for fraud will be permitted to have a role in the NHS. [81341]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 29 June 2006]: In securing goods and services for the national health service, the Department is subject to all public procurement regulations when considering the letting of contracts. The rules compel the Department to advertise, negotiate and award any proposed contract in accordance with the legal procedure set out in the regulations. This will ensure that the process is open and honest and upholds the integrity of the Department.

The regulations require that as part of the due diligence all participating organisations must complete a pre-qualification questionnaire to ensure that they are suitable to play a role in the NHS.

NHS Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans she has to monitor NHS expenditure on complementary and alternative medicines. [80164]

Caroline Flint: The Government consider that decision-making on individual clinical interventions, using either complementary or more orthodox treatments, is a matter for local national health service providers and practitioners. There are therefore no centrally held records monitoring overall NHS expenditure on complementary and alternative medicines and there are no current plans to change this.

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what costs have been incurred through the replacement of the North Yorkshire, West Yorkshire and South Yorkshire strategic health authorities with the Yorkshire and Humber strategic health authority; and how much of this sum was accounted for by costs of (a) administration, (b) building relocation, (c) re-branding (d) training events and (e) human resources, including hiring new staff. [80267]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 26 June 2006]: The costs of the changes that were announced on the 16 May will depend on a number of factors. New arrangements are currently being developed and discussed with trade unions and staff. Until those discussions have been concluded and the detail of new arrangements agreed it is not possible to confirm or accurately forecast costs. Overall, the changes will free up money to improve front-line services over time.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if she will be accountable for the breaking even of budgets in (a) University College of London Hospital and (b) the Foundation Trust sector. [80785]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: National health service foundation trusts (NHSFTs) are independent public benefit corporations. The board of directors of each NHSFT is responsible for the performance and success of their organisation. They are subject to a rigorous and transparent regulatory regime operated by Monitor, whose statutory name is the independent regulator of NHSFTs.

I am informed by the chairman of Monitor that, on 31 May of each year, NHSFTs are required to submit forward planning information to Monitor. Once it has completed its analysis of the annual plans for the 2006-07 financial year, Monitor will assign financial risk ratings that will guide the intensity of its in-year monitoring. The risk ratings, together with the 2006-07 annual plans for each of the 40 NHSFTs, are due to be published on Monitor's website in September 2006 at www.monitor-nhsft.gov.uk.

NHSFTs with poor financial risk ratings are required by Monitor to prepare and deliver effective plans for financial recovery. University College London Hospital NHS Foundation Trust, which had a deficit of £35.9 million in the 2005-06 financial year, is implementing a financial recovery plan that will return it to break-even by the 2007-08 financial year.

NHS Performance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to her oral statement of 7 June 2006, Official Report, column 258, on NHS performance, on what basis her assertion was made that the letter from my right hon. Friend the Member for Witney (Mr. Cameron) of 18 May called for the wiping out of deficits in NHS organisations in Oxfordshire. [80795]

Caroline Flint: The assertion was based on the following line in the right hon. Member's letter of 18 May:

"The debt crippling our health services could be wiped out if Oxfordshire's NHS were funded at the national average."

Obesity

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of (a) children and (b) adults are (i) obese and (ii) overweight when measured by body mass index according to the Government's most recent health survey figures in (A) Bury St. Edmunds constituency, (B) Suffolk county council area, (C) the East of England and (D) England. [79393]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 22 June 2006, Official Report, columns 2104-05W to the hon. Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson).

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the cost was of (a) producing the "Obesity care pathway and weight loss guide" booklets and (b) sending them to the recipients; [80185]

(2) how the effectiveness of the "Obesity care pathway and weight loss guide" booklets will be measured. [80186]

Caroline Flint: To date, the Department has spent £198,000 on producing the "Obesity care pathway and weight loss guide" booklets and £27,751 in sending these materials to the recipients.

The Department intends to evaluate the effectiveness of the "Obesity care pathway and the weight loss guide" booklets early next year. The detailed process and methodology of the evaluation are currently under consideration.

Older People

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures she is taking to ensure the effective implementation of the national service framework for older people for those with sensory impairment; and if she will make a statement. [81072]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A work stream focusing on vision and hearing services for older people is included as part of the implementation programme for the Department's recently published report "A new ambition for old age: Next steps in implementing the National Service Framework for Older People". This work will tie in with the Department's wider 'Healthy Ageing' programme.

Ophthalmic Treatments

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) cataract and (b) non-cataract ophthalmic operations were carried out in NHS hospitals and clinics in each year since 1997. [79589]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 23 June 2006]: The table shows the number of finished consultant episodes for ophthalmic operations that took place in national health service hospitals in England in each year since 1997.

	Cataract operations	Other ophthalmic operations
1997-98	163,885	181,174
1998-99	204,074	195,145
1999-2000	213,769	194,568
2000-01	239,625	187,623
2001-02	250,035	179,323
2002-03	272,395	176,553
2003-04	301,667	175,981
2004-05	309,552	180,700

Notes:
1. Finished consultant episode (FCE) A FCE is defined as a period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. The figures do not represent the number of patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the year.
2. All operations count of episodes These figures represent a count of all FCEs where the procedure was mentioned in any of the 12 (four prior to 2002-03) operation fields in a hospital episodes statistics record. A record is only included once in each count, even if an operation is mentioned in more than one operation field of the record.
3. Ungrossed data Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data; that is the data is ungrossed.

Primary Care Trusts

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to the letter of 10 May 2006 from the acting chief executive of the NHS on the Operating Framework for 2006-07, Gateway reference 6509, whether all contracts between primary care trusts and providers setting out agreed service requirements and shared activity plans have been signed. [80790]

Andy Burnham: The information requested is not held centrally.

Private Sector Contracts

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many routine operations have been performed by the private sector for NHS patients in each year since 1997. [61721]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information is not available relating to operations commissioned locally from the private sector. Information on the number of elective procedures performed by centrally procured independent sector schemes from 2003-04 is shown in the table.

Prostate Cancer

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment her Department has made of the efficacy of the use of Docetaxel in the treatment of prostate cancer. [79414]

Andy Burnham: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has conducted an appraisal of Docetaxel for the treatment of hormone refractory prostate cancer and published its guidance to the national health service on 28 June

Recombinant Factor VII

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health, pursuant to the answer of 3 May 2006, Official Report, column 1708W, on recombinant factor VII, what funding her Department is providing for 2006-07; and what funding will be made available for 2007-08 and beyond. [75194]

Caroline Flint: For 2006-07, the moneys previously included within central budgets for allocation to the national health service have now been included as a block sum for strategic health authorities to manage. To ensure that the desired outcomes are achieved this is accompanied by a service level agreement.

We are committed to this area of patient treatment and continue to consider the long-term funding implications.

Residential Care

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many adults were placed in residential care out of area in the last year for which figures are available; and what proportion of state-funded placements this figure represented. [81686]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The number of adult supported residents placed outside their local authority in England was 48,900 at 31 March 2005. This represented 18 per cent. of the total council supported residents in England.

Severalls Hospital, Colchester

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the former Severalls Hospital at Colchester will be put on the market for sale; and when she expects the sale to be completed. [77864]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The former Severalls Hospital was included in the portfolio of 96 sites acquired by English Partnerships on 6 April 2005 from the Department of Health. I understand English Partnerships anticipates marketing the site in September/October of this year with a view to completing a sale by the summer of 2007.

Stem Cell Research

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) human embryo and (b) embryonic stem cell research projects are being supported from public funds; at which research establishments such research is being conducted; how much has been allocated annually to each project; and which researcher is in charge of each project. [81282]

Andy Burnham: This information is not collected centrally.

Waiting Lists/Times

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of patients admitted to out-patient waiting lists by their general practitioner were seen within 13 weeks in each year since 1990. [80786]

Andy Burnham: The figures are shown in the table. Commissioner-based out-patient waiting times figures are only available from June 1997.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Central Office of Information

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to the written statement of 22 May 2006, Official Report, column 97WS, on Central Office of Information for performance targets 2006-07, which official is responsible for progress on each of the targets; to whom each person reports; what recent discussions she has had about implementation of each target; what contingency plans are in place in the event that any target is not met; and if she will make a statement. [81174]

Mr. McFadden: Alan Bishop, the chief executive of the Central Office of Information (COI) is responsible for progress on each of the targets and he reports to the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

The targets to be set were discussed between myself and Mr. Bishop, in the context of COI's business planning for 2006-07.

Mr. Bishop, together with the management board that he has appointed, reviews progress against the targets on a regular (at least monthly) basis and implements corrective action, should it be needed.

Mr. Bishop reports progress to me during regular meetings.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what draft Bills have been produced by her Department since October 2005; how many were (a) examined and (b) are planned to be examined by (i) a departmental Select Committee and (ii) a Joint Committee; what draft Bills are still to be produced by her Department; when they are to be published; how many clauses each has; and if she will make a statement. [81255]

Hilary Armstrong: None.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if she will list deposited papers placed in the Library by her Department since 2000; and when each was published. [81258]

Hilary Armstrong: This information is not collected.

Departmental Staff

David Simpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, pursuant to the answer of 6 June 2005, Official Report, column 545W, on departmental staff, why information on the number of staff whose performance has been assessed as unsatisfactory is not available for periods before 1 June 2005. [80759]

Mr. McFadden: On 1 June 2005 the Department established a central database to record all types of personal cases including those staff whose performance had been assessed as unsatisfactory.

Central records prior to that date only show the number of staff who were dismissed owing to unsatisfactory performance. It did not record those unsatisfactory performers who improved and subsequently reached a satisfactory standard.

GovNet Expo 2006

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the cost is to her Department of supporting GovNet Expo 2006. [79219]

Mr. McFadden: The National School of Government will be exhibiting at the event at a cost of £6,000 and VAT.

Speakers from the Cabinet Office and the National School of Government will also be participating in the event at no cost.

Ministerial Responsibilities

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what responsibility she has for (a) communities, (b) civic renewal and (c) the Respect agenda. [78296]

Hilary Armstrong: As the Minister for dealing with social exclusion in the Cabinet Office, I have a strategic role in overseeing Government activity and supporting other Departments across all these areas. This is in the context of tackling persistent social exclusion and delivering social justice, which is an over-arching challenge facing Government and cuts across the boundaries of any individual Department.

I am chairing a new Cabinet Committee on Social Exclusion and will be supported by a new Social Exclusion Task Force in the Cabinet Office. Under these auspices the Government will publish an action plan in the autumn setting out policies to reach the most excluded people in society, which will be driven forward by the Task Force.

The Task Force will support the work of the Home Office Respect Unit in delivering the cross-Government Respect agenda, and will complement the leading role of the Department for Communities and Local Government in delivering policies around civil renewal and community cohesion.

A new Office of the Third Sector is being set up in the Cabinet Office, led by, the Parliamentary Secretary, my hon. Friend the Member for Doncaster, North (Edward Miliband), reporting to me. This draws together different parts of Whitehall that deal with voluntary and community sector organisations and social enterprises, strengthening the Government's approach to the sector.

Public Pensions (Transferability)

Anne Milton: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what measures the Government have put in place to assist pension transferability of public pensions for personnel working in Government Departments and agencies who are members of the Civil Service pension scheme. [79768]

Mr. McFadden: All public service pension schemes pay cash equivalent transfer values to other pension schemes in respect of accrued rights in compliance with pensions law. Under the Fair Deal for Staff Pensions there is a requirement to transfer pension rights when employments are transferred to the private sector under public private partnerships/public finance initiatives and subsequent transfers for former public servants. Public service pension scheme members can also transfer accrued pension rights by way of the public sector transfer club. The club is a network of public and private-sector occupational pension schemes which makes it easier for employees who move between employers covered by separate participating schemes to transfer their accrued pension rights.

Transformational Government

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether the Government plan to include transformational government in the senior civil service competency framework. [80371]

Mr. McFadden: The Cabinet Secretary launched a new leadership framework for the senior civil service (SCS) on 13 March this year as part of the Professional Skills for Government (PSG) programme. The new framework emphasises the need to deliver results that meet the needs of citizens and customers, to build organisational capability through cultivating innovation and to provide direction, seizing opportunities for improvement. PSG also prescribes core skills for the SCS including programme and project management, strategic thinking—including the potential impact of information and communication technology—and communications. All of these skills will be key to ensuring that the SCS provides effective leadership for transformational government.

The PSG framework requires members of the SCS to meet additional skills criteria relevant to their area of professional expertise. For IT professionals within the SCS, nine additional skills critical to the successful delivery of large-scale IT-enabled change have been identified in areas such as the development of strategic relationships, management of risk and commercial management.

Youth and Community Service

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what progress there has been in setting up the National Youth and Community Service. [79403]

Edward Miliband: Following the recommendations of the Russell Commission, the Russell Commission Implementation Body established the new charity, v, which was launched on Monday 8 May 2006. It aims to engage and inspire one million more young volunteers within five years.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Carbon Emissions

Chris Huhne: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, what recent estimate has been made of the carbon emissions of the House of Commons; what commitment has been made to reducing such emissions; and if he will make a statement. [81121]

Nick Harvey: The total quantity of carbon emissions produced on or attributable to the House of Commons element of the estate is estimated at 2,800 tonnes, 60 per cent. of the 4,700 tonnes produced on the Parliamentary Estate during 2005-06.

The House of Commons, together with the House of Lords, has recently adopted a new energy and water savings policy. Features of the new policy include:

£30,000 is being invested annually in energy and water efficiency initiatives;

The Parliamentary Estates Directorate is participating in Whitehall combined heat and power schemes;

Energy and water audits are used when assessing all proposed new building projects;

Efficient appliances, materials and methods will be used when undertaking new works, repairs and maintenance to buildings;

A target 10 per cent. of electricity to be sourced from renewable sources has been set and has already been met;

A system for energy and water monitoring has been established. This will allow progress against agreed targets to be assessed for the estate as a whole, and for each building. Regular feedback on progress and achievements against targets will be provided to the Energy Savers Group, senior management and appropriate committees;

Members of staff in each departmental office in the two Houses are involved in energy and water management as nominated Energy Savers;

The awareness of occupants of the Palace is being raised through energy and water saving campaigns. A series of sustainability seminars has been organised by the Parliamentary Estates Directorate;

Staff are encouraged to contribute ideas and suggestions for improving energy and water efficiency, maintain interest, learn from failures and promote success;

Consultants are considering the utilisation of renewable energy systems on the parliamentary estate.

Environmental Management

Chris Huhne: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, whether the House of Commons (a) is committed to the achievement of environmental management to ISO 14001 standard and (b) has been externally certified as being in compliance with that standard; and if he will make a statement. [81062]

Nick Harvey: The House of Commons has not been externally certified as being in compliance with ISO 14001 standard. The House of Commons Board of Management will be considering the implications of seeking to meet ISO 14001 standard and EMAS accreditation in the autumn. The forthcoming Commission Annual Report (to be published on 12 July) will contain an environmental report.

Officers of the House (Accommodation)

Mr. Dismore: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2006, Official Report, column 1574W, on Officers of the House (Accommodation), what accommodation is made available to the (a) Clerk of the House, (b) Serjeant at Arms and (c) Speaker's Secretary; what the market value of the property is in each case; and if he will make a statement. [81171]

Nick Harvey: The accommodation provided for the Clerk of the House, Serjeant at Arms and the Speaker's Secretary is integral to the parliamentary estate and therefore would not be saleable on the open market. The values shown are those estimated by the Valuation Office Agency:

The Clerk of the House: 3 Parliament Street: £2,825,000

The Serjeant at Arms: 2 Parliament Street: £2,200,000

The Speaker's Secretary: 4 Canon Row: £1,625,000.

Security

Mr. Amess: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, pursuant to the answer of 19 June 2006, Official Report, column 1574W, on security, at which other posts there is limited protection from the elements; and if he will make a statement. [80938]

Nick Harvey: The previous answer referred to comparable security posts generally. There are none on the parliamentary estate.

Shared Office Accommodation

Mr. Dismore: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission, how many hon. Members are in shared office accommodation. [81503]

Nick Harvey: 29 Members are sharing offices with other Members. Of these, 23 Members are occupying accommodation designated for multiple occupancy. A further six Members have chosen to share offices in order to provide accommodation for members of their staff.

TREASURY

Bank Accounts (Identity Checks)

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with (a) the Financial Services Authority and (b) banks on the standard of proof of identity required for people to open a basic bank account. [81707]

Ed Balls: Treasury Ministers and officials have discussions with a wide range of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy analysis, development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such discussions.

Capital Gains Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue implications of replacing capital gains tax taper relief with indexation linked to the consumer prices index; and if he will make a statement. [80663]

Dawn Primarolo: The broad estimate of the revenue implications of replacing capital gains tax taper relief with indexation for 2006-07 is a revenue gain of £2 billion.

The figures are consistent with the assumptions made in Budget 2006 on future asset prices, and take into account the likely taxpayer behavioural responses to the tax change. It has been assumed that taper relief would be replaced completely by indexation and that any taxpayer disposing of an asset from 2006-07 onwards would get indexation relief for the duration of the investment.

Command Papers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will list the unnumbered command papers produced by his Department in each session since 1976; by what means (a) hon. Members and (b) members of the public can (i) inspect and (ii) obtain copies; and if he will make a statement. [81252]

John Healey: All command papers presented to the House of Commons are recorded in the Commons Journal and are available in the Library of the House. Papers in the numbered series are printed by The Stationery Office, from whom copies are obtainable. Unnumbered papers presented by Treasury Ministers are available from the Treasury.

Company Directors

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of company directors drawing salary in dividend form in each year since 2001-02; and if he will make a statement. [81146]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of company directors recorded on self-assessment returns and the number reporting any dividend income in each available year since 2001-02 are given in the following table.

	Number of company directors	Of which: number with dividend income
2001-02	770,000	460,000
2002-03	790,000	490,000
2003-04	910,000	600,000
2004-05	970,000	630,000

The information on the tax return does not distinguish between dividend ncome from the director's own company and amounts derived from investments in other companies.

Corporation Tax

Lady Hermon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to reduce corporation tax in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [81820]

Dawn Primarolo: The corporation tax regime is a UK-wide system and introducing different rates in one part of the UK could distort competition.

Many companies trade in different regions of the UK. It would not be easy to determine the proportion of their profits liable at a "devolved" rate. In addition, such a measure could create opportunities for some companies to manipulate the rules in order to benefit from the lower rate. That might well result in a system that would place a significant administrative burden on both businesses and the Government.

Customs (Cornwall)

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment has been made of the possible effects of the withdrawal of front-line customs staff in Cornwall on the import of illegal goods; and if he will make a statement. [81095]

Dawn Primarolo: HM Revenue and Customs deploys resource in line with intelligence and risk assessments in order to maximise the impact on criminal activity at the frontier.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many firearms were seized by customs staff in Cornwall in each year since 1997. [81096]

Dawn Primarolo: Information for firearms seizures made by HM Revenue and Customs since 2000 is contained in the annual reports for HM Customs and Excise and HM Revenue and Customs. The figures for the year ending 31 March 2006 will be published in the next annual report.

More detailed information is not available as disclosure of results at specific locations would provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent HM Revenue and Customs' controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of crime.

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment has been made of staff retention among customs officers based in Cornwall. [81098]

Dawn Primarolo: No specific assessment has been made of staff retention among customs officers based in Cornwall.

Financial Services Authority

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what percentage of the Financial Services Authority's staff left the Authority in each of the last five financial years; and what the total cost of (a) redundancy and other severance payments and (b) the recruitment of replacement staff was in each year; [81330]

(2) Howmany IT-related contracts in excess of 153,000 euros, including contracts with external consultants or contractors, have been awarded by the Financial Services Authority in each of the last four financial years; and how many and what total value of such contracts were awarded with no competitive tender in each year; [81331]

(3) what the budgeted cost set out in the original programme business case was of completing the IT outsourcing programme at the Financial Services Authority; [81332]

(4) how many external contractors and consultants employed by the Financial Services Authority's IT division over the last 24 months have been supplied by employment agencies on the FSA's preferred supplier list; how many have been supplied by employment agencies on the S-CAT register; and how many have been supplied by employment agencies that are neither on the FSA preferred supplier list nor on the S-CAT register. [81333]

Ed Balls: These are operational matters for the FSA. The chairman of the FSA will write to the hon. Member directly.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the extent to which the Government-required project methodology and control is in use on projects and programmes within the Financial Services Authority. [81334]

Ed Balls: The FSA is operationally independent of the Government. However, I understand that the FSA has chosen to base its IS development lifecycleon the PRINCE II methodology and iscurrently working to align this approach with the recommendations of the OGC gateway process.

Gold Bullion (Estonia)

Mr. Arbuthnot: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date the British Government returned gold bullion to Estonia which had been deposited by the Estonian Government before the Soviet invasion of Estonia. [77720]

Mr. Hoon: I have been asked to reply.

The Government returned gold bullion to Estonia on 31 March 1992.

Home Births

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many home births there were (a) in total and (b) as a percentage of all births in (i) England and (ii) Forest of Dean constituency in each year since 1997. [81755]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 3 July 2006:

As the National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about how many home births there were (a) in total and (b) as a percentage of all births in (i) England and (ii) Forest of Dean constituency in each year since 1997 (81755)

Hospital Infections

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many deaths were recorded where (a) clostridium difficile-associated disease, (b) MRSA, (c) vancomycin resistant enterococci, (d) multi-resistant acinetobacter spp and (e) penicillin-resistant streptococcus pneumoniae was mentioned on the death certificate in the last year for which figures are available; and in how many cases it was also the underlying cause of death. [81691]

John Healey: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the National Statistician, who has been asked to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 3 July 2006:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many deaths have been recorded where (a) clostridium difficile associated disease, (b) MRSA, (c) vancomycin resistant enterococci, (d) multi-resistant acinetobacter spp and (e) penicillin resistant streptococcus pneumoniae was mentioned on the death certificate for the last year for which figures are available; and in how many cases it was the underlying cause of death. (81691)

The most recently available information is for deaths in 2004 in England and Wales. Figures for Clostridium difficile were published in an annual report in Health Statistics Quarterly 30 on 27 May 2006[1] and figures for MRSA were published in an annual report in Health Statistics Quarterly 29 on 26 February 2006[2]. Figures for vancomycin resistant enterococci and multi-resistant acinetobacter spp are not available from routine death certification data. These are laboratory classifications of micro organisms, details of which are rarely used in describing the illnesses from which patients suffer or die.

Figures on the number of deaths involving Streptococcus pneumoniae are given in the table below for the calendar year 2004.

Numbers of deaths where Streptococcus pneumoniae was mentioned on the death certificate and the number where it was specified as penicillin resistant and the number of these mentions where it was also the underlying cause of death[1], England and Wales, 2004[2]

Inheritance Tax

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the cost to the Exchequer of (a) a 20 per cent. marginal rate band under £500,000 and (b) a £500,000 allowance for inheritance tax for each year to 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [80664]
